Thirdly, The Lutheran Church, known commonly by the Name of the Swedes Church, tho' supported chiefly by the Hamburgh Merchants, is built upon the Site of the little Parish-Church of the Holy Trinity in Little Trinity-lane.

Lutheran Church.

The converting of this Trinity Church into a Church for Protestant Foreigners, called Lutherans, is founded upon the King's Letters Patents, dated the thirteenth of September, 24 Car. II. to Theodore Jacobson, and five other Gentlemen more, named in the Patent, and to their Heirs and Assigns, by the Consent and Approbation of the then Archbishop of Canterbury, Bishop of London, and Lord-Mayor: Free Liberty being granted them to cause a Temple to be erected on the Ruins where the Church of the Holy Trinity, before the Fire of London, stood; which Ground they had purchased of the City of London, for the free Exercise of the Augustan Confession in the German Tongue; with divers other Powers and Authorities mentioned in the said Letters Patents. And according to those Powers granted to the Patentees, they made several Orders or Laws for the better regulating of themselves, and for the Good of the said Congregation.

Theodore Jacobson being antient, by Indenture dated the twenty-seventh of Jan. 1702-3, by Advice of able Counsel, conveyed all the said Rights and Powers unto fourteen Persons more, of known Honesty and Ability, and of the same Congregation, and their Heirs; upon the Trust, and to the Intents and Purposes in the Letters Patents mentioned. These, for the Good of the Church, as they pretended, altered some of the former Laws and Orders, and made others in their Room. Whereat the Minister and four or five more of the Congregation were displeased; and they caused a Meeting to be held at the said Temple, the fifth of May, 1703. And there, without Authority from the Trustees, but rather in Opposition to them, elected twelve Persons, under the Denomination of Deacons. And with these pretended Deacons the said Minister thwarted the intended good Designs of the Trustees.

Fourthly, The Harbour of Queen-hithe, antiently known by the Name of Edred's-hithe, in Thames-street, with two Passages to it out of the City, one down Little-Trinity-lane, the other down Huggen-lane, is a large Receptacle for Ships, Lighters, Barges, and such other Vessels. Touching the Antiquity and Use of this Gate and Hithe; first I find, that of old Time the same belonged to one named Edred, and was then called Edred's-hithe. Which since falling into the Hands of King Stephen, it was by his Charter confirmed to Will. de Ypre. The Farm thereof in Fee and in Heritage, Will. de Ypre gave it unto the Prior and Convent of the Holy Trinity within Aldgate, as appeareth by this Charter:

"To Theobald, by the Grace of God Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of England, and Legate Apostolike; to the Bishop of London, and to all faithfull People, Clerkes and Laymen, William de Ypre sendeth greeting. Know ye me to have given and granted unto God, and to the Church of the Holy Trinity of London, to the Prior and Canons there serving God, in perpetual Alms, Edred's Hithe, with the Appurtenances: With such Devotion, that they shall send every Yeere twenty Pounds unto the Maintenance of the Hospitall of Katharine's, which Hospital they have in their Hands; and one hundred Shillings to the Monkes of Berdmonsey, and fixty Shillings to the Brethren of the Hospitall of Saint Giles. And that which remaineth, the said Prior and Canons shall enjoy to themselves. Witnesses, Richard de Lucia, Raphe Bigot, or Picot, &c."

This Edred's Hithe, after the aforesaid Grants, came again into the King's Hands, by what means I have not read.

And in the sixth Year of Henry III. being then called Ripa Regine, he granted it to Richard de Ripary, i. e. Rivers. And in the tenth of his Reign he granted it to Thomas Cirencestræ ad placitum Regis; i. e. To Thomas Cirencester at the King's Pleasure.

But it pertained unto the Queen, and therefore was called Ripa Regine, the Queen's Bank, or Queen's Hithe; and great Profit was made to her Use, as may appear by this which followeth:

King Henry III. in the ninth of his Reign, commanded the Constable of the Tower of London to arrest the Ships of the Cinque Ports, on the River of Thames, and to compel them to bring their Corn to no other Place, but to the Queen's Hithe only.

The same Year, viz. 9 Hen. III. the said Constable was required to arrest the said Ships in the Thames, to carry their Corn only to the Ports of the Realm. The Words are, De blado non cariendo nisi ad portus Regni.

In the eleventh Year of his Reign, he charged the said Constable to distrain any Fish offered to be sold in any Place of this City, but at the Queen's Hithe.

The Words of the Record are, Distringat eos, qui ducunt piscem venalem in Navibus usq; London. & remanent trans Pontem London. ex parte Turris, ad ducendum dict. piscem usq; Hitham. The Constable was to compel or force them who brought Fish in Boats to London, to sell, not to remain on this Side the Bridge near the Tower, but to see them conveyed to Queen-hithe. And again in the tenth of that King, Ducet [Constabularius Turris] piscem venalem venientem ap. London. ad Ripam Regine.

Moreover, in the twenty-eighth of the said King's Reign, an Inquisition was made before William of York, Provost of Beverley, Henry of Bath, and Hierome of Caxton, Justices Itinerants, sitting in the Tower of London, touching the Customs of Queen-hithe, observed in the Year last before the Wars between the King his Father, and the Barons of England; and of old Customs of other Times. And what Customs had been changed, at what Time the Tax and Payment of all Things coming thither; and between Woorepath, and Anedebethe, were found and seized, according to the old Order; as well Corn and Fish, as of other Things. All which Customs were as well to be observed in the Part of Dowgate, as in Queen-hithe, for the King's Use. When also it was found, that the Corn arriving between the Gate of the Guildhall of the Merchants of Coleyne, and the Soke of the Archbishop of Canterbury, (for he had a House near unto the Black-friars) was not to be measured by any other Quarter, than by that of the Queen's Soke.

After this, the Bailiffs of the said Hithe complained, that, since the said Recognition, fourteen foreign Ships, laden with Fish, arrived at Billingsgate, which Ships should have arrived at the said Hithe. And therefore it was ordered, that if any foreign Ship, laden with Fish, should in Form aforesaid arrive elsewhere than at this Hithe, it should be at the King's Pleasure to amerce them at 40 s. Notwithstanding, the Ships of the Citizens of London were at liberty to arrive where the Owners would appoint them.

All this Inquisition before the King's Justices Itinerants, 28 Hen. III. concerning Queen-hithe, being set down very imperfectly and obscurely, I shall here more fully and exactly relate it, as it stands in the Books of the Chamber:

"Dominus Rex mandavit, &c. i. e. Our Lord the King, (Henry III.) commanded Lord William de Eboraco, Provost of Beverley, and Henry

" Henry of Bath, and Jeremiab de Caxton, his Fellow Justices Itinerants at the Tower of London, in the 28th Year of the Reign of the said Henry, Son of King John, that with all Diligence, and by all the Ways they could, they cause Inquiry to be made, what Customs belonged to the Queen's Hithe, London; the Year next before the War moved between the Lord John, his Father, and his Barons of England. And when it shall appear to them concerning those Customs, and others, which belonged to the aforesaid Hithe, and which were afterwards changed and alienated, they labour, with all Solicitude and Carefulness they can, to reform the said Hithe to its due State. And that the Customs in the same be held, which were wont to be held in the Time foresaid.

" Before which Provost and Justices it was convicted by the Mayor and Aldermen of the City, that in the Time aforesaid were three Customs belonging to the foresaid Hithe; to wit:

* Sippa.

Memo-
rand.
That Worepeth, or Worepath, is in East Part of the Fleete of Barking, about seven Miles from London; and Ane-deheth is near Westminster on the West Part of London.

" Of every Sieve * (that is a Measure containing five Quarters) of Salt, that shall belong to a Man that is a Foreigner, or to any one of the five Ports, and shall land and come, wheresoever it be within Worepeth, and Ane-deheth, or beyond, 2 d. at the Farm of the said Hithe.

" Also, if any Citizen of London have Part in the same Sieve of Salt, he shall give nothing of his Portion: But the Residue that belongs to Strangers shall give Custom according to the Quantity of Ware.

" Also, if any bring from abroad Herring, Corn, or such like, together with Salt, in one Ship, it hath been lawful for the Queen's Bailiff to take a Part of the foresaid Catal.

" Also, if any from abroad, and also from the five Ports, come with Salmon, if he shall bring an hundred, or more, he shall give two Salmons to the Queen's Farm.

" And if he shall land them in the Queen's Soke, he shall give one of the best, and one of the middling Sort.

" And if he shall bring less than an hundred, he shall give according to the Quantity of the Thing, to the fourth Part.

" And if he shall bring less than the fourth Part, he shall give nothing but Standage.

" Also, of Salt Mulvel [a kind of Fish] the same Custom is to be taken at the Queen's Farm in the same Soke, which the Sheriff takes for the King's Use at Billingsgate.

" Also, if a Stranger, and also any for the five Ports, shall bring in his Ship White Herring salted, in the Queen's Soke, one hundred is to be taken out of the Ship. And if any of the Citizens have a Part with him, nothing to be taken from his Portion.

" Also, whatsoever Stranger brings the first Red Herring, not frailed, he shall give an hundred Herrings. And others who shall come with the same kind of Herrings, whether they are frailed or not, shall give nothing through the whole Year, beside the Standage of the Ship.

" Also, if any Foreigner shall buy Salmon or Mulvel, salted in the Ship, and shall put it into another Ship; for every thousand he shall give an Halfpenny.

" Also, concerning Salmon and Mulvel bought in Shops, situate in the same Soke, of every hundred is to be taken 2 d. as was before said concerning the Ships.

" Also, of Herrings bought in Shops, of every thousand is to be taken an Halfpenny.

" Also, of every kind of Fresh Fish, coming in the Queen's Soke, the same Custom is to be taken, which is taken of the same kind of Fish, at the Queen's Farm at London-bridge.

" Also, of every Ship that faileth within Orlokes, is to be taken 2 d. at the Queen's Farm; unless it be of London, or of the five Ports.

" Also, of a Ship which faileth with Toll *, * Cum Tholl. is to be taken an Halfpenny.

" Also, of every Shout coming down in the Queen's Soke with Corn, to be taken 1 d. ob. But if with Wood, without Corn, 1 d.

" All Customs before-written are to be kept and held as well in the Port of Downgate, as Queen-hithe, for the Lord the King's Use.

" Also, Corn which landeth between the Gutter of the Guildball of the Men of Colen, and the Archbishop of Canterbury's Soke, [i. e. near Black-friars] is not wont to be measured by another Quarter, than by the Quarter of the Queen's Soke.

" Also, it belongeth to the Queen's Bailiff to take Scarwyng in Selda Wynton, for the Queen's Use, under the same Form, as the Sheriff of London takes Scarwyng elsewhere in London for the King's Use.

" Also, if any withdraw his Custom, and depart from the City with the same Custom, he falls into the Mercy of the Bailiff.

" Also, if any offer to pay his Custom to the Bailiff, or his Servant, and they will not take it, although he depart from the City, he is not to be amerced.

" Also, all Assizes of the City, in the Hustings, provided and ordained for the Amendment of the City, are to be ordained and observed in the Queen's Soke. And therefore it is a Custom, that the Lord the King have his Seizin of all the foresaid Customs, according as it is acknowledged by the same Mayor and Citizens.

" Afterwards came the Bailiffs of the same Hithe, and complained, that, after the foresaid Acknowledgment, fourteen foreign Ships landed with Fish at Billingsgate, which ought to have landed at the foresaid Hithe. And therefore the Custom is, that, if any foreign Ship with Fish land elsewhere in the Form aforesaid, than at the foresaid Hithe, it is in the King's Mercy; to wit, at 40 s. [Forfeiture.] Let this Punishment have Place, until one Month after the Feast of St. Michael, this Year. And in the mean Time, according to the Transgression, Provision is made for inflicting an heavier Pain, if they will not observe the foresaid Form.

" Afterwards

"Afterwards came the Mayor and Citizens, and say, That six Ships of Strangers, with all Salt Fish, in foreign Spindler Boats, landed at the foresaid Hithe, in the foresaid Time. But Ships which were the Citizens of London, landed elsewhere, where they would. And therefore let the King have his Seizin."

Queen-bithe let to farm to the Mayor and Commonalty of London.

After this, the said Henry III. confirmed the Grant of Richard Earl of Cornwall, for the Farm of the Queen-bithe, unto John Gisors, then Mayor, and to the Commonalty of London, and their Successors for ever; as by this his Charter appeareth.

Lib. Trinit. London.

"Henry, by the Grace of God King of England, Lord of Ireland, Duke of Guien, and Earl of Anjou, to all Archbishops, &c. Be it knowne, that Wee have seene the Covenant betweene our Brother Richard, Earl of Cornwall, of the one Party, and the Maior and Commonalty of London, on the other Party; which was in this Sort. In the thirtieth Yeere of Henry, the Sonne of King John, upon the Feast of the Translation of St. Edward at Westminster, this Covenant was made betweene the Honourable Lord Richard Earle of Cornwall, and John Gisors, then Maior of London, and the Commons thereof; concerning certaine Exactions and Demands pertaining to the Queen-bithe of London. To wit, That the said Earle granted for himself and his Heyres, that the said Maior, and all Maiors ensuing, and all the Commons of the City, should have and hold the Queene-bithe, with all the Liberties and Customes, and other Appurtenances in Fee Ferme; rendering thence yeerely to the said Earle, his Heires and Assignes, fifty Pounds, at Clarkenwell at two severall Termes; to wit, at the Close of Easter twenty-five Pounds, and in the Octaves of Michaelmas twenty-five Pounds. And for more Surety hereof, the said Earle hath set thereunto his Seale, and left it with the Maior; and the Maior and Commonalty have set their Seale, and left it with the Earle. Where We confirme and establish the said Covenant, for Us and for our Heires. Witnesse, Raphe Fitz-Nichol, Richard Gray, John and Will. Bri- them, Paulin Paynter, Raphe Wancia, John Cum-band, and others. At Windsor, the twentieth of February, the thirty-first of our Reign."

The City doubt of the Earl's Title to Queen-bithe.

It seems Queen-bithe was in the Hands of the Earl of Cornwal, at the Death of K. Henry III. and the Citizens supposed it was wrongfully detained from them. For upon an Inquisition appointed by the Justices the third of Edward I. they make this Presentment: "That the Queen-bithe was sometime belonging to the City of London; and how it came to the Earl of Cornwal, and his Heirs, they knew not, nor by what Warrant. And that it was worth per Ann. 52 l. And more over they say, That King John, Father of Lord King Henry, gave Queen-bithe to Alionore then Queen of England; and was had of the King's Demesne all his Time. But from that Time, till now, the Earl of Cornwal and his Heirs held it; and still did hold it against the Crown, and Disenherisen of the King, as it seemed to them. But by what Warrant they knew not."

No. 87.

The Charge of this Queen-bithe was then committed to the Sheriffs, and so hath continued ever since. The Profits whereof are fore diminished: So that (as writeth Robert Fabian) it was worth in his Time little above twenty Marks, or fifteen Pounds, one Year with another.

Rob. Fabian Lib. Constit.

Now, for Customs of this Queen-bithe: In the Year 1302, the 30th of Edward I. it was found by the Oath of divers Men, that Bakers, Brewers, and others, buying their Corn at Queen-bithe, should pay for Measuring, Portage, and Carriage, for every Quarter of Corn whatsoever; from thence to West-cheap, to St. Anthoine's Church, to Horseshoe-bridge, and to Woolsey-street, in the Parish of Albhalows the Less, and such like Distances, one ob. q. To Fleet-bridge, to Newgate, Cripplegate, to Birchovers-lane, to East-cheap, and Billinggate, one Penny. Also, that the Measurer, or the Meter, ought to have eight chief Master Porters, every Master to have three Porters under him, and every one of them to find one Horse, and seven Sacks; and he that so did not, to lose his Office.

Custom of Queen-bithe.

A Corn-Meter, eight Master Porters, and twenty-four Porters under them, at Queen-bithe.

This being related, for Brevity sake, somewhat imperfectly, I shall here exemplify it out of an authentick Record in the Chamber of London, bearing this Title, Salarium Mensuratorum bladi & cariant. in Ripa Reginae; i. e. The Fee of the Meters of Corn, and the Carriers of it in Queenbithe.

Corn-Meters and Corn Carriers, their Fee.

Inquisitio capta, &c. i. e. "An Inquisition taken before Elia Russel, then Mayor of London, and Alderman of the same City, on Saturday next after the Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, An. 29 Edw. I. (which was in the Year of Christ 1301) by John de Stratford, William de Welles, Richard de Chingford, Will. Poyntell, John Page, Will. de Gartone, Peter de Hungrie, *Will. Who being sworn, and diligently examined, say upon their Oath, That anciently it was appointed, and hitherto used in the City and Suburbs of London, that the Bakers and Brewers, and others of the City of London, paid for the common Measure, and Carriage, and Porterage to their Houses, of one Quarter of Corn, of whatsoever Kind, bought at Queen-bithe, after this Manner; to wit, From the Hithe of the Queen, to all Streets and Lanes as far as East-cheap, and as far as the Church of St. Anthony, and as far as Horseshoe-bridge, and as far as Wolfeigate, ob. q. And from the same Hithe, through all Streets and Lanes beyond the foresaid Places, to the Bridge of the Flete, and to Newgate, and to Crepelgate, and as far as over-against Berchevers-lane upon Cornbul, and as far as East-cheap, and as Billinggate, 1 d. And from this Hithe of the Queen, through all Streets and Lanes beyond the foresaid Places, even to the Bars of the Suburb, 1 d. q.

Lib. Horn. fol. 298.b.

"And they say moreover upon their Oath, that every Head Master of the Measurers of the Men serving the People at Queen-bithe, shall find a Quartern-Bushel, and Half-Bushel, and a Strike, and one Horse. And there shall

"be there eight Head or Capital Masters. And "every one of the eight Masters shall have "three standing Fellows or Companions. And
 "each of those three Standers shall find one "Horse, and seven Sacks, &c. And he that "doth contrary to the foresaid Ordinance, shall
 "abjure his Office."

This Hithe was then so frequented with Vessels, bringing thither Corn, (besides Fish, Salt, Fuel, and other Merchandizes) that all these Men, to wit, the Meter, and Porters, thirty-seven in Number, for all their Charge of Horses and Sacks, and small Stipend, lived well of their Labours. But now that Case is altered: The Bakers of London, and other Citizens, travel into the Countries, and buy their Corn of the Farmers, after the Farmers Price.

King Edward II. in the 1st of his Reign, gave to Margaret, Wife to Peter de Gavestone, forty-three Pounds, twelve Shillings, and nine Pence Halfpenny Farthing, out of the Rents in London, to be received of the Queen's Hithe.

Certain Impositions were set upon Ships and other Vessels coming thither; as upon Corn, Salt, and other Things, toward the Charge of cleansing Romeland there, the 41st of Ed. III.

Romeland

and cleansed
of Filth.

These were the Impositions, and the Occasions of them. This Romeland being annoyed with Dung, Filth, &c. so as the Sellers of Corn and Victual there could not stand to sell their Commodities, as formerly they had done, it was ordered by a Common Council, An. 41. of King Edw. III. That the Place should forthwith be made clean and paved: And that from thenceforth, towards the perpetual Cleansing and Reparation thereof, there should be taken for every Quarter of Corn, of what Kind soever, there sold or coming, a Farthing; for every Quarter of Salt, a Farthing; for every Vessel, called a Battel, bringing Rushes, four Pence; for every Vessel called a Shout, bringing Corn or Malt, two Pence; for every Ship bringing other Victuals, two Pence; and of every Person laying Soil there, two Shillings; and the Seller of Rushes, to pay for every Boat of Rushes, four Pence.

The 3d of Edward IV. the Market at Queen-hithe being hindered by the Slackness of drawing up London-bridge, it was ordained, That all manner of Vessels, Ships, or Boats, great or small, resorting to the City with Victual, should be sold by Retail; and that if there came but one Vessel at a Time, were it Salt, Wheat, Rye, or other Corn from beyond the Seas, or other Grains, Garlick, Onions, Herrings, Sprats, Eels, Whittings, Plaice, Cods, Mackarel, &c. then that one Vessel should come to Queen-hithe, and there to make Sale: But if two Vessels came, the one should come to Queen-hithe, the other to Billingsgate: If three, two of them should come to Queen-hithe, the third to Billingsgate, &c. always the more to Queen-hithe. If the Vessel being great, coming with Salt from the Bay, and could not come to these Keys, then the same to be conveyed by Lighters, as before is meant.

One large House for Stowage of Corn, craned out of Lighters and Barges, is there lately builded. Sir John Lion, Grocer, Mayor, 1554, by his Testament, gave 100 l. toward it. But since increased and made larger, at the Charges of the City, in the Year 1565.

Against this Queen-hithe, on the River of Thames, of late Years was placed a Corn-Mill, upon or betwixt two Barges or Lighters; and there ground Corn, as Water-Mills in other Places; to the Wonder of many that had not seen the like. But this lasted not long without Decay: Such as caused the same Barges to be removed and taken asunder, are soon forgotten. I read of the like to have been in former time, as thus:

"In the Year 1225, the 16th of Henry VIII. Sir William Bayly being Mayor, John Cooke of Glocester, Mercer, gave to the Mayor and "and Commonalty of London, and theirs for "ever, one great Barge, in the which two great "Corn-Mills were made and placed. Which "Barge and Mills were set in and upon the "Stream of the River of Thames, within the "Jurisdiction and Liberty of the City of London. "And also he gave to the said City, all such "Timber, Boards, Stones, Iron, &c. provided "for making, mending, and repairing of the "said Barge and Mills. In Reward whereof, "the Mayor gave him 50 l. presently, and 50 l. "yearly, during his Life. Brookes's-wharf leadeth to the River Thames, having a large Wharf, with Keys therein, for the landing of Corn, Malt, and other Goods, thither brought in considerable Quantities. For which it is of great Resort, as before recited.

At a Common Council, July 23. the 2d of Queen Elizabeth, Order was taken, that out of a certain void Space of Ground at Broken-wharf, there should be thirty-three Foot inclosed, and laid to the City's Brewhouse. Which was to have a substantial Pale about it, to keep the City's Fuel, and other Goods, &c.

By this Broken-wharf remaineth one large old Building of Stone, with arched Gates; which Messuage, I find, in the Reign of Henry III. the 43d Year, pertaining unto Hugh de Bygot; and in the 11th of Edward II. to Thomas Brotherton, the King's Brother, Earl of Norfolk, Marshal of England; and in the 11th of Henry VI. to John Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, &c.

Antiquities

In this Ward were formerly, 1. A City Mansion belonging to John Earl of Cornwall, in the fourteenth of Edward III. on the East Side of Trinity-lane, near the Bottom. 2. A Mansion belonging to the Bishop of Hereford, on the West Side of Old Fish-street-hill, built of Stone and Timber, which some Time belonged to the Mountbatts in Norfolk. Radulphus de Maydenstone, Bishop of Hereford, about 1234, bought it of the Mountbatts, and gave it to the Bishops of Hereford his Successors. Charles, both Bishop of Hereford and Chancellor of the Marches, about the Year 1517, repaired it.

(3.) There was some Time a fair House in the Parish of St. Mary Mountbatt, belonging to Robert Belkenape, one of the King's Justices; but the said Belkenape being banished this Realm, King Richard II. in the twelfth of his Reign, gave it to William Wickham, Bishop of Winchester.

Fishmongers Hall-motes six in Number.

(4.) On the East Side of this Old Fish-street-hill is one great House, now letten out for Rent, which House some Time was one of the Halls pertaining to the Company of Fishmongers; at such Time as they had six Hallmotes or Meeting-places; namely, two in Bridge-street, or New Fish-street; two in Old Fish-street, whereof this was one; and two in Stockfishmonger-row, or Thames-street; as appeareth by a Record of the twenty-second of Richard II.

Water-Conduit for Thames Water.

(5.) On the North Side of St. Nicholas Cole-Abbey Church, in the Wall thereof, was built a convenient Cistern of Stone and Lead for Receipt of Thames Water, conveyed in Pipes of Lead to that Place, for the Ease and Commodity of the Fishmongers, and other Inhabitants in and about Old Fish-street.

Barnard Randolph, Common Serjeant of the City of London, did (in his Life-time) deliver to the Company of Fishmongers the Sum of nine hundred Pounds, to be employed towards the conducting of the said Thames Water, and cisterning the same, &c. And in the Parishes of St. Mary Magdalen and St. Nicholas Cole-Abbey, near Fish-street, seven hundred Pounds, and other two hundred Pounds to charitable Deeds. He deceased in 1583; and shortly after this Conduit, with the other, was made and finished.

C H A P. XXVII.

Of TOWER-STREET WARD.

With a PLAN, neatly engraved from a NEW Survey.

Its Name. Bounds. Extent. Modern State. Government. Remarkable Things. Parishes and Churches. The Tower of London. The Custom-House. The Clothworkers-Hall. The Bakers-Hall. The Trinity-House. Antiquities.

Name.

THIS Ward takes its Name from the principal Street therein, which leadeth out of the City in a direct Line to the grand Entrance into the Tower of London, and is the first Ward in the South-East Part of the City within the Wall.

Bounds.

It is bounded on the East by Tower-hill and Part of Aldgate Ward, on the North by Langbourn Ward, on the West by Billingsgate Ward; and on the South by the River Thames; and extends from the Tower of London in the East, to the middle Way between Great Dice-key and Smart's-key in the West, and from the West Corner of Tower-dock in the South, to within seventy Feet of the North End of Rood-lane in the North, in which are contained a great Number of Streets, Lanes, &c. as, Tower-street, Thames-street, Mark-lane, Mincing-lane, and Seething-lane, St. Olave Hart-street; then Idle-lane, St. Dunstan's-bill, Harp-lane, Water-lane, and Beer-lane; in which Places are several Courts and Alleys.

Extent.

Modern State.

Tower-street, of which there is the Great and the Little; of which latter only some Part is in this Ward, beginning about the Middle near unto St. Margaret Pattens Church, and falls into Great Tower-street, which runs Eastward unto Tower-hill, and is a spacious Street; well built and inhabited by able Tradesmen.

Tower-street.

The Courts in this Street are, Mercers-court, seated on the North Side, very long, with turning Passages, and but indifferently inhabited; Carpenters-ball-court, a square Place, with an open Passage into it sufficient for a Cart. Fowks-court, very handsome and open, with a Free-stone Pavement, and hath good Houses, which are well inhabited. Black Swan-court, a pretty handsome open Place, with indifferent Houses. Red-cross-court, also pretty good. Beckford-court, a very handsome, airy Place, with large Houses, well inhabited, especially the upper End. White-lion-court, seated over-against Barking Church, is both small and ordinary, and hath a Passage into Chitwerling-alley. Priests-alley, both narrow and ordinary, which with a turning Passage falls into Tower-dock: In this Alley are two small Courts, very ordinary, and without Names. Rose-alley, over-against Barking Church, being long and ordinary, and hath a Passage down Steps into Chitwerling alley, as also into Gloucester-court. Then Barking Church.

On the back Side of Barking Church-yard is an Alley or Passage into Tower-hill, with Houses on the North Side, which have a Prospect of the Church and Church-yard; on this Part was anciently the fair Barking Chapel. On the South-East Corner of Tower-street is a Row of Houses fronting the Tower, and leadeth to Thames-street, pleasantly situated, having the Prospect of the Thames.

Thames-street is a Place of considerable Trade, and taken up by great Dealers, as well by Wholesale as Retail; and altho' the Street is broad enough, yet, by Reason of the Custom-house, and the several Keys and Wharfs, it is extremely pestered with Carts, to the great Annoyance of the Inhabitants and Passengers through it. This Street runneth a very great Length from East to West, even to Puddle-dock, which is about a Mile, but lies in several Wards. The Part in this Ward goeth not so far as Billingsgate, and contains the following Keys or Wharfs, viz. the Tower-dock, Brewers-key, Galley-key, Custom-house-key, Potters-key, Wiggings-key, Ralphs-key, Temple-key, Little Dice-key, Great Dice-key, Smarts-key, and then Billingsgate; which said Keys are all made use of for the lading and unlading of Merchants Goods; and some of these Keys are more considerable considerable than others, particularly Smarts key, for Grain, &c.

On the North Side of this Thames-street, beginning towards Bishopsgate, are these Courts, viz. Wickelers-yard, taken up in Warehouses for Stowing of Merchants Goods. Nag's-head-court, but ordinary. Vine-court-warehouse, taken up by Warehouses.

Bear-lane. Bear-lane comes out of Tower-street, and runs into Thames-street, a Place of small Account. In this Lane are these Courts, viz. Gloucester-court, a pretty handsome Place, with a Free-stone Pavement, and hath a Passage into Priests-alley. Horn-alley, but indifferent, hath a Passage into Thames-street, another into Rose-alley, and another into Chitterling-alley, both indifferent Places. Custom-house-court, a good handsome Place, with a Free-stone Pavement. At the upper End of this Court is another small Court so called, which hath a Passage through the Ship Tavern into Water-lane.

Water-lane. Water-lane, a very great Thorough-fare, occasioned by the Custom-house, as being the ready Passage to it, and is for the generality taken up by Publick-houses. This Lane is so called as running down to the Water-gate by the Custom-house; but formerly it was called Sporiar-lane. In this Lane is Orance-court, having but two Houses, the rest taken up in Warehouses: And here is Trinity-house, a good, handsome, large Building, in which House is also kept the Bal-last-Office.

Harp-lane Harp-lane comes out of Tower-street, and falls into Thames-street, a Place much pestered with Carrs, by reason of their passing this Way to the Custom-house-keys, which is no small Annoyance to the Inhabitants. On the East Side is Bakers-Hall, some Time since the Dwelling-House of John Chicheley, Esq; Chamberlain of the City of London. On the West Side of this Harp lane is Cross-lane Cross-lane, which is but ordinary, and leads to St. Mary-hill. St. Dunstan's-hill, formerly called Church-lane, runs as far as St. Dunstan's Church-yard, and from thence down unto Thames-street. On the West Side of the said Church is another Lane called Church-lane, which turneth into another towards St. Mary-hill, and is called Fowl-lane. This St. Dunstan's-hill is a Place well inhabited by Merchants, especially about the Church; and on the East Side, over-against the Church, is Coffin-court, which is but narrow.

St. Dunstan's Church. Then St. Dunstan's Church, called St. Dunstan's in the East.

Adjoining to which, Northwards, is Church-alley, which hath a handsome Free-stone Paving, and pretty good Buildings on the Side fronting the Church; and this Alley leadeth into Idle-lane, which comes out of the West End of Tower-street, and falls into Thames-street. On the West Side of this Lane is Cross-lane, which falls into St. Mary-hill. By this Church is Priests-alley.

Mincing-lane. Mincing-lane, antiently called Mincheon, is filled with very good Houses, which for the generality are taken up by Merchants, and Persons of Repute, and the Street is broad and strait, coming out of Tower-street, and going up into Fenchurch-street.

Mark-lane. Mark-lane, or Mart-lane, being so called from a Mart there formerly kept; a Place now well inhabited, with divers large Houses for Merchants, tho' some of them are old Timber Houses. The greatest Part of this Lane is in this Ward, to wit, from Tower-street unto that Part where the Post and Chain is placed a-cross the Street, which is above the West End of Hart-street; and in this Part of the Lane are these Places, viz. Sugar-loaf-alley, which is but indifferent, over-against which is the old Navy-Office. Well-alley, being both small and narrow. Pick ax-alley also small. And Star-alley, which is but ordinary.

Hart-street is but short, coming out of Mark-lane, and falls into Crutched-friars by St. Olave Hart-street Church: It has a Church-yard behind it. Over-against this Church is Crosseys or Angel-court, which is a pretty, open Place, with good Buildings, well inhabited.

Seething or Sything-lane runneth Northwards from Tower-street unto Crutched-friars. It is now a Place of no great Account; but amongst the Inhabitants some are Merchants. Here is the Navy-Office; but the chief Gate for Entrance is out of Crutched-friars, in Aldgate Ward. And in this Lane are these Courts and Places of Name, viz. John Devere's-yard, pretty broad in the Middle, but ordinary, with a narrow Passage into Mark-lane. Carr-yard, a pretty, handsome, open Place, but meanly inhabited. Green-arbour-court, a pretty large Place, containing two Courts, one within another, and both bearing the same Name. Star-alley, newly built for Warehouses and Tenements. Black-dog-alley, very mean and ordinary. Black-raven-court, an open Place, with good new Brick Buildings, well inhabited; and here is kept the Transport-Office. Plough yard, but ordinarily built and inhabited. Crown-court, but small, with a Free-stone Pavement.

Tower-hill. The West Row of Buildings, with Part of the Hill which is in this Ward, is a handsome Structure, very well inhabited, and pleasantly seated in an open Air, having the delightful Prospect of the Thames and the Tower; and in this Row is Barking-alley or Alleys, one leading into Tower-street, and the other into Seething lane; in both which the Buildings encompass Barking Church on the North and East Sides. Then about the Middle of this Row of Buildings is Rose-court. Farther Northwards is Muscovy-court, a curious, large, open Place, with a Free-stone Pavement, and consisting of fair new Brick Buildings, and they very well inhabited. Out of this Court is a back Passage, with a Door into the Navy-Office.

Formerly there were round the Tower old Buildings, which enclosed the Ditch or Moat; and these stood until the Reign of King Charles II. But being found incommodious, they were, by Command from above, (Sir John Robinson being Lieutenant) pulled down, and the Moat cleaned and enlarged, with Brick-work on the Outside, even to the Ground: So that now the Tower is not so choaked up, but stands open on all Sides.

It is governed by an Alderman, who at present is Thomas Chitty, Esq; and twelve Common-Councilmen, who are, Mr. Richard Roman, Deputy, Mr. Richard Brooke, Mr. Edward Floyd, Mr. Mr.

This Ward is taxed to the Fifteenth at twenty-six Pounds.

Watch. The Watch in this Ward every Night consists of a Constable, a Beadle, and forty Watchmen.

Jury. The Jurymen returned by the Wardmote-Inquest for this Ward are to serve as Jurors in the several Courts in Guildhall in the Month of May.

Remarkable Things. The most remarkable Things in this Ward are, First, Three Parish-Churches, (1.) Allhallows Bark-Churches. ing, (2.) St. Olave Hart-street, (3.) St. Dunstan's in the East; of which in our Parochial History.

The Tower Secondly, The Tower of London. One half of the Tower, the Ditch on the West Side, and Bulwarks adjoining, stand within that Part where the Wall of the City of old Time went straight from the Postern Gate South to the River of Thames, before the Tower was built.

See a large Account of this royal Fortrefs in Chap. XVI. Book I.

Custom-house. Thirdly, The King's Custom-house, where we may properly mention the Reason of establishing certain Keys and Wharfs for landing and shipping Merchandizes.

Wharfs and Keys appointed for landing Merchandizes. By occasion of the defrauding of the Queen of her Customs for Goods and Merchandizes brought in or carried out, by making use of small obscure Creeks, or Places where no Custom-House Officer was attending, or by the Corruption of those Officers, or by other fraudulent and undue Practices, and so privately conveying them away, without paying the Custom or Subsidy due; there was an Act made in the first Year of Queen Elizabeth, Anno 1559, That no Goods should be put ashore at any Place in the Kingdom, but where she should assign and appoint by her Commission. In Pursuance of this Act the Queen ordered her Lord Treasurer, her Under-Treasurer, and Chancellor of her Exchequer, to set forth and publish her Pleasure for the divers Ports of her Kingdom. And for the Port of London the said Commissioners drew up this Declaration, determining what particular Keys, Wharfs, and Stairs should be for lading and discharging of all Manner of Merchandizes; and what particular Goods should be landed at Billingsgate, the Three Cranes, the Bridge-house, and the Stillyard; where Newcastle Coals, Beer, Deal Boards, Ore, Corn, &c. should be laid on Land; what Creeks, Wharfs, and Keys, from Gravesend to London-bridge, should be no more used as Lading or Discharging Places, but be debarred utterly from it for ever; and that no Stranger, whether Denizen or not, should henceforth inhabit upon any of the Wharfs allowed, except the Stillyard only; and lastly, that all Keepers of Wharfs and Keys should be bound to the Queen in certain Sums of Money, that no Goods should be landed at their Keys or Stairs, or put thence upon the Water to be carried abroad, before the said Goods were entered in the Queen's Custom-Books, and

 “ from the same for ever, by Force of the said “ Statute and other the Premises.

“ Winchester. Richard Sakeville. Wa. Mildemay.”

These Wharfs and Keys commonly bear the Names of their Owners, and are therefore changeable. I read in the twenty-sixth of Henry VI.

 that in the Parish of St. Dunstan in the East, a Tenement called Passekes-wharf, and another called Horners-key in Thames-street, were granted to William Haringdon, Esq; I read also, that in the sixth of Richard II. John Churchman, Grocer, for the Quiet of Merchants, did newly build a certain House upon the Key called Wool-wharf, in the Tower-street Ward, in the Parish of Allbal- lows Barking, betwixt the Tenement of Paul Sa- lisbury on the East Part, and the Lane called the Water-gate on the West, to serve for Tronage or Weighing of Wools in the Port of London;
 whereupon the King granted, that, during the Life of the said John, the aforesaid Tronage should be held and kept in the said House, with Easements there for the Balances and Weights, and a Compting-place for the Customer, Comptrollers, Clerks, and other Officers of the said Tronage, together with Ingress and Regress to and from the same, even as was had in other Places where the said Tronage was wont to be kept; and that the King should pay yearly to the said John, during his Life, forty Shillings, at the Terms of St. Michael and Easter, by even Portions, by the Hands of his Customer, without any other Payment to the said John,
 as in the Indenture thereof more at large ap-peareth.

Tronage of Wools.

And here at the Custom-house we will stay a little, to make some few Remarks of Matters relating to it in former Times.

Some Remarks of the Customs

About the Year 1554, or 1555, under Queen
Mary I. a Commission was given forth to certain Commissioners for the setting of the new Rates;
 whereof the Lord Paget and Sir John Baker were the chief, the one Lord Privy Seal, and the other Chancellor of the Exchequer; who observed this Rule, to under-rate the most necessary Commodities that came into the Realm, to draw them hither, and to over-rate the superfluous Commodities inward, to drive them away: And generally they did under-rate and under-prize all foreign Commodities of that they were ordinarily current for, lest a Glut here of any of those Wares might bring them under their Rates, and that the Merchants might not say they were valued to the utmost, that before lacked a good Part of that they were then rated at. And so Peter Os- borne, Remembrancer to the Lord Treasurer, divers Years after informed him.

Rates set for Mer-chandizes.

There was also, long before this, a Book of Rates, in King Henry VII's Time.

Book of Rates in
Hen. VII's
Time.

One Needham, about the Year 1570, and odd, wrote a Book for shewing and correcting the Abuses of Customers, of Shippers, of Merchants, &c. and sent it privately to the Lord Treasurer, with his Letter, to this Tenor: “ That he thought “ it his Duty justly and truly to open to his Ho“ nour such Notes and Knowledge as by his Ser“ vice and Travel he had gathered in ten or “ twelve Years, by searching how to reform such “ Abuses, Deceits, and Disorders, as were used
 “ all England through against the Queen's Ma“ jesty, both by her Officers belonging to the “ Customs, as also by Merchants and Shippers,
 “ and how they might be redressed, and her “ Highness justly answered her Rights and Du“ ties:

“ties: And also his farther Opinion how to re“form such Wrongs as the said Officers and their “Clerks, and their Clerks Clerks, used against “the Merchants and Shippers, by raising new “Duties, delaying them from Bills, Cockets,
“and other Writings, and not observing the “Hours and Times appointed them to be at the “Custom-house, and give Attendance to receive “her Majesty’s Duties, and dispatch the Mer“chants and Shippers: All which good Orders,
“that had been appointed both for the good “Service of her Majesty, the Merchants, and “Shippers, by the gentle and mild Nature of the “late Lord Treasurer, (Marquis of Winchester)
“deceased, all the Officers and Clerks were suf“fered to break, and in Manner did what they “would without Controlment; and by long Sut“terance both they, the Merchants, Shippers,
“Key-keepers, and other Watermen, were now
“nestled, and grown into that disordered Li“berty, which had been and was so profitable to “them, that it would be hard to bring them to “good Order again, without some Severeness to “be used.”

A Method to redress them.

The Method of doing this this Man laid before the present Treasurer Lord Burgbley, in certain Articles, and offered himself to be employed therein, having his Warrant from the said Treasurer, and he making it his own Device and Doing, so that it might not be known to come from him [this Proposer,] for his avoiding of farther Displeasure.

A Special Searcher.

This Person the Queen had twelve Years ago put in Trust to travel in these Matters of Custom;
and he had, according to his Oath and Duty, without Respect of Favour or Malice to any Persons, shewed his Opinion how to reform the Abuses as well of the one as the other; as one desirous to see her Majesty truly answered her Rights and Dues, and that honest Merchants and Shippers might be well used, and Offenders punished.

An Account of the Queen’s yearly Customs.

In the Year 1572, a List was brought in to the Lord Treasurer of the Queen’s yearly Customs, Subsidies, and Imposts, since the Beginning of her Reign to that Time; which stood thus:

Anno Primo	73846	12	10
Secundo	84905	5	6 q.
Tertio	75938	1	6 di. q.
Quarto	71365	15	1 ob. di. q.
Quinto	57436	4	10 ob.
Sexto	45783	18	11 di. q.
Septimo	105606	1	2 di. q.
Octavo	69184	18	6 ob.
Nono	63502	7	2 ob. di. q.
Decimo	74875	19	10
Undecimo	65307	10	8 q.
Duodecimo	71295	0	5 q. di.
Decimo tertio	69243	4	5 ob. q.

About the Year 1590 Thomas Smith was the Queen’s Customer, to whom she lett the Cuftoms and Subsidies in the Port of London Inwards to farm, (who had long before been a Collector of them) for which he paid her Rent twenty thousand Pounds per Annum; whereas, as it was discovered, all the Incomes of those Customs amounted yearly to thirty thousand three hundred and nine Pounds fifteen Shillings and five Pence;
so that it appeared the Queen lost yearly by that Farm ten thousand three hundred and nine Pounds fifteen Shillings and five Pence.

We see that the Customs were once farmed in Queen Elizabeth’s Reign for twenty thousand Pounds per Annum, which now bring in above an hundred Times as much, viz. above two Millions yearly.

The Custom house is situated on the South Side, Present State of the house.

and not far from the East End of Thames-street.
After the Fire of London, viz. in the Year 1668,
a very handsome Office was built here; but that being burnt in the Year 1718, it was rebuilt in a very spacious and commodious Manner with Brick and Stone, adorned with an upper and lower Order of Architecture; the latter is with Stone Columns, and Entablature of the Tuscan Order; the former with Pilasters, Entablature, and Pediments of the Ionick Order. The Length of the Building is an hundred and eighty-nine Feet, the Breadth in the Middle twenty-seven Feet, but at the End much broader.

There are fourteen Commissioners, l. s. d.

There are, besides these, a considerable Number of inferior Officers, as extraordinary Tidesmen, Weighing Porters, and Watchmen, who are only paid when they are employed, and stand fairest for any Vacancy in the Establishment.

Fourthly, Here are two Halls also belonging to Companies, viz. (1.) Clothworkers-Hall, situate near the North-East End of Mincing-lane next Fenchurch-street. The Hall is a lofty Room, adorned with Wainscot to the Cieling, where is curious Fret-work. The Screen at the South End is of Oak, adorned with four Pilasters, their Entablature and Compass Pediment of the Corinthian Order, enriched with their Arms and Palm Branches. The West End is adorned with the Figures of King James and King Charles I. richly carved, as big as the Life, in their Robes, with Regalia, all gilt with Gold, where is a spacious Window of stained Glass, and the King's Arms; also those of Sir John Robinson, Knt. and Bart. his Majesty's Lieutenant of the Tower of London, Lord-Mayor of this honourable City Anno 1663, and President of the Artillery Company, who kept kept his Mayoralty in this Hall, in which Year he entertained their Majesties, the King, Queen, and Queen Mother, and their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Dutchess of York, and towards the re-edifying of this Hall was a worthy Benefactor. His Coat of Arms, 1st and 4th Gules and Or, quarterly embattled; the 2d and 3d Vert, Semi of Trefoils, a Buck trippant, Or, and the like Buck for the Crest.

Here are also painted the Arms of Samuel Pepys, Master of the Company, and a Benefactor, Anno 1677, viz. 1st and 4th Sable, on a Bend, Or, between two Horses Heads erased, Argent, three Fleurs de Lis; the 2d and 3d Gules, a Lion Rampant within a Bordure ingrailed, Or.

In another Window, finely painted, the Arms of William Hewar, Master of this Company, and a Benefactor 1687, viz. Sable, two Talbotts Heads, Or, between as many Flaunches, Ermine.

In a fourth Window, the Arms of Sir Joseph Williamson, Knt. one of his Majesty's most Honourable Privy Council, and Principal Secretary of State, Master of this Worshipful Company, Anno 1676, and a noble Benefactor, viz. Or, a Chevron ingrafted between three Trefoils, Sable.

Also in two small Windows, the Arms of the Honourable City of London, and those of this Company, which are, Sable, a Chevron Ermine, between two Habricks in chief Argent, and a Tessel in Base, Or; Crest, a Ram passant, Or; Supporters, two Griffins, Or, Pelletee; Motto, My Trust is in God alone.

The Outside is adorned with curious Brick fluted Columns, with Corinthian Capitals of Stone.

Bakers-hall.

Chickley House.

(2.) In Hart-lane is the Bakers-hall, sometime the Dwelling-House of John Chickley, Chamberlain of London, who was Son to William Chickley, Alderman of London, Brother to William Chickley, Archdeacon of Canterbury; Nephew to Robert Chickley, Mayor of London, and to Henry Chickley, Archbishop of Canterbury.

This John Chickley (saith Leyland) had four and twenty Children. Sir Tho. Kirriall of Kent, after he had been long Prisoner in France, married Elizabeth, one of the Daughters of this Chickley, by whom he had this Chickley's House.

This Elizabeth was secondly married to Sir Ralph Ashton, Knight Marshal: And thirdly, to Sir John Bourchier, Uncle to the late Bourchier, Earl of Essex; but she never had a Child. Edward Poynings made part with Bourchier and Elizabeth to have Ostenbanger in Kent after their Death, and entered into it, they living.

Trinity-House in Water-lane.

Fifthly, In Water-lane is situate Trinity-House, which belongs to an antient Corporation of Mariners, founded in King Henry VIII's Time, for the Regulation of Seamen, and Security and Convenience of Ships and Mariners on our Coasts. In the said King's Reign lived Sir Tho. Spert, Knight, Comptroller of the Navy to that King; who was the first Founder and Master of the said Society of Trinity-House; and died Anno 1541, and was buried in the Chancel of Stepney Church. To whose Memory the said Corporation, Anno 1622, set up a Monument there for him eighty Years and one after the Decease of the said Spert, their Founder. And by an Inscription antienter than that set up by the said Corporation, lost long since in the Church, but preserved by Norden; we learn, that this Gentleman had three Wives, Dame Margery, Dame Anne, and Dame Mary, all lying in the Chancel there; and that his Coat of Arms was Two Launces in Saltier, between four Hearts, on a Chief, a Ship with the Sails furled. He was Commander of the biggest Ship then that the Sea bore, namely, Henry Grace de Dieu, built by King Henry VIII. near the Beginning of his Reign.

Norden's Middlesex.

This House, where the Corporation usually meets, belonged to them before the great Fire, but how long I know not: They took a long Lease, and rebuilt it, but pay a Ground Rent to — Ruffel of Stubbers in Essex, Esq; Descendant of Sir William Ruffel, Knt. sometime Alderman of London. This House was burnt down about the Year 1718 again, but is now by the said Brotherhood built up fairly a second Time.

This Corporation, one of the considerablest in the Kingdom, is governed by a Master, four Wardens, eight Assistants, and the Eldest Brothers of the Company, as they are called, one and thirty in all. The rest of their Company are called Younger Brothers, without any fixed Number: For any Seafaring Men that will, are admitted into the Society under that Name: But they are not in the Government.

The Government of it.

They meet to chuse their Master commonly at Deptford Strand, but are not obliged to do it there; but the House there being their antient House, they meet there by old Custom.

Their Meetings are commonly on Wednesdays and Saturdays here at their House in Water-lane; but their Courts are not fixed constantly to a set Time, but as Occasion and Business requires. Their Coat of Arms is, Between a Cross Gules, four Ships under Sail. The Crest, a Demi-Lion crowned, Or, with a Sword in his right Paw. The Motto is, Trinitas in Unitate.

Their Courts.

Their Arms.

They are established by many Charters of the Princes of this Land.

Their Service and Use is, that they appoint all Pilots: They set and place the Buoys and Sea-Marks for the safe Direction of Ships in their Sailing. For which they have certain Duties payable by Merchant-men. They can licence poor Seamen, antient and past going to Sea, to exercise the Calling of a Waterman upon the Thames, and take in Fares, tho' they have not been bound to any one free of the Watermen's Company. They do maintain in Pensions at this Time two thousand poor Seamen, or their Widows; every one of which have at least Half a Crown paid them every first Monday in the Month, and some more, besides accidental distressed Seamen.

Their Use and Service.

They have three fair Hospitals, built by themselves; two at Deptford, and one at Mile-end, near London. That at Mile-end is a very handsome Structure with a fair Chapel, and is peculiar for decayed Sea-Commanders, Masters of Vessels, or such as have been Pilots, and their Widows.

Their Hospitals.

And thus as they do a great deal of Good, so they have large Revenues to do it with: Which arise partly, from Sums of Money given and bequeathed unto them for charitable Uses, partly from Houses and Lands also given them, and particularly and chiefly from Ballast. For they only have, by Act of Parliament, the Benefit of providing Ballast for Ships in the Thames; and all Ships that take in Ballast pay them 12 d. a Ton: For which it is brought to their Ship's Side. They have also certain Light-Houses, as at Scilly and Dungeness in the West. To which Houses all Ships pay one Half-penny a Tun.

In their Hall.

In their Hall there is an old Flag hanging up, which they say was taken from the Spaniards by Sir Francis Drake; whose Picture hangeth up there. There is also the exact Model of a Ship of a great Size rigged, enclosed in a Frame glazed round; the Gift of Sir Jeremy Smith: Likewise two large Globes enclosed, as was the Model of the Ship; the Gift of Sir Thomas Allen: Both Admirals of the Navy under K. Charles II. Divers Tables also hang up round the Hall, containing the Names of their Benefactors, with the Mention of their respective Gifts; and in their Parlour five large Plats, drawn curiously and exactly by a Pen, describing certain Sea Fights in King Charles II's Time.

Sixthly, In Plough-yard in the Parish of Barking is a School founded by James Hickson, Esq; for the Education of twenty poor Children. To the Head Master of which he appointed 20 l. per An. his Dwelling, and two Chaldron of Sea-Coal. And to a Writing Master 8 l. per An.

The Jewry near the Tower.

Seventhly, The Antiquities of this Ward, which are come to our Knowledge, are,

(1.) A Place within the Liberties of the Tower, called the Jewry, because it was inhabited by Jews; where there happened, 22 Hen. III. a Robbery and a Murther to be committed by William Fitz-Bernard, and Richard his Servant; who came to the House of Joce a Jew, and there slew him, and his Wife Henna. The said William was taken at St. Saviour's for a certain Silver Cup, and was hanged. Richard was called for, and outlawed. One Miles le Espicer, who was with them, was wounded, and fled to a Church, and died in it. No Attachment was made by the Sheriffs, because it happened in the Jewry; and so belonged not to the Sheriffs, but to the Constable of the Tower.

Barking Chapel of our Lady.

Fraternity here.

(2.) On the North Side of Barking Church was fair Chapel founded by King Richard I. Some have written, that his Heart was buried there under the high Altar. This Chapel was confirmed and augmented by King Edward I. Edward IV. gave Licence to his Cousin John, Earl of Worcester, to found there a Brotherhood for a Master and Brethren. And he gave to the Custos of that Fraternity, which was Sir John Scot, Knt. Thomas Colt, John Tate, and John Croke, the Priory of Totingbroke, and the Advowson of the Parish-Church of Stretbam in the County of Surrey, with all the Members and Appurtenances, and a Part of the Priory of Okeborne in Wiltshire, both Priors Aliens, and appointed it to be called the King's Chapel, or Chantry, In Capella beatæ Mariæ de Barking.

The King's Chapel of Barking.

King Richard III. new builded this Chapel, and founded therein a College of Priests, consisting of a Dean and six Canons: All which that King placed there. The Deanry he gave to Edmund Chaderton, a great Favourite of his. The Canonries he disposed, at the Time that Chaderton was made Dean, to these Persons following, viz. Mr. Tho. Cowton a Canon there; Richard Baldry another; Mr. Jane another; James Molineux another; Richard Selfie another; Maculin Cofin another. Hamond de Lega was buried in that Chapel. Robert Tate, Mayor of London, 1488, and others, were there buried.

K Ric. III. a new Founder. K. Rich. Ledg. Book.

This College was suppressed and pulled down in the Year 1548, the second of King Edward VI. The Ground was employed as a Garden-Plat during the Reigns of King Edward, Queen Mary, and Part of Queen Elizabeth, till at length a large strong Frame of Timber and Brick was set thereon, and employed as a Storehouse of Merchants Goods brought from the Sea, by Sir William Winter, &c.

Suppressed.

(3.) Somewhere in this Parish Licence was given in 44 Edw. III. for the founding of an Hospital pro sustentatione Hominum in Frenesim, &c. cadentium, i. e. for the sustaining of People that fall into Phrensies, &c.

An Hospital here for mad People.

(4.) In Sydon-lane were divers fair and large Houses; one built by Sir John Allen, some time Mayor of London, and of the Privy Council unto K. Henry VIII. Sir Francis Walsingham, Knt. principal Secretary to the Queen's Majesty that then lived, was lodged there, and so was the Earl of Essex, &c. And hereabouts was a capital Messuage called Sharrington House, forfeited to King Edward VI. from Sir Edward Sharrington, belonging to the Mint, attainted the 3d of his Reign: Which House the King gave to Henry Earl of Arundel.

Sharrington House.

(5.) In Mincing-lane of old Time dwelled divers Strangers born, of Genoa and those Parts: These were commonly called Galley-men, as Men that came up in the Galleys, brought up Wines and other Merchandizes, which they landed in Thames-street, at a Place called Galley-key: They had a certain Coin of Silver amongst themselves, which were Half-pence of Genoa, and were called Galley Half-pence. These Half-pence were forbidden in the 13th Year of King Henry IV. And again by Parliament in the 4th of Henry V. by the Name of Half-pence of Genoa, forbidden to pass, as unlawful Payment, amongst the English Subjects. And it was enacted, That if any Person bring into this Realm Galley Half-pence, Suskins, or Dodkins, he should be punished as a Thief; and he that taketh or payeth such Money, shall lose an hundred Shillings, whereof the King shall have the one Half, and he that will sue, the other Half.

Galley-men dwelled there.

(6.) In the sixth of Henry V. there was in the Tower Ward a Messuage, or great House, called Cobham's Inn; and in the 37th of Henry VI. a Messuage in Thames-street, pertaining to Richard Longvile, &c. Some of the Ruins before spoken of may seem to be of the foresaid Hospital, belonging peradventure to some Prior Alien, and so suppressed among the rest, in the Reign of Edward III. or Henry V. who suppressed them all.

Cobham's Inn.

Of V I N T R Y W A R D.

With a PLAN, neatly engraved from a NEW Survey.

Its Name. Bounds. Extent. Modern State. Alderman and Common-Councilmen. Parishes and Churches. Vintners Hall, &c. Antiquities. Whittington's College. Tower Royal, &c. &c.

Its Name. V I N T R Y Ward takes its Name from a Part thereof called the Vintrie by the Antients, occupied by Vintners or Wine-Merchants from Bordeaux, settled on the Bank of the River Thames; at which Place they landed their Wines, and were obliged to sell them in forty Days, till the 28th of Edward I. who by Privy-Seal granted longer Time and certain Privileges to the said Merchants, as we have more largely shewn in the first Book, under that King's Reign.

Bounds. Its Bounds may be collected from this Description: It begins, in the East, at the West End of Dowgate Ward, as the Water-course of Walbrook parteth them, to wit, at Grantham's-lane on the Thames Side, and at Elbow-lane on the Land Side: It runneth along in Thames-street, West, some three Houses beyond the Old-Swan, a Brewhouse on the Thames Side, and on the Land Side some three Houses West beyond St. James at Garlick-bithe.

Extent. In Breadth, this Ward stretcheth from the Vintry, North, to the Wall of the West Gate of the Tower Royal: So that it is bounded on the East by Dowgate Ward, on the South by the Thames, on the West by Queen-bithe Ward, and on the North by Cordwainers Ward.

Horshoe-bridge-street. Out of this Royal-street, by the South Gate of the Tower Royal, runneth a small Street, East, to St. John's upon Walbrook, which Street is called Horshoe-bridge, of such a Bridge some Time over the Brook there, which is now vaulted over.

Knight-riders-street. Then from the South Gate, West, runneth one other Street, called Knightriders-street, by St. Thomas Apostles Church, on the North Side, and Wringwren-lane, by the said Church, at the West End thereof, and to the East End of the Trinity Church in the said Knightriders-street; where this Ward endeth on that South Side the Street. But on the North Side it runneth no farther than the Corner against the Tavern, and other Houses, in a Plat of Ground, where some Time stood Ormond-place. Another Lane lower down in Royal-street, stretching forth from over-against St. Michael's Church, to and by the North Side of St. James's Church by Garlick-bithe, called Kerion-lane. On the Thames Side, West from Grantham's-lane, is Herber-lane, or Brickles-lane, so called of John Brickles, sometime Owner thereof.

Simfon's-lane. Then is Simfon's-lane, of one Simfon; or Emperors-head-lane, of such a Sign: Then the Three-Cranes-lane, so called, not only of a Sign of three Cranes at a Tavern Door, but rather of three strong Cranes of Timber, placed on the Vintry Wharf by the Thames Side, to crane up Wines there, as is before shewed. This Lane was, in the 9th of Richard II. called the Painted-Tavern-lane, of the Tavern being painted.

Over-against St. Martin's Church is a large House, builded of Stone and Timber, with Vaults for the Stowage of Wines, called the Vintry. There dwelled John Gisors, Mayor of London, and Constable of the Tower. And then Henry Picard, Vintner, Mayor. In this House Henry Picard feasted four Kings in one Day.

Next is Vannar's-lane, so called of one Vannar that was Owner thereof. It is now called Church-lane, of the coming up from the Wharf to St. Martin's Church.

Broad-lane, for that the same is broader for the Passage of Carts from the Vintry Wharf, than be the other Lanes. At the North-West Corner of this Lane is the Parish-Clerks Hall. Spittle-lane, of old Time so called; since Stodie's-lane, of the Owner thereof, named Stodie. Sir John Stodie, Vintner, Mayor in the Year 1357, gave it, with all the Quadrant wherein Vintners Hall now standeth, with the Tenements round about, unto the Vintners.

Next is Palmer's-lane, now called Anchor-lane. The Plummers have their Hall there, but are Tenants to the Vintners.

Then is Worcester-House, sometime belonging to the Earls of Worcester, now divided into many Tenements. The Fruiterers have their Hall there. Then is the Old-Swan, a great Brewhouse. And this is all, on the Thames Side, that I can note in this Ward.

On the Land Side, in the Royal-street, is Pater-noster-lane, I think, of old Time called Arches: For I read, that Robert de Suffolk gave to Walter Darford his Tenement, with the Appurtenance, in the Lane called Les Arches, in the Parish of St. Michael de Pater-noster Church, between the Wall of the Field called Winchester-field on the East, and the same Lane on the West, &c. More, I read of a Stone House, called Stoda de Winton, juxta Stodum-bridge, which in that Lane was over Walbrook Water.

Thames-street runneth through the Heart of this Ward from East to West; being a Street, as before noted, well inhabited by able Trademen: The Part in this Ward is from little Elbow-lane in the East, where Dowgate Ward joins unto it, and to Townsend-lane in the West, where Queen-bithe Ward begins. In this Part of Thames-street, within this Ward, are these Places: Shepherd's-alley, long and narrow, but indifferent good. Black-swan-alley, indifferent well built, and wide enough for Boats to pass to the River Side: Here was formerly a large House called Worcester-house, as belonging to the Earls of Worcester, and from thence so called; now converted into Tenements: And here the Fruiterers have their Hall. Anchor-lane, long and narrow, running down to the Thames: It was formerly called Palmer's-lane; and here the Plumbers have their Hall.

New Queen-street, commonly called the Three-Cranes in the Vintry, a good open Street, especially that Part next Cheapside, which is best built, and inhabited; but it hath no more in this this Ward than a little beyond St. Thomas Apostles, the rest of this Street being in Cordwainers Ward, and Cheap Ward: At the lower End of the Street, next the Thames, is a Pair of Stairs, the usual Place for the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen to take Water at to go to Westminster-Hall, for the new Lord-Mayor to be sworn before the Barons of the Exchequer. This Place, with the Three-Cranes, is now of some Account for the Coffermongers, where they have their Warehouses for their Fruit.

Church-lane.

Church-lane, so called, as seated over-against St. Martin's Vintry Church, a long and narrow Lane, which leadeth to the River of Thames. Out of this Place is a Passage into New Queen-street.

Three-Crane-lane.

Three-Crane-lane, long and narrow, running down to the Thames, where there is a Pair of Stairs: This Lane is also taken up by Coffermongers; about the Middle of the Lane is a Passage into Church-lane, as also into Brick-bill-lane. Over-against this Lane was the Church of St. Martin in the Vintry; it is in the Diocese of London: The Abbot of Gloucester was Patron, and the Dismes 1 l. 6 s. 8 d. This Church was consumed in the Fire of London, 1666, and not rebuilt, but the Parish united to St. Michael Royal.

Brick-bill-lane.

Brick-bill-lane, a pretty open Place, with good Buildings, and runneth down almost to the Thames.

Emperor's-head-lane.

Emperor's-head-lane, narrow and ordinary, with a Passage to the Thames. Tennis-court, or Friars-lane, runneth down almost to the Thames, where there is a Dyer's, and falls into Dowgate. In this Lane is the Entrance into Joyner's Hall, in Dowgate Ward.

Little Elbow-lane.

The North Side of Thames-street hath these Places: Little Elbow-lane, which falls into Great Elbow-lane, and so into College-hill, by St. Michael Royal Church; both which Lanes are indifferent. The East Part of this Lane is in Dowgate Ward.

College-hill.

College-hill comes out of St. Thomas Apostles, and falls into Thames-street; a Place well built, and inhabited by Merchants and others. On the West Side is Maiden-lane, which crosseth New Queen-street, and falls into Garlick-hill, by St. James Garlick-hill Church. Out of this Lane is a Passage into Thames-street, and another into Maiden-head-court, which is but ordinary. On the East Side of College-hill is St. Michael's Royal Church, and almost over-against the said Church is Buckingham-house, so called as being bought by the Duke of Buckingham, and where he some Time resided upon a particular Humour: It is a very large and graceful Building, late the Seat of Sir John Leithulier, an eminent Merchant, some Time Sheriff and Alderman of London, deceased.

St. Thomas Apostles.

St. Thomas Apostles, of which there are two, viz. Great St. Thomas Apostles, which is in this Ward, and Little St. Thomas Apostles, which is in Cordwainers Ward. This Great St. Thomas Apostles is a good handsome Street, and well inhabited: On the North Side was seated the Church of St. Thomas Apostles, which, before its being burnt in the general Fire of London, stood in the middle of New Queen-street; a Street made, since the said Fire, out of Soper-lane, &c. for a straight Passage to the Water-side from Guildhall.

No. 88.

This Church not being rebuilt, the Parish is united unto St. Mary Aldermay.

In this Street of Great St. Thomas Apostles are these Places: Black-lion-Inn, but indifferent. Baldwins-yard, a good handsome open Court, with good Buildings at the upper End. Blunderbuss-alley, on the East Side of St. Thomas Church-yard, very small. Dodson's-court, a pretty large open Place, with a Free-stone Passage into Budge-row, pretty well built and inhabited. Almost over-against this Court is Cutlers Hall, seated in Cloak-lane, which falleth into Dowgate-hill, a pretty good Building, as to its Bigness.

Baldwins-yard.

Garlick-hill takes its Beginning in the North from Bow-lane, and falls into Thames-street, a Place well built, and inhabited. In this Place are these Courts: Sugar-loaf-court, a good large Place, but ordinarily inhabited: It hath a Passage down Steps into Thames-street, through a Place called the Bowling-alley. Three-shear-court, small and ordinary; over-against this Court is the Parish-Church of St. James Garlick-hill.

Garlick-hill.

Great Trinity-lane hath but a small Part in this Ward.

Great Trinity-lane.

Bow-lane hath also some small Part in this Ward, but the greatest Share is in Cordwainers Ward.

There are to watch at the several Stands in this Ward every Night a Constable, the Beadle, and thirty-four Watchmen.

Watch.

The Jurymen returned by the Wardmote-Inquest for this Ward are to serve in the several Courts holden in the Guildhall in the Month of April.

Jury.

The Government of this Ward is by an Alderman, who at present is Sir Crisp Gascoyne, Knt. and nine Common-Councilmen, who are, Mr. Thomas Gregg, Deputy, Mr. John Gould, Mr. Moses Allnutt, Mr. Thomas Delamott, Mr. Higgins Eden, Mr. John Kent, Mr. Will. Campbell, Mr. Benj. Gascoyne, Mr. James Wilkes: Under whom are nine Constables, four Scavengers, fourteen Wardmote-Inquestmen, and a Beadle.

Alderman, Common Council.

It is taxed to the Fifteenth in London 6 l. 13 s. 4 d.

The most remarkable Things in this Ward are,

Remarkable Things.

First, Four Parish-Churches, viz. (1) Of St. Michael's Royal, (2) St. Martin's Vintry, (3) St. Thomas Apostles, and (4) St. James Garlick-hill: Of which in our Parochial History.

Parish-Churches.

Secondly, Four Halls belonging to several Companies, viz. (1) Vintners Hall, a curious large Building, which encloseth a large square Court, with a handsome Free-stone Pavement. The North Side fronts the Street, where there is a curious Pair of Gates, with Free-stone Pillars on each Side, wreathed with Grapes and Leaves, and upon each of the Pillars are three Tuns, with a Bacchus sitting thereon. Behind the Hall and other Buildings is a Garden, from which is a Passage to the Thames; where there is a Pair of Stairs; and, being thus open, hath a fine Prospect into the Thames.

Halls.

It is built on Part of the Ground bequeathed unto the said Company by Sir John Stody before-mentioned.

Stody's Manor of the Vintry first given to the Church.

This Place of Stody was called in old Records, The Manor of the Vintry. This Manor the said Stody, July 3, the 2d of Edw. III. gave and granted to one John Tuke, Parson of that Parish-Church; "to have and to hold the said Manor to him and his Successors, to the Use and Behalf of the said Church; the King's Licence thereof not had, nor obtained." By Force of which Feoffment the said John was seized thereof as of Fee, contrary to the Sense of the Statute of Lands and Tenements to be put into Mortmains, had and provided. Of this there was an Inquisition taken in the 17th of Edw. IV. before Sir Rauf Josselyn: And there was likewise a Trial in the Exchequer about it. But King Richard III. granted it to the Company of Vintners.

The Vintners great Bour-
Merchants

These Vintners in London were, of old Time, called Merchant Vintners of Gascoyne; and so I read them in the Records of Edward II. the 11th Year, and Edward III. the 9th Year. They were, as well Englishmen, as Strangers born beyond the Seas, but then Subjects to the Kings of England, great Bourdeaux Merchants of Gascoyne and French Wines. Divers of them were Mayors of this City; namely, John Adrean, Vintner; Reginald at Conduit; John Oxenford; Henry Picard, that feasted the Kings of England, France, Scotland, and Cyprus; John Stody, that gave Stody's-lane to the Vintners: The four last were Mayors in the Reign of Edward III. and yet Gascoyne Wines were then to be sold at London not above four Pence, nor Rhenish Wines above six Pence the Gallon.

Cognizance taken of corrupting Wines.

I read in the 6th of Henry VI. the Lombards corrupting their sweet Wines, when Knowledge thereof came to John Rainwell, Mayor of London, he (in divers Places of the City) commanded the Heads of the Buts and other Vessels in the open Streets to be broken, to the Number of one hundred and fifty. So that the Liquor running forth, passed through the City like a Stream of Rain-Water, in the Sight of all the People; from whence there issued a most loathsome Savour.

Malmseys brought by the Longobards.

Malmsey spent in St.
Andrew Under-shaft, for a Year, 80
Pints.

In the Reign of Henry VII. no sweet Wines were brought into this Realm, but Malmseys, by the Longobards, paying to the King for his Licence, 6 s. 8 d. of every Butt, besides 12 d. for Bottle large. It appeareth in the Church-Book of St. Andrew Undershaft, that in the Year 1547, I. G. and S. K. then Church-wardens, for eighty Pints of Malmsey spent in the Church, after one Penny Halfpenny the Pint, paid at the Year's End for the same ten Shillings.

Wine-turners incorporated
the 15th of He. VI.

The Vintners and Wine-drawers, that retailed by the Pottle, Quart and Pint, were all incorporated by the Name of Wine-turners in the Reign of Edward III. and confirmed the 15th of Henry VI.

Cutlers-
hall.

(2) In Horse-bridge-street is the Cutlers Hall. Richard de Wilebale, 1295, confirmed to Paul Butelar this House, and the Edifices, in the Parish of St. Michael Pater-noster Church, and St. John upon Walbrooke; which some Time

Lawrence Gisors, and his Son Peter Gisors, did possess, and afterwards Hugo de Hingham; and lieth between the Tenement of the said Richard towards the South, and the Lane called Horse-shoe-bridge towards the North; and between the Way called Pater-noster Church on the West, and the Course of Walbrooke on the East; paying yearly one Clove of Gilliflowers at Easter, and to the Prior and Convent of St. Mary Overy 6 s. This House some Time belonged to Simon Dolefly, Grocer, Mayor in the Year 1359. They of this Company were (of old Time) three Arts, or Sorts of Workmen; to wit, the first were Smiths, Forgers of Blades, and therefore called Bladers: And divers of them proved wealthy Men; as namely, Walter Nele, Blader, one of the Sheriffs, the twelfth of King Edward III. deceased, 1352, and buried in St. James Garlick-hithe. He left Lands to the mending of High-ways about London, between Newgate and Wicombe, Aldgate and Chelmsford, Bishopsgate and Ware, Southwark and Rocheſter, &c. The second were Makers of Hafts, and otherwise Garnishers of Blades: The third Sort were Sheath-makers for Swords, Daggers and Knives. In the tenth of Henry IV. certain Ordinances were made betwixt the Bladers, and other Cutlers; and in the fourth of Henry VI. they were all three Companies drawn into one Fraternity or Brotherhood, by the Name of Cutlers.

Thirdly, The Antiquities in this Ward are at present reduced to the following Particulars:

Antiquities

(1) Whittington College, founded on the Spot where now stands the Parish-Church of St. Michael, called Pater-noster Church, in the Royal.

Whitting-
ton's College.

This Church was new builded, and made a College of St. Spirit, and St. Mary, founded by Richard Whittington, Mercer, four Times Mayor, for a Master, four Fellows, Masters of Arts, Clerks, Conducts, Chorists, &c. and an Alms-house, called God's House or Hospital, for thirteen poor Men: One of them to be Tutor, and to have 16 d. the Week; the other twelve each of them to have 14 d. the Week for ever, with other necessary Provision, an Hutch with three Docks, a common Seal, &c.

These (as the Manner then was) were bound to pray for the good Estate of Richard Whittington, and Alice his Wife, their Founders; and for Sir William Whittington, Knight, and Dame Joan his Wife; and for Hugh Fitz-waren, and Dame Molde his Wife; the Fathers and Mothers of the said Richard Whittington, and Alice his Wife, for King Richard the Second, and Thomas of Woodstock, Duke of Gloceſter, special Lords and Promoters of the said Whittington, &c. It follows in the Will, "For Anne and Eleanor, the Wives of the said King and Duke. Furthermore also for the good Heel and Staat of our aforesaid Lord [King Henry VI.] and Archbishop, [Henry Chicheley] that now be, and the Conservators and Benefactors of the same House, while they live; and for our good Staat, while we live; and for their Souls and ours, whan they and we be passed out of this World; and gene- rally

The Licence for this Foundation was granted by King Henry IV. the eleventh of his Reign; and in the twelfth of the same King's Reign, the Mayor and Commonalty of London granted to Richard Whittington a vacant Piece of Ground, thereon to build his College in the Royal: All which was confirmed by Henry VI. the third of his Reign, to John Coventre, Jenkin Carpenter, and William Grove, Executors to Richard Whittington.

This Foundation was again confirmed by Parliament the tenth of Henry VI. and was suppressed by the Statute of Edward VI. The Alms-houses, with the poor Men, do remain, and are paid by the Mercers.

Ordinances of Whittington College.

There are extant, in Custody of the Mercers, the original Ordinances of Richard Whittington's Charity, made by his Executors, Coventre, Carpenter and Grove, fairly written. Where on the first Page is curiously alluminated the said Whittington lying on his Death-bed, a very lean consumed meagre Body; and his three Executors, and a Priest, and divers others standing by his Bed-side. They begin thus:

"To alls the trew People of Cryft, that shalle se or here the Things which be conteyned within these present Letters, John Coventre, Jenkin Carpenter, and William Grove, &c. Executors of the Testament of the worthy and notable Merchant Richard Whittington, late Citezin and Mercer of the Cite of London, and oftentimes Meyer of the same Cite, sending gretying in our Lord God everlasting.

"The fervent Desire and besy Intention of a prudent, wyse and devout Man shal be to cast before and make seure the State and thende of the short Liffe with Dedys of Mercy and Pite; and namely to provyde for such poure Persons, which grevous Penure and cruel Fortune have oppressed, and be not of power to gete their Lyving either by Craft or by any other bodily Labour: Whereby that, at the Day of the last Judgment, he may take his Part with them that shal be saved. This considering the foresaid worthy and notable Merchaunt Richard Whittington, the which while he leved had ryght liberal and large Hands to the needy and poure People, charged strenghtly, in his Death-bed, us his foresaid Executors, to ordeyne a House of Almes after his Death, for perpetual Sustentation of such poure People as is tofore reherfed; and therupon fully he declared his Will unto us. And we wylling after our Power to fullfil thentent of his commendable Wille and holesome Desire in this Part, as we be bound:

"First, Yfounded by us, with sufficient Authorite, in the Church of Seint Migbells, in the Royolle of London, where the foresaid Richard and Dame Alice his Wife be buried, a commendable College of certain Prestes and Clerkis, to do there every Day

"divine Service for the foresaid Richard and Alice.

"We have founded also, after the Wille aboveseid, a House of Alms for xiii pouer Folk successively for evermore, to dwell and to be sustained in the same House: Which House is situated and edified upon a certain Soyl that we bought therfore, late in the Parish of Seinte Migbel aboveseid; that is to say, Bytwene the foresaid Church and the Wall that closeth in the voyd Place behind the heigh Auter of the same Church in the Southside, and our great Tenement, that was the late House of the foresaid Richard Wyttington, in the Northside. And it stretcheth fro the dwelling Place of the Master and the Priestis of the College aboveseid. The which also we did late to be now added in the Eastside unto a great voyd Place of our Land. The which by the Help of God we purpose to do be halowed lawfully for a Churchyard to the same Church within short Time in the Westside.

"And in the more ful and clere Foundation and Ordinaunce, and also stablyng of the foreseid Almeshouse for pouer Men, the Myght of the Fadre, the Wyfdom of the Sonne, and the Goodness of the Holy Ghost, fyrst of al ycalled unto our Help, we procede in this wise:

"Fyrst, Both by Lycence, Graunt and Authority of the right mighty Prince and Lord K. Henry VI. King of England, and of Fraunce, that now is; and also by the Will and Consent of the ryght worthy Lord and Fadre in Cryft, Henry, by the Sufferaunce of God, Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England, and Legate of the See of Rome, of whose Jurisdiction immediate be the Church and Parrishe aboveseid; and the Graunt and Consent of all and every Man, that had any Title or Interest in this Partie, before required and had."

Then the Ordinances follow, which were these:

"To be twelve pouer Folks alonely of Men or Women togiddre; after the sad Discretion and good Conscience of the Overseers underwrit, and Conservators of the same House, to be provided and admitted.

"The which every Day, when due and convenient Time is, shal pray for evermore for al the now being alive, and also for the bypast, to God; whose Names of great Specialty been expressed in these Statutes underwrit.

"To be one Principal, which shal pas al other in Power and Reverence, and be called Tutor. The Office and Charge of him shal be the Goods of the Almes-house, which shal come to his Hands, well and truly to minister; the Goods dissevered to gather again togidre, to the Use of the Almes-house; and the Husbandry of the same House, in as much as he may, goodly oversee, dispose, and ordain; inforcing himself to edifie and nourish Charity and Peace among his Felawes.

The Ordinances
of the College.

"The

"The poor Folks unto the said Tutor evermore shall obey.

"The thirteen poor Folke to be hable in Conversation, and honest in Living.

"The same House to be called for ever God's House, or Almes-house, or the Hospital of Richard Whittington.

"The L. Maior to be Overseer of the said Almes-house; and the Keepers of the Com-monalty of the Craft of Mercers to be called for evermore Conservators of the foresaid House.

"The Tutor to have a Place by himself, that is to say, a Cell, or little House, with a Chimney and a Prevy, and other Necessaries, in the which he shall lyegge and rest; and that he may aloon and by himself, without Let of any other Perfoon, intend to the Contemplation of God, if he woll.

"That the said Tutour and pouer Folke, whan they be in the aforefaid Houses and Cells, and also in the Cloisters, and other Places of the foresaid Almes-houses, have hemselfe quietlie and pesably, without Noise or Disturbance of his Felaws; and that they occupy himself in Prayer or Reading, or in Labour of her Hondes, or in some other Occupation, &c."

It endeth thus:

"In Witness we have put to our Seals. Gyven at London, the xxi Day of Decemb. in the Yere of our Lord a thousand CCCC xxiii. and the Yere of King Henry VI. after the Conquest the thrydde.

"Olney, Felding, Boleyne, and of Burton:

"Herteley theym beseyking with humble Salutation

"Thee to accept, and thus to take in gre,

"For evre to be a Servant withyn yere Com-minaltie."

But further, for the Direction of their daily Devotion, of their Eating, and their Habit, these were the Appointments and Ordinances:

The Devotion of Whittington College.

"Every Tutour and poor Folk every Day first whan they rise fro their Bedds, kneeling upon their Knees, sey a Pater Noster and an Ave Maria, with special and herty Recommendation-making of the foresaid Richard Whittington and Alice to God, and our blessed Lady Maidyn Mary: And other Times of the Day, whan he may best and most commodly have Leisure thereto, for the Staat of al the Souls above-said, say three or two Sauters of our Lady at the least; that is to say, threies seven Ave Marias, with xv Pater Nosters, and three *Crede*s: But if he be letted with Febleness, or any other reasonable Cawse, one in the Day at the least, in Case it may be; that is to say, after the Messe, or when Complyn is don, they come togidder within the College about the Tomb of the aforefaid Rich. Whittington and Alice, and they that can sey shal sey, for the Soules of the said Richard and Alice, and for the Soules of al Christen People, this Psalm, De Profundis, with the Vericles and Orofons

"that longeth thereto. And they that can shal sey three Pater Nosters, three Ave Marias, and on Crede. And, after this doon, the Tutour, or oon of the eldest Men of theym, shal sey openly in English, God have Mercy on our Founders Souls, and al Chrysten; and they that stond about shal aunswer and sey, Amen.

"That they be bound to dwell and abide continually in the said Almes-house, and Bounds thereof; and that every Day, both at Meet and Soupier, they eet and be fed within the said Almes-house; and while they be at Meet or Soupier, they absteyn thanne from veyn and ydel Words; and if they wol any Thyng talk, that it be honest and profitable.

"That the Overclothing of the Tutour and pouer Folk be derk and brown of Colour, and not staring ne blaising, and of easy prised, according to their Degre."

These Executors of the Will of Richard Whittington constituted five Chaplains in his College founded in this Church; which were confirmed by the King in the third of Henry VI. Five Chaplains.

This Richard Whittington was (in this Church) three Times buried; first by his Executors, under a fair Monument; then, in the Reign of Edward VI. the Parson of that Church, thinking some great Riches (as he said) to be buried with him, caused his Monument to be broken, his Body to be spoiled of his Leaden Sheet, and again the second Time to be buried; and in the Reign of Queen Mary, the Parishioners were forced to take him up to lap him in Lead, as afore, to bury him a third Time, and to place his Monument, or the like, over him again; which remained, and so he rested, till the great Fire of London violated his Resting-place again. Richard Whittington thrice buried.

This Church of St. Michael Pater-noster in the Vintry, the Capital House, and Scite thereof, called Whittington College, alias Whittington, and one Garden belonging to the same, of the yearly Value of four Pounds six Shillings and eight Pence, was sold to Armagill Waad, Clerk of the Council, in the second of Edward VI. for ninety-two Pounds two Shillings. Waad obtains this College.

Either in this College, or in the Parish, the Earl of Rutland had a Place in Edward VI.'s Time; whither I find resorted to Dinner the Mourners at his Uncle Sir Richard Mannor's Funeral, after he had been buried at Cree Church.

(2.) The Tower Royal, formerly situate at the upper End of the Street now so called, was a great Place, pertaining to the Kings of this Realm; but by whom the same was built, or of what Antiquity continued, I have not read more, than in the Reign of King Edward I. the second, fourth, and seventh Years, it was the Tenement of Simon Beawmes; also that, in the thirty-sixth of Edward III. the same was called the Royal, in the Parish of Michael de Pater-noster; and that, in the forty-third of his Reign, he gave it by the Name of his Inne called the Royal, in his City of London, in Value twenty Pounds by the Year, unto his College of St. Stephen at Westminster. Notwithstanding, in the Reign of Richard II. it was called the Queen's Wardrobe, as appeareth by this that followeth: Tower Royal.

"King

The Queen's Wardrobe

The Lady
Princess lodged in the Tower
Royal.

"King Richard having in Smithfield overcome
"and dispersed the Rebels, he, his Lords, and
"all his Company, entered the City of London
"with great Joy, and went to the Lady Princess
"his Mother, who was then lodged in the Tower
"Royal, called the Queen's Wardrobe, where she "had remained three Days and two Nights, right
"fore abashed. But when she saw the King her "Son, she was greatly rejoiced, and said, Ah,
"Son, what great Sorrow have I suffered for
"you this Day! The King answered and said,
"Certainly, Madam, I know it well, but "now rejoice and thank God, for I have
"this Day recovered mine Heritage, and
"the Realm of England, which I had near
"Hand lost."

This Tower
Royal a Place of Defence.

This Tower seemeth to have been (at that Time) of good Defence; for when the Rebels had beset the Tower of London, and got Possession thereof, taking from thence whom they listed, the Princess being forced to fly, came to this Tower Royal, where she was lodged, and remained safe, as ye have heard; and it may be also supposed, that the King himself was at that Time lodged there. I read, that, in the Year 1386, Lyon King of Armony, being chased out of his Realm by the Tartarians, received innumerable Gifts of the King and of his Nobles, the King then lying in the Royal; where he also granted to the said King of Armony a Charter of a thousand Pounds by Year during his Life. This for Proof may suffice, that Kings of England have been lodged in this Tower; though the same (of later Time) hath been neglected, and turned into Stabling for the King's Horses, and now lett out to divers Men, and divided into Tenements.

The Duke of Norfolk lodged here.

This great House, belonging antiently to the Kings of England, was inhabited by the first Duke of Norfolk of the Family of the Howards, granted unto him by King Richard III. for so I find in an old Ledger-Book of that King's; where it is said,
"That the King granted unto John Duke of Nor"folk, Messuagium cum Pertinenciis, voc. le Tower,
"infra Paroch. Sancti Thomæ Lond." Where we may observe how this Messuage is said to stand in St. Thomas Apostle, though Stow placeth it in St.
Michael's.

Ringed-
hall.

(3.) In St. Thomas Apostles there was a Messe, perhaps some Time the Dwelling of the Earls of Cornwall, called Ringed-hall; for in the Reign of Edward III. a Place so called, with four Shops and two Gardens, in this Parish, was granted by Edmund Earl of Cornwall to the Abbot of Beaulieu near Oxford; and re-granted, and a Plea thereupon in the Hustings, in the second of Richard II.

Ipres-Inn.

William of Ipres.

(4.) Then West from the said Church, on the same Side, was one great Messuage, some Time called Ipres-Inn, of William of Ipres, a Fleming, the first Builder thereof. This William was called out of Flanders, with a Number of Flemings, to the Aid of King Stephen, against Maud the Empress, in the Year 1138, and grew so far in Favour with the said King for his Service, that he built this House near the Tower Royal, in which Tower it seemeth the King was then lodged, as in the Heart of the City, for his greater Safety.

No. 88.

King
Stephen lodged in the Tower
Royal.

Robert Earl of Gloucester, Brother to the Empress, being taken, was committed to the Custody of this William, to be kept in the Castle of Rochester; till King Stephen was also taken, and then one was delivered in Exchange for the other,
and both set free.

(5.) Over-against Ipres-Inn in Knightriders-street, at the Corner towards St. James at Garlickhithe, was a great House built of Stone, and called Ormond-place, which belonged to the Earls of Ormond. King Edward IV. in the fifth of his Reign, gave to Elizabeth his Wife the Manor of Greenwich, with the Town and Park, in the County of Kent; he also gave this Tenement called Ormond-place, with all the Appurtenances to the same, situate in the Parish of St. Trinity in Knightriders-street, in London.

Ormond-
place.

(6.) In the Parish of St. James Garlickhithe was an-tiently a Guild or Fraternity founded, to the Honour of their Church's Saint; an Account whereof, by Order from the King, was brought in to the Archbishop of York, Lord Chancellor, by Roger Stokes and Henry Garnevil, Wardens of the said Guild; which was as follows:

A Guild.

other Lands, of the yearly Value of one hundred

CHAP. XXIX.

Of WALBROOK WARD,

With a PLAN, neatly engraved from a New Survey.

The Name. Bounds. Extent. Modern State.
Government. Alderman and Common-Councilmen. Parishes and Churches.

Name.

THIS Ward takes its Name from a Street which runs up from Canon-street, near London-Stone, to the South-West Corner of the City Mansion-house, built upon the Site of Stocks-market, which Street was so called from a Brook which ran down on the West Side thereof.

Bounds.

It is bounded on the East by Langbourn Ward, on the South by Dowgate Ward, on the West by Cordwainers Ward, and on the North by Cheap Ward; whose Extent and modern State is thus described:

Extent.

Modern State.

The Streets and Lanes in this Ward are, Wal-brook, as far as Bucklersbury, on both Sides.
Bucklersbury, the East End on both Sides, about eighty Feet.

Budge-row, the East End on both Sides for about seventy Feet.

Dowgate, the North End on the West Side as far as Cloak-lane, and on the East Side as far as against Tallowchandlers-Hall.

Canon-street, on both Sides as far as Green Let-tice-lane on the South Side, and to Abchurch-lane on the North Side.

St. Swilbin's-lane, on both Sides the Way almost as far as Bearbinder-lane.

Bearbinder-lane, the whole, except about thirty-five Feet at the East End.

Lombard-street, about an hundred and seventy-five Feet on both Sides of the West End next the Mansion-house, which this Ward also takes in.

Sberborn-lane, the South End on both Sides for about an hundred and twenty Feet.

Busb-lane, from Canon-street Southwards on both Sides as far as Crofs-lane, which hath the North Side in this Ward.

Suffolk-street, the West Side at the North End for about eighty-five Feet downwards.

Green Lettice-lane, only the West Side.

Abchurch-lane, the West Side as far as the Church.

Walbrook. This Street of Walbrook is well built, and inhabited by Merchants and Tradesmen, especially Furriers, for which it is of Note.
On the East Side is Bond-court, which is large and open, the Turning at the upper End having good Houses, and a Free-stone Pavement, and the Entrance into this Court being broad for Coach or Cart. On the West Side is the Bell-inn, which is but indifferent.

St. Stephen's Walbrook Church, seated on the East Side, and on the South Side of the Mansion-house.

St. Stephen's
Walbrook
Chur.b.

This Church was destroyed in the Fire of London; and since its rebuilding, which is very ornamental, having a Cupola in or about the Middle of it, to it the Parish of St. Bennet Sherebogg, not rebuilt, is united.

Up farther North once stood the Stocks-market, out of which is an Entrance into Lambard-street. But there is but little of the Street in this Ward, except towards this End, formerly very narrow, but lately widened, by lessening the House at the South-West Corner: The rest being in Langbourn Ward is there treated of.

Bearbinder-lane, a Place of no great Account,
as to Trade; it comes out of the Stocks-market, and falls into St. Swilbin's-lane, which is well inhabited by Merchants and others. This Lane comes out of Lombard-street by St. Mary Wolnoth Church, and passing by Dove-court and Bearbinder-lane, (both which have some small Part in this Ward, but the greatest in Langbourn Ward, have been there mentioned) falls into Canon-street by St. Swilbin's Church. In this Lane are these Places: Brites-alley, formerly called Horshoe-alley, is both narrow and small, having but one House, with a Passage into Sberborn-lane.

Bear-binder-lane.

Sr. Swithens-lane

New-court, a very handsome, large Place, with an open Passage into it for Coach or Cart. Here are very good Buildings, with Inhabitants answerable.

Salter's-hall, a very good Building, seated in a good Court, with a Free-stone Pavement, and good built Houses. Out of this Court is a Passage into the back Side of St. Swilbin's Church, which falls into Canon-street. In this Passage is Whistlers-court, which is pretty large, well built and inhabited, having a Free-stone Pavement.

Salter's-
hall.

More towards Canon-street is Oxford-court, which is pretty large and open, especially the upper End, where are good Houses: And in this Place antiently stood the House of the Prior of Tortington in Suffex, which afterwards fell to the Earls of Oxford, and in Process of Time, from one to another, at Length it was converted into Buildings, as now it is, and yet retains the Name of Oxford-court.

Sherborn-lane begins at the Corner of Swithen's-lane, by the Sign of the Cock against the back Gate of the Post-Office, and, with a turning Passage by St. Mary Abchurch, falls into Canon-street.

Canon-street begins in the West by the Corner of Dowgate-hill on the South, and Walbrook on the North, and runs Eastward into Great East-cheap, a Street well built, and inhabited by good Tradesmen, and is a great Thoroughfare; but the Part in this Ward goeth but to Green Lettice-lane, which hath the West Side in this Ward, the East being in Candlewick Ward, where it is spoken of. In this Street is St. Swithen's Church, seated on the West Side and at the South-East Corner of St. Swithen's-lane.

Over-against St. Swithen's Church is the famous old Stone called London Stone.

On the South Side of this Street, and almost against St. Swithen's Church, is Turnwheel-lane, which runs up to Dowgate-hill, being a Place well inhabited.

The Parish-Church of St. Mary Bothaw stood in these Parts, burnt in the great Fire, not rebuilt, but the Parish is united to St. Swithen's.

Bucklersbury falls into Walbrook almost against St. Stephen's Walbrook Church. It is a Place well built and inhabited, particularly by Druggists and Furriers. But in this Ward there is no great Part, the most being in Cordwainers Ward.

Near this Street, more Southward, stood the Church of St. John Baptist, which being destroyed by the Fire, is now enclosed for a Church-yard, and the Parish united to St. Antholin's.

In this Ward these following Lanes have some small Part, the greatest Parts lying in other Wards, namely, Budge-row and Cloak-lane in Vintry Ward, Bush-lane and Suffolk-lane in Dowgate Ward, and Green Lettice-lane in Langbourn Ward.

There are to watch at the several Places or Stands in this Ward every Night, one Constable, a Beadle, and twenty Watchmen.

The Jurymen returned by the Wardmote-Inquest for this Ward are to serve in the several Courts holden at Guildhall in the Month of October.

Its Government is under an Alderman, who at present is Slingby Bethell, Esq; and eight Common-Councilmen; who are, Mr. James Ennis, Deputy, Mr. Joseph Blandford, Mr. William Whipham, Mr. Basil Browne, Mr. William Walter, Mr. Jonathan Weeble, Mr. Nathan Thomas, and Mr. Robert Norris.

The most remarkable Things in this Ward are, three Parishes, and but two Churches.

First, (1.) The Parish-Church of St. Swithen, (2.) of St. Stephen Walbrook, and (3.) the Parish of St. Mary Bothaw: Of which in our Parochial History.

Secondly, The Mansion-house, for the Residence of the Lord-Mayors of this City for the Time being. It is built on the Ground which was formerly the Stocks-market. This Edifice is all of Portland Stone, very capacious within, and well provided for the Entertainment of the chief Magistrate and his Officers; but too much confined by the Contiguity of the neighbouring Buildings, by which the Grandeur of so magnificent a Structure is intercepted from the curious Spectator. See the Elevation of this Mansion annexed.

Thirdly, On the South Side of Canon-street, close under the South Wall of St. Swithen's Church, stands upright a great Stone called London Stone. It, till of late Years, was pitched near the Channel, facing the same Place, and fixed in the Ground very deep, fastened with Bars of Iron, and otherwise so strongly set, that if Carts did run against it through Negligence, the Wheels were broken, and the Stone itself unshaken.

The Cause why this Stone was set up, the very Time when, or other Memory hereof, is uncertain; but that the same hath been long continued there is manifest; for, in the End of a fair written Gospel Book, given to Christ-Church in Canterbury by Ethelstane, King of the West Saxons, I find noted of Lands or Rents in London belonging to the said Church, whereof one Parcel is described to lie near unto London Stone. Of later Time we read, that, in the Year of Christ 1135, the first of King Stephen, a Fire, which began in the House of one Ailward, near unto London Stone, consumed all East to Aldgate: In which Fire the Priory of the Holy Trinity was burnt; and West to St. Erkenwald's Shrine in St. Paul's Church.

Some have said this Stone to have been set as a Mark in the Middle of the City within the Wall; but it standeth nearer to the River of Thames than to the Wall of the City.

Others have said the same to be set for the tendering and making of Payment by Debtors to their Creditors, at their appointed Days and Times, till of later Time Payments were more usually made at the Font in St. Paul's Church, and at the Royal-Exchange. Some again have imagined the same to be set up by one John or Thomas Londonstone, dwelling there against it. But more likely it is that such Men have taken Name of the Stone, than the Stone of them.

Some of our Forefathers had a Conceit, that London Stone was set up in Signification of the City's Devotion towards Christ, and his Care and Protection of the City, under the Notion of a Stone, on which it was founded, and by his Favour so long preserved; for that Way those Rhimes of Fabian in the Praise of London seem to look:

"It is so sure a Stone that that is upon sette,
"For though some have it thrette
"With Manases grym and grette,
"Yet Hurte had it none:
"Cryft is the very Stone
"That the Citie is set uppon,
"Which from al hys Foone
"Hath ever preserved yt."

And since others have cast in their Conjectures in a Matter so obscure, by Reason of the Antiquity of it, let me add one or two of mine own. The Romans reckoned their Miles from all great Towns and Places by Stones pitched, and so they did did in Britain; and perhaps this might be the Stone for London, from which precise Place to measure their Miles from this City towards the other Parts of the Land. And this Street in former Times being the chief Street of London, as Cheapside now is, this London Stone seems to have been the Place (and likely enough upon this Stone) whence Proclamations and publick Notices of Things were given to the Citizens. There is a Passage in our Chronicles that favours this Conceit. In Henry VI's Time, Anno 1450, when Jack Cade, the Kentish Rebel, who feigned himself the Lord Mortimer, came through Southwark into London, he marched to this Stone, where was a great Confluence of People, and the Lord-Mayor among the rest: Here he struck his Sword upon it, and said, Now is Mortimer Lord of this City: And there making a formal, but lying Declaration to the Mayor, departed back again to Southwark.

London
Stone set

ous Worship

Mr. Owen of Shrewsbury.

Perhaps this Stone may be of greater Antiquity than the Times of the Romans, and was an Object or Monument of Heathen Worship; if any be moved so to think, from what an exquisite British Antiquarian asserts, that the Britains erected Stones for religious Worship, and that the Druids had Pillars of Stone in Veneration: Which Custom, he saith, they borrowed from the Greeks, who, as Pausanias writeth, adored rude and unpolished Stones.

Down West from London Stone is Walbrook Corner, where was a Conduit, new built in the Year 1568, at the City's Charge, but not rebuilt after the Fire of London. From whence runneth up North to Stocks-market a Street called Walbrook, because it stood on the East Side of a Brook by the Bank thereof; and the whole Ward taketh its Name from this Street.

This City, of old Time, from North to South, was not divided by a large Highway or Street, as from East to West, but by a Brook of Water which came from out the North Fields through the Wall and Midst of the City into the River Thames. This Water was called Walbrook (not Gallus Brook, from a Roman Captain slain by Alepiadotus, and thrown therein, as some have fabled, but) from running through and from the Wall of the City.

The Course whereof, to prosecute it particularly, was and is from the said Wall to St. Margaret's Church in Lothbury; from thence, beneath the lower Part of the Grocers-hall, about the East Part of their Kitchen, under St. Mildred's Church, somewhat West from the said Stocks-market; from thence through Bucklersbury, by one great House built of Stone and Timber, called the Old Barge, because Barges out of the River Thames were rowed up so far into this Brook, on the back Side of the Houses in Walbrook-street, (which Street taketh Name of the said Brook) by the West End of St. John's Church upon Walbrook, under Horsehoe-bridge, by the West Side of Tallow-chandlers-hall and of the Skinners-hall, and so behind the other Houses to Elbow-lane, and by a Part thereof down Greenwich-lane into the River Thames.

This is the Course of Walbrook, which was, of old Time, bridged over in divers Places, for Passage of Horses and Men, as Need required: But since, by Means of Encroachment on the Banks thereof, the Channel being greatly freightened, and other Annoyances done thereunto, at Length the same, by common Consent, was arched over with Brick, and paved with Stone, equal with the Ground where-through it passed, and is now in most Places built upon, that no Man may by the Eye discern it; and therefore the Trace thereof is hardly known to the common People.

Fourthly, The Antiquities in this Ward may be reduced to these few Particulars: Antiquities

(1.) Stocks-market, which stood at the North-East Corner of Walbrook, and of which we have the following Account: Stocks-market.

About the Year of Christ 1282, Henry Wallis, Mayor, caused divers Houses in this City to be built towards the Maintenance of London-bridge; namely, one void Place near unto the Parish-Church called Woolchurch, on the North Side thereof, where some Time (the Way being very large and broad) had stood a Pair of Stocks for Punishment of Offenders. This Building took Name of those Stocks, and was appointed by him to be a Market-place for Fish and Flesh in the Midst of the City. Other Houses he built in other Places, as by Patent of Edward I. doth appear, dated the tenth of his Reign.

This Stocks-market was some Time belonging to the Keepers of the Bridge of London, and they lett the Shops for Term of their Lives to the Butchers and Fishmongers at certain Rents, which were appropriated for the Use of the said Bridge. But afterwards it was concluded, that no Keeper of the said Bridge should lett the said Shops for Life, without the Concurrence of the Mayor and Commonalty, as appears by this Record: Lib. Horn.
Shops in Stocks-market.

John de Gisors being Mayor about the Year 1312 or 1313, there was a Congregation of honest Men of the Commonalty met, to treat concerning the State of the Butchers and Fishmongers holding Places at the Stocks; and it was agreed by the whole Commonalty, "That all they who took their Places by the Demise of John le Bevere, and of other six honest Men, to whom Henry le Galeys, heretofore Mayor, and the whole Commonalty, granted and demised the same Places, viz. that whole House which is called the Stocks, for the Term of the Life of the said John Bevere and his Companions, for a certain Sum of Money, which they rendered yearly to London-bridge, that they may enjoy the same: And the same John, and the others, may demise those Places to the Butchers and Fishmongers, according to what was indented in a certain Writing between the said Henry, the Mayor, and the Commonalty, on the one Part, and the said John, &c. on the other, and enrolled in the Hustings." And it was likewise agreed, "That other Butchers who have since taken Places by the Demise of other Keepers of the Bridge, and have paid certain Sums to have for the Term of their Lives, and can shew it, may have and hold them: And that, for the future, those Places which are not held in the aforesaid Market, to be taken into the Hands of the Commonalty, and be demised by the Keepers of the Bridge, who are

"are now Tenants yearly, [the Bridge-keepers "being from that Time yearly chosen.] And "it is agreed, That no such Keepers for the "Time to come have Power of letting any "Places for Term of Life, without the Assent
"and Will of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Com-
"monalty."

After this, in the Year 1322, the seventeenth of Edward II. a Decree was made by Hamond Chickwell, Mayor, that none should sell Fish or Flesh out of the Markets appointed, to wit,
Bridge-street, Eastcheap, Old Fish-street, St. Nicolas Shambles, and the said Stocks, on Pain to forfeit such Fish or Flesh as were sold for the first Time, and the second Time to lose their Freedom.
Which Act was made by Commandment of the King, under his Letters Patents, dated at the Tower the seventeenth of his Reign; and then was this Stocks lett to Farm for forty-six Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence by Year. This Stocks-market was again begun to be built in the Year 1410, in the eleventh of Henry IV. and was clean finished in the Year next following. In the Year 1507 the same was rented at fifty-six Pounds nineteen Shillings and ten Pence. And in the Year 1543, John Cotes * being Mayor, there was in this Stocks-market for Fishmongers twenty-five Boards or Stalls, which rented yearly to thirty-four Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence; there were for Butchers eighteen Boards or Stalls, rented at forty Pounds sixteen Shillings and four Pence; and there were also sixteen Chambers above, rented at five Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence; in all, eighty-two Pounds three Shillings.

(2.) By the Stocks was a Stone Conduit set up by the Inhabitants, where before was only a Pipe of Lead, as appears by an Act of Common Council, viz.

At a Common Council held on Tuesday, the twenty-seventh of November, in the first Year of Henry VIII. this Petition was preferred and granted:

To the Right Honourable the Lord-Mayor, and his Brethren the Aldermen, and to the discreet Persons of the Common Council of the City of London.

"Beseeching your good Lordship and Master-ships, the Inhabitants dwelling about the Stocks, that by the Space of five or six Yeeres past, a Vent of Water hath runne by a Pipe of Lead beside the Stocks; which Pipe of Lead, by Reason that it is not closed, is daily hurt with Horses and Carts: It may therefore please your good Lordship and Masterhips, and all our Masters of the Common Councell, to grant and give Licence unto the said Inhabitants, upon their own proper Costs and Charges, to make, or cause to be made, a little Posterne of Stone, with a Cesterne of "Lead therein; so that the said Water shall bee

"therein preserved and conveyed, and so to bee
"drawne out by Cocks, to the common Weale
"of all the said Inhabitants thereabout dwelling.
"Thus, at the Reverence of God, and in the "Way of Charity."

This Market took up all that Ground which was the antient Flesh and Fish-markets, and also the Ground on which Woolchurch stood, and contained from North to South in Length, through the Midst, about two hundred and thirty Feet, and in Breadth from East to West, in the Midst, about an hundred and eight Feet, besides the waste Ground on the East and West Sides, which served as a Street for Passage of People.
On the East Side were planted Rows of Trees, very pleasant to the Inhabitants, this Side being much better than the West. About the Middle of this Row was an Entrance into a Court, in which was a good large House, within the Bounds of this Market-place; and more towards the North Side were twenty-two standing Stalls, covered over, for Shelter of Fruit there fold, as well on Market-Days as at other Times.
The rest of the Market-place was taken up by Gardeners and others, for the Sale of Fruits,
Roots, Herbs, and Flowers: But at the South-West Corner there were two Ranges of Stalls for a few Butchers, under a Shelter, with Racks, Blocks, Scales, &c.

At the North End of this Market place, by a Water-Conduit-Pipe, was erected the Statue of King Charles II. which was done at the sole Charge of Sir Robert Viner, Alderman, Knight and Baronet. Of this clumsy Piece of Sculpture we beg Leave to give the following Account, from an ingenious Author:
"It is impossible to quit this Place, saith he,
"without taking Notice of the Equestrian Sta"tue raised here in Honour of Charles II. A "Thing in itself so exceedingly ridiculous and "absurd, that 'tis not in one's Power to look "upon it without reflecting on the Tastes of "those who set it up: But, when we enquire
"into the History of it, the Farce improves
"upon our Hands, and, what was before con"temptible, grows entertaining. This Statue "was originally made for John Sobieski, King
"of Poland, but, by some Accident, was left "upon the Workman's Hands. About the "same Time the City was loyal enough to "pay their Devoirs to King Charles, imme"diately upon his Restoration; and, finding
"this Statue ready made to their Hands, re"solved to do it the cheapest Way, and con"vert the Polander into a Briton, and the Turk
"underneath his Horse into Oliver Cromwell,
"to make their Compliment compleat; and
"the Turbant upon the last-mentioned Fi"gure is an undeniable Proof of the Truth of "the Story."

Of Graces, that in fraile Man are the best,
Could have confer'd long Life, this funeral Verse,
Had not so soone been offer'd at thy Herse,
By thy sad Widdow; whose Fate did allow;
Her only Three Weeks Happines, to know
How good thou wert: And what remaines of Life,
To her yeelds Sorrow. She was once a Wife
To such a Husband, whose Like 'twere in vaine,
And Flattery to her Grief, to hope againe.
But thou wert Flesh, and that to Earth must turne,
Thy pure Soule blest; she onely left to mourne.

Abb. St.
Alban.

We are told by an eminent Historian, that in the Time of Paul, the Abbot of St. Alban's, Anno 1077, this Church, with many others in London, belonged to the Abbey of that Place; the Patronage whereof he changed with the Abbot of Westminster for that of another.

Ibid.

The same Author likewise acquaints us, that this Church originally was the Chapel of King Offa, which adjoined to his Palace; but thro' the supine Negligence of the succeeding Abbots, the same was daily incroached upon by the neighbouring Citizens, till it was reduced to a very small Compass, in respect to its former Dimensions: But that the Church changed by the Abbot, was Offa's Chapel, (who is not mentioned to have erected any Building in London) appears to me very improbable; for in the third Year of Ethelwulf, Anno 839, the Danes took and burnt this City, which for many Years after lay waste, in a very piteous Condition; and 'tis manifest, that, in all their dreadful Ravages and Depredations, they generally begun with the Churches. Hence 'tis more reasonable to presume, that this Church was built by King Alfred, after he had bravely dispossessed the Danes of this Part of the Country, and retaken the City of London; he being greatly applauded for having honourably restored the same in the Year 886, by repairing its Walls, and adorning it with beautiful Buildings.

A certain Author imagines, that the great square Tower remaining at the North Corner of Love-lane in the Year 1632, was Part of King Athelstan's Palace; and by this Church's being built with the same Sort of Materials, viz. Roman Bricks and Stones, he conjectures, that they both owe their Origin to the said Prince; and to corroborate this Opinion, supposes that Adel (in Saxon, noble) or Addle-street, in this Neighbourhood, received that Appellation from its Vicinity to the Palace. Be those imaginary Origins as they will, this Church is certainly of a very antient Foundation; and perhaps, as already hinted, the first Place of Worship built in this City after the Destruction aforesaid.

This is a Vicarage, situate on the North and East Sides of Tower-street and Seething-lane, in the Ward of Tower-street; and is so denominated from its Dedication to All Saints, and its having antiently belonged to the Abbess and Convent of Barking in Essex.

The Patronage of this Church was in the said Abbess and Nuns of Barking, till Ann. 1546, when Henry VIII. exchanged the same with Thomas, Archbishop of Canterbury, in whose Successors it still continues. However, 'tis subject to the Archdeacon of London in Matters Ecclesiastical; except as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church, having escaped the great Fire Anno 1666, remains upon the antient Foundation to have been as follows:

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

Tho' the Time when this Church was at first erected be unknown, yet it appears to be of considerable Antiquity, by Richard I. having erected a Chapel on the North Side thereof, towards the Clofe of the twelfth Century.

The Rectory of this Church, coming to the Abbess and Convent of Barking, the same was converted into a Vicarage about Ann. 1389.

In the Year 1639, divers Innovations were made in this Church, by removing the Communion Table from its antient Place, and putting there-over the Portraiture of the Holy Ghost; the Rails of the Altar were enriched with a Variety of Images, and a Cross placed over the Font.

These Alterations were so highly displeasing to the Parishioners, that they petitioned the Bishop for Redress, who referring the same to his Chancellor, the Affair was amicably accommodated, by removing the Objects of Offence.

This Church, Anno 1649, as already observed, was greatly damaged by the blowing up of Gunpowder; but it was soon after repaired, with the Addition of a new Brick Steeple, at the Charge of the Parish: And it happily escaping the great Conflagration Anno 1666, it remains upon the antient Foot in respect to the Vicar.

ALHALLOWS, Bread-street.

This Church, which is a Rectory, and one of the thirteen Peculiars in this City belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, owes its Name to its Dedication and Situation.

The Advowson of this Church was in the Prior and Canons of Christ's-Church in Canterbury 'till the Year 1365, when, in Return for the many Favours conferred upon them by their Archbishop, they, on the twenty-fourth of April, by a proper Instrument under their Common Seal, did convey and assign the Right of Presentation to Simon Archbishop of Canterbury, and his Successors, in whom it still continues.

This Church, being destroyed in the Fire Anno 1666, was rebuilt at the Charge of the Publick in a beautiful Manner, and serves not only for the Accommodation of the Inhabitants of its own Parish, but likewise of those of St. John the Evangelist's, who are thereunto annexed by Act of Parliament; whereby the united Profits arising to the Rector, with the Disbursements on Account of the Cure, together with the Receipts and Disbursements on Account of the Church and Poor, are as follow:

On the fifth of September, Anno 1559, the beautiful Stone Spire of the Steeple of this Church was struck with Thunder near the Top, which, by displacing a Stone, occasioned such a Breach therein, that it soon after caused the whole to be pulled down, since which Time no Spire has been rebuilt.

ALHALLOWS the Great.

This Church, which is a Rectory, and one of the thirteen Peculiars in London, belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, is seated on the South Side of Thames-street in the Ward of Dowgate, and was antiently denominated Alballows the More, and Alballows ad Fœnum, in the Ropery, from its Vicinity to a Hay-Wharf or Market, and Situation among Rope-makers.

The Patronage of this Rectory, in the Year 1361, was in Edward le Despenfer, Lord of Glamorgan; from whom it went by Marriage to Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick; from whom it descended to Richard Nevil, Earl of Warwick and Salisbury, by Marriage with Anne, Daughter of the said Beauchamp: But Nevil being killed in the Battle of Barnet, Anno 1471, this Rectory, with a Moiety of his Estate, came to his eldest Daughter Isabella, Consort to George Duke of Clarence, Brother to Edward the Fourth; after whose Suffering it fell to the King. But, in the Year 1488, it was by Parliament restored to Anne, Relict of the late Earl of Warwick, together with her paternal Estate; whereupon she settled the same upon Henry VII. and his Descendants Male; in whom it continued till Henry VIII. exchanged the same with Thomas, Archbishop of Canterbury, in the Year 1546, in whose Successors it still continues.

This spacious and stately Church, with a large Cloister on the South Side thereof, were consumed in the general Conflagration Anno 1666; since which it has been beautifully rebuilt for the Use of this Parish, and that of Alballows the Less, which are united by Act of Parliament, whereby the annual Receipts and Disbursements on Account of the Cure, together with those of the Church and Poor, are as follow:

On the East Side of this noble Fabrick, contiguous to the River of Thames, was situate the Hay-Market, which supplied the City with Hay.

ALHALLOWS, Honey-lane.

This is a Rectory, the small Church whereof stood where the East End of Honey-lane Market is at present situate, in the Ward of Cheap.

Newc. Repert. The Advowson of this Chrch was antiently in private Hands, as appears by Simon de Crapping a Citizen of London's presenting William de Coventre thereunto, Anno 1327. But in the Year 1471 it came to the Company of Grocers in this City, with whom it still remains.

This Church being destroyed by the Fire in the Year 1666, the Site thereof was purchased by the City, and is now the Part of Honey-lane Market above-named. And the Parish thereof being by Act of Parliament united to that of St. Mary le Bow, I shall take Notice of the Rectorial Profits and Disbursements when I come to treat of that Parish, and in the Interim shall subjoin an Account of the annual Charge of the Church and Poor.

Thomas de Karhole was Rector thereof before the Year 1327.

ALHALLOWS the Less.

This is a Curacy, the Church whereof stood on the South Side of Thames-street in Dowgate Ward, almost adjoining to that of Alhallows the Great on the East.

The Advowson of this Church, which was antiently a Rectory, was in the Bishop of Winchester; in whom it continued till a College was founded in the Church of St. Laurence Poultney by Sir John Poultney, about Ann. 1347, when it is supposed he purchased the Patronage of this Church, and appropriated the same to his said College; which is very much corroborated by its ceasing to be a Rectory after the Year 1334, when Nicholas Batterleyne was collated to it by the Bishop of Winchester.

This Church, at the general Suppression of Religious Houses by Henry VIII. coming to the Crown, Queen Elizabeth, in the Year 1577, granted the same to William Verle for the Term of twenty-one Years; after the Expiration of which, King James I. in the Year 1604, regranted it to Richard Blake, &c. and their Heirs, in free Socage for ever: And being a Donative impropriate pays neither First-fruits, Tenths, nor Procurations, other than two Shillings and six Pence to the Archdeacon of London, to whose Jurisdiction it has always been subject.

This Church having suffered in the common Calamity, Anno 1666, the Site thereof was converted into a Cemetery, and the Parish, by the general Act of Parliament, united to that of Alhallows the Great; where an Account of the Vicatorial Profits and Disbursements will be inserted. I shall, in the mean time, proceed to give an Account of the Receipts and Disbursements for the Church and Poor.

Newc. Repert. Ecclef. Paroch. Thomas de Beſill was presented to this Church on the fourth of October, Anno 1322, which effectually refutes Stow's Opinion of its being built by Sir John Poultney.

Ibid. This Church antiently went by divers Appellations: In some Records it is denominated, Omnium Sanctorum super Cellarium, that is, the Church of All Saints over the Cellars; so called from its having Vaults underneath, as our modern Churches have: And in other Writings it had the Name of Omnium Sanctorum parva, or Alballows the less, to distinguish it from its huge Neighbour, Alballows the great.

Stow. Sur. Lond. The Choir and Steeple of this Church were erected over a strong arched Gateway, which led to a spacious and stately Edifice denominated Cold Herberg, or Harbrough the latter, being a Corruption of the former, which signifies an Inn, or Mansion-house; the Epithet of Cold was probably added on Account of its bleak Situation, being so near the River Thames. However, the Site thereof and Buildings thereon are at present known by the Name of Coal-Harbour.

ALHALLOWS, Lombard-street.

This Church, which is a Rectory, and one of the thirteen Peculiars in London belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, is situate in Ball-alley, near the North-East Angle of Lombard-street, in the Ward of Langbourn.

Somn. Ant. Cant. Dugd. Mon. Ang. vol. i. The Advowson of this Rectory appears to have been antiently in Lay Hands; for Brihtmer, a Citizen of London, with the Approbation of Sti-gand the Archbishop, and Godric the Dean, gave the same, with an adjoining Messuage, to the Church of Canterbury about the Year 1053, or 1054, as mentioned by different Antiquaries; and attested by Liefftan, Portreve, and other Citizens:
By Virtue of which Donation the Right of Patronage still remains in the Dean and Chapter of that metropolitan Church.

Act Parl. 22 & 23 Car. II. This Church was burnt down in 1666; but being soon after rebuilt in a handsome Manner, it was continued upon the antient Foot, without having any united to it, or other Alteration than that (to the Advantage of the Rector) of changing the uncertain Tithes to a certain Stipend;
which, with other Profits arising to the Incum-

This Church appears to be of great Antiquity, and of a Saxon Original, by Brihtmer's Gift thereof Anno 1053, as above-mentioned. The additional Epithet of Grass, corruptly Grace, is from its having stood at the Corner of the Grass-Market, which extended from Grass-church, vulgarly Grace-church-street (which was likewise denominated from the Market and Church) to Birchin-lane.

ALHALLOWS, London-Wall.

This is a Rectory, the Church whereof is situate at the West Corner of New Broad-street, in the Ward of Broad-street.

The Patronage of this Church was antiently in the Prior and Convent of the Holy Trinity; with whom it continued till their Dissolution by Henry VIII. when coming to the Crown, it therein still remains. And in Matters ecclesiastical, it is subject to the Archdeacon of London.

This Church having fortunately escaped the great Fire in the Year 1666, remains upon the antient Establishment, in respect to the Rectorial Revenues and Disbursements; which, together with those of the Church and Poor, are as follows:

This Church had an Incumbent in the Year 1335. The additional Epithet of London-Wall was conferred upon it, by its North Side being erected upon the City Wall.

That this Neighbourhood was one of the last inhabited Parts within London, I think, does in some measure appear by the Ground not being raised six Feet above the Virgin Earth, (as was lately discovered at the pulling down Part of London Wall to make way for New Broad-street) whereas in other Parts of the City it is raised from ten to above thirty Feet.

ALHALLOWS Staining.

This is a Curacy, the Church whereof is situate on the West Side, and near the North End of Mark-lane, in the Ward of Langbourn.

Ibid.

Though this is at present a Donative, or Curacy, yet it was antiently a Rectory, and as such continued under the Patronage of the de Walthams and others, till Anno 1366; when, upon the Petition of the Abbot and Convent of Grace, Simon, Bishop of London, appropriated the same to them and their Successors, with a Power to convert the Profits thereof to their own Use, and to supply the Cure either with a Monk, or a Secular Priest, removeable at their Pleasure. On which Occasion the Bishop reserved to himself and Successors (out of the Profits of the Church) a Pension of six Shillings and eight Pence per Annum; and to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and their Successors, three Shillings and four Pence. But this Curacy devolving to the Crown, King James I. granted it to George Bingley, and others, to be held of the Crown in Socage; and the same since coming to the Lady Slany, she bequeathed it to the Company of Grocers, who have had the Advowson thereof ever since.

This Church escaping the Fire, Anno 1666, it remains upon the same Foot as formerly; and, being a Donative, pays neither First-fruits nor Tenths to the King: But the Profits arising to the Curate not being ascertained in any Presentment, I can give no other Account thereof than as follows: To which are subjoined the Receipts and Disbursements on Account of the Church and Poor:

This is a Rectory, the Church whereof, which stands at the North-West Corner of Aldermanbury, in the Ward of Cripplegate, owes its Name to its Dedication to St. Alphage, or Elphege, a noble English Saxon, and Archbishop of Canterbury, who was murdered by the Pagan Danes at Greenwich, Anno 1013.

The Advowson of St. Alphage Church was anciently in the Dean and Canons of the Collegiate Church of St. Martin's le Grand; in whom it continued till Henry VII. annexed the said Collegiate Church to the Convent of Westminster; by Virtue whereof the Abbot and Canons, and, after them, the Bishop of Westminster, remained Patrons of the same, till Queen Mary, by her Letters Patent, Anno 1553, granted the Patronage thereof to Edmund Bishop of London, and his Successors, in whom it still remains, and is subject to the Archdeacon.

This Church having escaped the devouring Flames in the Year 1666, remains upon the ancient Foot in respect to the Rector, whose Profits and Disbursements, together with those of the Church and Poor, are as follows:

Here lieth the Body of Sir Rowland Hayward, NewView Lond.
Knt. twice Lord-Mayor of this City of London, living an Alderman the Space of thirty Years, and at his Death the antientest Alderman of the said City. He lived beloved of all good Men, and died in great Credit and Reputation the 5th Day of December, Anno Dom. 1593, and the 6th Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth. He had two virtuous Wives, and by them many happy Children.

Wall near the East Side of Cripplegate: But at the Suppression of religious Houses by Henry thereof turned into a Carpenter's Yard, the South Isle of the Church of St. Mary Elsing Spital was converted into the present Parish-Church. But as to the Origin of the first Church, I can trace it no higher than a little before the Year 1335, when John Cateleyne was Incumbent there-

Place of its Situation: And in Matters Ecclesiastical 'tis subject to the Archdeacon.

The Patronage of this Church appears to have been antiently in private Hands; for the same, by Right of Patrimony, having descended to Gladerinus, a Presbyter, he conferred it upon the Church and Canons of St. Paul's, about the Year 1322, upon Condition that the Church and Monks of Bermondsey should hold the same of them, to whom they were annually to pay in their Cathedral an Acknowledgement of twelve Pence. Pursuant to which Agreement, the Abbot and Convent of Bermondsey continued Patrons thereof till their Dissolution; when coming to the Crown, Henry VIII. granted the same, Anno 1546, to Thomas Lord Wriothesley, Son of William Wriothesley, York Herald, just advanced to the Dignity of a Baron, by the Title of Tickfield in Com. Southampton, and soon after created Earl of Southampton.

Ibid. Upon the Condemnation of Henry Earl of Southampton, as Confederate with Robert Earl of Essex in his Rebellion, Anno 1600, the Patronage of this Rectory reverted to the Crown, wherein it continued for some Time; but being restored to its former Patron, it continued in his Family till the Extinction of the Male Line by the Death of Thomas Earl of Southampton, Anno 1667.

Ibid. After the Death of the said Thomas, Jane, his Relict, presented to this Church; after which it came to one of the Daughters and Co-heiresses of the said Earl; with whom, I suppose, it went in Marriage to the Family of Montague, seeing the Duke of that Name is the present Patron.

Ibid. This Church having escaped the Flames in the Year 1666, it remains as antiently in respect to the Rector, whose Profits and Disbursements in the Year 1636 were as follow: But by the vast Number of additional Buildings since that Time, the Profits, as it is said, are increased to above 600*l.* per Ann.

Though I cannot ascertain the Antiquity of the Church of this Parish, yet that it is of a considerable Standing is evident, by its having been given by Gladerinus, about the Year 1297.

St. ANDREW Hubbard.

This is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood where, at present, the King's Weigh-house is situate, between St. Botolph's and Love Lanes, in Little Eastcheap and Ward of Billingsgate. It is subject to the Archdeacon, except as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

The Patronage of this Church, Anno 1389, was in the Earl of Pembroke, who being killed in Turnament at Woodstock, and leaving no Issue, the Crown seized on the Advowson for some Time, till it came to John Lord Talbot, afterwards Earl of Shrewsbury, in whose Family it continued till the Death of John Earl of Shrewsbury at the Battle of Northampton, Anno 1460, when it came to Edward IV. who a few Years after restored it to that noble Family; wherein it probably continued till it came to the Earls of Northumberland, from whom by Marriage it went to the Duke of Somerset, the present Patron.

This Church being destroyed in the Fire of London, Anno 1666, and not rebuilt, the Parish thereof was by Act of Parliament annexed to that of St. Mary Hill; whereupon the Parishioners disposed of the Ground both of Church and Cemetery to the City, the Purchase-money whereof they gave towards new pewing the Church of the said St. Mary Hill, the Place of publick Worship for the united Parishes: Wherefore the Profits and Disbursements of the Incumbent on Account of both Parishes are specified in that of St. Mary Hill.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

The earliest Account I find of this Church is, that William de Chichester was Rector thereof in the Year 1362. In antient Records it is denominated Ecclesia sancti Andreæ super Cornhill, from the Street wherein it stands, which, before the Erection of Leadenhall, went by that Name as far as this Place: And the additional Epithet of Undershaft it received from a lofty Shaft, or Maypole, which was annually erected on the first of May before the South Door thereof, in the Middle of the Street, whose towering Top surpassed that of the Steeple in Altitude. But since Evil May-day (so called from an Insurrection of the Citizens on the first of May, 1517) it has not been re-erected.

In the Year 1561, Edmund Grindal, Bishop of London, united to this Parish that of St. Mary the Virgin, St. Ursula and the eleven thousand Virgins, then commonly called St. Mary at the Ax, (from such a Sign opposite to the same) or St. Mary Pellyper, from a Spot of Ground on the North Side thereof, belonging to the Company of Skinners.

The Church of St. Mary stood on the West Side of St. Mary's-street, now called St. Mary-Ax-street, where at present the School-house is situate.

And near the lower End of Berry-street, adjoining to London-wall, stood an Hospital, denominated Augustine Papey in the Wall. See Aldgate Ward.

The present beautiful Gothick Structure of the Church of St. Andrew was rebuilt by the Parishioners, and finished in the Year 1532; which Work was greatly forwarded by the Generosity of Stephen Jennings, Esq; Lord-Mayor of this City Anno 1502, who appears to have been at near a third Part of the whole Charge.

St. ANDREW WARDROBE.

This is a Rectory, the Church of which is situate upon a considerable Eminence on the East Side of Puddle-dock-hill, in the Ward of Castle-Baynard.

The Advowson of this Church was antiently in the noble Family of Fitz-Walter, to which it probably came by Virtue of the Office of Constable of the Castle of London, (that is Baynard's- Castle) which that honourable Family long enjoyed, and for which they had a Soke or Jurisdiction allowed them by the City in the Ward of Castle-Baynard, which contained this whole Parish.

After the Extinction of the Fitz-Walter Family, the Patronage seems to have been in Thomas Lord Berkeley; from whom, by the Marriage of his only Child and Heiress, it descended to Richard Earl of Warwick; after whose Death it came to his three Daughters, Coheiresses; and by Right of them to their Husbands, John Lord Talbot, Edmund Earl of Dorset, and George Lord Latimer, who jointly presented to the same.

But after the Partition of Warwick's Estate, their Successors presented alternately, (with a few Interruptions on the Account of Non-age) till the Year 1663; since which Time it came to the Crown, wherein it still remains.

This Church suffering in the common Calamity of the Year 1666, was rebuilt at the Expence of the Publick, and its neighbourish Parish of St. Anne's Black-friars thereunto united by Act of Parliament; whereby the Profits and Disbursements on Account of the Cure are as follow:

Newc. Rep. Eccl. Paroch. Tho' the Origin of this Church be buried in Oblivion, yet that it is not of a modern Foundation is evident, by its having had Robert at Marjsh for its Rector, before the Year 1322.

Ibid. This Church was antiently denominated St. Andrew juxta Baynard's-Castle, from its Vicinity to that Palace; but, since the Erection of that magnificent Structure called the Wardrobe, almost contiguous to it on the North, the additional Epithet of Baynard's-Castle has given Way to that of its next Neighbour the Wardrobe; which spacious Building having usurped the Sites of many others, the Parish Tithes were thereby so much affected, that they occasioned the Parson to apply to King Edward III. for Redress; who was thereupon pleased to grant the Rector and his Successors forty Shillings per An. in Perpetuity, out of the said royal Mansion called the Great Wardrobe. See Castle-Baynard Ward.

St. ANNE's Aldersgate.

This Rectory Church, which is seated on the North Side of St. Anne's-lane, in the Ward of Aldersgate within, and is subject to the Archdeacon, owes its Name to its Dedication to St. Anne, the Mother of the Virgin Mary, and the Place of its Situation.

The Patronage of this Rectory was antiently in the Dean and Canons of St. Martin's le Grand; in whose Gift it continued till Henry VII. annexed that Collegiate Church, with its Appurtenances, to the Abbey of Westminster; by Virtue whereof the Abbot and Convent, and after them the Bishop of Westminster, continued Patrons thereof, till Queen Mary, in the Year 1553, by her Letters Patent, granted the Advowson of the same to the Bishop of London and his Successors, in whom it still remains.

This Church having shared the common Fate in the great Fire of the Year 1666, was rebuilt at the publick Charge, and the Parish of St. John Zachary thereunto united; which turning to the Advantage of the Incumbent, the Profit and Disbursements of the Cure are as follow:

On the West Side of Puddle-dock, and Northern Bank of the River Thames, was situate the Castle or Tower of Mountfitchet, so denominated from its Founder William de Mountfitchet, a Norman Baron, who came in with the Conqueror. But Richard, a Descendant of the said William, being expelled the Kingdom by King John in the Year 1213, 'tis probable that this his Castle was then demolished, with many others of the rebellious Barons ; seeing that, when the same was granted by the Mayor and Citizens of London to Robert Kilwarby, Archbishop of Canterbury, Anno 1276, 'tis said to have been an old demolished Tower.

It seems as if the Preaching or Black Friars were not sufficiently accommodated at their House in Chancery-lane, near High-Holborn ; for Robert Kilwarby, Archbishop of Canterbury, applied to the Mayor and Citizens of London for a certain Spot of Ground in the City, whereon to erect a Monastery for their better Accommodation ; which Request being taken into Consideration, the Mayor and Citizens, in the Year 1276, generously granted to the said Kilwarby two Lanes or Ways on the West Side of Baynard's-castle-street (now Puddle-dock-hill) together with the Castle of Mountfitchet, above-mentioned : On the Site of the former he erected a Convent with the Stones of the latter. See Farringdon within.

He was once chosen Sheriff of London, and once Alderman, and fined for the same. His last Fine was a Thousand Marks, towards the Repairing of Christ's-Hospital in London. He married twife; his first Wife was Margaret, by whom hee had one Sonne, who dyed, and the Mother. The second Wife was Alice, by whom he had Three Daughters, Elizabeth, Mary, and Elizabeth; the first dyed in her Father's Life-time; the rest, with the Mother, remain'd living. Hee being aged 63 Yeeres, dyed the 10th Decemb. 1595.

Ibid. Here lyeth buried the Body of Richard Bowdler, Citizen and Draper of London, being one of the Society of Merchants Adventurers in England, for Mosovia and the East-Indies. Here lyeth also Anne, his Wife, by whom he had issue Seven

In Flanders, Holland, Zeland, England, all,
To Parents, Troubles; and to me did fall.
These made me pious, patient, modest, wife,
And though well borne, to shun the Gallant's Guise.
But now I rest my Soule, where Rest is found,
My Body here in a small Piece of Ground,
And from my Hill, that Hill I have ascended,
From whence (for me) my Saviour once descended.

Here lyeth the Body of Master Thomas Church, Citizen and Draper of London. He was helpfull to many, hurtful to none, and gave every one his Due. In Memory of whose Love to them, and theirs to him, Mary Bagwell, his Sister, William Bagwell, her Sonne, his Executors, and Bernard Cooper, the second Husband to the said Mary Bagwell, caused this Stone to be laid here, the 28th Day of May, 1617. He departed this Life in August, the 26th Day, 1616, being aged 55 Yeeres.

Here lyeth Richard Croshaw, sometime Master of the Company of Goldsmiths, and Deputy of this Ward. He was very liberal to the Poor, and in the Time of the great Plague, 1625, neglecting his own Safety, he abode constantly in this City, to provide for their Relief. He did many charitable Acts in his Time; and by his Will he left above 4000 l. to the maintaining of Lectures, Relief of the Poor, and other pious Uses.

He dwelt in this Parish 31 Years, and being 70 Years old, he dyed the 2d of June, anno 1621.

St. BARTHOLOMEW the Great.

This is a Rectory, the Church whereof is situate near the North End of Duck-lane, and the East Side of Smithfield, in the Ward of Farringden without, and is subject to the Archdeacon.

The Patronage of this Rectory has been in the noble Family of the Riches, (now Earls of Holland) since the Year 1545, when Henry VIII. granted the same to Sir Robert Rich; before which Time I imagine it to have been in the Prior and Canons of the adjoining Monastery of St. Bartholomew, seeing no Institution appears till after the Surrender of the said Priory. Since which Time it has been all along presented to under the Appellation of a Rectory.

This Church having escaped the Conflagration Anno 1666, it remains in all Respects upon the antient Foot. By the best Accounts I have been able to come at, it is about sixty Pounds per Annum, besides Casualties. The Disbursements are as follow :

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

Tho' I cannot ascertain the Time when this Church was at first erected, yet I am of opinion that it is not coeval with the adjacent Priory; for the Monastery of St. Bartholomew was founded by Rabere, in the Reign of Henry II. upon a moorish Spot of Ground, which till then had been employed as a Laystall. And the Site of this Parish only occupying the small Precinct of the said Priory, I think it cannot be justly imagined that there were many, or any Houses on this Spot at that Time. But, King Henry having granted the Prior and Canons of that Convent a Privilege of holding an annual Fair within their own District, People set to work in the building of Houses, which probably in a short time increased to such a Number, that the Conventual Church was not sufficient to accommodate their Inhabitants; wherefore I am of opinion, that the said Prior and Canons erected a new Church (for the better Accommodation of their Tenants in the Performance of their religious Duties) towards the Close of the twelfth Century, in the Reign of Richard I.

Ibid.

This Convent, with its Precinct, was inclosed on all Sides with a strong Wall, the South Part whereof contain'd a Cemetery, with a spacious Court or Yard, still denominated Bartholomew-

Close, wherein the Fair was antiently held; and on the North and East of the Convent was the Priory Garden; but those Places at last being converted into Streets of Houses, the Fair was removed into Smithfield, where it has been held ever since. See Faringdon Ward without.

Ibid.

Upon the Surrender of this Priory, at the general Suppression of Religious Houses by Henry VIII. Anno 1539, the Revenues thereof amounted to 653 l. 15 s. per Annum, and the six tune-able Bells in the Steeple being sold to the Parish of St. Sepulchre's, the Church was demolished to the Choir, which the King ordered to be an-nexed to the Parish-Church, for enlarging the same.

This Church was given by Queen Mary to the Friars Preachers, or Black Friars, who officiated therein till the Reign of Queen Elizabeth; when it was granted by the Parliament to the Inhabitants for their Parish-Church.

On the South Side of this Church, the Eastern Part of the beautiful Cloister, consisting of eight Arches, is still remaining; but at present 'tis reduced to the mean Office of a Stable.

The Precinct still maintains such an Indepen-dency of the City, (tho' in one of its Wards) that a Non-freeman may set up his Trade in any Part of this Parish.

St. BARTHOLOMEW the Less.

This Church, which is a Vicarage, is seated on the South-East of Smithfield, adjoining to the Hospital of that Name, in the Ward of Faring- don without; and, as being a Chapel to the Hospital, owes its Origin to Rabere, the Founder of the neighbouring Priory; who founded it, together with the Hospital, in the Year 1102, as an Appendage to his new Convent, from which it was denominated.

The Vestry is general; two Church-wardens; and thirty-two Houses. Augmentation to St. Bride's Parish two Pounds per An.

The earliest Account I have been able to come at in respect to the Antiquity of the late Church of this Parish, is, that John de Lincolne was Rector thereof before the Year 1323; at which Time it went by the Name of St. Osyth, from its being dedicated to a Queen and Martyr of that Name. However she appears to have been but a very impotent Protectrix, in suffering herself to be divested of the Tutelage of this Church by Benedict Shorne, a Fishmonger of this City, a Rebuilder, Repairer, Newc.

Rep Eccl.
Paroch.

Repairer, or Benefactor to the same; and Shorne, his Sirname, deviating into Shrog, 'twas at last converted into Sherebog; and Benedict, as already mentioned, turned into Bennet.

St. BOTOLPH's Aldersgate, the City Liberty.

Newc.
Rep. Eccl.
Paroch.

This Church, which was antiently a Rectory, is at present a Curacy, situate at the South-East Corner of Little-Britain, in the Ward of Aldersgate without; and is so denominated from its Dedication to St. Botolph, a Saxon Monk, and its Vicinity to one of the City Gates.

Ibid.

The Patronage of this Church was antiently in the Dean and Canons of St. Martin's le Grand, but unappropriated till the 21st of May, Anno 1399; when Richard II. by his Letters Patent at Pembroke, gave Licence to Thomas Stanley, Dean of St. Martin's, and Patron of this Church, to appropriate the Income thereof (at that Time not exceeding five Marks per Ann.) to the Collegiate Church of the said St. Martin, for the Celebration of a perpetual Anniversary for his late Royal Consort Queen Anne, upon the Day of her Death, during his Life; and that after his Demise, the said Anniversary to be solemnized upon his Obit for ever: Whereupon this Church was, upon the 18th of December following, appropriated to that of St. Martin's le Grand, by Virtue of a Commission from Robert Bishop of London to Thomas Stow, L. D. his Official: By which Appropriation the said Dean and Canons were to provide a sufficient Maintenance for a Chaplain to serve the Cure; since which Time it has continued a Donative or Curacy.

Ibid.

And when Henry VII. in the Year 1503, annexed the Collegiate Church of St. Martin's le Grand to the Convent of St. Peter's Westminster, this Church, as an Appendage thereof, became subject to that Abbey. After the Suppression of Monasteries, Henry VIII. granted the said Churches to his new Bishop of Westminster; but, upon Queen Mary's Accession to the Crown, the new Bishoprick being dissolved, and the Abbot and Monks restored to their Convent, both Churches reverted to their old Masters. But upon the Demise of that Princess, and Accession of Queen Elizabeth, the Monks were re-expelled by Parliament, and the Convent converted into a Collegiate Church, to the Dean and Chapter of which Elizabeth granted this Church, together with that of St. Martin's le Grand, towards their Support. However, it remains subject to the Bishop and Archdeacon of London, to whom it pays Procuration; but, being a Donative, pays neither First-fruits nor Tenths to the King.

Ibid.

By the Return made of this Church in the Year 1636, it appeared, that the Impropriation then amounted to three hundred Pounds per Annum, to the Dean and Chapter aforesaid, who are to provide a Curate; but the Allowance made by them to him is such a Trifle, as not to deserve mentioning: Wherefore he is chiefly maintained by the Surplice Fees, Bequests, and a Collection among the Parishioners.

The dreadful Conflagration in the Year 1666 stopping near this Church, it fortunately escaped Destruction; wherefore it remains in all Respects as formerly, paying to the Bishop four Shillings, and to the Archdeacon nine Shillings Procurations.

Nec patriæ quisquam, nec probitatis erat.
Si quæ conditio, (si quid sit laudis in illa)
Vita sub illustri principe clara fuit.
Et si principibus laus est placuisse probatis,

Par. Rec.

Though I have not been able to discover the Time when this Church was at first founded, yet that it is of considerable Antiquity is evident by the Parish Records; wherein appears, that a House, antiently given to the Parishioners, was by them demised upon Lease to Richard Rothing in the Year 1319.

This Church was rebuilt last Year (1754) by virtue of an Act of Parliament; of which the following is an Abstract:

Preamble.

"Whereas the Parish-Church of St. Botolph without Aldersgate is a very antient Fabrick, and, notwithstanding the continual Expence the Inhabitants of the said Parish have been at, in repairing and supporting the same, the whole Building is now very much decayed and out of Repair: And whereas, in regard to the Premises, the Landlords and Proprietors of Houses are willing to contribute to the Repair of the said Church, and the Tower thereof: Now, to the Intent that the said Church may be substantially repaired for the publick Worship of God, and the Instruction of the Inhabitants of the said Parish in the true Christian Religion, as now professed in the Church of England, and that the same may be effected in a Manner that may be least burdensome to the Inhabitants of the said Parish, who of themselves are unable to repair the same; may it therefore please your Majesty, that it may be enacted, &c.

"And forasmuch as borrowing Monies upon the Credit of this Act will be the most speedy and effectual Method to accomplish the pious Purposes aforesaid; be it therefore further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any Person or Persons to contribute, advance, and pay into the Hands of the said Trustees, or any seven or more of them, or to such Person or Persons as the said Trustees, or any seven or "more of them, shall by any Writing or Writings under their Hands and Seals authorize and impower to receive the same, for the Uses before-mentioned, any Sum or Sums of Money, not exceeding in the Whole the Sum of fifteen hundred Pounds, for the absolute Purchase of one or more Annuity or Annuities, to be paid and payable, during the full Term of the natural Life of such Contributors respectively, or the natural Life of such other Persons as shall be nominated by or on the Behalf of such respective Contributors at the Time of Payment of their respective Contribution-monies, which Annuity or Annuities shall not exceed the Rate of eight Pounds per Annum, for every one hundred Pounds; and so in Proportion for any greater or lesser Sum to be advanced and paid as aforesaid; all which said Annuities, so to be purchased as aforesaid, shall not exceed in the Whole the Sum of one hundred and twenty Pounds per Annum, and shall be payable and paid by the said Trustees, or any three or more of them, in the Vestry-room of the said Parish, or in such Place in the said Parish, as they, or any three or more of them, shall for that Purpose appoint, by Half-yearly Payments, to commence from the Payment of the said Money; which Annuities shall be publickly sold by the said Trustees, to the best Bidder for the same.

St. BOTOLPH's Aldgate, the City Liberty.

This is a Curacy, the Church whereof stands on the North Side of Aldgate High-Street, and East Side of Houndsditch, in the Ward of Portfoken; and is so denominated from its Dedication to the above-named St. Botolph, and Neighbourhood to the Gate.

The Advowson of this Church was antiently in the Proprietors of the Ward of Portfoken, who, in the Year 1115, gave it, together with the whole Ward, to the Prior and Canons of the Trinity within Aldgate: Which Grant was not only soon after confirmed by Henry I. but likewise by the Pope and Bishop of London.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

The Ward of Portoken, of which this Parish consists, was, about the Year 967, given by King Edgar to certain Military Knights for their gallant Deportment in the Service of their Country. See Portoken Ward.

The Street leading from Aldgate to Whitechapel being rendered almost impassable by the numerous Carriages incessantly passing that Way, it was first paved by an Act of Parliament of the thirty-second of Henry VIII. Anno 1541.

This Church was rebuilt by Act of Parliament in the Year 1741.

Preamble.

"Whereas the Church of the Parish of Saint Botolph without Adgate, in the City of London, and County of Middlesex, is a very antient Fabrick; and, notwithstanding considerable Sums of Money have been laid out by the Inhabitants of the said Parish, in repairing and supporting the same, Part thereof is in great Danger of falling down, and other Parts in a very ruinous Condition: Now, to the Intent: the said Church may be rebuilt for the publick Worship of God, and the Instruction of the Inhabitants of the said Parish in the true Christian Religion, as now professed in the Church of England; and that the said Steeple may also be rebuilt, and that the same may be effected in a Manner that may be least burdensome to the Inhabitants of the said Parish; the Church-wardens, Antients, and other Inhabitants of the said Parish, do most humbly beseech your most Excellent Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and the Authority of the same, That it shall and by may be lawful to and for the Trustees, or for any nine or more of them, to cause the said Parish-Church, and the Steeple thereof, to be pulled down, and to be rebuilt after such Model, and of such Dimensions, and of such Materials, and in such Manner and Place, as by the said Trustes, or any nine or more of them, shall be agreed upon.

Trustees to make Assessments.

"Provided

No Settlement to be made by paying these Rates.

“ Provided always, and it is hereby further declared and enacted, That the Payment of the Rates and Assessments directed to be raised and levied shall not intitle any Person or Persons whatsoever to any Settlement in the said Parish of Saint Botolph without Aldgate, who was not before such Payment legally intitled to such Settlement in the said Parish.

Trustees may borrow Money on Credit of this Act.

“ And forasmuch as borrowing Monies upon the Credit of this Act will be the most speedy and effectual Method to accomplish the pious Purposes aforesaid; be it therefore further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any Person or Persons to contribute, advance, and pay into the Hands of the said Trustees, or any nine or more of them, or such Person or Persons as they, or any nine or more of them, shall, by any Writing under their Hands and Seals, authorize to receive the same, any Sum or Sums of Money, not exceeding in the Whole the Sum of six thousand Pounds, for the absolute Purchase of one or more Annuity or Annuities, to be paid and payable for the natural Life or Lives of such Contributor or Contributors respectively, or the natural Life or Lives of such other Person or Persons as shall be nominated by or on behalf of such respective Contributors, at the Time of Payment of their respective Contribution-Monies, so as the Annuity or Annuities, do not exceed the Sum of eight Pounds ten Shillings per Annum, for every one hundred Pounds; and so in Proportion for any greater or less Sum, to be advanced and paid as aforesaid; all which said Annuity or Annuities, so to be purchased as aforesaid, shall not exceed in the whole the Sum of five hundred and ten Pounds per Annum, and shall be payable and paid by the said Trustees, or any nine or more of them, in the Vestry-Room of the said Parish, to the Purchaser or Purchasers of the same, their Executors, Administrators, or Assigns, at such Times, and in such Proportions, as shall be agreed upon between the Purchaser or Purchasers, and the said Trustees.

Annuities of 8 l. 10 s. per Cent.

How Annuities shall be paid.

“ And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That all and every the Annuity or Annuities, so to be purchased under and by Virtue of this Act, shall be, and are hereby charged upon, and shall be paid and payable from Time to Time, out of the Monies arising by the said Rates or Assessments herein mentioned; and all and every Contributor and Contributors upon the Credit of this Act, duly paying the Consideration or Purchase-Money for any such Annuity or Annuities as aforesaid, or such Person or Persons as he, she, or they shall appoint his, her, or their respective Executors, Administrators, or Assigns, shall have, receive, and enjoy, and be intitled, by Virtue of this Act, to have, receive, and enjoy the respective Annuity or Annuities, so to be purchased out of the said Rates or Assessments by this Act appropriated or appointed for the Payment thereof, during the Term of the natural Life of the Person to be nominated by each and every such Purchaser or Contributor as above-mentioned; and that all and every such Purchaser and Purchasers, and their Executors, Administrators, and Assigns respectively, shall have good, sure, absolute, indefeasible Estates and Interests in the Annuities so by them respectively purchased, or to be purchased, according to the Tenor and true Meaning of this Act; and that none of the said Annuities shall be subject or liable to any Taxes laid or to be laid by the Authority of Parliament, or otherwise howsoever.

“ And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any Purchaser or Purchasers of any such Annuity or Annuities, as aforesaid, and his, her, or their Executors, Administrators, or Assigns, at any Time or Times, by Writing under his, her, or their Hands and Seals, to assign such Annuity or Annuities, or any Part thereof, or Interest therein, to any Person or Persons whatsoever, when and as often as Need or Occasion shall be or require; and a Memorandum or Entry of all such Assignments shall be made in a Book, which is hereby required to be kept by such Person or Persons as the said Trustees, or any nine or more of them, shall appoint for that Purpose, at the Charge of the said Trustees, in the Vestry-Room belonging to the said Parish, which Entry or Memorandum shall be made gratis.

Annuities may be assigned over.

Assessments to pay the Annuities.

“ And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the several Rates or Assessments, herein directed to be collected and paid, shall be charged and chargeable with and for the Payment of the said Annuities, and all Arrears thereof, from Time to Time; and shall upon every Default of Payment of the said Annuities, within the Space of forty Days next after any of the Times when the same shall be made payable, vest in the Annuitants, until the same shall be fully paid and satisfied, together with Interest, and Costs, and Charges, occasioned by the Non-payment of the same; and that the said Annuitants, in case the said Annuities shall be in Arrear and unpaid for the Space of forty Days, as aforesaid, and until full Payment thereof, with Interest and Charges, as aforesaid, shall have the same Power, Rights, and Privileges of assessing, collecting, distraining, and levying the said Rates or Assessments, payable by Virtue of this Act, as the said Trustees, their Collectors or Receivers, or any of them, could have had, in case the said Annuities had been regularly and fully paid and satisfied.

“ Provided always, That if any Person chosen or appointed a Trustee for the Purposes of this Act shall undertake any Part of the Building of the said new intended Church or Steeple, or have any Share or Interest in any Contract relating thereto, every such Person shall, from thenceforth, be utterly disabled and disqualified from acting in the said Trust; and that no Trustee or Trustees herein before named, or hereafter to be appointed, as aforesaid, other than those intitled to be Trustees by Virtue of their Office or Stations, as aforesaid, shall act in the Execution thereof, but during such Time as they shall respectively pay, or be liable to pay, either as Landlord or Tenant, for twenty Pounds a Year Rent towards the Rates or Assessments aforesaid.

Trustees not to be interested in the Building.

“ And Continuance of the Rates.

“ And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the several Rates or Assessments hereby directed and appointed to be raised and levied as aforesaid, shall take Place and have Continuance from the said first Day of May, one thousand seven hundred and forty-one, for and during such Time only, as any of the Annuities to be granted, pursuant to this Act, as aforesaid, shall have Continuance, and when and as often as there shall be Occasion or Necessity to raise the same, and no longer, and not otherwise; and from and after the Determination of all the said Annuities, such Rates and Assessments shall cease and determine; any Statute, Law, Usage, or Custom, or any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Trustees
may sell the Materials
of the Church,

“ And it is hereby further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the said Trustees, or any nine or more of them, shall have full Power and Authority, and they are hereby authorized and impowered, or such Person or Persons as they, or any nine or more of them, shall, from Time to Time, for that Purpose appoint, to sell and dispose of all or any of the Materials of the said Church and Steeple (if they shall so think fit) to such Person or Persons as shall be willing to purchase the same; and the Money arising by such Sale shall be applied to the Purposes of this Act, and to no other Purpose whatsoever.

and erect a Tabernacle for Divine Service, &c.

“ Provided also, and be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the said Trustees, or any nine or more of them, are hereby impowered and required, by and out of the Monies intended to be raised by Virtue of this Act, to erect or purchase a Tabernacle, or otherwise provide some decent and convenient Place for the Service and Worship of God, during the rebuilding of the said Church; and also, when the new intended Church shall be built and finished, to take down such Tabernacle, and, if Occasion be, to sell and dispose of the Materials thereof, and apply the Money arising by such Sale or Disposal for the Purposes of this Act; and that such Tabernacle so to be erected, or Place to be provided, shall in the mean Time, and until the said Church shall be rebuilt, and Divine Service performed therein, be deemed and reputed to be a Parish-Church.

defray their own Charges.

“ And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the Trustees appointed, or to be appointed, for the Purposes mentioned in this Act, shall, at all their Meetings, defray their own Charges and Expences, and shall give such publick previous Notice of their several Meetings, as shall, from Time to Time, be by them, or any nine or more of them, agreed upon.

Property in Graves, &c. not to be altered.

“ Provided always, That this Act shall not extend to take away the Graves, Grave-stones, Monuments, or Vaults, being the particular Property of any Person or Persons now living, or which belong to the Families of any Person or Persons buried in or under the said Church, and made or provided for the Interment of him, her, or themselves, Families and Descendants; but the same Graves, Grave-stones, Monuments, and Vaults, in or under the said Church, when rebuilt, shall be preserved or provided for, and belong to the said several Persons, his, her, and their Descendants, in the same, and in the like Manner, as the said Graves, Grave-stones, Monuments, and Vaults, were before the passing of this Act.”

EAST-SMITHFIELD LIBERTY.

Tho' this Town, or Liberty, be at present reckoned within the Jurisdiction of the County of Middlesex; yet, as it appears to be within the antient Bounds of the Ward of Portoken, which extended from Whitechapel-bars, Southward, by Dodding's-pond in Nightingale-lane, and the Hermitage-bridge, to the River Thames; I shall therefore insert it in this Place, considering that it still belongs to the Parish of St. Botolph, Aldgate, in the Liberty of the City; but as that Union only regards the Church, I shall subjoin the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor's Accounts, in respect to their several Charges relating to the Church, Liberty and Poor.

East-Smithfield is a Manor, wherein is kept a Court-Leet and Court-Baron; in the former of which are chosen the Officers belonging to the Liberty; and in the latter Pleas are held for any Sum under forty Shillings; to which Court belong a Steward, a Town-Clerk, and three Attornies.

On the North Side of St. Catharine's Hospital, and East Side of Little Tower-bill, where at present is situate the Victualling-Office belonging to the Royal Navy, was seated the Abbey of Grace, founded by Edward III. in the Year 1349.

St. BOTOLPH's Billingsgate.

This is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood opposite Botolph-Lane in Thames-street, and Ward of Billingsgate, from which it receives its latter Appellation, as it does the former from the Saint of that Name.

The Advowson of this Rectory appears to have been antiently in Lay Hands, by a Proceſs carried on (about the Year 1194). by John Bocumeter, and Dionisia his Wife, againſt the Dean and Canons of St. Paul's, for the Patronage thereof. But the Dean and Chapter having ſhewed their Right, not only to this Rectory, but alſo to that of St. Martin Orgars, by a Deed of Gift to them of both Rectories, from one Odgarus, his Son, and Chriſtiana, the Mother of the ſaid Dionisia; the Plaintiffs thereupon renounced all Pretenſions to both the ſaid Rectories; ſince which Time the Right of Collation to both has continued in the ſaid Dean and Chapter.

The Dean and Canons ſeemingly pricked in Conſcience for the Hardſhips the Complainers lay under, by their being iniquitouſly deprived of their paternal Inheritance; therefore, to make them an Amends, promiſed annually to celebrate the Obiits of the ſaid John Bocumeter, and Dionisia his Wife. A poor Return for ſo great a Loſs!

I am of Opinion this Church is of Saxon Foundation; for William the Conqueror, Anno 1067, granted to the Abbot and Canons of Weſtminſter a Gate and Wharf in this Neighbourhood, denominated Botolph's; which Appellation I imagine they received from their Vicinity to this Church.

St. BOTOLPH's Biſhopsgate.

This Church is a Rectory, ſituate oppoſite Houndsditch, on the Weſt Side of Biſhopsgate-ſtreet without, in the Ward of that Name; and is ſo denominated from its Dedication to the Monk aforeſaid, and its Neighbourhood to one of the City Gates.

The Patronage of this Rectory, for ought appears, has been all along in the Biſhop of London, to whom, and his Commiſſary, 'tis only ſubject; and being wholly exempt from the Archidiaconal Jurisdiction, pays no other Tithes than thoſe due to the Biſhop.

This Church having fortunately eſcaped the devouring Flames, Anno 1666, it remains in all Reſpects upon the antient Foot in reſpect to the Cure: The Profits and Diſburſements whereof, as return'd in the Year 1636, were as follow:

A Frenchman borne, hight Martin de la Tour,

VOL. II. NUMB. XCII.

So Martin of the Tower may well be said,
T'have dyed in England, yet in France was laid.
He died anno 1617.

On the 10th of August, Anno 1626, was interr'd without the Verge of the consecrated Burial Ground in Petty France, the Body of Hodges Shaughsware, a Persian Merchant, whose Son, according to the Custom of his Country, daily repaired to his Grave for the Space of a Month, where he perform'd divers Prayers and Ceremonies over the Defunct. But being disturb'd by the Populace, discontinu'd his Funeral Devotions, and erected a Monument to his Memory, with a Persian Inscription, English'd thus:

This Grave is made for Hodges Shaughsware, the chiefeft Servant to the King of Persia, for the Space of Twenty Yeeres, who came from the King of Persia, and dyed in his Service. If any Persian cometh out of that Country, let him read this,
and a Prayer for him, the Lord receive his Soule;
for here lyeth Maghmote Shaughsware, who was borne in the Town of Novoy in Persia.

Sir Paul Pindar, Kt. his Majesty's Ambassador to the Turkish Emperor, Anno Dom. 1611, and Nine Years Resident. Faithful in Negotiations
Foreign and Domestick; eminent for Piety, Charity, Loyalty, and Prudence. An Inhabitant Twenty-six Years, and bountiful Benefactor to this Parish. He deceased the 22d of August, 1650, aged 84 Years.

Near this Place lyeth interred (in hope of a joyful Resurrection) the Body of Andrew Willaw, late of this Parish, Esq; who departed this Life the 10th Day of June 1700, in the 68th Year of his Age.

He by his Will gave and devised to the Churchwardens and Overseers of this Parish, and to their Successors for ever, all his Messuages, Tenements and Ground in Garland-Alley, in this Parish, to cloathe Twelve poor Men and Twelve poor Women of the same Parish, on the First of January yearly for ever. And if any Overplus remained of the Rents after such Cloathing, then such Overplus to be divided among such poor People, Part and Part alike.

On a Gravestone in the Church-yard, over-against the South End of the Rector's House, an Inscription for Miriam Taylor, Daughter of Richard Taylor and Agnes his Wife, who departed June 30, 1705, aged 17. And for John Taylor, who was unfortunately killed by a Blow with a Stick on Holy Thursday, An. 1710, in the 15th Year of his Age.

All you that chance this Tomb of mine to see,
Pray stop and read, and Warning take by me.
With Care observe your Parents sound Advice,
Your Safety in your just Obedience lies.
If you their wife Commands once disobey,
Like me to sudden Death you'll fall a Prey.

Officers, &c. in this Parish.

The Vestry is general; two Church-wardens;
four Overseers of the Poor; Houses, seventeen hundred and nine. Augmentation to this from the following Parishes, viz. From St. Stephen's Wal-brook, 12 l. St. Peter's Cornhill, 10 l. St. Mary Woolchurch, 7 l. St. Christopher's, 6 l. St. Michael's Quern, 5 l. 10 s. St. Vedast Foster, St. Antholin's

By the earliest Account I have been able to come at of this Parish-Church, it appears that John de Northampton was Rector thereof before the Year 1323, which shews it to be of a considerable Standing.

The old Church, which stood upon the Bank of the City Ditch, (as did those of St. Botolph's Aldersgate, Aldgate, and St. Giles's Cripplegate) being antient and in a very crazy Condition, an Act of Parliament was obtained for rebuilding the same; whereby the Commissioners were impowered to raise upon all Landlords two Shillings per Pound, out of the Rents of their several Houses in the Parish, and six Pence per Pound of the Tenants, not exceeding in the whole the Sum of ten thousand Pounds. But this Sum not proving sufficient to finish the Work, a Parish Rate was made to supply the Deficiency, whereby the Sum needful was raised; and the Church and Steeple being finished, the Charge of the whole amounted to ten thousand four hundred and forty-four Pounds, one Shilling, and eight Pence Half-penny.

In digging the Foundation for the present Church, Part of the Walls of the first-erected were discovered, whereby it appeared not to have been near so big as the late, nor the present Fabrick; in the first Stone of which was inlaid a Copper Plate, with the following Inscription:

Deo & Ecclesie sacrum, Lapidem hunc Anpovvianov posuit Reverendus in Christo Pater, Edmundus, Londinensis Episcopus, istius Ecclesie Patronus perpetuus, 10 die Mensis Aprilis, A. D. 1725.

This Parish being greatly straitened for Room to bury their Dead in, the City conferred upon them that Part of the Town-Ditch between their Cemetery and the City Wall, Anno 1615. Since which Time that Spot of Ground has been raised above eight Feet. At the West End of this new Burial Ground, and East Side of Moorfields, (whereon the New Broad-streets are situate) was a Street of mean Buildings, denominated Petty France, from its being at first inhabited by People of that Nation.

BRIDEWELL PRECINCT.

Tho' this Precinct be extraparochial, yet as the Chapel thereof has a Government resembling that of a Parish-Church, I shall therefore insert it in this Place. But the Hospital whereunto it belongs, I have treated of in Faringdon Ward without.

The Advowson of this Chapel is in the Gift of the Governors of the Hospital; and the Liberty, or District thereunto belonging, is Part of the antient Jurisdiction, which appertained to the Royal Palace of Bridewell. But tho' this Precinct contains divers Streets of Houses, yet the Inhabitants thereof, not being impowered to make a Poor's Rate, raise Money by way of Contribution. Therefore I shall subjoin one of their annual Accounts in respect to the Poor.

St. BRIGIT's, vulgarly St. Bride's.

This Parish, tho' antiently a Rectory, is at present a Vicarage, the Church whereof is situate behind the Southern Row of Houses of Fleet-street, in the Ward of Faringdon without; and is so denominated from its Dedication to St. Brigit, by most Authors said to have been a Scotish Virgin.

The Advowson of this Church was in the Abbot and Convent of Westminster, till their Dissolution by Henry VIII. Anno 1539. But when the same was changed into a Vicarage, is uncertain; tho' probably it happened about the Year 1529, when William Mott, S. T. B. was collated as the first Vicar thereof. However, 'tis subject to the Archdeacon of London, save as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church sharing the common Fate in the Fire of London in the Year 1666, was rebuilt at the Charge of the Publick, in the magnificent and beautiful Manner, as it at present appears; but it remains in all Respects upon the antient Foot in regard to the Cure; except that of having a certain Stipend settled upon the Vicar, by the general Act of Parliament, for ascertaining the Profits of the Incumbents of the several Parishes of this City, whose Churches were destroyed by the Conflagration aforesaid.

This Vicarage, by reason of its having been heretofore a Rectory, pays First-fruits and Tenths to the King; which, together with its Profits, are as follow:

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

Tho' the Origin of this Church be unknown, yet it appears not to be of a late Date, by its having had three Rectors before the Year 1362. However, it seems to have been very small, till about the Year 1480, when it was greatly enlarged by William Venor, Warden of the Fleet Prison; who caused a spacious Fabrick to be erected at the West End thereof, consisting of a Middle and two Side Isles; to which the old Church served as a Choir. Newc. Rep. Ecclef. Paroch.

Henry VIII. having dissolved the Convent of Westminster, and erected the same into a Deanry, he granted the Advowson of this Church towards the Support of his new Foundation; and the same being soon after converted into a Bishoprick, it was conferred upon the Bishop. But Edward VI. was no sooner possessed of the Crown, than he dissolved the Bishoprick, and restored the Deanry; and Edward demising soon after, Mary, upon her Accession to the Throne, reduced it to its pristine State, by restoring the Abbot and Monks. But this, like the others, proving of no long Duration, it was by Queen Elizabeth converted into a Collegiate Church; in the Dean and Chapter of which this Impropriation has continued ever since. Here you may see John Jackson Hee,
By Death laid in his Bower,
He dy'd in June, Twenty and one,
Fifteen hundred Eighty-four.
Whom God in Health endu'd with Wealth;
And Treasurer he hath been
To Infants poor, to save them Store,
That kept are here within.
When he did dye, then Deputy Unto the Alderman,
To end the Brawl of Great and Small,
As testify we can.
His Will can tell he lived well,
To feed the Poor with Meat:
His Gifts therein so large have been,
And Legacies so great.
His zealous Heart did never start
From preaching of the Word,
Till from this Bell, he went to dwell
In Glory with the Lord.
Where he in Bliss undoubted is,
A just Reward of Faith,
And all that grieve, and do believe,
As Holy Scripture saith.

We dye to live, that liv'd to dye,
Through Jesus Christ; and so do I.
Which Christ as I have loved best,
Among his Saints I trust to rest.

Close by this small Remembrance, you may find
That which apparel'd erst an honest Mind;
A Body there inurn'd, where once did rest
A charitable Soul, that was its Guest.
But see what Sicknefs, Age, and Death have done;
These have they parted: Yet the Day shall come,
When they shall meet, and reunite again,
And be assum'd above the Heavens to reign.
Untill which Time may thy poor Monument
To Readers shew a sad Son's true Intent.
But if this perish, yet her Virtue shall (She dead) preserve her blest Memorial.

Here lies Catherine, Daughter of John and Hester Bosworth; who lived Fourteen Years, not more admired for the Beauties of her Person, than esteemed for those of her Mind: The Pride of her Parents; the Delight of her Friends: Who, to the Cheerfulness agreeable in Youth, joyned the Modesty that adorns it. In whom Duty, Affection, Affability and Condescension were the Effect, not so much of an happy natural Disposition, as of just Reflection and sincere Piety: Worthy to have continued in the World, had the World been worthy of her. She lived long enough to give a Specimen of Virtue, to confirm the Hopes that had been conceived; alas! no longer, than to shew the Greatness of our Loss, and the Vanity of temporal Enjoyments. Vit. F. 12.
13. fol. 45.

In the Year 1224, there arrived at the Port of Dover, in Kent, four Clerks and five Lay-Brothers, Friars Minors of the Franciscan Order; five of whom settled at Canterbury, and the other four repaired to London; where they were kindly received and entertained by the Friars Preachers at their House in Holbourn, for the Space of fifteen Days. Hence they removed to a House in Cornhill, which they took of John Travers, one of the Sheriffs; wherein they continued about a Year, when they were much straitned for Room, by reason of the great Increase of their Number. Which being observed by John Iwryn, Citizen and Physician of London, (who soon after became a Lay-Brother among them) he, for the Health of his Soul, and Good of the said Friars, granted to the Mayor and Citizens of London, in pure and perpetual Alms, all his Land and Houses situate in the Parish of St. Nicholas Shambles; which Spot of Ground was soon after considerably enlarged by the additional Benefactions of the Mayor and Commonalty, as well as by the Munificence of private Citizens of London.

Ibid

A Site was no sooner provided, than divers of the principal Inhabitants of this City began, in the Year 1225, at their own Expence, to erect a House and Chapel for the better Accommodation of the said Friars. But the Monks continuing to increase in Number, the Chapel was not sufficient to accommodate them in the Celebration of the Divine Offices; wherefore Margaret, Consort to Edward the First, in the Year 1306, began to erect a stately and very spacious Church, which took up twenty-one Years in building, at a very great Expence; and in regard to its Dimensions, it excelled all the Places of Worship in this City, except that of the Cathedral; it being no less than three hundred Feet in Length, eighty-nine in Breadth, and sixty-four and two Inches in Height: This magnificent Fabrick was erected at the Charge of the said Margaret, that of two other Queens, many of the Nobility, Citizens of London, and others.

Sir Richard Whittington, Mayor of this City Anno 1419, erected at his own Expence, in the Year 1421, a spacious Library for the Use of this Convent, and laid out in furnishing the same with Books the Sum of four hundred Pounds.

Ibid.

At the Dissolution of Religious Houses Anno 1538, this Monastery was surrendered to Henry the Eighth; when, according to a certain Author, its Revenues amounted to thirty-two Pounds nineteen Shillings and ten Pence. This I take to be a Mistake; for 'tis not probable, that so noble and stately a Structure as this Convent appears to have been, could have so piteous an Income as the above: For I am of Opinion, that instead of that Sum, the Maintenance of its numerous Family is more likely to have cost some hundreds of Pounds per Annum.

This Church was no sooner surrendered to the King, than it was converted into a Repository for Prize Goods taken from the French. But Henry the Eighth, in the Year 1546, having granted the same to the Mayor and Commonalty of London, he annexed a certain District thereunto, which consisted of the Parishes of St. Nicholas Shambles, St. Ewin, and that Part of St. Sepulchre's within the City Wall; and having erected the same into a Parish, the Church thereof, from its Dedication, was denominated Christ's-Church. For the Service of which were appointed a Vicar, a Visitor of Newgate, five Priests, two Clerks, and a Sexton. The Vicar to receive of the City a Stipend of 26 l. 13 s. 4 d. The Visitor, 10 l. This is a Rectory, the Church whereof is situate near the North-West Angle of Tbreadneedle-street, in the Ward of Broad-street; and is so denominated from Christopher, a Profelyte, Martyr, and a Saint of Canaanitish Extraction; whose Name, before his Conversion, was Reprob; but his present Name, it seems, he received from his carrying Christ over a great River upon his Shoulders; if you can believe it.

St. CLEMENT's Eastcheap.

This Rectory Church, which is seated on the East Side of St. Clement's-lane, in the Ward of Candlewick, owes its Name to St. Clemens or Clement, (a Roman, and Disciple of St. Peter the Apostle) Bishop of Rome.

The Advowson of this Church appears to have been in the Abbot and Convent of Westminster till their Dissolution. In the Year 1553, Queen Mary conferred the same upon the Bishop of London, in whose Successors it still remains. But in Ecclesiastick Affairs 'tis subject to the Archdeacon, except as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

Paroch.

This Parifh is a Rectory, the Church whereof is fituate near the South-Weft Corner of Lime-ftreet, in the Ward of Langbourn. Its Name it owes to St. Dionis, Dionysius, or Dennis, an Athenian Areopagite, or Judge, who, upon St. Paul's preaching at Athens, was converted, and became the first Bishop of that City, and afterwards Patron of the French Nation. This is the celebrated Miracle-monger, who, according to the absurd and ridiculous Fables of the Papifts, carried his Head two Miles, after it was cut off.

The Epithet of Backchurch was conferred upon this Church, from its Situation behind a Row of Houfes, to diftinguifh it from the Church of St. Gabriel, which flood in the middle of Fenchurch-ftreet; therefore thofe Churches were anciently known by no other Appellation than thofe of Fore and Back-Church.

The Patronage of this Church, which is one of the thirteen Peculiars in this City belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, was anciently in the Prior and Canons of that Church, in whom it continued till the Diffolution of their Priory; when 'twas conferred upon the Dean and Chapter of the faid Church, who are ftill Patrons thereof.

Here lyeth Henry Headson's Corps, Within this Tombe of Stone; His Soul, through Faith in Christ's Death, To God in Heaven is gone. Whiles that he lived an Alderman, And Skinner was his State, To Vertue bare he all his Love, To Vice he bare his Hate. His Almes that Weekely he bestowed, Within this Parish here, May witnesse to the Poores Releefe, What Good-Will hee did beare.

Sir Christopher Draper, Knight, Ironmonger, and Lord Mayor of London, 1560, deceased, being 70 Yeeres of Age. Lady Margaret, his Wife, made this Monument for him.

On the same Monument are the following Inscriptions of the said Sir Christopher's Sons in Law.

Sir William Webbe, Kt. Salter, and Lord Maior of London, 1591, deceased the Fourth Day of July 1599. Lady Bennet, his Wife, yet living, Daughter to Sir Christopher Draper, Knight, performed this in her Love to him.

Sir Wolstane Dixie, Knight, Skinner, and Lord Maior of London, An. Dom. 1582, deceased, being 69 Yeeres of Age. Lady Agnes, his Wife, Daughter to Sir Christopher Draper, Knight, deceased in the 37th Yeere of her Age.

Sir Henry Billingsley, Knight, Haberdasher, and Lord Maior of London, 1596, yet living in An. 1602. Mistresse Bridget, his Wife, Daughter to Sir Christopher Draper, Knight, deceased in the 44th Yeere of her Age. Master Christopher Woodrooffe, Son to the said Mistresse Bridget, deceased 37 Yeeres of Age.

Hoc Monumentum amoris ergo posuit Domina Bennet Webbe, superstes, in Memoriam sui Conjugis dignissimi Equitis Guil. Webbe, defuncti 4 Julii 1599, ut etiam in Observantiam Officii erga Parentes suos, Dom. Christ. Draper, & Margaretam, Uxorem ejus, necnon cæteros tunc sorores tum posteros præfixos.

Ibid.

The Corps of Richard Champion, Knight, Maior and Draper, here doth rest;
Whose Soule by most assured Hope,
With Christ in Heaven is blest.
His Life was such, and so employed
To right from Wrong, that hee,
Whom God did so direct in Life,
Must needs with Comfort dye.
Both Rich and Poore did like him well,
And yet do praise his Name;
Though he behind him left no Child
Which might declare the same.
His Weekly Almes that is bestowed,
Within this Parish here,
Doth witnesse to the Poores Comfort,
That Good-Will he did beare.

Obiit 30 Octobris, An. Dom. 1568.

To the pious Memory of that truly virtuous and religious Lady, Dame Mary More, (late Wife of Sir John More Kt. and Alderman of this City) a Person deservedly great by excellent Accomplishments of Nature, and the more divine Perfections of Grace; who having filled up her several Relations with just Honour and Applause, and left the World a bright Example of Piety and Virtue, resigned up her Spirit the 16th Day of May, in the 58th Year of her Age, and of her Marriage the 38th, and lyeth interred in a Vault near this Place, Anno Dom. 1690.

St. DUNSTAN's in the West.

This is a Vicarage, the Church whereof is seated on the North Side of Fleet-street, in the Ward of Farringdon without; and is so denominated from its Dedication to Dunstan aforesaid; and the Epithet of West, to distinguish it from the Church above-mentioned.

This Church, tho' at present a Vicarage, was anciently a Rectory, in the Patronage of the Convent of Westminster; the Abbot whereof, Richard de Barking, in the Year 1237, granted the same to Henry the Third; from which Time the Advowson continued in the Crown, till the Year 1362, after which it seems for some time to have been in the Bishop of London; for, upon the Petition of the Abbot and Convent of Premonstratenses of Alnwick, in the County of Northumberland, to Robert, Bishop of London; setting forth, That, by their Monastery's standing upon the Frontiers of Scotland, their Revenues, by the frequent Incursions and Depredations of the Scots, were not only very much diminished, but their Convent likewise burnt, and they not in a Condition to rebuild the same, nor keep the Hospitality they ought:

Newc.

Wherefore the Bishop, on the 30th of October, Anno 1386, by the Assent of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, did appropriate this Rectory to the Abbot and Canons of that Convent, with a Power to supply the Cure with one of their own Canons, or other Secular Priest, removable at their Pleasure. Hence it was, my Author supposes, that there was neither Rector nor Vicar instituted to this Church for upwards of Seventy Years.

Ibid.

But in the Year 1437, a perpetual Vicar being instituted thereto, the Patronage continued in the said Abbot and Convent till their Suppression; when when coming to the Crown; it continued therein till the Year 1554, when Edward the Sixth granted the same to the Lord Dudley, where it continued not long; for both the Rectory and Advowson of the Vicarage were granted to Sir Richard Sackville; in whose Family it continued till alienated to George Rivers, in the Year 1625; since which Time they have been in Lay Hands.

The Fire of London, Anno 1666, stopping within three Houses of this Church, it luckily escaped Destruction; wherefore it remains in all Respects as formerly. The Profits and Disbursements whereof, as returned in the Year 1636, were as follow:

Ibid. My Friend, whoso this Place of mine
Thou be that shalt behold,
With Patience pawse, and heare a Friend
His Mind to thee unfold:
Seeke not with Heapes of worldly Toyes
To furnish thy Delight;
Nor let him fancy high Degree,
That hopes to live aright.
If thou have Wealth, supply their Want
That languish and decay;
And linger not thy good Intent
Untill the latter Day.
If Poverty oppresse thy Minde,
Let Patience be thy Guide:
Let Rigour faile to false thy Faith,
What Hap so thee betide.
For, as from Death no Way there is,
Whereby thee to defend;
So happy may no Creature be,
Before his finall End.
Wherefore of God his Mercy crave,
Who hath of Mercy Store,
And unto him commend my Soule,
(My Friend) I crave no more.

Stryp. Ed. On the Death of the discreet and virtuous Mi-Stow. Sur. strisse Mary Davies, Daughter of Thomas Croft, of Okley Parke in the County of Salop, Esquire, and Wife of John Davies, of Hereford. She died on New Yeeres Day, 1612.

Here lies her Dust, who, in a Span of Life,
Compass the Virtue of the worthiest Wife:
If Oddes there be, (well measured) 'twill be found
She more acquir'd; so her bright Stocker renown'd:
And to those Wives, that Glory most doe gaine,
She was a Mirrour, that no Breath could staine;
Though she a Female were, her Judgment was,
To truest Masculines, a truer Glasse:
For she by Nature, Grace and Wisdome too,
Shew'd by a Woman, what best Men should doe
In their best Actions: For she acted nought,
That came not from a grave and gracious Thought.
But Nature (though familiar, yet most strange,
Shewing how much she doth delight in Change,
In Thousand Fashions doth herself array)
Permits nought here, to stand at constant Stay.
And Time and Death with her therein conspire,
Else had these Ashes still held vitall Fire.
But these just Lines, in Time and Death's Despight, Shall lead all Times to do her Vertue Right.

In Memory of the Honourable and Vertuous
Margaret Talbot, Widow; who deceased the 31st of March, 1620. Ibid.

By this small Statue (Reader) is but showne,
That she was buried here; but hadst thou knowne
The Piety and Vertues of her Minde, Thou wouldst have said, why was she not enshrin'd?
Both Vere's and Windsor's best Blood fill'd her Veins,
She matcht with Talbot; yet their noble Straines
Were far below her Vertue; in whose Breast
God had infus'd his Graces, 'bove the rest
Of all her Sex; whose sacred Course of Life,
Both in the State of Widow, Maid and Wife;
For each she had beene, though her latter Dayes
Chaste Widowhood crown'd, to her immotall Praise;

Was so immaculate, she deserves to be
The Chrystall Mirrour to Posterity.
More Honour hast thou by her Burial here,
Dunstan, than to thee chanc'd this many a Yeere.
Earth, from her Coffin, heave thy ponderous Stones,

And, for thy sacredst Relique, keepe her Bones.
Since, spite of Envy, it cannot be deny'd,
Saint-like she liv'd, and like a Saint she dy'd.

The comfortable Farewell of a young Infant, fighed out in his dying Sicknes, to his mourne-full Parents.

Let not my Father grieve, or Mother moane,
That I this wretched World have soone forgone :
Better I dye, before I doe amisse,
Than live to sinne, and be bereft of Blisse.
All that I can be charg'd with at the Tribunall Throne,

Is Sinne Originall, for Actuall I have none,
And that I know my Saviour with his Blood
Hath washt away, and made my Badness Good.
And cause I know (though Knowledge I have small)

That Jesus Christ did dye to save us all ;
I passe with Joy, in Heaven to meet my King,
With Angels and Archangels there to sing.
Then, Father, mourne, and, Mother, weep no more,

I now dye rich, that might have liv'd but poore ;
For had I progreß unto Man's Estate,
It is not certaine what would be my Fate :
Whether a Crosse, or Blessing, I should prove,
Or merit Parents direful Hate, or Love.
For oft you see, how Youths rebellious Prankes Makes Sonnes ingrate, to those they owe most Thanks !

And might not I have been amongst the Number
Of those that doe their Parents States incumber ?
Yes, yes, I might, perhaps, have been a Slave,
And kill'd your Hearts with Care, and digg'd your Grave.

But now my silly Dove-like Soule doth part
In Peace of God, and Love of Parents Heart.
Sweet Innocence, my Shield, I beare in Hand,
To guard me towards that most Holy Land,
Where Parents both, and Sister I shall see,
In God's appointed Time triumphantly.
Till when,
Adieu, sweet Parents ! Jehovah calls away,
My Name is Simon, (Obedience) and I must obey.

Epitaphium.

Young Simon up to Sion is ascended,
His best Life is begunne, his worst being ended.

Near him lyeth the Body of his Son *Joshua

II.* He walked in the Steps of his Father, and succeeded him, not only in his Office but Virtues. Whereas his Father, in his Life-time, did give Ten Pounds per Annum, issuing out of a House in Fetter-lane, during the Term of a Lease, for the daily Reading of Divine Morning Service
in this Church; he hath perpetuated it for ever.
He was Twice Master of his Company, and be-queath'd unto them above 200*l.* to the End that, by them, Ten Pounds per Annum should be for ever distributed to their poor Widows; and he gave several other charitable Bequests.

In whose Memory this Monument is erected by Catharine, his Wife, out of the tender Affection she bore to her Husband. He died April 6th, 1678, aged 49 Years.

Tho' the Origin of this Church be buried in Oblivion, it yet appears to be of great Antiquity, from a Dispute between the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and the Prior and Canons of the Trinity Convent within Aldgate, about the Year 1175, concerning the Patronage thereof; which was determined by Gilbert, Bishop of London, in Favour of the latter. St. ETHELBURG's.

This is a Rectory, the small Church whereof stands on the East Side of Bishopsgate-street within, in the Ward of that Name; and is so denominated from its being dedicated to Ethelburge, the first Christian Saxon Princess, and Daughter to Ethelbert, King of Kent, the first Christian Saxon Prince, and Patron to Austin the Monk, the English Apostle.

The Advowson of this Church was in the Priores and Nuns of St. Helen, in Bishopsgate-street, till the Suppression of their Convent, Anno 1539; when coming to the Crown, 'twas some time after granted, by Queen Elizabeth, to the Bishop of London and his Successors, who have ever since collated and inducted to the same. And in Matters Ecclesiastical 'tis subject to the Archdeacon. Ibid.

This Church having fortunately escaped the devouring Flames in the Year 1666, it remains, in all Respects, upon the antient Foot. The Profits and Disbursements whereof, to the Incumbent, appear to have been in the Year 1636, as follow:

St. FAITH's.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof was the Vault under the East End or Choir of St. Paul's Cathedral; and its Name it owes to its being dedicated to St. Faith, or Sancta Fides, a French Virgin of the City of Agen, in the Province of Aquitain, who, according to some, suffered in the Reign of Dioclesian the Emperor, for refusing to sacrifice to Idols.

This Rectory, being one of the Peculiars belonging to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, they are both Patrons and Ordinaries of the same; therefore 'tis not only exempt from the Arch-deacon, but likewise from the Bishop, except when he Visits, tam in Capite quam in Membris.

This Church having suffered with the Cathedral of St. Paul's in the great Fire of 1666, the Parish thereof has by Parliament been united to the Church of St. Austin, where I have taken Notice of its Receipts and Disbursements on Account of the Cure; therefore shall proceed to its Parochial Disbursements on Account of the Church and Poor:

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

Whether the antient Inhabitants of the District at present denominated St. Faith's Parish, had a Church before the Foundation of the late stately Fabrick of St. Paul's Cathedral, by Maurice Bishop of London, Anno 1087, I cannot ascertain; yet I think 'tis highly probable they had, because of the great Number of Houses there appears to have been in this District before the Fire of London, in the Year 1086, which were purchased and pulled down by the said Maurice, for a Site for his intended stupendous new Cathedral. Be that as it will, 'tis manifest they could have had no Place of Worship under the Choir of St. Paul's before the Year 1312, when the same was finished.

The first Place of Worship granted by the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's to the neighbouring Inhabitants, was in the Cryptis, (corruptly the Crowds) or Western Part of the Vault, under the Choir of that Cathedral; which being dedicated to St. Faith, or Sancta Fides, abovementioned, they continued to perform their religious Duties therein till the Year 1551, when the Chapel of Jesus, at the East End thereof, was suppressed, into which they were permitted to remove, being a Place much more convenient, both in respect to its Dimensions and Lightsomness: Of which, on the first of March, Anno 1553, they obtained a Lease of William May, LL. D. in the Name of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's; which was granted to John Denman, D. D. the Parson and John Lawes and Robert Toy, Church-wardens of this Parish; whereby was demised to them all the Vault or lower East Part of St. Paul's Church, commonly called the Crowds, some time denominated Jesus Chapel; together with the late Chapel of our Lady and St. Nicholas, in the South Part of the said Vault, or Crowds, and the Entry leading from the South End of the Steps in the said Cathedral, to the said Crowds or Church, but with the Liberty of Passage to the said Dean and Chapter, thro' the said Entry, to and from their Crowds, Storehouse or Wine-Cellar; which Lease was granted for the Term of ninety-nine Years at the Rent of twelve Pence per Annum, to be paid yearly at the Feast of Pentecost; and in case of Non-Payment for the Space of twenty Days after the same shall become due and demanded, then and in such case
'twas lawful for the said Dean and Chapter to enter upon, and take Possession of the Premises at Pleasure.

And the Parson and Church-wardens aforesaid, did covenant to maintain and keep in repair the said Crowds or Church, during the Continuance of their Lease; and not to break down any of the Walls or Pillars of the same; nor to break up any Part of the Floor or Ground to bury in, without Leave first had and obtained of the said Dean and Chapter, one of the Residentiaries of St. Paul's; or, in his Absence, of the Sub-Dean, or Clerk of the Vestry of the said Cathedral.

And it was farther agreed, that the said Parson, Church-wardens and their Successors, shall, for every Corpse buried in their said Church or Crowds, pay to the Dean and Chapter, and their Successors, the Sum of six Shillings and eight Pence, and to the Clerk of the new Works of St. Paul's the like Sum of six Shillings and eight Pence, upon Forfeiture (when lawfully demanded) of forty Shillings for each Corpse, over and above the said Sum of thirteen Shillings and four Pence. 'Twas likewise agreed, that the said Parson, &c. should have a Wire, from the Clock of the Cathedral, to be fastened to a Hammer, to strike upon the Bell of St. Faith's Church.

Tho' it does not appear that the Parishioners of St. Faith's ever renewed their Lease, yet it is manifest that they continued their Publick Worship in the aforefaid Crowds, or Vault, till Anno 1666, when the Cathedral of St. Paul was destroyed by Fire; on which Occasion this Parish being united to the Church of St. Austin's, the Parishioners are provided with a Church, tho' not a Cemetery; for which they seem to lie at the Discretion of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's.

St. GABRIEL'S.

This is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood opposite Cullum-street, in the middle of Fenchurch-street, and Ward of Langbourn.

Newc. Rep. Eccl. Paroch. This Church has gone by divers Names, the most antient whereof appears to be that of St. Mary Fenchurch, whereby 'twas known 'till the Year 1517, when in the London Registry it was recorded by the Appellation of St. Gabriel, and the Year after by that of All-Saints; whence my Author conjectures, that it was at first dedicated to all three. Be that as it will, it was from that Time to the Fire of London, in Records, denominated St. Gabriel Fenchurch; which, by the Vulgar, was converted into Fore-Church, to distinguish it from St. Dionis, in the same Street, commonly called Back-Church.

Ibid. The Patronage of this Rectory appears to have been antiently in the Prior and Convent of the Trinity within Aldgate, in whom it continued till the Suppression of their Priory, when it devolved to the Crown, in which it still remains.

This Church having undergone the common Fate Anno 1666, it has not been rebuilt; but the Parish being annexed to the Church of St. Margaret Pattens, the Rectorial Profits are thereby augmented, which, together with the Disbursements on Account of the Cure, I shall insert when I come to treat of the Parish of the said St. Margaret. In the mean Time, I shall subjoin the Parochial Charge in respect to the Church and Poor.

St. GEORGE Botolph-lane.

This Church, which is a Rectory, situate on the West Side of Botolph-lane, in the Ward of Billingsgate, is denominated from its Dedication to St. George of Cappadocia, the Confessor, Martyr, and Tutelar Saint of the English Nation: But the Story of his killing the Dragon, is equally absurd with the fictitious Invention of there being such an heterogeneous Creature.

Though I cannot ascertain the Origin of this Church, yet it appears to be not of a modern Date, by Robert de Haliwell's being Rector thereof in the Year 1321.

St. GILES's Cripplegate.

This is a Vicarage, the Church whereof is situate at the South-West Corner of Fore-street, in the Ward of Cripplegate without; and is so denominated from its Dedication to St. Giles, a Grecian and Citizen of Athens, and the neighbouring Gate.

Ibid.

The Patronage of this Vicarage was in private Hands, till Aelmund, a Priest, granted the same (after his own Death, and that of Hugh, his only Son) to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's Church, whereby they became not only Ordinaries of the Parish, but likewise Proprietors of the Rectory, and Patrons of the Vicarage; wherefore it is exempt both from the Archdeacon

Stow. Sur.

Heere lyeth buried Sir Henry Grey, Knight, Sonne and Heire to George Lord Grey, of Ruthen, and Earl of Kent. The which Sir Henry Grey departed this Life the 24th Day of September, in the Yeere of Christ 1562.

Ibid.

Johannis Hambei, Armigeri, Caro hoc in Tumulo repulverescit, sicut & Janæ charissimæ Conjugis. Qui dum vixit Edwardo Sexto, Maria, & Elizabetha Angliæ Regibus, in variis calculorum & rationum generibus, tam præstitorum & exteriorum, quam decimarum & primitiarum ratiocinator dignissimis extiterat. Obiit autem Johannes, 8 Calend. Aprilis, Anno Salutis è Christo 1573. Quem Jana Secundo post Mense insequuta est, 16 Scilicet Calend. Junii. Quorum spiritus ad Cælum reversi reassumptionem Carnis expectant.

Ibid.

A Remembrance of Tho. Busbie, Citizen and Cooper of London, who departed this Life in the Yeere 1575, and was buried the 11th Day of July.

Ibid.

This Busbie, willing to relieve the Poore
With Fire and with Bread,
Did give the House wherein he dwelt,
Then called the Queenes Head.
Four full Loads of the best Charcoales,
He would have bought each Yeere,
And Forty Dozen of Wheaten Bread,
For poor Householdiers here.
To see these Things distributed,
This Busbie put in Trust
The Vicar and Church-wardens,
Thinking them to be just.
God grant that poore Householdiers here
May thankful be for such;
So God will move the Minds of more,
To do for them as much.

And

And let this good Example move
Such Men as God hath blest,
To doe the like before they goe
With Busbie to their Rest.
Within this Chapel, Busbie's Bones
In Dust a while must stay,
Till he that made them raise them up,
To live with Christ for aye.

Ibid. If you on Earth that live, did know
What Rest the Dead possesse,
You would not wish to wander here,
In Vale of Wretchednesse.
Good Helen, Wife to me that was,
Prepare thyself with speed,
That thou and I, with this young Maid,
A Plant of both our Seed,
May rest in One, and rise in Three,
By Power of Godhead's Might,
When we with Angels shall assemble,
To everlasting Light.

Richard Roper lived 70 Yeeres, and dyed the 28th Day of Septemb. Anno Dom. 1578. Helen lived
65 Yeeres, and Joane 2.

Ibid. *Sacro sub hoc saxo tria Corpora mista quiescunt,

Extant perdocte per multa volumina scripta,
Quæ scripsit Foxus; nulli fuit ipse secundus.
Obiit An. Dom. 1587, April 16.*

Ibid. Christo S. S. Johanni Foxo, Ecclesiæ Angli-canæ Martyrologo fidelissimo, Antiquitatis Histo-ricæ indagatori Sagacissimo, Evangelicæ veritatis propugnatori acerrimo, Thaumaturgo admirabili;
qui Martyres Marianos, tanquam Phænices, ex Cineribus redivivos præstitit: Patri suo omni pietatis officio imprimis colendo, Samuel Foxus, illius Primogenitus, hoc Monumentum posuit, non sine Lachrymis.

Obiit die 18 Mens. Aril. Anno Dom. 1587.
Jam Septuagenarius.

Vita Vitæ mortalis est, spes Vitæ immortalis.

Ibid. Within this Ile lyeth buried the Body of Charles Langley, sometime of this Parish, Ale-Brewer, who was buried the Eighth Day of June, An. Dom.
1602, and did give bountifully to the Poore of this Parish.

If Langley's Life you list to know,
Read on, and take a View;
Of Faith and Hope I will not speake
His Works shall shew them true.
Who whilst he liv'd with Counsell grave
The better Sort did guide;
A Stay to Weake, a Staffe to Poore,
Without Back-bite, or Pride.
And when he dyed he gave his Mite,
All that did him befall,
For ever once a Year to cloath
Saint Giles his Poore withall.
All-Saints he pointed for the Day,
Gownes, Twenty, ready made,
With Twenty Shirts and Twenty Smocks,
As they may best be had.
A Sermon eke he hath ordain'd,
That God may have his Praise,
And others might be won thereby,
To follow Langley's Ways.
On Vicar and Church-Wardens then
His Trust he hath repos'd,
As they will answer him one Day,
When all shall be disclos'd.

Thus being dead, yet still he lives,
Lives never for to dye,
In Heaven's Blisse, in World's Fame;
And so I trust shall I.

Roger Mason, of this Parish, Citizen and Vintner of London, gave to the Poore of the Freedome of this Parish 200 l. wherewith an yeerly Rent of Sixteen Pounds, or thereabout, is purchased for ever; to be bestowed on Ten Gownes of black Cloath lined, to be distributed yeerly upon Tenne poore Men of the Freedom of this Parish, upon All-Saints Day, at the Discretion of the Vicar and Church-Wardens for the Time being. He died
the 3d Day of September 1603, Ætat. suæ 37;
leaving his Wife Jane, by whom he had Three Sons and Three Daughters, whereof One only now liveth, named Katherine; which Jane truly paid the above-mentioned Two hundred Pounds;
and joyned the Erection of this Monument; set up An. Dom. 1606, May the 8th Day.

William Day, Citizen and Vintner of London,
the Sonne of Thomas Day, of Boseham in Sussex, Gentleman, and Elizabeth, his Wife, gave to the Poore of this Parish Eighty Pounds; which was paid by his Brother George Day, wherewith an yeerly Rent of Six Pounds, or thereabout, is purchased for ever; to be bestowed on Twelve Coats of Greene Cloth, to be distributed yeerly upon Twelve poor Orphans, upon All-Saints Day; at the Discretion of the Vicar and Church-Wardens for the Time being. Hee lyeth buried in his Parish Church of St. Michael in Cornhill, and dyed the 28th Day of September 1603, Ætatis suæ 32;
set up Anno Domini, 1606, May the 8th Day.

Here lyeth the Body of Edward Harvift, Citizen and Brewer of London, Alderman's Deputy, of this Parish, and one of his Majesty's Gunners, and Anne, his beloved Wife. They were both very charitable Persons; as in giving Land to this Parish perpetually, for the Relief of poore Widows; as also Land to the Company whereof he was free, for mending of the High-way between Edgeworth and Paddington. He gave great Legacies to his poore Kindred, and departed this Life the 14th Day of March 1610. She departed this Life the 24th Day of May, Anno Dom. 1610, expecting both a glorious Resurrection in Jesus Christ.

The sacred Corps of Sarah, Wife of Henry Goodricke, Daughter of William Bodenham, Knight, was interred at the South End of this Seat, towards the Pulpit. Buried the 6th June, Anno 1616.

The Bearer's Sorrow fable Lions shew,
Like to that Lion which did overthrow
The Man of God; and, charg'd alike, doe stand
Grand Guardants here, to checke the upheav'd Hand,

Unweeting Wights, or ignorant shall lay
Upon her hallowed Corps, that here did pray.
A sacred Temple 'twas, wherein did shine
Her Maker's Glory, Humane and Divine.
Sweet Commerce sanctify'd with Zeal, mov'd there,
In Beauties Fabrick, its own proper Sphere;
For which it tow'r's above the Sight of Eye,
God's Temples must ly low, that tower so high.

On the well-disposed of Women, Jone Wilson, NewView Wife of Dr. John Wilson, who left this Life to Lond. those that lov'd it, the 16th of July 1624. She had Issue by him Five Sons and Four Daughters.

Ibid. An Elegy and Epitaph compoſed to perpetuate the pious Memory of the well-deſerving and worthily-honoured Mr. Henry Colron, who died Aug. 8, 1655. Aged 57 Years.

Silence, but a Word, namely, that he Was Pious, Wiſe, Juſt, Merciful and Free;
This was his Work, to quench illegal Hates,
Not conquer Kingdoms, but compoſe Debates;
How rare a Pilot in ſuch Tempeſts known,
Many Eſtates embark'd, but ſhipwreck'd none.
Pardon his meaner Grave, who thought it meet
By Virtue, not with Fabriks, to be great:
For to his Tomb non could more Trophies bring,
A uſeful Man on Earth, in Heav'n a King.

Epitaph.

Before this Stone interred lyes
The lame Man's Feet, the blind Man's Eyes;
Bleſt, when at the laſt Judgment he,
With theſe ſhall his Redeemer ſee.
None like to thoſe, except that Eye
Of Faith which brings Plerophory.

Ibid. To the Memory of Conſtance Whitney, eldeſt Daughter to Sir Robert Whitney, of Whitney, the proper Poſſeſſion of him and his Anceſtors, in Herefordſhire, for above Five hundred Years paſt. Her Mother was the Fourth Daughter of Sir Tho- mas Lucy, of Charlecote in Warwickſhire, by Conſtance Kingſmell, Daughter and Heir of Richard Kingſmell, Surveyor of the Court of Wards. This Lady Lucy, her Grandmother, ſo bred her ſince ſhe was eight Yeers old.

As ſhe excelled in all noble Qualities, becoming a Virgin of ſo ſweet Proportion of Beauty and Harmony of Parts, ſhe had all Sweetneſs of Manners anſwerable: A delightful Sharpneſſe of Wit, and offenceleſſe Modeſty in Converſation; a ſingular Reſpect and Piety towards her Parents; but religious even to Example. She departed this Life moſt Chriſtianly at Seventeen; dying the Grief of all, but to her Grandmother an unrecoverable Loſs; ſave in her Expectation, ſhe ſhall not ſtay long after her; and the Comfort of knowing, who ſhe is, and where, in the Reſurrection, to meet her.

Though the Figure of a Woman (on this Monument) riſing up in a Coffin, be only an Emblem of the Reſurrection; it has nevertheless given Birth to an idle Story, that the interred was buried alive, which being, by a certain Caſualty, diſcovered, ſhe was taken up, and had afterwards many Children.

Neer this Pillar lies interred the Body of Edmund Harriſon, Eſq; late of this Pariſh; who (having lived about Forty Years a Batchelour) had to Wife Jane, the eldeſt Daughter of Thomas Godfrey, late of Hodſford in the County of Kent, Eſq; by whom he had Iſſue Twelves Sons and Nine Daughters; of which, at the Time of his Death, were only living Three Sons, Godfrey, Edmund, and Peter; and Two Daughters, Sarah and Jane.

He was Embroiderer to Three Kings, viz. King James I. King Charles I. and King Charles II. Left the Troubles of this World the 9th of January 1666, in the 77th Year of his Age, in a Chriſtian Aſſurance of a Reſurrection unto Life eternal. To whoſe Memory his eldeſt Son, Godfrey, erected this Monument.

Suis & ſibi conſtans. Deo, Regi & Legi fidus Obtemperator. Ætate Civis & Prudentia verè venerandus. Prole multæ Spei numeroſa, ut Conjugio felix, dives rem ſuis benè partam & liberam reliquit. Patriæ non minus indulgens quam Familiæ. Pater ſenio feſſus & conſectus tandem occubuit; ut reſectus reſurgat.

Ex impenſa Johannis Harriſon, Armig. Filius prædict Godfridi, defunt. decorat. 1705.

In Memory of Mary, the Daughter of Robert Compton, of Elveſtowe in the County of Bedford, Eſq; the pious, charitable, chaſte, and moſt beloved Wife of Captain John Perry, of this Pariſh. She was born the 20th of November, 1651, dyed the 21ſt of February 1676. She had Two Daughters, Margaret and Mary, both here buried in their Infancy; whoſe Death, ſhe too much lamenting, haſtned her own.

Here to the Word of God ſhe did attend;
Hence, at the Call of God, ſhe ſhall aſcend.
Parents, take heed, whiſt ye your Children love,
You do not him forget, who is above, &c.

Here lyes interred the Body of John Wythens, New View Lond. Gent. of an ancient Family in Kent, who was buried the 2d of October 1693, and Elizabeth, his well-beloved Wife, who was buried July 6, 1701. They lived very happily together in this Pariſh Forty Years, having had Nine Children. Alſo the Body of Tho. Wythens, their Son. Alſo of William Rowe, Son of George Rowe.

Within this Tomb's enclos'd the ſacred Duſt
Of them, whoſe Souls now plac'd among the Juſt;
Belov'd by all, while in this World they ſtay'd.
Lamented more when in the Grave were laid.
But now they're gone into thoſe Joys above,
To their Redeemer, and their God of Love.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

Stow.Sur. Lond. The Church of this Parish was founded by Alfune, (the first Master of St. Bartholomew's Hospital) about the Year 1090.

Ibid. The Site of this Parish, which was anciently a Fen or Moor, was at first converted into Gardens by the Citizens; but the same being since obliged to make way for Houses, it was constituted a Prebend of S. Paul's Cathedral, by the Appellation of Mora.

St. GREGORY's.

Newc. Rep.Eccl. Paroch. This Church, which was anciently a Rectory, adjoining to the South-west Angle of St. Paul's Cathedral, in the Ward of Baynard's Castle, owes its Name to Gregory the Great, Bishop of Rome, who sent hither Austin, the Monk, to convert the English Nation to Christianity.

Ibid. This Church being one of the Peculiars belonging to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, they are both Patrons and Ordinaries thereof; therefore it pays neither First-fruits or Tenths, nor other Procuration than that to the Commissary.

Act Par. 22 & 23 Car. II. This Church suffering in the great Fire of London, in 1666, it has not been rebuilt; but the Parish thereof being by Act of Parliament annexed to the Church of St. Mary Magdalen in Old Fish-street, I shall there account for the Profits and Disbursements of the united Cures; and shall now proceed to the Parochial Disbursements on Account of the Church and Poor.

She first married John Crooke, Doctor of Law; by whom she had onely Dorothie, first Wife to Robert Honywood, Esquire; secondly to Ralph Allen, Alderman of London; thirdly to that most Reverend, Excellent and Learned Judge, Sir Roger Manwood, Knight, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer; by whom she had Issue, John and Thomas, who died young; Margerie, the first Wife of Sir John Lewson, Knight; and Anne, first Wife to Sir Percival Hart, Knight, and Sir Peter Manhood, Knight of the Bath. She died the 14th Day of September, Ann. Dom. 1575. To whose Reverend Memory, the said Peter Manwood hath dutifully erected this Monument, Ann. Dom. 1606.

Johanna, Filia Nic. Waleron, Relicta Thomæ Yale, Legum Doctoris, Cancellarius Archiepiscopalis Sedis Cantuarien. & sepelitur sub spe futuræ Resurrectionis. Ibid.

Ibid. Here lyeth Martha Frothe, sometime Wife to Robert Frothe, Doctor of Law; with whom she lived very comfortably in true Marriage, a most faithful and loving Wife, the Space of 24 Yeeres and 5 Moneths. She lived virtuously and modestly, and beloved of all that did know her; and dyed in sound Faith, and in the Feare of God, the 26th Day of November, Ann. Dom. 1589, in the 45th Yeere of her Age, in constant Hope of a joyful Resurrection, with the Elect Children of Almighty God.

Ibid. Here lyeth intombed the Body of Mary, late Wife of Thomas Sandys, Esquire, and only Daughter to Sir Stephen Thomehurst, Knight, and Dame Sybill, his Wife; whose Soule departed this Life unto Christ, the last Day of July, in the Yeere of our Redemption 1598, and in the One and Twentieth Yeere of her Age. In Remembrance of whose Piety and singular Vertues, the eternall Love of her Husband hath caused this Monument to be erected.

In Heaven her Soule, in me her Love,
Her Body resteth here,
Which is to God, was to the World,

Stow. Sur. Lond. Ab Floria- cens. This Church undoubtedly was one of the most ancient in this City; for the piratical and barbarous Danes having committed the most unheard-of Cruelties and Depredations in the Kingdom of East-Anglia, Anno 1010, Alwyne, Bishop of Helmeham, removed the Remains of King Edmund, the Martyr, from Bedrisworth (St. Edmund's-Bury) to the City of London, where he deposited the same in this Church, in which they continued for the Space of three Years.

Newc. Rep. Ecclef. Paroch. King Edward III. in the Year 1367, made the first Advance toward the Reduction of this Rectory, by giving Licence to Robert de Ketering, the Rector thereof, to grant certain Lands and Messuages, of the Value of 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. per Annum, to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, toward the Maintenance of the Petty Canons, to sing Divine Service daily in that Cathedral, for the Prosperity of the King, Queen and Royal Family, during Life, and for the Repose of their Souls after Death, together with those of all the Faithful deceased.

Ibid. In the Year 1446, this Church was wholly appropriated to the said Petty Canons, for their better Support; since which Time they have been both Parsons and Proprietors thereof. And by the Act of Parliament for uniting Parishes, and settling their respective Cures, after the Fire of London Anno 1666, the said Petty Cannons are to enjoy all Tithes, Oblations and Duties arising in this Parish, in as ample a Manner as formerly, to all Intents and Purposes, as if the said Act had never been made; which is a great Hardship upon the Parishioners, who are not only obliged to pay Tithes, but likewise to contribute their Share of the 120 l. appointed by the said Act as a Stipend to the Incumbent of the united Parishes in lieu of Tithes.

Act. Parl. 22 & 23 Car. II.

St. HELEN's.

This Church, which is a Vicarage, situate in a spacious Court, on the East Side of Bishopsgate-street, in the Ward of that Name, is denominated from its Dedication to St. Helen, the Mother of Constantine the Great.

The Patronage of this Church appears to have been anciently in Lay Hands; for one Ranulph, with his Son Robert, about the Year 1180; granted the same to the Dean and Canons of St. Paul's, by whom it was some Time after granted to William, Son of William, a Goldsmith, who founded the adjacent Priory of St. Helen; on the Priorefs and Nuns of which he conferred the Advowson thereof, in whom it continued till the Suppression of their Convent Anno 1539, when it came to the Crown.

Newc. Rep. Eccl. Paroch.

On the first of April 1551, Edward the Sixth, by his Letters Patent, granted the Advowson to Nicholas, Bishop of London, and his Successors; which was confirmed by Queen Mary, Anno 1553. But it having been since regranted to the Dean and Chapter of St Paul's they are both Patrons and Ordinaries, and collate to the Vicarage.

Ibid.

This Church fortunately escaping the devouring Flames of 1666, it remains in all Respects as formerly, paying neither First-fruits, Tenths or Procurations, other than 6 s. 8 d. to the Commissary of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and to the said Dean and Chapter a Pension of 6 s. 8 d.

I am of Opinion that this Church was founded in the Reign of Henry II. by one Ranulph, who, with his Son Robert, about the Year 1180, granted it to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, who some Time after regranted the Advowson thereof to William, the Son of William, a Goldsmith.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

By this Extract from the Records of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, is plainly shewn Stow's Mistake, in ascribing the Foundation of this Priory to William Basing, Dean of St. Paul's; whereas there never was any Person of that Name Dean of that Cathedral.

While the said Priory subsisted, the Parish

Church was within that of the Convent; but the Nunnery being dissolved, and the Partition removed, both Churches were laid into one, and constituted the Parish-Church as it at present appears.

The Impropriation reverting to the Crown, it was, Anno 1568, demised to the Parishioners, upon Lease, for the Term of twenty-one Years, at the Rent of 8 l. 16 s. 1 d. The Lease being made to Cesar Aldermane and Thomas Colcel, in Trust for the Inhabitants, who, during the said Term, were to enjoy the Rectory, Parish-Church, Messuages, Houses, Tithes, Oblations, and all Profits whatsoever, other than the Right of Advowson, which was reserved to the Crown.

Par. Rec.

The aforesaid Lease being expired, Queen Elizabeth, in the Year 1599, sold the Rectory and Church, with all their Rights and Appurtenances some Time belonging to the late Priory, together with all the Messuages, Houses, Gardens, Tithes, Oblations, Obventions, Rents, Fruits, Profits and Hereditaments to Michael and Edward Stanhope, to be held by them, their Heirs and Assigns, in Soccage, in Consideration of their having paid to her Majesty the Sum 610 l. 18 s. 7 d. Beside this Sum, the Purchasers agreed to pay annually for ever the Sum of twenty Pounds, as a Stipend to a Minister to celebrate the Divine Offices in the said Church, to be approved of by the Bishop of London. The Impropriation at present belongs to Mr. William Parker. See Bishopsgate Ward.

Sir Edward Barkham, some Time Lord-Mayor of this City, being a great Contributor toward the erecting of this Church, the following Verses were hung up in the same to perpetuate his Generosity:

The Parish Church of St. John at Hackney

The Parish Church of St. Thomas in Southwark

Mund.Ed.
Stow.Sur.

As David could his Eyes no Rest afford,
Till he had found a Place out to the Lord
To build an Altar, so this Man of Worth;
The Mirrour which these latter Days brings forth,
Barkham, the worthie, whose immortall Name,
Marble's too weake to hold, for this Workes Fame:
He never ceast in Industrie and Care,
From Ruines to redeem this House of Praier;
Following in this to holy Patriarcks waies,
That ready were him Altars still to raise,
Where they receiv'd a Blessing: So this Lord,
Scarce warme in Honour's Seate, did first accord
To this most pious Worke, in which is showne
God's Blessing and his Thanks, met both in one.
The Charge the honourable Citie beares,
Whose Bounty in ful Nobleness appeares,
To Acts of best Condition, in such wise,
That all Things bettering, by their Ruine rise:
Two noble, faithfull Supervisors then,
Amongst a Senate of religious Men,
Selected were, to whom the Care they gave,
Generous Hamersley and Cambell the grave,
Each being a Master-piece of Zeal and Care
Towards God's own Temple, fit for Truth's Affaire.

Now at the blessed Foundress I arrive,
Matilda, whom Henry the first did wive,
The Christendome she gave it held the same,
Till James our Sovereigne gave it his owne Name.
And since I touch Antiquity so neere,
Observe what Notes remarkable appeare:
An Alderman of London was at first
Prime Prior of this Church: Falling to worst,
It is now rais'd by Encouragement and Care
Of a Lord Maior of London, which is rare,
And worth observing; then, as I began,
I end best with the Honour of the Man.
The Citie's first Lord Mayor lies buried here,
Fitz-Alwine, of the Drapers Company,
And the Lord Maior, whose Fame now shines so cleare,
Barkham, is of the same Society.

Ibid.

At the East End of the Chancel.
The Rising here of the cleere Gospel's Sunne,
Is through the Senate's free Donation.
The Globe of that bright Sunne, the God of Might,
Christ Jesus is the Rising and the Light,
The Heat, the blessed Spirit of Truth and Right;
And as these Three, the Globe, the Light, the Heat,
Are all one Sunne, so Three, one God compleat:
Thrice Allelujab speaks about the Rayes,
That Three in One may only have the Praise.

Gemmarius Lion hic Richardus est tumultatus;
Qui fuit in Rabie vulgi (ve!) decapitatus.

Here Edmund Chapman, clos'd in Clay,
Undoubtedly doth rest,
Who to his Neighbours (while he liv'd)
The Fruits of Love exprest.
Fine Pews within this Church he made,
And with his Armes support,
The Table, and the Seats in Quire,
He set in comely Sort.
To Prisoners, and to Hospitals,
Hee, living, was a Friend;
And ever fought the Innocent
From Danger to defend.
Esquier Joyner to our Queene
Hee in his Life-time was,
And Yeoman of her Armory
At Greenwich in like Case:
Wherein he like a Servant just,
For Duty duely done,
Unto himsele of Prince and Peeres
The Love and Favour wonne.
Threescore-seven Yeeres he lived here,
In Worship and good Name,
And left this Life, to live with Christ,
To his eternall Fame.
His Soule, the Fourteenth Day of May,
Did from his Body fleet;
Which he with chearful Voyce did yeeld
To Christ, his Saviour sweet.
And on the Eighteenth of that Month,
By Computation just,
A thousand Five hundred Eighty Eight,
His Body was laid in Dust.
But Body and Soule, at last, be sure,
Through God's abundant Grace,
Shall rise, and knit again in One,
And stand before his Face.
Where, with his Saintes Elect (we hope)
He shall receive a Crowne,
And live will ever with sweet Christ,
In Glory and Renowne.
Thus, Friends, (by this dear Friend of ours)
Let's learne to live and dye,
That after Death wee may have Life
Above the starry Skie.

The Patronage of this Church was antiently in

The Patronage of this Rectory was antiently in the Prior and Convent of Canterbury, in whom it continued till the Suppression of their Priory, which Henry VIII. having converted into a Dean and Chapter, the Right of Advowson is vested in them; and the Rectory, which is one of the thirteen Peculiars of Canterbury in this City, belongs to the Archbishop.

This Church being destroyed in the great Fire of the Year 1666, it has not been rebuilt; but the Parish being united to that of Alballows Bread-street, the Church thereof is become the Place of Publick Worship for both. The Profits and Disbursements whereof, in respect to the Cure, being already accounted for; I shall now subjoin the Parish Receipts and Disbursements on Account of the Church and Poor.

Marble, nor Touch, nor Alabaſtar can Reveale the Worth of the long-buried Man.
For oft (we see) Mens Goods, when they are gone,
Doe pious Deeds, when they themselves did none.
Mine (while I liv'd) no Goodneſs did expreſſe,
'Tis not Inſcriptions, make them more or leſſe.
In Chriſt I hope to riſe, among the Juſt;
Man is but Graſſe, all muſt to Wormes and Duſt.

Vertue and Death, being both enamoured
On worthy Pemberton, in Heate of Love,
To be poſſeſt of that each coveted,
Thus did they dialogue, and thus they ſtrove:

Vert. What Vertue challengeth, is but her Right.
Dea. What Death lays Claim to, who can contradict?

Ver. Vertue, whose Power exceeds all other Might.
Dea. Where's Vertue's Power, when Death makes all submit?

Ver. I gave him Life; and therefore he is mine.
Dea. That Life he held no longer than I liſt.

Ver. I made him more than Mortall, meere Divine.
Dea. How hapt he could not then Death's Stroke reſiſt?

Ver. Because (by Nature) all are born to dye.
Dea. Then thine owne Tongue yeelds Death the Victory.

Ver. No, Death, thou art deceiv'd, thy envious
Stroke
Hath given him Life immortall, 'gainſt thy Will.

Dea. What Life can be but vaniſheth as Smoke?

Ver. A Life, that all thy Darts can never kill.

Dea. Have I not lockt his Body in my Grave?

Ver. That was but Duſt; and that I pray thee keepe,

Dea. That is as much as I deſire to have,

His comely Shape in my eternall Sleepe.

Ver. But where's his Honourable Life, Renown and Fame?

Dea. They are but Breath; them I reſigne to thee.

Ver. Them I moſt covet. Dea. I prefer my Claime,

His Body mine. Ver. Mine, his Eternity.

And ſo they ceaſt; Death triumphs o're his Grave,
Vertue o're that, which Death can never have.

And as Faire Trophees, fit to beautifie
His Hearſe, Vertue hangs up theſe Ornaments:
His Juſtice, Wiſdome and Integrity,
His Courage, dreadleſſe of what're Events,
His upright Soule, in that High Dignitie
Which London gives her chiefeſt Preſidents,
Free from Compare with ſuch as went before,
Or ſhould ſucceed. It was his ſole Deſire,
Truth might report thoſe Actions leſſe, or more,
Which honeſt Thoughts did in his Heart inſpire.
His Care of Learning, and his liberall Minde Unto the Poore, Love to his Company,
Kindred and Friends, to whom he was moſt kinde,
And with whom he dealt truly bounteouſly:
Theſe Graces better doe become his Grave,
Than waſtfull Words of fruitleſſe Flattery,
And their due Merit (doubtleſſe) he ſhall have,
Among the Bleſſed in Eternity.
Whereto fair Vertue now hath brought her Son,
Worthily honour'd, Sir James Pemberton.

Name it probably receiv'd, to diſtinguiſh it from

The Epitaph.

In ancient Times, the Friends surviving gave
Some rich Memoriall to the dead Friend's Grave,
Gold, Pearles or Gemmes; which Custom did intend
Our Riches ought to wait upon our Friend,
In Life and Death. O blessed Ages, when Men parted Fortunes, and not Fortunes Men!
But now perverted are our present Ends,
That for Wealth sell the Fame of living Friends.

No. 94.

The Dead we live by, now can scant afford
The Rites and Sacrifice of one good Word:
Of which, left I be one, though I can bring (For worthy Obsequie) no precious Thing,
My Gratitude presents unto her Hearse,
My Teares for Balme, for Offering my sad Verse.
Give leave then, Griefe, let my sad Muse declare,
What she that's dead was, unto them that are.
The Rule and Index to find all the Good
That ever Heaven dealt upon Womanhood:
For if we but anatomize her Life,
We find both a good Woman and good Wife:
First she lov'd God, not like the Pharisee,
In Ostentation and Hypocrisie,
But even with all her Heart and all her Soule;
She secretly did raging Sinne controule:
For she (for Goodnesse Sake) was innocent,
And not for Glory, or Feare of Punishment.
Next, to her Neighbour, did her Love extend,
Ready to helpe at Need, and to befriend
The Poore, and those that never could repay,
But with their Prayers at the latter Day.
The Remnant of her Love she did bestow
Upon her Husband, not in outward Show,
Or else in feign'd adulterate Flattery,
But in sound Truth, and deepe Sincerity.
Thus did she live, divided in her Love,
From this unworthy World; and Nature then,
Which had but lent her, tooke her backe agen.
Where let us live in Peace, and let us try
To live like her, that we like her may dye.
Come hither, Women, leave your Vanities,
Your Lust, your Scorns, your Pride, your Fooleries;
For hither you must all. The Dust, and Grave,
All your adored Braveries must have.
And all those Beauties, that are now afraid,
Of Ayre, of Sunne, must in the Ground be laid.
Then deck your Soules, unto whose Quintessence,
Nor Time, nor Death, nor Grave, can bring Offence.
For so you may (for ever) beautifie
Your selves, as Angels, in Eternity.

A Virgin who had learnt to dye.
Betimes her vertuous Race begun,
And to our Grief too soon was done;
Nothing below could court her Love,
Espous'd she is to Heaven above;
A joyful Festival to keep,

The nearest the Origin of this Church I have been able to come at, is, that John de Hertford was Rector thereof before the Year 1346, which shews it not to be of a very modern Foundation. The old Church was very mean; but was pulled down and rebuilt with Brick and Stone, according to the Model annexed, at the Charge of the Parish, about 20 Years agoe, under the Sanction of an Act of Parliament, which was afterwards explained and recited by the following Act 15 Geo. II.

Preamble,
reciting the Act 12
Geo. II.

“Whereas by an Act made and passed in the Twelfth Year of the Reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An Act to enable the Parishioners of the Parish of Saint Catherine Coleman in Fenchurch-street, in the City of London, to rebuild the Church of the said Parish; certain Trustees therein named, or any seven or more of them, were authorized and impowered to cause the said Parish-Church, and the Steeple thereof, to be pulled down, and to be rebuilt after such Model, and of such Dimensions and Materials, and in such Manner and Place, as by the said Trustees, or any seven or more of them, should be agreed upon; and for defraying the Expences of pulling down and rebuilding the said Church and Steeple, the several funeral Rates and Duties therein mentioned and expressed, were granted to, and vested in the said Trustees, for the Purposes of the said Act, with such Powers and Authorities for raising and levying the same, as in the said Act mentioned and contained;

“and it was thereby enacted, That it should be lawful for the Parishioners of the Parish of Saint Catherine Coleman aforesaid, in their Vestry assembled, to nominate twelve substantial Inhabitants of the said Parish, who had not served the Office of Scavenger therein; out of which twelve Persons so to be nominated, and in Default of such Nomination, out of such other Inhabitants as had not served that Office there, the said Trustees, or any seven or more of them, were thereby authorized, impowered, and required to choose and appoint four Persons to be Receivers or Collectors of such Rates, Duties, and Sums of Money, as should be due and payable by Virtue of the said Act, from all Persons liable to pay the same; and the said Parishioners in their Vestry assembled, were thereby also authorized, impowered, and required, on the Tuesday in Easter Week, in the Year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty, and also on the Tuesday in Easter Week in every succeeding Year, to nominate twelve other like Inhabitants; and the said Trustees, or any seven or more of them, were thereby directed to choose and appoint four of them, and in Default of such Nomination, four other like Inhabitants, to be receivers or Collectors of the same Rates, Duties, and Sums of Money, for the Purposes of the said Act: And it was thereby further enacted, That it should and might be lawful to and for any Person or Persons to contribute, advance, and pay into the Hands of the said Trustees, or any seven or more of them, or to such Person or Persons as they respectively should appoint, any Sum or Sums of Money not exceeding in the whole the Sum of two thousand seven hundred Pounds, for the Purchase of one or more Annuity or Annuities, to be paid and payable for the natural Life or Lives of such Contributor or Contributors respectively, or of such other Person or Persons as they respectively should in that Behalf nominate and appoint, so as the said Annuity or Annuities should not exceed the Sum of eight Pounds per Annum, for every one hundred Pounds, and so in Proportion for any greater or less Sum, to be advanced and paid as aforesaid: And it was thereby further enacted, That such Annuities so to be purchased should be, and were thereby charged upon and made payable out of the Monies arising by the Rates, Duties and Assessments therein mentioned; and the said Trustees, or any seven or more of them, were thereby authorized and impowered to make or cause to be made an Assessment or Assessments on all Lands, Houses, Tenements, and Hereditaments within the said Parish, not exceeding one Shilling and six Pence in the Pound, in any one Year, of the yearly Rent of the same Premises, as the same should be rated to the Land-tax: And whereas the Trustees appointed by the said recited Act, have by Virtue and in Pursuance of the Trust, Power, and Authority thereby vested in them, and by the Ways and Means therein directed and prescribed, raised the said Sum of two thousand seven hundred Pounds, thereby authorized and appointed to be raised as aforesaid, and have applied the same for and towards the rebuilding

“ the said Parish-Church of Saint Catherine Coleman,
 “ and the same Church is now intirely rebuilt
 “ and finished, and divine Service hath for some “ Time past been performed therein: But as “ several extraordinary and unforeseen Expences
 “ have happened and accrued in and about build“ ing and finishing of the said Church, the total “ Charge of such Building and Finishing has ex“ ceeded the Sum of two thousand seven hun“ dred Pounds, so authorized and directed to be “ raised by the said Act for that Purpose; and “ the sum of six hundred fifty Pounds, and up“ wards, being the Surplus of the Charge and “ Expence of such Building above the said two “ thousand seven hundred Pounds, doth now “ remain due to the several Workmen and Ar“ tificers employed in the building and finishing
 “ the said Church; which Debt cannot be le“ vied and raised by and out of the Fund grant“ ed and appropriated by the said Act: And “ whereas the Parish of Saint Catherine Coleman “ aforesaid is but a very small Parish, consisting “ of few Inhabitants, who most of them have “ served the Office of Scavenger; for which Rea“ son the Nomination by the Vestry of the said “ Parish of twelve Inhabitants who have not “ Act is directed, and the Appointment by the “ said Trustees or four Persons out of such twelve “ to be Receivers or Collectors of the Rates, Du“ ties, and Sums of Money thereby granted, and “ the employing and charging four Persons in

 “ and with such Receipt or Collection, has “ been found very difficult and troublesome, both “ to the said Trustees, and Inhabitants of the said “ Parish, who do apprehend, and are satisfied, “ that the placing and employing any two sub“ stantial Persons of the said Parish in such Re“ ceipt and Collection, will tend to the Ease and “ Benefit of the same Parish: Wherefore, for “ making Provision for paying and discharging
 “ the Debt, so contracted for the carrying on and “ accomplishing so good and necessary a Work,
 “ and for explaining and amending the said former “ Act relating to the Office and Management of “ the Receipt of the said Rates and Duties; may
 “ it please your most excellent Majesty that it “ may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King’s
 “ most excellent Majesty, by and with the Ad“ vice and Consent of the Lords Spiritual and “ Temporal, and Commons, in this present Par“ liament assembled, and by the Authority of the “ same, That the said Clause in the said former “ Act, which authorizes and requires the Parish“ ioners of the said Parish of Saint Catherine Cole-

“ And it is hereby further enacted and de-

St. KATHARINE Cree-Church.

This Church, which is a Curacy, standing at the South-east Angle of Cree-Church-lane, in Leadenball-street, and Ward of Aldgate, owes its Name to its Dedication to St. Katharine, the Egyptian Virgin above-nam'd; and the Epithet of Christ (corruptly Cree) from its Vicinity to the Conventual Church of the Holy Trinity, originally denominated Christ-Church.

Stow. Sur. Lond.

From the Founding of Christ-Church, or the Trinity Convent, the Prior and Canons thereof were Patrons of this Church, and as such continued till the Suppression of their Priory, Anno 1531; when Henry the Eighth conferred the same upon Sir Thomas Audley, with all his Appurtenances; one of which being this Church, it was on the 19th of April, Anno 1544, devised by the said Audley to the Master and Fellows of Magdalen College in Cambridge, and their Successors, whom he enjoined to serve the Cure in all Futurity. But the Devisees it seems not approving of this Part of the Will, have commonly let the Curacy, with all its Emoluments, to farm to the Parishioners, whereby they are empowered to chuse their own Minister, who is to be licensed by the Bishop of London. However, in Matters Ecclesiastical 'tis subject to the Archdeacon, except as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church happily escaping Destruction in the great Conflagration An. 1666, it remained upon the ancient Foot till the Year 1725, when the Lease of the Impropriation expired: About the renewing of which a Difference arose, between the Impropiators and the Parish, which was amicably accommodated upon the following Terms:

Rem. Lond.

That the Parishioners, in lieu of Tithes, shall annually raise the Sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds; out of which the officiating Curate shall, for the Space of ten Years, receive yearly the Sum of fifty Pounds, besides Surplice Fees; and after the Expiration of that Term, the Sum of seventy Pounds per Annum, exclusive of Perquisites; which Agreement was confirmed by Parliament in the Year 1727.

Ibid.

This, being a Donative, pays neither First-fruits nor Tenths; and Procurations to the Bishop and Archdeacon, only two Shillings each.

NewView Lond. Here resteth, in Hope of a blessed Resurrection, the Body of Richard Spencer, Esq; Turkey Merchant, whose Change from Mortal to Immortality commenc'd on Sept. 3, Anno Dom. 1667, Aetat. 50.

While he lived on Earth, Reason and Religion were his Rules, Justice and Temperance his Measures, Gravity and Discretion his Ornaments. He was to many helpful, to most acceptable, to none injurious, to himself and Friends consistent.

After he had seen the prodigious Changes in the State, the dreadful Triumphs of Death by Pestilence, the astonishing Contagration of the City by Fire, he piously lamented the Miseries; and then in Peace and Charity, in the Faith of Christ, in Communion of the Church, he finished his Course, and left behind him a good Name, a virtuous Example, a dear Wife, and Three Daughters; who, for the high Esteem and entire Affection to her deceased Husband, hath erected this Monument and Memorial to Posterity.

If Wealth, nor Worth, nor Friends, nor Parts,
Can rescue from Death's killing Darts,
Then mind thy Doom, and, passing by,
Be wise betime, prepare to dye.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

Though I cannot ascertain the Origin of this Parish-Church, yet that it is of great Antiquity is manifest, by it, and the Churches of St. Mary Magdalen, St. Michael and the Trinity, being obliged to make way for the Trinity Convent, founded Anno 1107, and the Church thereof, under the Appellation of Christ's, being made Parochial, it was constituted the common Place of Worship for the Inhabitants of the said four Parishes. See Aldgate Ward.

This Church being old and crazy, it was taken down and rebuilt. The first Stone being laid on the 23d of June, Anno 1628, the Fabrick was finished and consecrated by Bishop Laud on the 16th of January 1630. By a Pillar of the old Church still remaining at the West End, and near the South Door, it is manifest that the Ground in this Neighbourhood must have been raised about twenty Feet.

Between the East Ends of Leadenhall and Fenchurch-streets, under three Houses fronting Aldgate, is still remaining intire, the beautiful small Church of St. Michael, of which, in its present State, we have already given a Description in Aldgate Ward. But as it is altered or diminished since Mr. Strype surveyed it, we shall add what he says of its Dimensions in his Time, about the Year 1720.

This handsome Gothick Structure, says he, which is situate North and South, is forty-six Feet in Length, seventeen in Breadth, and from the Floor to the Vertex of the Arch eleven Feet eleven Inches in Height: But as the Capitals of the Pillars at present appear only about four Feet above the Floor, I take the Altitude of the Arches, at first, to have been eighteen Feet.

This Church, by two handsome intersected Pillars, which support three beautiful Stone Arches, is divided into two Isles, the Entry into which was by a Door in the East Side, in which were likewise small Windows, as were also in the Ends thereof; and adjoining to the Church, on the West, is the Remains of a square Stone Building, but to what Use the same was employed I cannot ascertain, though probably it was either a Steeple, a Vestry Room, or Parsonage House. Be that as it will, the Entrance into this great Piece of Antiquity at present (1720) is at Mr. Rogers's, an Oil Shop, (now, 1755, Mr. Kilpin's, a Chemist,) facing the Pump.

As this Church, by its Manner of Construction, seems to have been built about the Time of the Conquest,

Here under lyes the Remains of Margaret Garret, Daughter of Robert Garret, Senior Brother of this College, and Ann Mudd, his Wife: A Virgin above those of her Age comely, tall, agreeably proportioned in her Limbs and Body, amiable in the Loveliness of her Face. All those Exteriors were exceeded by her internal excellent Parts, and the Sweetness of her Disposition; which made her beloved and lamented by all. This Jewel (so her Name signifies) dyed the 25th of November 1683. Born 25th March, 1667.

Dear was she living, but being dead more dear;
The Grief of very many made this clear.

Religious Love, Conjugal Duty,

And bear her Relicks Company.

Unto them all noble Descent.
Dying she did a Son bequeath,
In whom she lives in spite of Death;

By the City Records mentioning Shambles to have been on the Spot of Ground, granted by the Prior and Canons of the Trinity Convent, to Queen Matilda, about the Year 1140, whereon to erect her intended Hospital; I imagine there must antiently have been a Fleish Market held within this Precinct, which must have been destroyed, together with the Mill and Garden belonging to the Hospital, by William Bishop of Ely's fortifying the Tower of London, with an additional Wall and Ditch, about the Year 1190.

However, tho' the Brethren and Sisters of this Hospital became so great Sufferers by the Loss of their Property, no Satisfaction appears to have been made them till the following Century; when they had Five Marks 6s. 9d. paid them for the same: At which Time Edward I. intending to rebuild the exterior Wall of his Tower of London, and to enlarge the Ditch thereof, purchased of the Master, Brethren and Sisters of this Hospital, a Piece of Ground (at present denominated Little Tower-bill, and that Space between the Eastern Bank of the Tower Ditch and the Houses of St. Katharine's, fronting the said Tower, Southward to the River Thames) whereon to lay the Sand, Gravel and Marle, that should be taken out of the said Ditch.

In or about the Year 1626, an Alom Work was erected in this Parish, the poisonous Dregs or Excrement whereof, running into the River Thames, destroyed the Fish therein; and the intolerable Scent of the putrid Vapour, incessantly emitted therefrom, was so very offensive and pernicious to the neighbouring Inhabitants, that they petitioned the Privy Council for Redress; setting forth, That, if the said Work was not speedily removed, they would for the Preservation of their Health, indispensably be obliged to remove from their respective Habitations: Which being seriously considered of, an Order of Council was made on the 25th of July 1627, whereby the Proprietors of the said Alom Work were obliged to remove the same by the 25th of March 1628.

St. LAWRENCE Jewry.

This Church, which is a Vicarage, situate on the North Side of Cateaton-street, in the Ward of Cheap, is denominated from its Dedication to Lawrence, a Spanish Saint, born at Huesca, in the Kingdom of Arragon; who, after having undergone the most grievous Tortures, in the Persecution under Valerian, the Emperor, he was cruelly broiled alive upon a Gridiron, with a slow Fire, till he died, for his strict Adherence to Christianity: And the additional Epithet of Jewry, from its Situation among the Jews, was conferred upon it, to distinguish it from the Church of St. Lawrence Pulteney, now demolished.

Hugo de Warkentibby was Rector of this Parish in the Year 1295, at which Time it was denominated Ecclesia Sancti Laurentii in Judaismo, i. e. the Church of St. Lawrence in the Jewry; from its Situation among the Jews, who, upon their Admission into England by William the Conqueror, settled in this Neighbourhood.

But the Jews, for their villainous Practices, being expelled the Kingdom by Edward I. they, upon their Readmission into England, settled in this City, near Aldgate, in a Place at present called Poor Jewry-lane; on which Occasion this their antient Place of Habitation received the Appellation of the Old Jewry.

The next Building of Note I find mentioned in this Parish, is the College or Chapel of Mary Magdalen and All-Saints, commonly called London College, standing on the East Side of Guildball Yard, and North Side of Blackwell-hall.

Edward VI. in the Year 1551, granted the same to the Mayor and Commonalty of London, to be held by them in Soccage of the Manor of East Greenwich; since which it has been denominated Guildball Chapel, wherein Divine Service has been weekly performed before the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs. See Cheap Ward.

The next Edifice of Note erected in this Parish, was the Town-House or Guildball of the City, which was begun to be built in the Mayoralty of Thomas Knowles, Anno 1411, a little to the East of the antient, small and pitiful Guildball in Aldermanbury. See Cheap Ward.

The Vestry is select, consisting of sixteen Members; two Church-wardens; fifty-three Houses and a Half. Augmentation to the Parish of St. Bride's, two Pounds per Annum.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

Though I cannot ascertain the Time when the late Church of this Parish was founded; yet that it was not of a modern Date, is apparent by John-son's Sepulchral Inscription in the Year 1280, as above specified. But the Church, as aforesaid, not being rebuilt, the Site thereof is turned into a Cemetery. At the North-East Corner of which, in a Green-Shop (the late Vestry Room) in Pudding-lane, is the following Inscription:

Time out of Mind this Vestry stood,
Till crooked with Age my Strength I lost,
And in November with full Consent
Was built anew at the Parish Cost;
When Queene Elizabeth reigned had,
To England's Peace, Twenty-six Yeares.

John Heard, Parson; Rich. Powntes and Harry Baker, Church-wardens were, Ann. Dom. 1584.

St. LEONARD's, Foster-Lane.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof was situate on the West Side of Foster-lane, in the Ward of Aldersgate; and its Name is owing to its Dedication to the French Saint above mentioned, and the Place of its Situation, to distinguish it from the preceding Church in East-Cheap. See Aldersgate Ward.

This Church suffering in the fatal Catastrophe of 1666, and not being rebuilt, the Parish is annexed to Christ's Church; which being the Place of Publick Worship for both Parishes, the Incumbent's Profits are thereby considerably augmented; the Account whereof, together with the Disbursements of the Cure, I have inserted in that of Christ's Church: I shall therefore subjoin the Parochial Charges in respect to the Church and Poor:

Officers, &c. in this Parish.

This Parish comprising the chief Part of the antient District of the College of St. Martin's le Grand, I shall therefore insert an Account of the Officers belonging to the Liberty, as well as those of the Parish.

The Vestry is select; two Church-wardens; six Headboroughs; one Constable; one Scavenger, who paid the Raker, for cleansing the Streets and carrying away the Dust for one Year, the Sum of twenty Pounds; one Beadle, and four Watchmen; one hundred and sixty-four Houses.

This late Church I take to have been founded about the Year 1236, by William Kirkbam, Dean of St. Martin's le Grand, in the Court or Yard of that Collegiate Church, for the Use of the Inhabitants of the Sanctuary.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

Almost contiguous to this Church, on the North, was situate the stately College of St. Martin's le Grand, which was founded, Anno 1056, by Engelrick, and Edward his Brother, for a Dean and Secular Canons. Some Time after, at the general Suppression of Monasteries, this College was surrendered to Edward VI. in the Year 1548, when the Church thereof was demolished, and a Tavern erected in its Stead, at the upper or East End of New Rents; in the Cellars of which are still to be seen divers of its Pillars, as under the Neighbouring Houses is its Cloister.

*St. MAGNUS's.*Newc.
Rep. Eccl.

This Church, which is a Rectory, situate at the North-East Corner of London-Bridge, in the Bridge Ward, owes its Name to its Dedication to St. Magnus, who suffered Martyrdom under the Emperor Aurelian, in the City of Cæsarea, for his stedfast Adherence to the Christian Religion.

Ibid.

The Patronage of this Church was antiently in the Abbots and Convents of Westminster and Bermondsey, who presented alternately, till the general Suppression of Monasteries; when coming to the Crown, Queen Mary, by her Letters Patent, Anno 1553, granted the same to the Bishop of London, and his Successors, in whom it still remains, but subject to the Archdeacon.

St.

St. MARGARET MOSES's.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood at the South west Corner of Pissing-alley (now Little Friday-street) opposite Distaff-lane in Bread-street; and its Name it has from its being dedicated to St. Margaret above mentioned; and its additional Epithet, from one Moses, its Re-builder.

The Patronage of this Rectory appears to have been anciently in Lay Hands; for Robert Fitzwalter gave the same to the Prior and Canons of St. Faith's at Horsham in the County of Norfolk; which being confirm'd to them by a Bull of Pope Alexander the Third, in the Year 1163, it continued in the said Prior and Canons till the Suppression of their Convent by Edward the Third, as an Alien Priory; when this Church, as an Appendage thereof, coming to the Crown, it has ever since therein continued.

This Church suffering in the dreadful Fire in the Year 1666, and the same not being rebuilt, the Parish has been annexed to St. Mildred's Church in Bread-street, whereby the Rectorial Profits are considerably increased; which, together with the Disbursements of the Cure, I shall insert in the Accounts of St. Mildred's Parish; and shall now proceed to the Receipts and Disbursements on Account of the Church and Poor.

St. MARGARET's, New Fish-street.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood on the East Side of Fish-street-hill, where the Monument at present is situate, in the Bridge Ward. And its Name it owes to the aforesaid St. Margaret, and the Place of its Situation.

The Patronage of this Rectory appears to have been in the Abbot, and Convent, and Bishop of Winchester, till Queen Mary, by her Letters Patent, Anno 1553, granted the same to the Bishop of London and his Successors, in whom it still remains. But in Affairs Ecclesiastical it is subject to the Archdeacon, save as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church being consumed in the fatal Catastrophe Anno 1666, and not since rebuilt, the Parish is annexed to the Church of St. Magnus's; where I have given an Account of the Incumbent's Profits and Disbursements in respect to the Cure. I shall therefore now exhibit an Account of the Receipts and Disbursements concerning the Church and Poor.

The Advowson of this Rectory was anciently in the Family of the Nevils, in which it continued till the Year 1392, when it probably came to Robert Rikenden of Essex; who, in the Year 1408, confirmed the same to Richard Whittington; who, Anno 1411, conveyed it to the Mayor and Commonalty of London; since which Time it has been in the Gift of the Citizens, who have presented thereto after divers Manners; viz. sometimes the Mayor alone; at other times, the Mayor and Aldermen; then, the Mayor and Commonalty; and anon, the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of London, in whom it still remains.

The highest I can trace the first Church of this Parish, is, that Robert de Sancto Albano was collated thereto, by the Abbot and Convent of Westminster, Anno 1322.

We are told by Robert of Gloucester, in his Rhyming Chronicle, that this Church was founded by Cadwalllo, King of the Britains (who is said to have died Anno 677) which is a Falshood so notorious, that I shall no otherwise reply to it, than to acquaint the Reader, that the Saxons had been in Possession of this City near a Century before the Time above mentioned.

In digging a Foundation for the present Church, after the great Conflagration of 1666, the Sepulchral Stone above-mentioned, in the Third Chapter of Book I. of this Work, was dug up.

St. MARTIN's Orgars.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood on the East Side of St. Martin's-lane, near Cannon-street, in the Ward of Candlewick, and is so denominated from its Dedication to St. Martin aforesaid; and the additional Epithet of Orgars is a Corruption of Odgarus, or Ordgarus, who probably was the Founder and Patron thereof, and, with the Consent of his Wife and Sons, granted the same to the Dean and Canons of St. Paul's Cathedral in this City, about the Year 1181. Since which Time the Advowson has been in the said Dean and Chapter.

This Church being consumed in the dreadful Conflagration of the Year 1666, and the same not rebuilt, the Parish has been annexed to the Church of St. Clement's, Eastcheap; which being constituted the Place of Publick Worship for both, the Rectorial Profits are thereby considerably augmented, which, together with the Disbursements of the Cure, I have inserted in the Account of the Parish of St. Clement aforesaid; therefore shall now subjoin the Account relating to the Church and Poor.

Edmond, John and William, and Two Daughters; which Sons, in a filial Expreffion of their Duties, have caused this Monument to be erected, in Memory of their dear deceased Father.

When he left Earth, rich Bounty dy'd,
Mild Courtesie gave place to Pride:
Soft Mercie to bright Justice said,
O Sister! we are both betray'd:
White Innocence lay on the Ground
By Truth, and wept at either's Wound.
The Sons of Levi did lament,
Their Lamps went out, their Oyl was spent.
Heaven hath his Soul, and only we Spin out our Lives in Misery.
So, Death, thou missest of thy Ends,
And kil't not him, but kil't his Friends.

St. MARTIN's Outwich.

This Church, which is seated at the South-east Angle of Threadneedle-street, in the Ward of Broad- street, owes its Name to St. Martin aforesaid, and the additional Epithet to William and John de Oteswich, some time Proprietors thereof.

The Patronage of this Rectory appears to have been anciently in the Earl of Surrey; but the same coming to the de Oteswiches above mentioned, they conferred it upon the Company of Merchant-Taylors, in whom it still remains; but in Matters Ecclesiastical it is subject to the Archdeacon, save as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church fortunately escaping the devouring Flames Anno 1666, it remains in all Respects upon the ancient Foot in regard to the Rectorial Profits and Disbursements, which in the Year
1636 were as follow:

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

The first Mention I find of this Church is, that John de Warren, Earl of Surrey, in the Year 1325, collated John de Dalington thereunto; which seems to convict Stow of a Mistake, who says, that four Men of the Name of de Oteswich were the Founders thereof; which if they had, 'tis not to be doubted but the Right of Patronage would originally have been in them: Whereas 'tis manifest it never was, unless we admit that John Churchman (who was Sheriff of London, Anno 1385, and, as second Patron of this Church, collated thereto in the Year 1387,) purchased the same, not for his own Use, but for that of the de Oteswiches, which gives room for Conjecture, (tho' he might as well have sold it to them) seeing that he in the Year 1405, by Licence from King Henry the Fourth, in the Names of William and John de Oteswich, two of the pretended Founders, gave the Advowson of this Church, together with four Messuages and seventeen Shops, with their Appurtenances in this Parish, to the Master and Wardens of the Taylors and Linen Armorers (now the Company of Merchant Taylors) and their Successors, in perpetual Alms, for the Maintenance of the Poor of the said Fraternity; by Virtue of which Grant, the Company has continued Patrons of this Rectory ever since.

By what has been said, I think, it is evident, that the Oteswiches, instead of being the Founders of this Church, were only late Proprietors of the same. And as to the additional Epithet of Oteswich, conferred upon it, that may have been given by the aforesaid Company, in grateful Commemoration of their great and generous Benefactors. See Broadstreet Ward.

St. MARTIN's Vintry.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood near the South-East Corner of Queen-street, in Thames-street, and Ward of Vintry; and was so denominated from its Dedication to St. Martin aforesaid, and the Place of its Situation among the Wine Tunners, Wine Merchants and Coopers.

The Patronage of this Church appears to have been antiently in Lay Hands, by Ralph Peverell's granting the same to the Abbot and Canons of St. Peter's in the City of Gloucester, in whom it remained till the Suppression of their Convent; when coming to the Crown, Edward VI. granted the same to the Bishop of Worcester and his Successors, in whom it still continues. But in Affairs Ecclesiastical 'tis subject to the Arch-deacon, except as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church sharing the common Fate in the dreadful Catastrophe of the Year 1666, and the same not being rebuilt, the Parish is annexed to the Church of St. Michael Royal, whereby the Incumbents Profits are considerably increased; which, together with his Disbursements in respect to the Cure, I shall insert in the Account of the Parish of St. Michael's Royal; and shall now subjoin the Parish Charge concerning the Church and Poor:

Newc. Rep. Eccl. Paroch. The highest I have been able to trace this Parish Church, is, that Nicholas Woleye was Rector thereof before the Year 1363; and as to the additional Appellation of Ab, or Up-Church, I am at as great a Loss in respect to its Meaning, as I am to the Time when the Church was at first founded: But, as it appears to have antiently stood on an Eminence, probably that Epithet was conferred upon it, in regard to the Church of St. Laurence Pulteney, situate below. See Candlewick Ward.

Stow. Sur. Lond.

St. MARY, Aldermanbury.

This Church, which is a Curacy, seated at the North-East Corner of Love-lane, in Aldermanbury, and Ward of Cripplegate within, owes its Name to its being dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and the Place of its Situation.

The Patronage of this Church appears to have been antiently in the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's; who, upon the founding of the neighbouring Hospital of Elsing-Spittle, did by Consent of Stephen, Bishop of London, in the Year 1331, appropriate the same to the said Hospital; but with this Proviso, that the Dean and Chapter should have the Patronage of both; and that upon the Institution of a Custos or Rector to this Church and Hospital, he was to swear Fealty to the said Dean and Chapter, and to pay them an antient Pension of one Mark per Annum, due from this Church, and six Shillings and eight Pence yearly for the said Hospital, as granted by William de Elsing, the Founder, in Testimony of its Subjection to the Church of St. Paul, to the Dean and Chapter whereof this Church still pays an annual Pension of twenty Shillings.

'Twas likewise at the same Time agreed, that the Rector and Custos of this Church and Hospital should, in all Futurity, find a Priest to serve the Cure, and to administer the Sacraments in the said Church; which Priest was to be approved of by the Dean and Chapter aforesaid. Whence 'tis evident, that this Church (then, as at present) was served by a Curate, till the Dissolution of the said Hospital; since which Time, the Rectory and Advowson thereof has been granted in Trust for the Parishioners; who, by Virtue thereof, have the Right of choosing their own Minister, who must be licenced by the Bishop of London. But in Matters Ecclesiastical 'tis subject to the Archdeacon, save as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church being consumed in the lamentable Conflagration of the Year 1666, 'tis rebuilt in a beautiful Manner, and remains as formerly, without any other Addition than that of a great Augmentation of the Curate's Fees; and, by its being a Donative, pays neither First-fruits nor Tenths to the King, nor other Disbursements on Account of the Cure than those that follow:

Here is fixt the Epitaph of Sir Henry Kebyl, Knight;
 Who was some time of London Mayor,
 A famous, worthy Wight;
 Which did this Aldermary Church
 Erect and set upright.
 Though Death prevaile with mortal Wights,
 And hasten every Day,
 Yet Vertue over-lives the Grave,
 Her Fame doth not decay:
 As Memories do shew reviv'd,
 Of one that was alive,
 Who being dead, of vertuous Fame
 None shall feeke to deprive;
 Which so in Life deserv'd Renowne,
 For Facts of his to see,
 That may encourage other now,
 Of like good Mind to be.
Sir Henry Keble, Knight, Lord Mayor
 Of London, here he fate,
 Of Grocers worthy Company,
 The chiefeft in his State;
 Which in this Citie grew to Wealth,
 And unto Worship came,
 When Henry reign'd, who was the Seventh
 Of that redoubted Name.
 But he to Honour did atchieve,
 The Second golden Yeere
 Of Henries Reigne, so call'd the Eight,
 And made his Fact appeare.
 When he this Aldermary Church
 'Gan build with great Expence,
 Twice Thirty Yeeres agon, no doubt,
 Counting the Time from hence:
 Which Worke began the Yeer of Christ,
 Well knowne of Christen Men,
 One thousand and Five hundred just,
 If ye will adde but Ten.
 But lo, when Man purposeth most,
 God doth dispose the best;
 And so before this Work was done,
 God call'd this Knight to Rest.
 This Church was then not fully built;
 He dy'd about the Yeere
 When ill May-day first took his Name,
 Which is downe fixed here:
 Whose Workes became a Sepulcher,
 To shrowd him in that Case:
 God tooke his Soule, but Corps of his
 Was laid about this Place.
 Who, when he dyed, of this his Worke
 So mindful still he was,
 That he bequeath'd a Thousand Pounds,
 To have it brought to passe.
 The Execution of whose Gift,
 Or where the Fault should be,
 The Work as yet unfinished
 Shall shew you all for me.

Which Church stands there, if any please
 To finish up the same;
 As he hath well begun, no doubt,
 And to his endlesse Fame,
 They shall not only well bestowe
 Their Talent in this Life,
 But after Death, when Bones be rot,
 Their Fame shall be most rife;
 With thankful Praise and good Report
 Of our Parochians here;
 Which have of Right Sir Henries Fame
 Afresh renew'd this Yeere. |
 God move the Minds of wealthy Men,
 Their Works so to bestow,
 As he hath done, that though they dye,
 Their vertuous Fame may flow.
 Inclita perpetuo durabit tempore Virtus,
 Et floret Fato non violanda truci.

Though I cannot ascertain the Time when, or by whom this Church was founded, Sir Christo- pher Wren, the ingenious Architect, who rebuilt the Churches of this City, after the Conflagrathis was an antient Roman Christian Church:

It may indeed resemble the Architecture of that People, yet that it was not of their Construction, is evident, by its having been erected in the Time of the Conqueror. And as it was the first Church in this City, that was built with Arches, 'twas therefore denominated New-Mary Church, from the said Arches, or Bows; which Appellation has since been converted into that of St. Mary

This ancient Church, on which the new is founded, is converted into a sepulchral Repository; the Structure of which consists of two Rows of small circular Pillars (the Capitals whereof are now about two Feet and a half above the Floor of the Vault; which shews the Ground to be greatly raised in this Neighbourhood) which form three Isles; at the South-east Angle of which is a Chapel, about ten Feet Square; wherein, according to Stow, was a magnificent sepulchral Monument, which is now buried by the great Rise of the Ground. This Church, which is a Rectory, situate on the West Side of St. Mary Hill, in the Ward of Billinggate, owes its Name, like the abovementioned, to its Dedication to the aforesaid Virgin, and its Situation upon a pleasant Eminence.

The Advowson of this Rectory appears to have been in private Hands till about the Year 1638, when the Parish purchased the same; and by Virtue thereof, on the 13th of June, collated Samuel Baker, S. T. P. thereto; which they continue alternately to do, with that of St. Andrew Hubbard;
for since the annexing of that Parish to this Church,
the Duke of Somerset, who is Patron thereof,
presents in his Turn.

Though this Church was not destroyed in the fatal Catastrophe of 1666, yet it was very much damaged, all that was combustible therein being consumed by that dreadful Conflagration; however, it was soon after repaired, and the Parish of St. Andrew Hubbard, as above hinted, united thereunto, whereby the Rectorial Profits are very much augmented; which, together with the Disbursements of the Cure, are as follow :

Here lyeth a Knight, in London borne,
Sir Thomas Blanke by Name,
Of honest Birth, of Merchants Trade,
A Man of worthy Fame.
Religious was his Life to God,
To Men his Dealing just;
The Poor and Hospitals can tell
That Wealth was not his Trust.
With gentle Heart and Spirit milde,
And Nature full of Pitie,
Both Sheriffe, Lord Maior and Alderman,
He ruled in this Citie.
The good Knight was his common Name,
So cal'd of many Men:
He lived long, and dyed of Yeeres
Twice Seven and Six Times Ten.
Obiit 28 Octob. Ann. Dom. 1588.

Death was deceiv'd, which thought these Two to part;
Forthough this Knight first left this mortall Life,
Yet, till she dyed, he still liv'd in her Heart.
What happier Husband, or more kinder Wife?
Whom Foure and Forty Changes of the Spring,
In sacred Wedlocke, mutuall Love had link't:
The deare Remembrance of so deare a Thing,
Was not by Death in her chaste Breast extinct.
Building this Tombe, not long before she dy'd,
Her latest Duty to his Funerall Rite,
Crown'd with her Vertues, like an honest Bride,
Here lyes at rest by her beloved Knight.
Thou worthy Blancke, her Name it still endures,
Yet, Traves, boast, her Birth was only yours.
Obiit 2 of February, Anno Dom. 1596.

I can come no nearer to the Origin of this Church, than that Rose de Wrytell founded a Chantry in the said Church, about the Year 1336.

In the Year 1497, in digging in this Church for the Foundation of a Wall, the Corps of the abovenamed Alice Hackney was discovered in a very rotten Coffin, the Skin whereof was found and flexible, and the Joints pliable, without Dislocation, after being buried about one hundred and seventy Years. The Body was kept above Ground three or four Days, without a nauseous Smell; but the same beginning to taint, it was again deposited.

Annually on the Sunday after Midsummer, according to ancient Custom, the Fraternity of Fellowship Porters of this City, repair to the Church of this Parish in the Morning, where, during the Reading of Prayers, they reverently approach the Altar, two and two; on the Rails of which are placed two Basons, into which they put their respective Offerings; and being generally followed therein by the whole Congregation, the Money offered is distributed among the aged Poor and indigent Members of the Fraternity. See Billingsgate Ward.

Stow. Sur. Lond. This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof was seated on the West Side of Old Fishstreet-bill, in the Ward of Queenhithe; and its Name it owed to its Dedication to the Virgin Mary, and the Family of Montalto, or Mountbawts, in the County of Norfolk.

On the West Side of Old Fishstreet-bill was anciently situate the City Mansion of the Montalto's or Mountbawts, in the County of Norfolk, wherein was a Chapel (the Original of the late Church;) the which House and Chapel were purchased by Ralph de Maydenstone, Bishop of Hereford, about the Year 1234. Both of which he settled upon the Bishops his Successors; whereby they not only became possessed of the House, which they used as their City Residence, but likewise of the Patronage of the Chapel or Church.

There was likewise in this Parish the City Mansion of Robert Belknap, a Judge; who being expelled the Kingdom upon some Misdemeanor, Richard the Second conferred the same upon the Bishop of Winchester. See Queenhithe Ward.

St. MARY Somerset.

This Church, which is a Rectory, situate opposite Broken Wharf in Thames-street, in the Ward of Queenhithe, owes its Name to its Dedication to the often-mentioned Virgin; and the additional Epithet of Somerset, to its Vicinity to Summer's Het or Hithe, a small Port or Haven, (according to the Conjecture of my Author) resembling that of Queen-hithe.

The Patronage of this Church was anciently in a Family of the Peytons; since which Time it having had divers Masters, it is at present in the Possession of but subject to the Archdeacon.

This Church having suffered in the dreadful Calamity Anno 1666, it is rebuilt with a handsome Bell-Tower, and the Parish of St. Mary Mountbaw thereunto annexed; the Incumbent's Profits are thereby considerably advanced; which, together with the Disbursements of the Cure, are as follow:

St. MARY Staining.

Newc. Rep. Eccl. Paroch. Stow. Sur. Lond. This Parish is a Rectory, the small Church whereof was seated on the North Side of Oat-lane, in the Ward of Aldersgate within. And though it is certain, that the said Church was denominated from its being dedicated to the Virgin Mary; yet the additional Epithet of Staining is as uncertain, as the Time of its Foundation; some imagining it to be derived from Painters-Stainers, who probably lived near it: And others, from its being built with Stone; to distinguish it from those in the City that were built with Wood.

The Advowson of this Rectory was anciently in the Priores and Convent of Clerkenwell, in whom it continued till their Suppression by Henry the Eighth; when coming to the Crown, it therein still continues; but subject to the Archdeacon.

This Church being consumed in the Fire of London, and not rebuilt, the Parish is united to St. Michael's, Wood-street, whereby the Incumbent's Profits are considerably increased; which, together with the Disbursements on Account of the Cure, I shall insert in the Account of St. Michael's Parish; and now proceed to the Parochial Charge of Church and Poor.

Here lieth the Body of George Smithes, Goldsmith and Alderman of London; who tooke to Wife Sarah, the Daughter of Anthony Woolbouse, Citizen and Haberdasher of London: By whom he had Issue Foure Sonnes and Five Daughters. He departed this Life the Eleventh of July, Anno Domini 1615, being 52 Yeeres of Age.

To whose Memory, Sarah, his Wife, being sole Executrix of his Last Will and Testament, at her own proper Cost and Charges, caused this Monument to be erected.

In the Vault underneath lyeth the Body of the honourable Sir Arthur Savage, knighted at Cadiz in Spain 1596. General of her Majesties Forces in the Kingdom of France, at the Siege of Amiens, the 39th of Queen Elizabeth: Collonel, Vice-treasurer, Receiver-general and Counsellour of Estate in Ireland. He had Issue by his Second Wife, Sarah, Daughter of Anthony Woolbouse of Chapwell in the County of Darby, (Widow of George Smithes, Sheriff and Alderman of London, 1611) One only Daughter, named Jane. He dyed the 13th of March 1632.

That this Church is not of a modern Foundation; is manifest, from John de Lukenore's being Rector thereof before the Year 1328. See Aldersgate Ward.

St. MARY Woolchurch-baw.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church of which stood on the East Side of Stocks Market, in the Ward of Walbrook. This Church, like the above-specified, received its Name from its Dedication to the Virgin Mary; and the additional Appellation from a Trone, Beam, or Balance in the Cemetery

Stow. Sur. Cemetery thereof, for the weighing of Wool; Lond. wherefore it was denominated Woolchurch-haw.

Newc. The Patronage of this Rectory was anciently Repert. in Hubert de Ria, and Eudo, his Son; who gave Ecclef. the same to the Abbot and Canons of St. John's Paroch. Abbey at Colchester, in whom it continued till their Suppression by Henry the Eighth in the Year 1539, when coming to the Crown, it still remains therein: But in Matters Ecclesiastical it is subject to the Archdeacon, other than what relates to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

Ast. Parl. This Church being destroyed in the great Con- 22 & 23 flagration of 1666, and the same not rebuilt, the Car. II. Parish is annexed to the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth, whereby the Rectorial Profits are much augmented; which, with the Disbursements in respect to the Cure, I shall insert in the Account of the Parish of the said St. Mary Woolnoth. In the Interim, I shall subjoin the Parochial Charges in regard to the Church and Poor.

Mund. Ed. In Sevenoke, into the World my Mother brought Stow. Sur. me;

 Then, seeking Heaven, Heaven from the World took me:
 Whilome alive, Thomas Scott, Men called me;
 Now laid in Grave, Oblivion covereth me.

Officers, &c. in this Parish.

The Vestry is general; two Church-wardens; sixty-eight Houses. Augmentation to the Parish of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, seven Pounds per Annum.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

Newc. The late Church of this Parish seems to have Rep. Eccl. been founded soon after the Norman Conquest, by Paroch. Hubert de Ria, the Father of Eudo, who was Steward of the Household to William the Conqueror, and Founder of the Abbey of St. John at Colchester; to which the said Eudo, by his Charter of Foundation, gave this Church, by the Name of St. Mary de Westcheping, otherwise called New Church; which had been granted to Ailward, a Priest, by Hubert, his Father. And by its being then called New Church, my Author is of Opinion, that it owed its Foundation to the said Hubert.

Rec. Tur. The Cemetery, which belonged to this Church, Pat. 10. being anciently the Woolstaple, there was on the Ed. I. m. 11 North Side thereof a void Piece of Ground, which Edward the First, in the Year 1282, granted to Henry le Walleis, the Mayor, and the Commonalty of London, for the Support of London Bridge. Which Spot of Ground, together with that whereon the publick Stocks stood, the Citizens converted into a Market-place. See Walbrook Ward.

St. MARY Woolnoth.

This Church, which is a Rectory, situate at the Corner of Sherbourn-lane, in Lombard-street, and Ward of Langbourn, is, like the several above-mentioned, denominated from its being dedicated to the aforesaid Virgin; but the additional Epithet of Woolnoth being unaccounted for, it might probably be added from its almost contiguous Situation to Woolchurch-haw, abovementioned; wherefore it might justly be called Wool-neab, or nigh, which, by an easy Transition, might pass into Woolnoth.

The Advowson of this Church was in the Priores and Convent of St. Helen's in Bishopsgate-street, till their Dissolution; when coming to the Crown, it was by Henry the Eighth, in the Year 1540, granted to Sir Martin Bowes, in whose Family it has ever since continued; but subject to the Archdeacon.

Though this Church was not quite destroyed by the fatal Catastrophe of the Year 1666, yet it became so great a Sufferer, that nothing escaped but the Walls; which being soon after repaired, or rather patched together, it continued in a very crazy Condition, till the Year 1711, when an Act of Parliament was made for erecting fifty new Churches within the Bill of Mortality; this being appointed one thereof, it was finished in the Year 1719, as it at present appears. And the Parish of St. Mary Woolchurch being thereunto annexed, the Incumbent's Profits are thereby much augmented; which, together with the Disbursements of the Cure, are as follow:

St. MICHAEL, Cornhill.

This Church, which is a Rectory, situate in St. Michael's-alley in Cornhill, and Ward of that Name, owes its Name to its Dedication to St.

Michael

Michael above mentioned, and its antient Situation in the Street called Cornhill.

Stow. Sur.

The Patronage of this Church appears to have been antiently in Anotbus, a Priest, who gave the same to the Abbot and Convent of Coveſham (mistaken for Eveſham) before the Year 1133; for in that Year Reynold, the Abbot, and Canons, granted the same to Sparling, a Priest, with all the Lands thereunto belonging, except those held by Orgar le Proud, at the Rent of two Shillings per Annum; in Consideration of which Grant, the said Sparling covenanted and agreed, not only to pay annually to the said Abbot and Canons the Sum of thirteen Shillings and four Pence, but likewise to supply the House of the said Abbot (when in London) with Fire, Water and Salt.

Ibid.

Some Time after, this Rectory reverting to the Abbot and Convent aforesaid, they continued Patrons thereof till the Year 1503, when, by a proper Instrument, dated 3 December, they conveyed the Advowson thereof to the Company of Drapers of this City; who, in Consideration of which, settled a perpetual Annuity of five Pounds six Shillings and eight Pence upon the said Abbot and Canons, and their Successors; besides an antient Pension of six Shillings and eight Pence annually paid them out of the said Church. By Virtue of which Contract, the said Company of Drapers have been Patrons thereof ever since. But in Matters Ecclesiastical it is subject to the Archdeacon, other than what relates to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

Stow. Sur. Lond. Though I have not been able to discover the Time when this Church was at first founded, yet by Alnothus's having given the same to the Abbot and Convent of Evesham, in the Year 1133, I am of opinion that it owes its Foundation to the Saxons. Be that as it will, it was situate in the Street denominated Cornhill, till the Reign of Edward VI. when 'twas excluded the same, by the Erection of four Houses in the Cemetery, on the North Side thereof. Ibid.

Contiguous to this Church, on the South, was antiently situate a handsome Cloister, and a beautiful Church-yard, wherein was a Pulpit Cross (resembling that of St. Paul's) erected by Sir John Rudstone, some Time Mayor of this City; who purchasing Ground in this Neighbourhood, not only enlarged the said Church-yard, but likewise erected convenient Apartments for the Choiristers, who daily officiated in the Church; but the Choir being soon after dissolved, the Apartments were converted into Habitations for decayed Parishioners. See Cornhill Ward. Ibid.

St. MICHAEL's, Crooked-Lane.

This Parish-Church is not of a modern Date, as is evident by John de Barkam's being Rector thereof before the Year 1304. It is a Rectory, situate on the East Side of St. Michael's-lane, in the Ward of Candlewick-street, and denominated from its Dedication to the above-named St. Michael, and its Vicinity to Crooked-lane. The Patronage thereof appears to have been antiently in the Prior and Convent of Canterbury, in whom it continued till about the Year 1408. Since which Time it has been in the Archbishops of that See, and is one of the thirteen Peculiars in this City belonging to Canterbury. Newc. Rep. Eccl. Paroch. Ibid.

This Rectory Church was antiently a very small and piteous Building, adjoining to the Market of Eastcheap, wherein dwelt divers slaughtering Butchers; who laying the Ordure and Excrements of the Beasts they killed near unto the Church, the same was almost surrounded with it

noisome Lay-stall: But John Lovekin, some Time Mayor of this City, having removed that Nuifance, in the Year 1317, he erected a handsome Church on the Site thereof; which being some Time after enlarged with a Choir and Side-Isles, by the famous Sir William Wakworth, he by Licence from Richard II. Anno 1380, united eight several Chuntries therein; and by an Addition to the annual Revenues thereof, converted the same into a College in the said Church, consisting of a Master and nine Priests, to celebrate the Divine Offices, for the good State of the King, himself, and Margaret, his Wife, whilst living, and their Souls when dead, together with those of the Founders of the said Chuntries, and the Souls of all Benefactors and Faithful deceased.

By the early Account we have of the Market,
which was antiently held in this Neighbourhood, denominated Eastcheap, and its Vicinity to the Roman Trajectus, or Ferry, I take it to have been one of the first Markets of this City.

St. MICHAEL's, Queenhithe.

This Church is a Rectory, situate on the North modern Appellation of Queenhithe to be only a

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof, which stood at the West End of of Cheapside, between Blowbladder-street, and Pater-noster-row, in the Ward of Farringdon within, had a narrow Passage at the West End; but it being burnt down in the late Fire of London, the Site thereof by Act of Parliament was laid into the Street to enlarge the same. See Faringdon Ward within.

Ibid. The earliest Account I find of this Church is in the Year 1181, when the State thereof was returned to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's; at which Time it appears to have been only a Chapel, and as such it continued many Years after; for the first Parson or Rector thereof, we are told, was buried therein, Anno 1461. In Records it is called St. Michael ad Bladum; that is, at the Corn, at present corruptly, Querne. It was likewise at some times denominated, St. Michael de Macello, from its Neighbourhood to the Shambles, or Flesh-Market.

Imbalm'd in pious Arts, wrapt in a Shroud Of white, innocuous Charity, who vow'd, Having enough, the World should understand, No Need of Money might escape his Hand: Bankes here is laid asleepe, this Place did breed him,

A Precedent to all that shall succeed him. Note both his Life and immitable End, Not he th' unrighteous Mammon made his Friend; Expressing by his Talent's rich Increase, Service, that gain'd him Praise, and lasting Peace. Much was to him committed, much he gave, Entring his Treasure there, whence all shall have Returne with Use; what to the Poore is given Claimes a just Promise of Reward in Heaven: Even such a Banke, Bankes left behind at last, Riches stor'd up, which Age nor Time can waste.

At the West End of Cheapside, and North-East Door of St. Paul's Church-yard, was situate an antient Ran. Higd. Polychr. Virg. Hist. Angl. antient Stone Crofs, denominated the Old Crofs; which, by a certain Author, appears to have been the Standard where Walter Stapleton, Bishop of Exeter, and Treasurer to Edward II. was beheaded by the Populace in the Year 1326. This Standard continued till the Year 1390, when it was obliged to make way for the Inlargement of the Church of St. Michael at Querne, and Erektion of the little Conduit at St. Paul's Gate aforefaid; which, with the Jufts held in the Reign of Edward III. between the great Crofs and Soper-lane, are fufficient to fhew, that this was the old Standard; and that the other at the End of Honey-lane, called the Old Standard, muft have been erected fince the Year 1331, otherwife the faid Jufts could not have been conveniently held in Cheapside.

Stow. Sur. Lnd.

On part of the Site of the Church of this Parifh, after the Fire of London in the Year 1666, was erected a Conduit, for fupplying the Neighbourhood with Water. But the fame being found unneceffary, it was, with others, pulled down Anno 1727. See Farringdon Ward within.

St. MICHAEL Royal.

This Church, which is a Rectory, fitude on the Eaft Side of College-hill, in the Ward of Vintry, is, like the preceding, denominated from St. Michael, and its Neighbourhood antiently to the Tower Royal.

The firft Mention I find of this Parifh-Church is, that Hugh de Derby was collated thereto in the Year 1285, by the Prior and Canons of Canterbury, in whom it continued till it was converted into a College; and even then the faid Monks fo far continued Patrons thereof, as to prefent a Perfon nominated by the Mafter and Wardens of the Mercers Company.

This Church, which is one of the thirteen Peculiars in this City belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, was confumed in the destructive Fire of 1666: But it being rebuilt in a handfome Manner, the Parifh of St. Martin Vintry is thereunto united; whereby the Rectorial Profits are greatly augmented; which, together with the Difburfements on account of the Cure, are as follow:

St. MICHAEL's, Woodſtreet.

This Church is a Rectory, ſeated on the Weſt Side of Woodſtreet, in the Ward of Cripplegate within: John de Eppewell was Rector thereof before the Year 1328. Its Name it owes to its Dedication to the often-named St. Michael, and the Place of its Situation.

The Patronage of this Rectory was antiently in the Abbot and Convent of St. Alban's, in whom it continued till the Suppreſſion of their Monastery; when coming to the Crown, it was, with the Appurtenances, in the Year 1544, fold by King Henry VIII. to William Barwell; who, in the Year 1588, conveyed the ſame to John Maſſe, and others, in Truſt for the Parifh; in which it ſtill continues. But in Affairs Eccleſiaſtical 'tis ſubject to the Archdeacon, except what relates to Wills and Adminiſtrations, which belong to the Commiſſary.

This Church being deſtroyed in the great Conflagration in the Year 1666, 'tis handſomely rebuilt, and the Parifh of St. Mary Staining thereunto united, whereby the Incumbent's Profits are greatly increaſed; which, together with the Difburſements of the Cure, are as follow:

St. MILDRED's, Bread-street.

This Church is a Rectory, situate on the East Side of Bread-street, in the Ward of that Name ; but when, or by whom the first Church was founded, I cannot learn ; however, Nicholas de Iford was collated thereto in the Year 1333 ; and it is denominated from its Dedication to St. Mildred, a Saxon Lady, and Daughter of Merwaldus, a West-Mercian Prince, and Brother to Penda, King of the Mercians ; who, despising the Pomp and Vanities of this World, retired to a Convent at Hale, in France ; whence returning to England, accompanied by seventy Virgins, she was consecrated Abbess of a new Monastery in the Isle of Thanet, by Theodore, Archbishop of Canterbury ; where she dyed Abbess, Anno 676.

The Advowson of this Church was antiently in the Prior and Canons of St. Mary Overie's, till Bartholomew, the Prior, and Convent, in the Year 1533, granted the Patronage thereof to John Iment, John Oliver, and others, for a certain Term of Years ; after the Expiration of which, it came to Sir Nicholas Crispe, in whose Family it still (1710) remains. In Ecclesiastical Matters 'tis subject to the Archdeacon, save as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church suffering in the great Calamity in the Year 1666, 'tis since rebuilt, and the Parish of St. Margaret Moses thereunto united ; by which the Rectorial Revenues are considerably advanced ; which, together with the Disbursements of the Cure, are as follow :

An Obite, consecrated to the happy Memorial of Sir John Chadworth, or Shadworth, Knight, some time Mercer and Lord Maior of this City of London, who gave a Vestry to this Church; an House for the Pastor to dwell in; and a Church-yard to the Parishioners, wherein to bury their Dead. He deceased the 7th Day of May, An. Dom. 1401.

Here lieth a Man, that Faith and Works did even,

Like fiery Chariots, mount him up to Heaven :
He did adorne this Church, when Words were weake,

And Men forgot, the living Stones will speake.
He left us Land; this little Earth him keepes,
These blacke Words Mourners, and the Marble weepes.

Ibid. Here lieth Roger Forde, Vintner of London, with Joane and Margaret, his Wives; the which Joane deceased the 8th Day of August, An. Dom. 1467; and Margaret deceased the 11th Day of June, An. Dom. 1492. And the foresaid Roger deceased, &c.

Ibid. Here lieth the Body of Thomas Copenyer, the which deceased the 14th Day of November, in the Yeere of our Lord God 1513; on whose Soule, &c.

Ibid. Here lieth Sir Cutbert Earne, Knight; who deceased the 16th Day of October, in the Yeere of our Lord God 1521; on whose Soule, &c.

Ibid. Here lieth buried Thomas Clivelod, of Warmosfer in the County of Wiltshire, Clothier, who deceased the 24th Day of June, An. Dom. 1558.

St. MILDRED's, Poultry.

This Church is a Rectory, situate at the Corner of Scalding-alley, in the Poultry, and Ward of Cheap. John de Asswell was collated thereto in the Year 1325. Its Name it owes to its Dedication to the above-named St. Mildred, and the Place of its Situation.

To this Church antiently belonged the Chapel of Corpus Christi and St. Mary, at the End of Conyhop-lane, or Grocer's-alley, in the Poultry; wherefore in ancient Records 'tis denominated, Ecclesie S. Mildredæ, super Walbroke, vel in Pulteria una cum Capella Beatæ Mariæ de Conyhop, eidem annexæ. Newc. Rep. Ecclef. Paroch.

The Patronage of this Church was in the Prior and Canons of St. Mary Overie's in Southwark, till their Suppression; when coming to the Crown, it has ever since been in the Gift of the King. But in Affairs Ecclesiastical it is subject to the Archdeacon, except as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church being consumed in the great Fire Anno 1666, it is rebuilt in a beautiful manner; and the Parish of St. Mary Cole being thereunto annexed, the Incumbent's Profits are thereby considerably increased; which, together with his Disbursements on Account of the Cure, are as follow:

St. NICHOLAS Acons.

In the Reign of William the Conqueror, Anno 1084, Godwin, and Thurund his Wife, for the Redemption of their Souls and the Remission of their Sins, and those of all Christians, gave this Church, together with all their Messuages and Appurtenances, to St. Mary and St. Adelme the Confessor, and the Church of Malmesbury, for ever.

This Gift was confirmed by the Bull of Pope Innocent the Fourth, at Lyons, on the third of October, in the sixth Year of his Pontificate.

This Church, which stood on the West Side of Nicholas-lane, in the Ward of Langbourne, owed its Name to its Dedication to St. Nicholas, a Citizen of Lycia, in Asia Minor; who being only a private House-keeper, was, out of a Caprice of the Electors, casually chosen Bishop of Myra; for the Bishops and Priests interested in the Election, came to an unanimous (but very ridiculous) Resolution, that whatever Person should first enter the Church the next Day, should be elected Bishop. Nicholas, according to Custom, repairing early next Morning, to perform his Mattin Devotions, being the first that entered, was chosen Bishop, pursuant to the said Resolution; in which Office his Deportment was such, as to procure him a Seat in the Class of Saints.

From the Time of the aforesaid Godwin and Thurund's Gift, the Patronage of this Church
continued in the Abbot and Convent of Malmesbury, till their Suppression; when coming to the Crown, it therein still continues. But as to Matters Ecclesiastical it is subject to the Archdeacon, save as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

The late Church of this Parish, being destroyed by the Fire of London, Anno 1666, and the same not rebuilt, the Parish is annexed to the Church of St. Edmund the King, in Lombard-street; whereby the Rectorial Revenues are considerably increased;
which, together with the Disbursements of the Cure, I have inserted in the Account of St. Ed-

St. NICHOLAS Cole-Abbey.

Stow.Sur. This Church, which is a Rectory, situate on Lond. the South Side of Old Fish-street, in the Ward of Queenhithe, is denominated from its Dedication to the above-named Saint, and the additional Epithet of Cole-Abby, by some from Golden-Abbey, Cold-Abbey or Coldbey, from its cold or bleak Situation. John Brand was Rector thereof before the Year 1383.

Ibid. The Advowson of this Rectory was antiently in the Dean and Chapter of St. Martin's le Grand; but upon the Grant of that Collegiate Church to the Abbot and Canons of Westminster, the Patronage devolved to that Convent, in whom it continued till the Dissolution of their Monastery; when coming to the Crown, it remained therein, till Queen Elizabeth, in the Year 1560, granted the Patronage thereof to Thomas Reeve and George Evelyn, and their Heirs, in Soccage, who conveying it to others, it came at last to the Family of the Hackers; one whereof, was Colonel Francis Hacker, Commander of the Guard that guarded King Charles I. to and from his Trial, and at last to the Scaffold; for which, after the Restoration, he was executed as a Traytor, when the Advowson reverted to the Crown, wherein it still continues, subject nevertheless to the Archdeacon in Matters Ecclesiastical, except what relates to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church being consumed in the great Conflagration Anno 1666, 'tis handsomely rebuilt, and the Parish of St. Nicholas Olave thereunto united, whereby the Incumbent's Profits are greatly augmented; which, with his Disbursements on Account of the Cure, are as follow:

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

In the North Wall of the late Church was erected a large Stone Cistern, for the Reception of Thames Water, for the Use of the neighbouring Fishmongers. And the only Remarkable at present is the handsome Parish-Church.

St. NICOLAS Olave's

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood on the West Side of Breadstreet-hill, in the Ward of Queenhithe; but when or by whom the same was founded, is unknown. However, that it is of great Antiquity, is evident by Gilbert Foliot's, Bishop of London, having given the same to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's about the Year 1172; and its Name, like those above-mentioned, is owing to the aforefaid Nicholas, and is supposed to be derived from Olave, or Olaus, King of Norway.

Since Foliot's Gift of this Church, the Advowson thereof has ever since continued in the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's: But as to Matters Ecclesiastical it is subject to the Archdeacon, save as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church sharing the common Fate in the devouring Flames of 1666, it has not been rebuilt; wherefore the Parish is annexed to the Church of St. Nicholas Cole-abbey, where I have inserted the Profits and Disbursements of the Cure; therefore shall proceed to give an Account of the Receipts and Disbursements in respect to the Church and Poor.

 Ecclef.
 Paroch.

This Church is a Rectory, situate on the South Side of Hart-street, in Tower-street Ward; William de Samford was Rector thereof before the Year 1319; and it is denominated from its Dedication to St. Olave, or Olaus, King of Norway, who was a great Friend to the English in Opposition to the Danes; who not only invaded his Country on Account of his sincere Attachment to the Christian Religion, but likewise prevailed upon his Pagan Subjects to rebel against and destroy him in Battle; wherefore he was deemed worthy to be ranged among the Saints, and to have a Place assigned him in the Roman Rubrick.

Ibid.

The Patronage of this Rectory appears to have been antiently in a Family of the Nevils, from which it came to others; whereby is shewn its having been all along in private Hands.

This Church having fortunately escaped the devouring Flames Anno 1666, it remains in all respects upon the antient Foot; wherefore the Profits and Disbursements of the Cure are as follow:

In Christian Hope of a blessed Immortality, near this Place lyes interred the Body of Jane, late Wife of Matthew Humberstone, of London, Esq; (the Second Daughter of James Host, of Sandringham in Norfolk, Esq;) who being a Person of singular Accomplishments, and many excellent Virtues, her endeared Husband thinks this Monument a most just Debt, to her fragrant Memory. She died July the 17th 1694, in her 35 Year.

Her noble Soul and lovely Body join'd,
Were once the Joy and Wonder of Mankind.
They who have known her, thus, with Sighs, confess,
They wish they'd known her still, or known her less.

Her Race was short, the longer is her Rest;
God only-wise disposes all things best.

Rep. Eccl.
Paroch.

This Parish, tho' antiently a Rectory, is at present a Vicarage; the Church whereof is situate on the West Side of the Old Jewry, in the Ward of Coleman-street. It is of great Antiquity, as is manifest, from the State thereof, presented to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, in the Year 1181.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

This Church was antiently denominated St. Olave's Upwell; the former from its Dedication to the Saint of that Name; and the latter, probably, from a Well under the East End thereof, wherein at present a Pump is placed; but that giving way to the modern Epithet of Jewry, 'twas owing to this Neighbourhood's becoming the common Residence of all the Jews in this City.

The Patronage of this Church was in the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, till about the Year

1181, when they granted the same, together with two Parts of St. Stephen's Chapel, (now the Parish Church) in Coleman-street, as an Appendage thereof, to the Prior and Convent of Butley, in Suffolk, to be held of them as Vicars of the Parsonage of St. Olave, paying unto them annually for the same the Sum of four Shillings. And, that the said Prior and Canons of Butley do, by themselves, or their Vicars in the said Churches, answer to the Bishop of London, and his Officials, in all things belonging to them.

The above-named Priory having sustained great Losses by Inundations; Stephen, Bishop of London, in Consideration thereof, did, in the Year 1322, appropriate this Church and its Appendage, the Chapel aforesaid, to the said Convent. But on this Condition, that the said Bishop and his Successors should, in all Futurity, have the Power of instituting and admitting the Vicars, and of assigning them a Competency for their Support, out of the Profits of the said Church: Whereupon the Prior and Convent aforesaid became Proprietors and Patrons of this Church and Vicarage, with the Chapel of St. Stephen, thereunto annexed till the Year 1456, when the said Chapel was converted into a Parish-Church; which I shall give an Account of, when I come to treat of that Parish.

The Advowson of this Church, tho' separated from St. Stephen's Chapel, continued in the aforesaid Prior and Convent till their Dissolution, when coming to the Crown, it therein still remains. But in Matters Ecclesiastical 'tis subject to the Archdeacon, save what relates to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church being consumed in the great Fire of 1666, 'tis rebuilt in a handsome Manner, and the Parish of St. Martin, Ironmonger-lane, is thereunto united; whereby the Incumbent's Profits are considerably increased; which, together with the Disbursements on account of the Cure, are as follow:

Great Men that ne're did good in all their Dayes,
But at the very Instant of their Death,
Finde yet no meane Commenders of their Praise,
Although it lasts no longer than a Breath.
Shall then good Men, though lesser in Degree,
Finde none to give them Right and Equity?
If one shall say, the great Man's Life was such,
So good, so full of Hospitality;

When God doth know, he ne're did half so much,
Though thus he must be grac'd with Flattery;

That such as knew thee, better farre than I,

May say thy Vertues did not with thee dye.

Thy Skill and Practice, that it self commends,

Some of the best have truly found the same:

Not partially employed, to wealthy Friends,

But even the poorest Wretch, the Sick and Lame.

Felt of the best; some Difference there might be,

The Rich pay'd somewhat, poore Men had it free.

Thy Care and Cost laid out, for common Good,

In greater Measure than came in againe.

But that Heaven's Blessing, with thy Bounty stood,

Hardly had stretcht so many to sustain.

But it is true, the liberal Heart God loves,

And from him still all Cause of Lacke removes.

Thy Weekly Charity given to the Poore,

In Bread, beside, in Money from thy Purse:

Even in the hardest Yeeres dealt at the Doore,

When some repin'd that every Day did worse;

Makes poore Men say, our good Relief is gone,

Let them goe to thy Find-faults, and have none.

Poore maymed Souldiers, fore sick-hearted Men

That under Miseries hard Crouch did bow,

Were freely cured, methinkes they cry, Lord,

when,

Where shall we find our good Physician now?

I doubt not, but some others will as much:

Yet (in these Dayes) we find not many such.

Sleep then, thou happy Soule, in endlesse Rest,

All good Men's Groanes, be powred on the

"The Christian Faith, without doubt, was very early received in Britain; and without having Recourse to the monkish Tale of Joseph, of Armathea, and other legendary Fictions, there is authentick Testimony of a Christian Church planted here by the Apostles themselves, and, in particular, very probably by St. Paul.

Wren's
p. 271.

"It is very certain this Apostle, from his first Imprisonment at Rome, to his Return to Jerusalem, had spent eight Years in preaching in divers Places, but more especially in the Western Countries. We know he designed for Spain, and it is not improbable, but his Earnestness to convert the Britains might have carried him to this Island.

"This Opinion may be strengthened by the Evidence of Vanutius Fortunatus, who says the same Thing, speaking of the Travels of St. Paul, in his Poem on the Life of St. Martin:

"Transit et oceanum, vel qua facit insula portum,
"Quasque Britannus habet terras ultima Thule.

"Every Christian Church derived from the Apostles, had a Succession of Bishops from them too, and the Condition of the British Church was so early established, that some maintain there were Bishops of the Britains at the Council of Nice, assembled in 325: And 'tis certain, that twenty-two Years after, Resitutus, Bishop of London, was one of the three British Bishops present at the Council of Arles.

"Some British Prelates were likewise at the Council of Ariminum, assembled in 359, and these were of such Dignity, that they refused the Emperor's Allowance, thinking it beneath them not to bear their own Expences.

"The first Cathedral of this Episcopal See of London, (built in the Area, where had been the Roman Præterian Camp; the Situation of all the succeeding Fabricks to this Time) was demolished under the great and general Persecution by Dioclesian: But although, in Pursuance of the Strictness of his Edicts, the Christian Churches in all the Provinces of the Roman Government were ordered to be pulled down, yet possibly the Præfects might not take the Pains, when they had made them unfit for Use, to tear up the Foundations also. The Time

"of the Persecution was short, for under Constantine the Church flourished again; the Churches in Rome, and other Parts of the Empire were soon rebuilt, and most likely ours among the first, after the Pattern of the Roman Basilica of St. Peter, and St. Paul, in the Vatican; and, as (Sir Christopher Wren) the Surveyor conceived, upon the old Foundations left by the Persecutors; for the Christians were zealous, and in haste to be settled again.

"The Church thus re-edified under Constantine, was afterwards destroyed by the Pagan Saxons; and restored again, upon the old Foundations, when they embraced Christianity, in the seventh Century, (viz. in 608) by Mellitus, Bishop of London, under Ethelbert King of Kent, the first Saxon King of the Christian Faith."

Saxon.
Chron.

This Church at first seems to have been but a small Wooden Building; for the same being burnt down Anno 961, it was in the same Year soon after re-edified, as may be presumed, with the like Materials, considering its being rebuilt in so short a Time.

Ibid.

In the Year 1086, this Cathedral was not only consumed a second Time by Fire, but likewise the greatest Part of the City. This fatal Catastrophe, thro' great Inadvertence, is by divers Authors placed in the Year 1088.

Wren's
p. 272.

Maurice, Bishop of London, having resolved to rebuild this his Church after a very sumptuous and magnificent Manner, "obtained of the King, the old Stone of a spacious Castle in the Neighbourhood called the Palatine Tower, demolished by the same Fire; (this Fort stood at the Entrance of the Fleet-river, as if to defend the little Haven, then capable of Ships) and began the Building, upon the old Foundations, a fourth Time of that Pile; which after Additions, at several Times, to the East and West, continued till the last general Conflagration of the City, in 1666.

"The Fabrick thus began by Mauritius, had originally, as the Surveyor believed, a semicircular Presbyterium or Chancel, after the usual Mode of the Primitive Churches, and came near the Form of a Cross, short to the East; as he concluded, for this Reason; a Quire in after Times was added to give a greater Length Eastward than at first; this Building was apparently of a more modern Gothick Stile, not with Round (as in the old Church) but sharp-headed Arches; to make Way for which, the semicircular Presbyterium had been taken down. Upon demolishing the Ruins, after the last Fire, and searching the Foundations of this Quire, the Surveyor discovered nine Wells in a Row; which, no Doubt, had antiently belonged to a Street of Houses, that lay aslope from the High-street, (then Watling-street) to the Roman Causeway, (now Cheapside) and this Street, which was taken away to make room for the new Quire, came so near the old Presbyterium, that the Church could not extend farther that Way at first. He discovered also, there had been a considerable Addition, and a new Front to the West, but in what Age is not ascertained.

"The Reason the Surveyor was of Opinion, that though several Times the Fabrick had "been ruined, yet that the Foundation might remain, as originally they were laid, was upon his observing, that they consisted of nothing but Kentish Rubble-stone, artfully worked, and consolidated with exceeding hard Mortar, in the Roman Manner, much excelling what he found in the Superstructure; the Outside of which was built chiefly with the Free-stone of the old Palatine Tower, and Free-stone, supposed from the Quarries of Yorkshire, and in every Part was apparently less skilfully performed, and with worse Mortar.

"Tho' there be now no History or Record notifying directly the first Building of the first new Quire, yet it is probable it might have been executed by Richard, who was Bishop of London in the first Year of the Reign of King Richard the First, and had been Treasurer to King Henry the Second; who is said to have expended a vast Sum of Money on the Buildings of his Church, &c.

"But the said Quire being, afterwards, not thought beautiful enough, and a Resolution taken for an Improvement, they began with the Steeple, which was finished in the Year 1221, (5 Hen. III.) And then Roger Niger, promoted to the See of London in 1229, having vigorously prosecuted the Work, finished the Quire, and solemnly consecrated the same in the Year 1240, in Presence of the King, the Pope's Legate, and many Lords, both Spiritual and Temporal.

The farther Enlargement of this Church, so long before intended, (being the whole Extent of the Church of St. Faith) was begun to be erected in the Year 1256, by Fulco Basset, Bishop of London, at the East End of the Quire, on a Spot of Ground formerly obtained from King John, for a Market-place; which magnificent and stately Edifice, called the New Work, was paved and finished about the Year 1312, which is two hundred and twenty-four Years after laying the Foundation by Maurice, Anno 1088.

Ibid.

The Charge of the New-Work, together with all those carried on since the Year 1228, appear to have been defrayed by Money arising from Indulgences. This very spacious and most magnificent Edifice being intirely finished, a Survey thereof was taken, whereby its several Dimensions appear to have been as follow:

"Dimensions rise to 534 Feet. Dugdale (seem-
 "ly by good Authority, who took his Relation
 "from a Brass Table heretofore hung on a Pillar
 "on the North Part of the Quire) makes the
 "Heighth of the Tower 260 Feet, and of the "Spire 274 Feet, and yet the whole, viz. both
 "of Tower and Spire did not exceed 520 Feet,
 "as is testified by the Table, (whereof there is a
 "MS. Copy also in the publick Library in Cam- "bridge) which is 14 Feet short of the Height "of the two Dimensions of the Tower and "Spire added together: 'This, (says the Right
 "Rev. and Learned Editor of Camden's Britan-
 "nia) must indeed have been true, had the
 "Spire risen from the Summit of the Battlements:
 "Whereas, I suppose, it rose, (as the Spires of "most Steeples do) much below them; the "Battlements here rising 14 Feet above the Base "of the Spire, must occasion the Difference.'

"All the Stone Tower was standing when the "Surveyor measured it before the Fire, and,
 "agreeable with the other Accounts, was in "Height 260 Feet; the Basis of the Spire he "found was 40 Feet, therefore, according to the "usual Proportion of Spires in Gothick Fabricks,
 "which was 4 Diameters, or 5 at most, it "could rise no higher than 200 Feet, and make "the whole Altitude not to exceed 460 Feet to "the Ball, of Copper gilt, and Cross; upon which,
 "after the first Fire by Lightning, was added a
 "Weathercock, representing an Eagle, of Copper
 "gilt likewise.

"The Proportions of these Copper Ornaments
 "are thus recorded: The Ball was in Circumfe"rence 9 Feet one Inch. The Height of the Cross,
 "from the Ball, 15 Feet 6 Inches, and its Tra"verse 5 Feet 10 Inches. The Eagle from the "Bill to the Tail, 4 Feet, the Breadth over the "Wings, 3 Feet and a half."

The first Casualty that happened to this stately Edifice, after it was finished, was on the first of February, Anno 1444, when, about two o'Clock in the Afternoon, its lofty Spire was fired by Lightning, which, by the laudable Assiduity of the Citizens, was soon seemingly extinguished;
 but, to their great Surprise and Terror, it broke out again, about nine o'Clock at Night, with redoubled Fury; but by the indefatigable Pains of the Lord-Mayor and Citizens, it was effectually overcome. However, the Damage occasioned thereby was not fully repaired till the Year 1462, when the Spire was beautifully refitted, and a stately Eagle Weathercock of gilt Copper placed thereon.

 Stow. Sur.

In the Year 1561, a much greater Misfortune
 befel this noble Pile; for on the fourth of June, about four o'Clock in the Afternoon, the Top of this towering Spire was again set on Fire, by Lightning, as we have informed our Readers in our first Book, Page 255.

But a modern Author gives us a different Account thereof, by acquainting us, that an antient Plummer, at his Death, confessed, that the above-named Spire was not fired by Lightning, but by his Carelessness, in leaving a Pan of Coals and other Fewel in the Steeple, while he went to Dinner; which seizing the Spire, the Fire was got to such a Head at his Return, that he judged it impossible to quench the same; therefore concluded it would be more consistent with his Safety not to divulge it. In the mean Time the Fire burning downwards, it soon consumed the whole Spire; and continuing to rage furiously, it destroyed all the Roof of the Church within the Space of four Hours.

This melancholy Accident greatly affected the Queen, insomuch that she forthwith sent Letters to the Lord-Mayor, strictly enjoining him to take some speedy Course for its Reparation: And was graciously pleased not only to give a thousand Marks in Money towards repairing the same, but also a Warrant for a thousand Loads of Timber to be taken out of her Woods.

Mund. Ed.
 Stow. Sur.

The Citizens made large Contributions for the intended Work, and granted three Fifteenths for the more effectual performing the same, which amounting to 3247 l. 16 s. 2 d. this, together with other Sums collected in the Province of Canterbury, and the Courts of Justice, amounted to 6702 l. 13 s. 4 d. In the Interim, six Citizens and two of the Petty Canons were appointed to superintend the Work; which was carried on with such an assiduous Application, that before the Month of April, Anno 1566, all the Roofs were leaded and perfectly finished: But the Steeple, tho' divers Models were prepared for its Reconstruction, yet during the remaining Part of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, there was not the least Attempt made that Way.

Nothing having been done for many Years towards finishing the Repairs of this Church, King James I. (at the earnest and pressing Solicitations of Henry Farely, a private Citizen) in the Year 1620, began to think of renewing the Work; and on the sixteenth of November, issued a Commission under the great Seal, directed to Sir Fran- cis Jones, the Lord-Mayor, the Archbishop of Canterbury, great Officers of State, and a great Number of the Nobility, Gentry and Clergy; who meeting some Time after, agreed to attempt a general Subscription or Contribution, which was begun by the King, and followed by many of the Nobility and others; but the People being averse to such a Method, it was seemingly laid aside; till Dr. Laud, advanced to the See of London some Time after, obtained of King Charles I.
 in the Year 1631, a new Commission to revive the Subscription; which he heartily setting about, by his great Assiduity, the Subscriptions went on so successfully, that he found himself in a Condition to lay the first Stone of the new Work; which the King willing to encourage, erected the magnificent Western Portico, of the Corinthian Order, at his own Charge.

The Work was carried on with great Application for the Space of nine Years, during which Time, the Money received on that Account amounted to the Sum of one hundred and one

 Civil War breaking out in the Year 1642, an in-tire Stop was put to the Prosecution of that Undertaking.

After the Restoration of Monarchy, King Charles II. by his Letters Patent, constituted divers Persons of Quality and others, Commissioners, for perfecting the Repairs of this noble Piece of Antiquity: The said Commissioners, being zealous to promote so desirable a Work, met frequently to consult about the most proper Methods for raising Money; at last a voluntary Contribution being agreed on, Money came flowing in from all Quarters; and many Hands being set to work, the Houses adjoining to the Church were all pulled down, and the Work carried on till the great Conflagration in the Year 1666, when the Church was irreparably destroyed.

Having in this compendious Account brought the Church of St. Paul's from its Foundation to its Destruction by the Fire of London aforesaid; I shall now, for the Information of the Reader, subjoin an Account of the great Number of perpetual Chantries, which were founded and endowed in this Cathedral by superstitious Men, for a certain Number of Priests, to celebrate Divine Service for the Good of their Souls.

Total of Founders 70, of Priests 96.

Besides these perpetual Chantries, there were in this Church no less than sixty endowed Anniversary Obits; which, together with the numerous Officers belonging to the Cathedral, great Numbers of Saints Chapels, Statues of the Virgin Mary, and St. Erkenwald's Shrine, where many Oblations were daily offered; it may be presumed, that the Number of Priests belonging to this Church could not amount to less than two hundred.

Ibid.

By an Inventory taken by Ralph Baudak, Dean of St. Paul's, at his Visitation in the Year 1295, the Treasury of this Church appears to have been very rich; but as the Particulars thereof take up thirteen Leaves in Folio, I shall content myself with inserting a Summary of the Articles therein particularly expressed, viz.

Dugd.

Three golden Morfes; fourteen of Silver; thirty of Copper, gilt; seven ditto of Wood, plated with Silver; all of which were richly embellished with Jewels: Four Pair of Silver Phials, or Cruets; three Ampuls of ditto; one Chrysmatory of ditto; two Pair of ditto Candlesticks; a gilt Silver Cup, with Cover and Pyx; two holy Water Vessels; nine Silver Censers; three Silver Globes, with a Plate and Ship for Frankincense; six Silver Basons; eleven Silver Croffes; five golden Chalices, or Cups; five ditto of Silver; eleven Books richly bound; five Silver Biers, with many Trunks, Boxes, and Caskets with Relicks, decorated with Jewels; six Silver Cups; four Horns, enriched with Silver; nine Mitres, partly adorned with Jewels, as were also the Bishop's Gloves; nine Pair of rich Sandals; eight Croffiers; ten rich Cushions; one hundred Copes of the richest Silks, many of Cloth of Gold, and others embroidered with curious Figures; eighteen Amices; one hundred Vestments, with proper Stoles, Manciples, Tunicks, Dalmaticks, Albes, Corporals, Canopies, &c. Besides the above, there was a great Variety of Particulars belonging to the Altars of fundry Chapels, which, for Brevity's Sake I shall omit, and refer the curious to Dugdale's Monasticon for the same.

Tho' this Church was irreparably destroyed by the Fire of London, as already observed, yet an Attempt was made to repair it. "The first Thing designed after this deplorable Fire, was "to fit some Part of the Church, thus ruined, "for a Quire; wherein the Dean and Prebends "might have divine Service, until the Repair "of the whole, or a new Structure could be accomplished: To which End, upon a View "thereof, it was resolved, that Part of the Body "of it, towards the West End, might, with the "least Charge, be made useful for that Purpose. "Whereupon Workmen were set upon it, and "Scaffolds raised for Search of the Walls, and "cutting the Remainder of the unmelted Lead "from the high Roof, and other Parts of the "Church.

Ibid.

"In which Employment, as also in digging "up the melted Lead, clearing the Rubbish, "taking down the Remainder of the vaulted "Roof and Walls, with the greatest Part of the "Tower-steeple, digging up the Floors, sorting "the Stone, and carrying it to several Places, "repairing

“repairing the Convocation-house, and building
“new Offices for the Work; no less than two “Years, (viz. the rest of the Year 1666, the “whole Year 1667, and Part of the Year 1668)
“were spent. Towards the latter End of which “two Years, they fell to casing some of those great “and massy Pillars, which stood betwixt the “middle Aile, and the side Ailes; beginning “with those below the little North Door, to“wards the West: But, before the third Pillar “was perfectly cased, so weak and unsound had “the excessive Heat of the Fire left it, with the “remaining Pillars and Walls, which were all “miserably scaled with the Flame, and shattered, “that upon farther Search into them, they were “found to be altogether uncapable of any sub“stantial Repair: It was therefore fully con“cluded, that, in order to a new Fabrick, the “Foundations of the old Cathedral, thus made “ruinous, should be totally cleared; and Prepa“ration of Materials, and all Things needful
“made ready, conducing to a new Fabrick.
“1674”.

And, every thing being ready, the first Stone of the present most stately and magnificent Edifice was laid by Mr. Strong, the chief Mason, on the twenty-first of June 1675; and the Work being prosecuted at the Charge of the Publick, the Cross was put up, and the Body of the Building finished in the Year 1711; whereby it appears, that the Time employed in the Construction of this noble Structure was thirty-six Years. But many Decorations, as well as necessary Works, being required to embellish and finish this magnificent Church, an Account of the Expence of the whole is brought down to the Year 1723, as will appear by a Specification thereof below.

By the best Accounts I have been able to come at, the Dimensions of this Cathedral Church are as follow:

“The grand Cathedral of St. Paul (says an ingenious Writer) is undoubtedly one of the most magnificent modern Buildings in Europe; all the Parts of which it is composed are superlatively beautiful and noble; the North and South Fronts in particular are very perfect Pieces of Architecture, neither ought the East to go without due Applause. The two Spires at the West End are in a finished Taste; and the Portico with the Ascent, and the Dome that rises in the Center of the whole, afford a very august and surprizing Prospect.”

“The Parts (says a judicious Traveller) of the Front of that most admirable Fabrick of St. Peter's in Rome are certainly very beautiful, grand, and noble, the Pillars being nine Feet in Diameter; but the whole is terminated by a straight Line at Top, which (without any Prejudice in favour of my own Country) I cannot think has so good an Effect as the agreeable Variety, which is given by the Turrets at each End, and the Pediment rising in the Middle of the Front of St. Paul's.”

This Cathedral, with its spacious Cemetery, was encompassed with a Wall by Richard Bishop of London, about the Year 1109, which, from the North-East Corner of Ave-Mary-lane, extended Eastward along Pater-noster-row, to the North End of the Old Exchange in Cheapside; whence it ran Southwards to Carter-lane, and passing on the North Side thereof to Creed-lane, it turned up to its great Western Gateway in Ludgate-street.

granted to Sir William le Baud twenty-two Acres of Land, for enlarging his Park at Westlee in Essex, he, in Consideration thereof, in the Year 1725, covenanted with the said Dean and Canons, to give them annually a fat Doe, on the Day of St. Paul's Conversion, and a fat Buck on the Commemoration Day of that Saint. On which Days, the Dean and Chapter, in their Pontificali-bus, with Garlands of Flowers on their Heads, in a solemn Procession, were to receive the said Doe and Buck at the Foot of the Steps leading to the Quire; whence Baud, or his Servants who brought the same, (received a Fee of one Shilling) proceeded to the High Altar, where having offered them, they were divided amongst the Residentiaries; and the Buck's Horns being carried on the Top of a Spear in Procession round the Inside of the Church, they were attended by a noisy Concert of Horns.

Stow. Sur.

The above-mentioned Wall it seems falling to decay, the Church-yard became as it were the Receptacle for Whores and Thieves, who committed numerous Robberies and other nocturnal Villanies therein; wherefore the Dean and Canons, by a Grant from Edward II. Anno 1317, fortified the same in such a manner, as effectually put a Stop to those wicked Practices.

This spacious Inclosure contained, at the North-West Corner of the Church-yard, the Episcopal Palace; contiguous to which, on the East, was a Cemetery, denominated Pardon Church Haw, wherein Gilbert Becket, Sheriff of London in the Time of King Stephen, erected a Chapel. This Chapel, Thomas More, Dean of St. Paul's, not only rebuilt, in the Reign of Henry V. but likewise encompassed the same with a stately Cloister; in the lower Part of which was curiously depicted the Dance of Death, who, in a dancing Posture handed all Degrees of Men into Eternity.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

Over the East Side of the said Cloister was a handsome Library, founded by Walter Shiryngton, Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaster; and the Sepulchral Monuments below excelled all those in the Cathedral, both in Number and Magnificence.

Ibid.

Between this Cloister on the West, the College of Petty Canons on the North, and Canon-alley on the East, stood a Chapel, founded in the Time of Henry VI. by the aforesaid Walter Shiryngton, for two Chantry Priests. And adjoining to Canon-alley, in the East, stood a Chapel, called the Charnel, so denominated from the Repository of Human Bones underneath, wherein, according to my Author, were deposited above one thousand Cart Loads of the said Bones, as appeared at their carrying from thence to Finsbury Fields, Anno 1549, where they were laid in a Moorish Soil; and the same being covered with a Laystall, formed a considerable Mount, since denominated Windmill-hill, from the erecting of divers Windmills thereon.

Ibid.

A little East from Canon-alley, about the Middle of the Church-yard, was situate a Pulpit-cross, where Sermons were Weekly preached, and at which Cross were held the Falkmote, or General Convention of the Citizens. See Page 50.

Ibid.

Contiguous to this Steeple, on the South, stood St. Paul's School, where the present is now situate. And on the South Side of the Cathedral, almost opposite St. Paul's Chain, was seated the stately Chapter-house, and a handsome Cloister, which in the Year 1332 were erected in the Dean and Chapter's Garden, and on the Site of the old Chapter-house.

Ibid.

A little to the West of the said Chapter-house, adjoining to the South-West Angle of St. Paul's Cathedral, was situate the Parish-Church of St. Gregory; and to the South-West of the same, stood the Dean's-house; and on the West Side thereof were divers spacious Houses for the Use of the Residentiaries.

The West End of the Church-yard was made use of in a military Manner, by the Citizens repairing to their Standard therein, as often as summoned by their Banner-bearer, the Lord Fitz-Walter.

There were six Gates in the Wall: The Western and principal whereof was situate near the Ends of Creed and Ave-Mary-lanes in Ludgate-street. The second was that at Paul's-alley in Pater-noster-row, which led to the Postern Gate of the Church. The third, at Canon-alley, led from the North Gate of the Cathedral to Pater-noster-row. The fourth, denominated the Little Gate, was situate where at present the Street leads out of St. Paul's Church-yard into Cheapside. The fifth, called St. Austin's, led to Watling-street; and the sixth fronted the South Gate of the Church, near St. Paul's Chain.

The Fence of the Church-yard is a dwarf Stone Wall, of an irregular Height (occasioned by a Declivity of the Ground) from two Feet six Inches, to about four Feet; on which is placed the most magnificent Iron Ballustrade, perhaps, in the Universe; and the same being of the Height of five Feet six Inches, it makes the Altitude of both eight Feet, where lowest.

In this stately Enclosure are seven beautiful Iron Gates, which, together with the Banisters, weigh two hundred Tons and eighty-one Pounds, which having cost six Pence per Pound, the whole, with other Charges, amounted to the Sum of eleven thousand two hundred and two Pounds and six Pence.

Within this stately Fence is situate the magnificent Cathedral Church; at the West End whereof is a curious Marble Statue of Queen Anne, which is surrounded with four beautiful Figures, representing Great Britain, France, Ireland and America. The North-East Part of the Church-yard is conferred by the Dean and Chapter upon the Inhabitants of St. Faith's Parish, for the Interment of their Dead; as is also the South-East Part of the Cemetery, with a Vault therein, granted to St. Gregory's Parish, for the Burial of their Dead.

In the Year 1675, divers Labourers, in digging at the North-East Corner of the late Cathedral for Foundation for the present, they dug in some Places twenty-five and in others thirty Feet deep, before they reached the Virgin Earth. About six Feet below the Surface of the Ground, a Layer of Corps were interred, and five Feet lower another, the latter whereof my Author supposes to have been the first buried in that Ground, after it became customary to bury in Church-yards, in the Time of the Saxons: Whence 'tis manifest, that the former were buried in the new raised Ground after rebuilding the Cathedral by Maurice and Beaumeis, Bishops of London. And at the Depth of twelve Feet lower was discovered a Layer of Rubbish, consisting of Chalk and Hewings of Stones, thought to have been the remaining Refuse after rebuilding the Church by Erkenwald, the fourth Bishop from Mellitus.

Below these Pavements, as the Earth changed its Colour, and became of a Yellowish Dye, were discovered a great Quantity of Roman Potshards, found and of a beautiful Red, much resembling that of Sealing-Wax; on the Bottoms of some of which were Inscriptions, denoting them to have been drinking Vessels; and on others, representing our modern Sallet Dishes, beautifully made and curiously wrought, was the Inscription, Dz. PRIMANI. And on others, those of PARICI. QVINTIMANI. VICTOR. IANUS. RECINIO, &c. Together with divers Brass Coins, which, by their long Continuance in the Earth, were become a Prey to devouring Time. And one of which, tho' of a finer, whiter and harder Metal than that of Bells, was almost eat up by the corroding nitrous Salt; but those that happened to lie in a more generous Soil, were so much preserved as to discover in whose Reigns they were coined: On one of which was an Adrian's Head, with a Galley under Oars on the Reverse. And on others, the Heads of Romulus and Rhemus, Claudius and Constantine.

Ibid. The Pots and divers Glass Vessels were of a Murrey Colour; others, resembling Urns, were beautifully embellished on the Outsides with raised Work, representing Grey-hounds, Stags, Hares and Rose Trees. Others, of a Cinnamon Colour and Form of an Urn, tho' a little faded, appeared as if they had been gilt. Some, resembling Jugs of an obsolete Make, formed an Hexagon; curiously indented and adorned with a Variety of Figures, in Basso Relievo. Many appeared like Black Earthen Pudding-Pans, indented and crossed quincunx Fashion.

Ibid. The Red Vessels appeared to have been the most honourable, for on them were inscribed the Names of their Deities, Heroes and Judges; and the Matter whereof these Vessels were made, was of such an excellent Composition, as to vye with polished Metal in Beauty.

Ibid. These curious Antiquities were found at the Depth of twenty Feet, in Holes, filled with the Refuse of coarse Gravel and Potshards, which makes me believe they were antiently Roman Gravel-pits. Besides, near the same Place, at the Depth of fifteen Feet, were discovered a Number of Lapilli or Tesselle of various Sorts of Marble, viz. Egyptian, Porphyry, Jasper, &c. in the Form of Dice, which were used by the Romans in paving the Prætorium, or General's Tent.

In the same Place were also found divers Glass Beads or Rings of various Colours, fit for the Little Finger, with a Number of large Pins of Ivory and Bone, some with Heads stuck on like our modern Pins, and others screwed; together with many Pieces of Bucks Horns, sawn asunder, and many Tusks of Wild-Boars; which in some measure corroborates the Opinion, that here antiently stood a Pagan Roman Temple.

Our Antiquary is of Opinion, that the great Destruction of these Vessels and Utensils must have happened at the Sacking of London; if so, I am of Opinion, that must have been when the British Heroine Boadicea plundered and burnt this City in the Year sixty-three.

To what has been said of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, I shall subjoin a compendious Account of the several Sums of Money received and paid, as well for and towards repairing the said Church, from the Restoration of King Charles II. in the Year 1660, to the Fire of London, Anno 1666, as for and towards the rebuilding thereof after the said Fire; with other necessary Works and Expences done and disbursed, in order to the Beginning of the said Work of Rebuilding.
No. 99.

Receipts.

Received by King Charles II.'s Gifts of Ar-rears of Improvements, by Fines, and Forfeitures upon Green Wax, by Commutation upon Penances, by Gifts, Legacies and Subscriptions of the Nobility, Gentry and Clergy by King Charles II.'s Letters Patent, by old Materials, and by other Casualties, from the first of August, Anno 1663, to the End of the Year 1722; 68341 l. 14 s. 1 d. $\frac{1}{2}$.

By an Imposition upon Coals by Act of Parliament, at four Pence Half-penny the Chalder, which commenced the first of May, Anno 1670, and expired at Michaelmas in the Year 1687, 84355 l.

By an Imposition upon Coals by Act of Parliament, at one Shilling and six Pence the Chalder, which commenced at Michaelmas, Anno 1687, and expired at Michaelmas in the Year 1700, 247674 l. 17 s. 4 d.

By Money borrowed on the Credit of the Eighteen Penny Act, 62100 l.

By an Imposition upon Coals, by Act of Parliament, at one Shilling the Chalder, which commenced at Michaelmas, Anno 1700, and expired at Michaelmas in the Year 1716, 183990 l. 3 s. 1 d.

By an Imposition upon Coals, by Act of Parliament, at two Shillings the Chalder, which commenced 15 May, Anno 1708, and expired 15 May in the Year 1716, 294161 l. 17 s. 9 d.

By Money borrowed on the Credit of the Twelve Penny Act, and Interest upon Exchequer Bills, 29562 l. 5 s. 8 d. $\frac{1}{4}$.

By Money borrowed on the Credit of the Two Shilling Act, 197290 l.

Sum Total 1167474 l. 17 s. 11 d. $\frac{1}{4}$.

Disbursements.

Paid for Work, Materials, Salaries and Incidents, including the Repairs of the Church before the Fire of London, repairing the West End after the said Fire, which succeeded not, but fell down, the Walls and Pillars being perished by the Fire, refining one hundred and ninety-four Tons of Lead, out of the Rubbish, repairing the old Convocation-house, building Offices, making Designs and Models, taking down the great and ruinous Tower, and the Walls and Pillars of the Church, and maintaining the Ways and Cranes in the Isle of Portland, removing the Materials and clearing the Ground in order to lay a new Foundation, 740247 l. 15 s. 1 d.

To Interest paid for Money, borrowed on the Credit of the Eighteen Penny Act, 10935 l. 16 s. 10 d.

To Money paid off, borrowed on the Credit of the Twelve Penny Act, 48750 l. 0 s. 0 d.

To Money paid off, borrowed on the Credit of the Two Shilling Act, 196290 l. 0 s. 0 d.

To Interest paid for Money, borrowed on the Credit of the Twelve Penny Act, 21026 l. 19 s. 6 d.

To Interest paid for Money, borrowed on the Credit of the Two Shilling Act, including the Interest paid to the Bishop, Dean and Chapter, Minor Canons and Almoner, for the Purchase-Money of the demolished Houses, 51782 l. 2 s. 5 d. $\frac{1}{2}$

To Money for the Purchase of Houses to be demolished, 14808 l. 3 s. 10 d.

To Balance remaining in Cash, 49384 l. 0 s. 3 d. $\frac{1}{4}$

Sum Total 1167474 l. 17 s. 11 d. $\frac{3}{4}$

Since the adjusting of the above Account, about 11000 l. has been expended in additional Embellishments to this Cathedral, which makes the whole Sum amount to 751247 l. 15 s. 1 d. But from the Year 1660, to 1668, the Sum of 14495 l. 12 s. 9 d. $\frac{3}{4}$ was laid out in repairing the old Church; which being deducted from the Sum of 751247 l. 15 s. 1 d. the remaining Sum of 736752 l. 2 s. 3 d. $\frac{1}{4}$ will appear to be the whole Expence that the present stately and magnificent Cathedral Church cost in building.

"Upon all which Boundary Houses, the Broad Arrow, the Royal Mark, has, by his Majesty's special Command, been affix'd ever since their Erection."

St. PETER's Cheap.

Newc. Repert. Ecclef. Paroch.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood at the South-west Corner of Wood-street, in the Ward of Farringdon-within; but of what Antiquity I know not, other than that Thomas de Winton was Rector thereof in the Year 1324. However, it is denominated from its Dedication to St. Peter the Apostle, and its Vicinity to Cheap-side:

Yet in Records it is frequently called Ecclesia S. Petri de Wood-street, as it is also S. Petri de West-chepin.

The Patronage of this Church was anciently in the Abbot and Convent of St. Alban's; with whom it continued till the Suppression of their Monastery, when Henry the Eighth, in the Year 1546, granted the same to the Earl of Southampton; at present it is in the Duke of Montague, but subject to the Archdeacon.

This Church being destroyed in the Fire of 1666, and not rebuilt, the Parish is united to the Church of St. Mathew, Friday-street, where I have given an Account of the Profits and Disbursements of the Cure; and shall now proceed to those of the Parish, in respect to the Church and Poor:

At the End of Wood-street, in Cheap-side, stood a great Cross, erected in the Year 1290.

In the Year 1401, Licence was granted to the Inhabitants of this Parish to erect a Shed or Shop before their Church in Cheap-side. On the Scite of this Building, anciently called the Long-Shop, are now erected four Shops, with Rooms over them. See Farringdon Ward within.

Ibid.

St. PETER's, Cornhill.

This Church is a Rectory, situate near the South-east Corner of Cornhill, in the Ward of that Name, and is so denominated from its Dedication to St. Peter, and its Vicinity to a Corn-Market anciently held in this Neighbourhood.

The Patronage of this Rectory appears to have been anciently in a Family of the Nevil's; for the Lady Alice, Relict of Sir Hugh Nevil, in the Year 1362, made a Feoffment thereof to Richard Earl of Arundel and Surrey; and passing through divers Hands since, it was in the Year 1411 conveyed, by Richard Whittington and others, to the Lord-Mayor and Commonalty of this City, in whom the Right of Advowson still remains, but subject to the Archdeacon.

Newc. Rep. Ecc. Paroch.

This Church sharing the common Fate in the great Conflagration Anno 1666, it is handsomely rebuilt, and not having a Parish annexed to it, it remains in all respects upon the ancient Foot, other than, instead of uncertain Tithes, a certain Stipend is by Parliament settled upon the Incumbent; which, together with the other Profits and Disbursements of the Cure, are as follow:

Monumental Inscription.

Mund. Ed.
Stow. Sur. In the Yeere of Jesus Christ's Incarnation
One thousand Five hundred Forty and Foure,
The Twenty-second Day of April by just Computation,

In this Place was buried with great Honour,
Which prov'd a Man meet to bee a Governour
For the Commonwealth of this high and famous Citie:

Called Sir William Bowyer, Lord of the Maioralty,
Which departed not with finding great Calamity:
And pray wee to God to grant his Soule Mercy.
O London, if thou looke to the Lacedemonies,
There to find Lycurgus, that noble and kinde
King,

Or if thou seeke for Ciceroes, Men most of Prize;
Or if thou apply thee to have all the whole Desiring
Of Amphion, Orpheus, or of Mecenas, demeaning;
Seeke no further to find, for here is buried,
Which had all their Properties for London's good Ordering.

Bee wee then of this honourable Degree well conceiving,
For his Acts for ever be registred in London's Meaning.

Here under lieth buried William Messe, of this Citie,
Whilst he lived, free of the Grocers Company;
And Julian, his Wife, to whom 24 Yeeres married was he,

By whom God sent him Five Sonnes and Daughters
Three.

And to God's Will his Heart was alwaies bent,
So did his Death shew a Life well spent.

Here this is written that others may remember
His godly Departure from this World, the 26th of September.

two Church-wardens; two Overseers of the Poor; one hundred and ninety Houses. Augmentation

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

In this Church hangs a Table, with the following Inscription:

"Be hit known to all Men, that the Yeerys of our Lord God, An. CLXXIX. Lucius, the fyrst Christen King of this Lond, then callyd Brytayne, fowndyd the fyrst Chyrch in London, that is to sey, the Chyrch of Sent Peter upon Corn-hyl; and he fowndyd ther an Archbishop's See, and made that Chirch the Metropolitan and cheef Chirch of this Kindom, and so enduryd the Space of CCCC. Yeerys and more, unto the Commyng of Sent Austen, an Apostyl of England, the whych was sent into the Lond by Sent Gregory, the Doctor of the Chirch, in the Tyme of King Ethelbert, and then was the Archbishoppys
See and Pol removyd from the aforeseyd Chirch of Sent Peter's upon Cornhyl unto Derebernaum, that now ys callyd Canterbury, and ther yt remeynyth to this Dey."

"And Millet Monk, whych came into this Lond wyth Sent Austen, was made the fyrst Bishop of London, and hys See was made in Powellys Chyrch.
And this Lucius, Kyng, was the fyrst Foundyr of Peter's Chyrch upon Cornhyl; and he regnyd King in thys Ilond after Brut, MCCXLV. Yeerys.
And the Yeerys of our Lord God a CXXIV. Lucius was crownyd Kyng, and the Yeerys of hys Reygne LXXVII Yeerys, and he was beryd aftyr sum Cronekil at London, and aftyr sum Cronekil he was beryd at Glowcester, at that Plase wher the Ordyr of Sent Francys standyth."

Could this Inscription be depended upon, it would plainly demonstrate, that this Church was the first Christian Temple erected in Britain; as it is manifest, by Bede, that there was no Christian Church in London at the Arrival of Mellitus; for Ethelbert, as an Encouragement for him to proceed in the Work of Conversion, erected a Church in this City for the Accommodation of him and his Profelytes, and dedicated the same to St. Paul.
I think it is not to be doubted that this, and all the other ancient Churches in London, owe their Origin to the Saxons, Danes and Normans, and not to the Britons.

The first authentic Account I find of this Church, is, that William Kingston, before the Year 1298, gave to it his Tenement in Grass-street, called the Horse Mill: And that anciently belong'd to the same, a publick Library well furnished with Books; which being disposed of in a private Manner, the Building was converted into a Schoolhouse for the Education of Youth.

Under the corner House of Leadenhall and Bishopsgate Streets, and two Houses on the East, and one on the North Side thereof, was situate a very ancient Church of Gotbick Construction, the principal Part of which is still remaining under the said corner House and the two adjoining in Leadenhall-street; but Part of the North Isle, beneath the House contiguous in Bishopsgate-street, was lately obliged to make way to enlarge the Cellar.

When or by whom this old Church was founded I cannot learn, it not being so much as mention'd by any of our Historians or Surveyors of London, that I can discover: However, the Inside of it appears of the Length of forty Feet, and the Breadth of twenty-six and one Inch; the former whereof consists of four Arches, and the latter of two Isles, that towards the South being of the Breadth of nine Feet three Inches, and that on the North sixteen Feet, which shews the small Pillars to be only ten Inches in Diameter.

The Roof of this ancient Structure, which is a flattish Gothick Arch, is at present only ten Feet nine Inches above the present Floor; wherefore I am of Opinion, that this Church originally was not above the Height of seventeen Feet within; which, together with three Feet, the Thickness of the Arch, as lately discovered by a Perforation, shews that the Ground is very much raised in this Neighbourhood.

The Walls of this Church being so much decay'd, and patch'd with Brick-work, I could discover neither Door or Window therein; however, the Entrance to the chief Part thereof, (A.D. 1738) is at Mr. Jones's, a Distiller, opposite Leadenhall-Gate.

At the Distance of twelve Feet from this Church, Northward, is to be seen, under the House late Mr. Macadams, a Peruke-maker, in Bishopsgate-street, a Stone Building of the Length of thirty Feet, Breadth of fourteen, and Altitude of eight Feet six Inches above the present Floor, with a Door in the North Side, and a Window in the East End, as there probably was one in the West. It is covered with a semi-circular Arch, built with small Pieces of Chalk in the Form of Bricks, and ribb'd with Stone, resembling those of the Arches of a Bridge. What this Edifice at first was appropriated to is very uncertain, though, by the manner of its Construction, it seems to have been a Chapel: But the Ground being since raised on all Sides, it was probably converted into a subterraneous Repository for Merchandize; for a Pair of Stone Stairs, with a descending Arch over them, seems to have been erected since the Fabrick was built. See Cornhill Ward.

St. PETER Le Poor.

This is a Rectory Church, seated on the West Side of Broad-street in the Ward of that Name, but in respect to its Origin, I am at a great Loss; but that it is of an ancient Foundation, is manifest from the State thereof in the Year 1181. Its Name, like those of the same Appellation, it has from its Dedication to St. Peter, and the additional Epithet of Le Poor from the mean Condition (as is supposed) of the Parish in ancient Times: If so, that Epithet may at present be justly chang'd to that of Rich, because of the great Number of Merchants and other Persons of Distinction inhabiting there.

The Advowson of this Church appears to have been all along in the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's; but in Ecclesiastical Affairs it is subject to the Archdeacon, save as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

This Church escaping the great Fire of 1666, it remains in all Respects upon the ancient Foot in Epitaphium.

So fraile and brittle is the Life of Man,
That who lives longest, liveth but a Span;
In Youth and Age all dye, God hath so doom'd,
That Earth returns to Earth to be intomb'd.
Wadson, who of that Substance was compos'd,
Lies in his Mother Center here inclos'd;
A Sheet doth hide his Face, but not his Fame,
The Grave contains his Corps, not his good Name:
For his good Name outlives (O blessed Man)
When others good Names dye before they can.
The Sixt of January (that fatal Day)
Sixteene hundred Twenty-foure, he did pay
The Debt to Nature, which all Men doe know,
He was no sooner born but he did owe.
If Vertues could have staid the Hand of Death,
Then Wadson still had drawne his vitall Breath.
His Soule above, his Worth doe here remaine,
Till Christ shall come to raise him up againe.

Newc. Rep rt. Ecclef. Paroch. This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood at the South-east Corner of St. Peter's-bill in Thames-street, and Ward of Queenhithe, but of what Antiquity is unknown; its antient Foundation is manifest from the State thereof in the Year 1181. Its Name, like the above-mention'd, it owes to its Dedication to St. Peter, and the additional Epithet to its Neighbourhood to St. Paul's Wharf. Anciently it was denominated St. Peter's Parva, or the Little, from the Smallness of its Dimensions.

Ibid. The Patronage of this Rectory appears to have been all along in the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's; but in Ecclesiastical Matters 'tis subject to the Archdeacon, other than what relates to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

A& Parl. 22 & 23 Car. II. This Church being destroyed in the great Conflagration of 1666, and the same not rebuilt, the Parish is annexed to the Church of St. Bennet, Paul's Wharf; where having accounted for the Incumbent's Profits and Disbursements on Account of the Cure, I shall now subjoin the Parochial Receipts and Payments in respect to the Church and Poor.

St. SEPULCHRE's, the City Liberty.

This Church is a Vicarage, situate on the North Side of Snow-hill, in the Ward of Farringdon without; but when or by whom founded is unknown. That it is of great Antiquity, is apparent, by Roger Bishop of Salisbury's giving the same, with its Appurtenances, (about the Beginning of the twelfth Century) to the Prior and Canons of St. Bartholomew in Smithfield, as appears by a Charter of Confirmation of Henry the Third, dated at Winchester 15 June 1253. Its Name it owes to its being dedicated in Commemoration of Christ's Sepulchre at Jerusalem, and was anciently called St. Sepulchre's in the Bailey, or by Chamberlain Gate, now Newgate. Dugd. Mon. Ang.

By Virtue of the above-mentioned Gift of this Church, the Prior and Convent aforesaid became Patrons thereof, and in whom the Right of Advowson continued till the Dissolution of their Monastery; when coming to the Crown, it continu'd therein, till James the First, Anno 1610, granted the Rectory and its Appurtenances, with the Advowson of the Vicarage, to Francis Philips, and others; after which the Rectory, with its Appurtenances, were purchased by the Parishioners to be held in Fee-Farm of the Crown; while the Advowson thereof was obtained by the President and Fellows of St. John Baptist's College in Oxford, in whom the Patronage still continues: But in Affairs Ecclesiastical it is subject to the Archdeacon, except as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary. Newc. Rep. Eccl. Paroch.

Though this Church was not destroyed by the great Conflagration of 1666, it was yet greatly damaged; however it being repaired again, no Alteration has happened in that Respect, other than, in lieu of uncertain Tithes, a certain Stipend is settled by Parliament on the Vicar; which, together with the other Profits and Disbursements of the Cure, are as follow: A& Parl. 22 & 23 Car. St. S T E P H E N's, Coleman-street.

This Church is a Rectory, seated on the West Side of Coleman-street, in the Ward of that Name. It is of great Antiquity, as is manifest, from its having antiently belonged to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, who granted the Church of St. Olave's Jewry, together with this, then a Chapel and an Appendage of the same, to the Prior and Abbot of Butley in Sussex, between the Years 1171, and 1181.

Newc.
Rep. Eccl.
Paroch.

Some Time after, the said Dean and Chapter made a new Grant of the Church of St. Olave, and this Chapel as an Appendage thereof, to the Prior and Convent aforesaid; which was confirmed by Stephen Bishop of London in the Year 1322, and the Year after ratified by the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's; after which it continued annexed to St. Olave's, till it was made Parochial; except in the Years 1436, and 1451, at each of which Times a Clerk was admitted Vicar thereof, without ever mentioning its Dependence upon St. Olave's; but that was owing to the King's Collating thereto, to whom the Right of Presentation had devolved, by its being appropriated to Butley, without his Licence.

The said Chapel was made parochial in the thirty-fifth of Henry VI. Anno 1456, when Thomas, Bishop of London, convened before him the Prior and Canons of Butley, as Patrons of this Chapel, and the People who belonged to the same, (between whom divers Contests had happened) together with the Vicar of St. Olave's, when the Bishop, by Consent of all Parties, constituted the said Chapel a Parish-Church, instituted a Vicarage, and endowed the same; and out of the Profits arising thereby, appointed the Prior and Canons aforesaid, annually to pay the Vicar and his Successors, the Sum of eleven Pounds: But in case of Non-residence, without immediate Licence from the Bishop, they were to pay him only ten Pounds per Annum.

Ibid.

Ibid.

It continued in the Convent of Butley till their Suppression, when it came to the Crown. But Queen Elizabeth, in the Year 1577, granted the same, together with the Church and Rectory, to Thomas Paskin and others; and some Time after, (Anno 1590) to William Daniel, Serjeant at Law, and other Parishioners; which Rectory impropriate, and Right of Advowson, have been held by the Parish in Fee-farm of the Crown ever since.

This Church sharing the common Fate in the great Conflagration, 'tis again rebuilt in a handsome Manner; but without any other Alteration, than fixing a certain Stipend upon the Vicar, to his great Advantage; which, with his other Profits and Disbursements on Account of the Cure, are as follow:

This Church is a Rectory, ſituate on the Eaſt

the earlieſt Account I find of it is, that before the Year 1135, in the Reign of Henry I. it was by Eudo, Sewer to the ſaid King; which ſhews it to be of an antient Date. The Church of

This Church is a Rectory, situate at the South-West Angle of St. Swithin's-lane, in Canon-street, and Ward of Walbrook. Tho' I cannot ascertain the Origin of the Church of this Parish, yet that it is of some Antiquity, is manifest by Robert de Galdeford's being Rector thereof before the Year 1331. However, it is denominated from its being dedicated to St. Swithin, an English Saxon, and Bishop of Winchester, Ann. 834.

The Advowson of this Church appears to have been antiently in the Prior and Convent of Torington, in the Diocess of Chichester, in whom it continued till the Dissolution of their Monastery; when coming to the Crown, Henry VIII. Anno 1540, granted the same, together with a stately Mansion on the North Side thereof, to John Earl of Oxford; and in the Year 1573, Queen Elizabeth regranted or confirmed the same to Edward Earl of Oxford; who soon after disposing of the same, it passed thro' several Hands, till purchased by the Company of *Salter*s, in whom it still remains, but subject to the Archdeacon in Ecclesiastical Matters, other than as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

The TEMPLE Church.

The Districts or Liberties belonging to this Church are Extra-parochial.

King

King James I. By his Letters Patents, dated the 13th of August, 1608, granted the Temple, by the Name of Auspicia & Capitalia Messuagia, cognita per Nomen de le Inner, & le Middle Temple, five Novi Templi London, unto Sir Julius Caesar, Sir Henry Mountague, and others, their Heirs and Assigns for ever, for Lodging, Reception and Education of the Professors and Students of the Laws of this Kingdom, paying to the King and his Successors, for the said Mansions, Gardens and Appurtenances, a Quit-Rent of ten Pounds per Annum, by each of the Societies of the Inner and Middle Temples.

These Temples, though united in Spirituals, have their secular Governments separate; and as the Names of both Houses imply a third, called the Outer Temple, it is said to have stood where Devereux-court and Essex-street are at present situate. See Farringdon Ward without, and Page 967, &c. Vol. II.

In the Treasury Chamber of the Middle Temple is preserved a great Quantity of Armour, which belonged to the Knight Templars, consisting of Head, Breast and Back Pieces, together with divers Pikes, a Halbard, and two very beautiful circular Iron Shields, with Iron Spikes in their Centers, of the Length of six Inches; these Targets are twenty-five Inches in Diameter, and in Weight about twenty Pounds each; they are curiously engraved, and one of them richly inlaid with Gold; the Insides are lined with Leather, stuffed, and the Edges embellished with Silken Fringes; and for the Convenience of Carriage, broad Leathern Belts are fixed thereto, to sling them upon the Shoulders of the Bearers.

St. THOMAS Apostle's.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church whereof stood where now the Cemetery is in Queen-street, in the Ward of Vintry; it was of great Antiquity, as is manifest by the State thereof in the Year 1181. Its Name it owes to its Dedication to St. Thomas the Apostle; and the Patronage thereof appears to have been all along in the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, but subject to the Archdeacon.

This Church being destroyed in the late Fire, and not rebuilt, the Parish is united to the Church of St. Mary Aldermary, which is become the Place of publick Worship for both, whereby the Incumbent's Profits are considerably increased; which, together with the Disbursements of the Cure, I have inserted in the Account of St. Mary Aldermary's Parish: I shall therefore proceed to the Parochial Disbursements in respect to Church and Poor:

TRINITY the Lefs.

This Parish is a Rectory, the Church of which was seated at the North-east Corner of Little Trinity-lane, where at present a German Chapel, denominated the Swedish Church, is situate, in the Ward of Queenhithe; but as to its Antiquity, I can trace it no farther, than that it had Thomas Marshall for its Rector Anno 1407. However, it is denominated from its being dedicated to the Trinity; and the Epithet of Lefs, to distinguish it from the Trinity Priory at Aldgate.

In Trinity-lane anciently stood a magnificent Edifice belonging to the Earl of Cornwall.

This Church, as already observed, being destroyed in the late dreadful Fire, divers German Merchants purchased the Site thereof, in order to erect a Church thereon, for the Celebration of the Divine Offices, according to the Augustan Confession, or Lutheran Religion. See Queenhithe Ward.

TRINITY in the Minories.

This Church is a Curacy, situate in the Little Minories, and Ward of Portspoken; in the Place where anciently stood an Abbey of Nuns, of the Order of St. Clare, called the Minorettes; which was founded by Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, Brother to Edward the First, in the Year 1293, but the same being suppressed Anno 1539, a Number of Houses was erected on the Site thereof; for the Inhabitants of which a small Church was built for the Celebration of the Divine Offices; and the same being dedicated to the Trinity, it thereby received its present Appellation, and the additional Epithet of Minories, from the Monastery aforesaid.

The Patronage of this Church has been all along in the Crown, but in Subjection to the Archbishop; but as it is a Curacy, it pays neither First-fruits nor Tenths, nor other Disbursement on account of the Cure, except Procuration to the Archdeacon 2 s. 6 d. Nor in Truth can the Curate afford to pay any great Matter, seeing his Income is so very small, that it is said only to amount to a Subscription of twenty-five Pounds per Annum, beside Surplice Fees.

Officers, &c. in this Parish.

The Vestry is general; two Church-wardens; one Overseer of the Poor; one Constable; one Headborough; one Scavenger, who paid the Raker for cleansing the Streets, and carrying away the Ashes, for one Year, the Sum of fourteen Pounds; one Beadle; three Watchmen; one hundred and twenty-nine Houses.

St. VEDAST, alias Foster's,

This Church, which is a Rectory, situate on the East Side of Foster-lane, in the Ward of Farringdon within, is denominated from its being dedicated to St. Vedast, Bishop of Arras, in the Province of Artois; and the additional Appellation, either from the Place of its Situation, or the Founder, or Rebuilder of the same. The first Time I find it mentioned in History, is, that Walter de London was presented thereto in the Year 1308.

The Patronage of this Church was anciently in, and continued with the Prior, and Convent of Canterbury, till the Year 1352, when coming to the Archbishop of that See, it has been in him and his Successors ever since; and is one of the thirteen Peculiars in this City, belonging to that Archiepiscopal See.

This Church, though not intirely destroyed by the great Conflagration Anno 1666, it was however made a Prey of so far, as to have nothing left standing but the Walls; which being some time after repaired, the crazy Steeple continued standing till the Year 1694, when it was taken down, and beautifully rebuilt at the Charge of the united Parishes, and such Benefactions as were sent them.

To this Parish that of St. Michael Quern being united, the Incumbent's Profits are hereby greatly increased; which, together with his Disbursements on account of the Cure, are as follow:

Mund.Ed. Stow. Sur. Here lyeth interred the Body of Christopher Wase, late Citizen and Goldsmith of London, aged 66 Yeeres, and dyed the 22d of September 1605;
who had to Wife Anne, the Daughter of William Prettyman, and had by her Three Sons and Three Daughters.

Reader, stay, and thou shalt know
What he is, that here doth sleepe:
Lodg'd amidst the Stones below,
Stones that oft are seen to weepe.
Gentile was his Birth and Breed,
His Carriage gentle, much contenting:
His Word accorded with his Deed,
Sweete his Nature, soone relenting.
From above he seem'd protected;
Father dead before his Birth;
An Orphane only, but neglected;
Yet his Branches spread on Earth,
Earth that must his Bones containe,
Sleeping, till Christ's Trumpe shall wake them,
Joyning them to Soule againe,
And to Blisse eternal take them.
It is not this rude and little Heap of Stones,
Can hold the Fame, although 't contains the Bones.
Light be the Earth, and hallow'd for thy Sake,
Resting in Peace, Peace that so oft didst make.

Ibid. Under this Stone, right against the Monument, lye buried the Bodies of Robert Marsh, Citizen and Grocer of London, and Florence, his first Wife, by whom he had Issue Seven Sonnes. By Elizabeth, his second Wife, (left living) he had Issue
Three Sonnes and a Daughter. He departed this Life the 7th Day of October, Ann. Dom. 1602, after he had liv'd 65 Yeeres and 3 Days.

Ibid. Here under lyeth buried the Body of Mistris
Martha Prescot, the Wife of Alexander Prescot,

Citizen and Alderman of London, whose Soule the Lord took to his Mercy the 26th Day of Novemb. 1616, when she had lived a married Wife just 23 Yeeres that Day; and 40 Yeeres, 2 Mo-neths, 3 Weekes, and odde Dayes, from the Time of her Birth. She had Issue by her said Husband 6 Sonnes and 5 Daughters; and her youngest of all, being a Daughter, named Elizabeth, lyeth here under interred in the same Grave, on the same Day of Burial with her said Mother.

Act Com.
Council.

The Sum appointed by an Act of Common Council, to be yearly raised within the City and Liberties thereof, for paying the Beadles and Watchmen, amounts to the Sum of ten thousand seven hundred and eighty-three Pounds seventeen Shillings.

To the above-mentioned Number of Lamps, 102 being added for the Parishes of St. Bartholomew the Great and Leffs, St. James's Duke's Place, St. Martin's le Grand, and St. Paul's Church-yard; the Number of all the publick Lamps within the City and Liberties thereof, will be increased to five thousand and one; which at present are lighted at about forty Shillings each; the annual Expende of the whole thereby appears to amount to about ten thousand Pounds.

Besides this great Number of publick Lamps, the private ones belonging to the principal Citizens, Publick-houses, &c. must be very considerable; therefore I am of Opinion, that London at present is the best lighted and the best watched City upon Earth.

An Account of the Numbers of Officers, viz. Headboroughs, Constables, Scavengers, Beadles and Watchmen in the several Parishes, Precincts, and Liberties within the City of London and Liberty thereof, but without its Jurisdiction; with the annual Sum paid by each to the Raker.

I shall, in the next Place, insert the Numbers Total of the respective Parish-Officers; together with the Sums Total paid by them on Account of the Church and Poor, for one Year, as mentioned in the several Parishes above specified; with the Numbers Total of Dwelling and Work-houses, within the City and ancient Liberties of London, as aforesaid.

Left by the small Number of Overseers of the Poor, it should be deemed an Omission, or the Effect of Indolence, I think it necessary to acquaint the Reader, that there are no more than the under-mentioned Number, that act independent of the Church-wardens: The rest being chiefly nominal, or at best but Collectors for the Church-wardens.

These four Denominations of Proteftant Diffenters not only pay towards the Maintenance of the Parochial Incumbents, and the eftablifhed Church and Poor's Rates, but the three firft hand-fomly provide for their own Minifters, under whose Miniftry they immediately are, and likewise for thofe of their feveral Denominations in the Country, whose Congregations are not capable of fupporting them. The Money annually collected by the Presbyterians for that Ufe amounts to about 2000*l.* by the Independents about 1800*l.*
 and by the Baptifts about 700*l.*

These People likewise collect confiderable Sums of Money for their Poor, which being commonly immediately diftributed, they have no Occafion to keep an Account thereof; therefore the Sums annually beftowed cannot be known; for which Reafon I fhall moderately compute, that the Meetings of the three firft Denominations, at a Medium, collect about

13 Y

bout thirty Poundseach; which with the Sum above-mentioned, for the Use of the Country Ministers, amounts to seven thousand and ten Pounds.

And as the Quakers intirely maintain their own Poor, exclusive of Parish Help, their annual Disbursements on that Account, amount to about fifteen hundred Pounds.

The Foreign Ministers Chapels I have chosen to insert in this Place, because their Congregations are chiefly composed of British Subjects; therefore I shall put them upon the same Foot with the three Denominations aforesaid, in respect to their Collections for the Poor, whereby the Sums annually distributed by the said Meetings will appear to be four hundred and fifty Pounds, which, with the Sums already mentioned, will make the Sum Total annually raised by the said one hundred and fourteen Meetings, to amount to the Sum of eight thousand nine hundred and sixty Pounds.

Having given an Account of all our own Meetings within the City and Suburbs of London, I shall in the next Place insert an Account of those belonging to Foreigners within the Bill of Mortality.

The French Contributions for the Support of their Poor are very great, being well assured by one of the chief Managers, that the Chapels of Threadneedle and Black-eagle Streets only, raise annually for that Purpose about three thousand Pounds, which, without reckoning (tho' there are divers others very considerable) any other Sum than that yearly paid by the Government for the Support of the Poor of that Nation, they together amount to the Sum of eighteen thousand Pounds per Annum.

The Method of raising the aforesaid great Sum is by a Rate of seven hundred Pounds, which was last assessed upon two hundred and ten Persons (then the Number capable of paying from ten Shillings to fifteen Pounds;) and a Duty of two Shillings per Cent. upon all Goods and Stocks bought and sold by Foreign Commissions; which, as that People are great Dealers, amounts to a very considerable Sum; and whatever Deficiency may happen, the same is made good out of the Money arising by Offerings made on the Sabbaths, and other great Festivals.

Besides, many of the most eminent and charitable of both Sexes, in Commiseration to the Poor, have formed themselves into divers Societies for their Relief.

The first whereof, called the Orphan Society, keep twelve Boys at School, whom they annually cloath in Grey; and every other Winter give each a great Coat; and towards their Subsistence, five

five Shillings per Month. These Children are not only instructed in the Jewish Literature, but likewise to read, write and account in English; and after having been at least three Years at School, have each of them twenty Pounds given him for advancing them in the World.

The Second Society, is that called the Theological, which consists of the Chief Priest and about fifteen Assistants, who all but the first have handsome Salaries allowed them for expounding the Scriptures in a Rabbinical Manner.

The third, is the Valetudinary Society, who not only, according to the Directions of the Physicians and Surgeons, carefully administer all manner of Necessaries to the sick and impotent Poor, but are likewise at the Expence of burying all such as die under their Care.

The fourth Society, is that of Circumcision, who carefully provide Persons for Godfathers and Godmothers for poor Male Infants at their Circumcision; and whose Office it is, that instead of being Sureties for the Childrens being brought up in the Jewish Religion, they are only to vouch for their Circumcision, when controverted. To the Parents of each of these poor Infants the Society gives two Guineas. They also give to every poor adult Stranger of their Nation, coming from Spain or Portugal, at the Time of his Circumcision, one Guinea; and they likewise give to every poor Woman at her being delivered of a Male Child, the same Sum.

The fifth Society, is that for Cloathing the Naked, who annually, in Autumn, give many Suits of Apparel to the Necessitous of both Sexes.

The several Sums disbursed by the said Societies amount to above seven hundred Pounds per An.

Before I leave this People; I think 'twill not be amiss to acquaint the Reader, that they have divers Customs, which tho' they have not the Sanction, yet among themselves they have the Force of Laws; by virtue whereof, the Elders of the Synagogue (five in Number, who are annually chosen by the People) meet twice a Week, on Sundays and Wednesdays, on the first of which Days they hear and decide all Controversies among the People; for by one of the said Customs, none are permitted to commence a Process in any Court of Judicature, without the immediate Permission of the said Elders: Therefore, if any Person incurs a Breach of this or any other Custom, he is amerced in a Pecuniary Mulct of ten Pounds, or in lieu thereof, in the most publick Place of the Synagogue, in full Assembly, to ask Pardon of God and the Elders for his great Offence. But if the Offender prove refractory, he is forthwith excommunicated, and not suffered to enter the Synagogue till he has made ample Satisfaction. And if, in the Interim the Person criminal happen to die in Impenitence, he is denied Jewish Burial, till Retribution is made to the Congregation by his Executors. And on the latter of the said Days, the Elders meet to receive Petitions for admitting the Necessitous into Pension, and to relieve such as are not allowed a Competency for their Support.

The Heads of this Account I received from one of the principal Managers and chief Elders of the Synagogue, A.D. 1737.

The Management of the German Jews, both in Respect to their Synagogues and Poor, is so miserably bad, that none were capable of giving a tolerable Account thereof, tho' applied to in my Behalf, by one of the most Eminent of their Brethren. However, I was told by some of those principally concerned, that the Poor stands them in above a thousand Pounds per Annum.

By the above specified Accounts of Meeting-houses, both Domestick and Foreign, the Sum Total annually expended by the same for the Support of their Poor appears to amount to the Sum of thirty-one thousand two hundred and forty Pounds.

BOOK IV.

Containing the Civil, Ecclesiastical, and Military Government.

CHAP. I.

An Account of the Civil Government, by Portreeves, Bailiffs and Mayors; with a List of the latter.

WHAT Manner of Government London had, immediately after its Foundation by the Romans, is unknown; because of the great Uncertainty of its antient State. See Book I. Chapter I. Page 11.

However, as Bishop Stillingfleet is of Opinion, that London originally was a mixed Colony, which, by the great Confluence of People, was in the Time of Tacitus become a noble Emporium; we may infer, that London then had a Civil, as well as a Military Government; which must have continued till the Declension of the Roman Power in Britain.

The Romans having abandoned this Island, the Saxons, arriving soon after, possessed themselves of this City; but what Sort of Government they exercised therein, before its Reduction by the Danes, is also unknown. And tho' London, in the Year 851, was brought under the Danish Yoke, yet it does not appear that they made any other Use thereof, than as a Place of Security, which they could upon all Emergencies fly to, as a sure Place of Defence: But being dislodged by King Alfred in the Year 886, he no sooner became Master of the same, then he repaired the Walls, and rebuilt

Alfred had no sooner restored London to its former Splendor, than he committed the Government thereof to Ethelred, Duke of Mercia, who had married Elfleda, his Daughter; but as to the Government exercised therein by the said Duke, I am at a great Loss, for we have not the least Account transmitted to us, whereby we can form an Idea of the Government of this City, before the Norman Conquest, other than a few Scraps taken from a Charter addressed to the Portgrave, and said to be granted by Edward the Confessor to the City of London, whereby all her antient Customs and Usages were confirmed; and by an additional Grant, every Servant or Vassal, repairing to London, and residing therein during a Year and a Day, without being claimed by his Lord, or Master, became in all Respects a Freeman of this City, as if he had been born and bred therein. By this Charter it appears, that the chief Officer of the City before the Norman Conquest, was denominated Portreve, or Portgrave. Various are the Derivations of this Epithet, some taking Port to signify a Town, whereas in Truth it means an Haven or Harbour; and Grave, an Intendant, Governor, or Collector, is derived from the Saxon Gran, that is Gray or Hoary-head; such were, by the antient Saxons, for their Age and Experience, chosen Judges, as the Roman Senators, and Aldermen of England were on the same Account: But this Appellation at last becoming general, it was indifferently applied to a Judge, Governor, Magistrate, Warden, Keeper, and Receiver; as is manifest by the following antient German Titles, viz. Margrave, a Warden of the Marches; Landgrave, an itinerant Judge; Burgrave, a Governor, or chief Magistrate of a City; and Portgrave, a Collector, or general Receiver of the Publick Duties of a Commercial Port: Such a one was the Portgrave of London under the Saxons, who, I imagine, was likewise at the Head of the Civil Government of the City.

In the Survey, commonly called Doomsday-Book, made in the twentieth of William the Conqueror, Anno 1086, it appears, that many Cities and Boroughs in England were held of the Saxon Kings, Nobility, and Clergy, in Demain or Vassalage; and whose several Properties being cantoned out into Sokes and Liberties in the said Cities and Boroughs, I imagine, they at first gave rise to the Appellation of Ward, to each of the said Divisions; which is not only in some measure corroborated by the Wards of Baynard's-Castle, Coleman-street and Portfoken, but likewise by the several Wards of London being antiently alienable. That the Burgeses, or Inhabitants of this City, were then under some such Hardships, I think, does in some measure appear, by the Charter, or rather Protection of William the Conqueror, granted to the Citizens of London, in the Saxon Language, as above specified.

In the Reign of Henry I. an additional Magistrate was added to the Government of this City, by the Name of Provost; but what his Office was, is not mentioned, tho' probably 'twas either that of Sheriff or Bailiff.

Richard I. in the first of his Reign, in Consideration of a great Sum of Money given to him by the Londoners, towards his Expedition to the Holy-land, granted them a Privilege of chusing annually, from among themselves, two Bailiffs, or Sheriffs, for their better Government. See Book I. Chap. VIII.

By the third Charter of King John, An. 1199, the Citizens of London were reimpowered to choose their own Sheriffs; by virtue of which Grant of Confirmation, and the pressing Instances of the Commonalty, thirty-five of the most prudent and substantial Part of their Body were chosen; but whether by the Bailiffs and Aldermen, or Falkmote, is not mentioned, no more than the Office they were to serve; therefore 'tis probable they were only selected out of the Commonalty, as a standing Body where out of to elect the City Magistrates; for it appears, that both Bailiffs and Sheriffs were afterwards annually elected out of the said Number, as were at first the Mayors, when in the Election of the Citizens. See the Charter on Page 75, Vol. I.

The chief Officer of this City under the Saxons (as already hinted) was the Portgrave; but the Normans having by Conquest reduced the English, they were in all Things forced to submit to the Conqueror; wherefore the Appellation of Portgrave was obliged to make way for the exotick one of Mayor; from the French Word Meire, (a Latin Derivative from Maior) wherewith the chief Magistrate of the City of Roan, the Capital of the Province of Normandy, was then dignified.

Etymology of the Title Mayor.

The first Mention I find of the Appellation of Mayor, is in the Reign of Henry II. which must have been towards the Close of it, seeing that, but four Years before, a Portgrave had the Government of this City.

The Citizens of London, weary under the Government of a Foreigner, humbly applied to King John, in the Year 1215, for a Power to choose their own Mayor; which Privilege he was pleased to grant, by an additional Charter, whereby they were impowered annually to elect from among themselves their chief Magistrate. See the Charter on Page 76, Vol. I.

Tho' John, by his Charter, had indulged the Citizens of London with the Choice of their Mayor, yet by the same Power they were annually obliged to present him to the King for his Approbation, or in his Absence to his Justiciary; this Custom still remaining, he is yearly presented to the Lord Chancellor; without which Sanction the Person so chosen could no more act as Lord-Mayor of this City, than a mere Stranger.

The antient Seal of this City being laid aside in the fourth of Richard II. the present, whereof the annexed is a Representation, was made in the same Year, 1381.

Brad. Hist.
Treat. Cit.

The Citizens of London having by divers Royal Grants obtained the Privilege of choosing their own Magistrates, they were elected by the Court of Aldermen, and a Number of Commons summoned by them out of each of the Wards; but the Numbers being occasionally varied, at the Discretion of the Aldermen, gave great Uneasiness to the Commonalty; for the removing of which, the Method of Election was altered by an Act of Common Council, Anno 1476, whereby the present Manner of electing by the Liverymen of the several Companies was established: By virtue whereof the Lord-Mayor, or chief Magistrate of the City, is annually chosen on Michaelmas-day; for which Purpose, the Liverymen assemble in Guildhall on the said Day, where, by holding up of Hands, they choose two of the Senior Aldermen below the Chair, who being returned to the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen, the Senior Aldermen is commonly declared Lord-Mayor Elect.

The Election being over, the Lord-Mayor Elect, accompanied by the Recorder and divers of the Aldermen, is soon after presented to the Lord-Chancellor (as his Majesty's Representative) for his Approbation; and on the ninth of November following is sworn into the Office of Mayor, at Guildhall, and the Day after before the Barons of the Exchequer at Westminster. In the Morning of the said Day, the Aldermen and Sheriffs repair to the Lord-Mayor's Residence, whence they attend him to Guildhall in a Procession at present formed by Coaches, which about Noon proceed to the River-side, where, at the Three-Cranes Stairs, the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder and Sheriffs, go on board the City Barge, attended by the several Corporations of Citizens, in their Formalities, and magnificent Barges, pompously adorned with a great Number and Variety of Flags and Pendants; and thence proceeding to Westminster, form such an august and majestick aqueous Procession, as probably is no-where to be paralleled, except at Venice.

The Ceremony being over at Westminster, the dazzling Navy returns to the City, where, at Blackfriars Stairs, most of the Companies come on Shore, the Liverymen whereof, by the Make and Sumptuousness of their Robes, appear like so many Senators; and being severally preceded by their Colours, Flags, and Bands of Musick, in Procession to their proper Stands, they continue seated in their stately Robes, amidst the numerous Concerts of Musick, and incessant Acclamations of the Populace, till their chief Magistrate the Lord-Mayor be past.

This great and powerful Officer being landed at Blackfriars Stairs, he is preceded by the Artillery Company of Citizens, a military Body, which for Men, and Dexterity of Exercise, is scarce to be excelled by the best Veterans; and in regard to their sumptuous Accoutrements, 'tis not to be questioned, but they excel all other Bodies of Infantry whatsoever.

This Company is followed by that whereof the Lord-Mayor is free, which is attended by the City Musick, and followed by the Lord-Mayor's Officers and Domesticks, who immediately precede his Lordship in his Coach of State, who is followed by the Aldermen, Recorder, Sheriffs, Chamberlain, Common Sergeant, Town Clerk, &c. in their several Coaches and rich Equipages, amidst the Acclamations of an infinite Number of People, and the Streets thro' which the pompous Procession passeth are adorned with the most pompous Decorations. This solemn and most stately Shew has been often embellished with a great Variety of magnificent Pageants, which, together with the Magnificence and Pomp of all its Parts, may justly be said to vie with the Coronations of some Princes. The Procession being over, the several Corporations repair to their stately Halls, where they are sumptuously regaled with an elegant Entertainment.

What has been said upon the present Grandeur at the Installation of this great Magistrate, is not to be admired at, especially if we consider, that the City whereof he is Head and Governor, immediately under the King, is the most populous and opulent of all others.

The Lord-Mayor, upon all publick Occasions, is clothed, according to the Season, either in Scarlet, or Purple Robes richly furred, with a Velvet Hood and Golden Chain, or Collar of SS, with a rich Jewel appendant; and when abroad, he is attended by a great Number of his Officers, before and on each Side; and when on Foot, his Train is supported by a Page, and the City Sword and Mace carried before him, attended by the Sheriffs.

The Officers belonging to the Lord-Mayor, for the Support of his Dignity, are, the Sword-bearer, who for the Expence of his Table has a very considerable annual Allowance; the Common-hunt, Common-crier, and Water-bailiff, who have all great Salaries, or Perquisites, with each the Title of Esquire; together with the three Sergeant Carvers, three Serjeants of the Chamber, ber, a Sergeant of the Channel, two Yeomen of the Chamber, four Yeomen of the Water-side, a Yeomen of the Channel, an Under Water-bailiff, six Youngmen-waiters, three Meal-weighers, two Yeomen of the Wood-wharf, and the Foreign-taker. The State and Grandeur of this Magistrate in all Respects duly considered, will be found not to come far short of that of some Viceroy; for the Support of whose Honour, and the defraying other publick Expences, the Receipts and Disbursements of the City for the Year 1732 were as follow:

Though I cannot ascertain the Time when the Title of Right Honourable was first given to the Chief Magistrate of this City, I am nevertheless of Opinion, that it was conferred by the great Patron of London, Edward III. in the Year 1354. See the Charter, &c. on Page 129, Vol. I. At the Return of Henry VI. from his being crown'd King of France at Paris, Anno 1432, the Mayor was first apparelled in a Gown of Crimson Velvet, a furred Cap, with a Girdle of Gold and a Golden Chain about his Neck; and the Aldermen in Scarlet Gowns and Sanguine Hoods.

The Wear of Robes being established, and the various Colours agreed upon, a Regulation was published by the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen, Anno 1568, for fixing the Days whereon their several coloured Robes should be worn, viz. The Lord-Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs to be dressed in their Scarlet Gowns on St. Bartholomew's Day, to behold the Wrestling near West-Smithfield; the Sunday after, for hearing a Sermon at St. Paul's Cross; at the Proclamation of Southwark Fair; at the Election of the Lord-Mayor; at presenting the Sheriffs at Westminster; the Lord-Mayor, Recorder and Sheriffs only, to be in Scarlet on the 29th of October, for attending the Lord-Mayor at Westminster; the Festivals of All Saints, Christmas, Twelfth-day and Candlemas; at all publick Meetings during Christmas Holydays, Innocents-day, Monday after Twelfth-day, Easter-Monday and Tuesday, Low-Sunday, Whit-Sunday, and Whitsun-Monday and Tuesday; on their attending the King; on the first Sunday of every Term; and at the King's Coronation.

And on the following Days, the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs, to appear in their Violet-coloured Gowns, viz. on Midsummer-day, at the Election of Sheriffs; St. Bartholomew's-Eve, for proclaiming the Fair in Smithfield; at the Swearing in of the Sheriffs; at the Swearing in of the Lord-Mayor; on St. Thomas's-day, for holding Courts of Wardmote; on Easter-wednesday; at the Election of Members to represent the City in Parliament; at the Election of Chamberlain and Bridge-Masters; on the first Day of every Quarter-Sessions; at the Funerals of Aldermen; and at the Orphans Court.

And on the Days following to be apparelled in their Black Gowns, viz. on extraordinary Occasions during the Christmas-Holydays; Good-Friday; all Days during the Quarter-Sessions, except the first; at the Nomination of Aldermen, the Lord Mayor to appear in Black; and also at the Election of Governors for the City Hospitals.

Though the Office of Lord-Mayor of this City be only elective, yet it may in some measure be said to be perpetual; for his Authority ceaseth not, neither on the Demise, or Abdication of the King, as that of all Commission-Officers do; wherefore, in such Cases, the Lord-Mayor of London is said to be the principal Officer of the Kingdom, as he appears to have been upon the Demise of Queen Elizabeth, and the Accession of King James I. and of K. George I. to the Crown.

The Power of this great Officer at present is much greater than formerly; for at this Time he is not only the King's Representative in the Civil Government of the City, but likewise first Commissioner of the Lieutenancy, perpetual Coroner and Escheator within the City and Liberties of London and Borough of Southwark, Chief Justice of Oyer and Terminer and Gaol Delivery of Newgate, Judge of the Courts of Wardmote at the Election of Aldermen; Conservator of the Rivers Thames and Medway, whereby he is impowered, that if any Citizen or Apprentice of London be carried away, and by force detain'd on Shipboard, he can, by his Warrant, compel the Captain or Master of such Ship or Vessel to release the said Citizen; the Lord-Mayor is also a perpetual Commissioner in all Affairs relating to the River Lea, and Chief Butler of the Kingdom at all Coronations, whose Fee for that Service is a Golden Cup and Cover, with a Golden Ewer.

As by the Norman Conquest the Appellation of Sheriff was obliged to make way for that of Bailiff, so was that of Portreve to that of Provost;

vost; this Title being soon after converted into that of Mayor, I shall, previous to the List of the latter, insert that of the former, from the Conquest to the first of Richard I. Anno 1189, viz. Richard de Par, Leoffstanus Goldsmith, Robert Barquerel and Andrew Buchevet. But the Years of the respective Governments of those Provosts not being ascertained, the Dates of such Offices under the new Appellation of Mayor, commence in the aforesaid Year, as will appear by the following List of the said Officers.

When or on what Occasion a Sword was at first carried before this Magistrate, I cannot learn. However, I am of Opinion it was not before the Reign of Henry VIII. for Pope Leo the Tenth, Anno 1513, presented that Prince with a consecrated Sword, and a Cap of Maintenance, the former being an offensive Weapon to destroy the Enemies of the Church, and the latter Armour to defend the Head. This being the first Cap of Maintenance I read of in England, 'twas regarded by Henry as the greatest Favour Leo could confer upon him; therefore the King as an additional Honour to the Metropolis of his Kingdom, might grant the Citizens a Privilege to use both the Sword and Cap of Maintenance.

CHAP. II.

An Account of the City Representatives in Parliament, with a List of them.

Though the Representatives of this City in Parliament do not immediately belong to the Government of London; yet as there is not a Place in this Work more proper to insert the same, I shall subjoin an Account thereof. The Number of Representatives sent by this City at first to Parliament, appear to have been only two: But the Number thereof not being ascertained till the thirty-fourth of Edward III. in the Year 1361, the Citizens, according to the Directions of the several Writs, chose two, three, or four Members, as will appear by the following List; but in that Year they being impowered to elect four Members, they have almost practised the same ever since.

But how this City, out of fifteen Parliaments in the Reign of Edward I. only sent Representatives to two, is not mentioned, other than it seems to have been excused from sending to other Parliaments: That London, the capital City of the Kingdom, (than which none were better qualified to send Representatives to Parliament) should be excused from this Service, and the petty Borough of Southwark allowed to send Members, I think is highly improbable; therefore, 'tis more reasonable to believe, that Ed- ward, still retaining a Grudge against the Londoners for their Rebellion against his Father, would not allow them the Honour of sending Representatives to any of his Parliaments before that of the 26th of his Reign, in the Year 1298.

A List of the Representatives of the City of London in Parliament, from the latter End of the Reign of Edward the First to the Year 1754, with the respective Names of the Kings, Years and Towns wherein the several Parliaments were held.

C H A P. III.

An Account of the Aldermen and Sheriffs, with a List of the latter.

TH F Saxon Appellation of Ealderman, Alderman, or Old-Man, is of the same Signification as the Latin Appellative Senex, whence is derived Senators. The Epithet of Ealderman, among the ancient Saxons, appears to have been a Title of the greatest Honour, as will appear by the following Monumental Inscription, in the Abbey of Ramsay.

Spel. Glos. "Hic requiescit D. Alwinus, inclyti regis Eadgari cognatus, totius Angliæ Aldermannus, & hujus sacri cœnobi miraculosus fundator."

As the Epithet of Alderman was the same as that of Earl, the said Alwin must have been dignified with the Title of Earl of all England; which shews the City of London must have been in very great Repute, when the noble Appellation of Alderman was conferred upon her Magistrates; this probably gave rise to the honourable Title of Barons, whereby the Aldermen and Commonalty of London were long after denominated.

Whether the City of London at first was divided into Wards by King Alfred, (after his rebuilding the same, as already mentioned) or by arbitrary Lords, whose Demains in the City were held in Vassalage by the Citizens, or by others, is unknown. However, the second seems the more probable, seeing that during the Saxon Government most of the Cities and Towns in this Kingdom were held in Demain or Vassalage; which is potently corroborated by the Wards of this City being anciently hereditary, and alienable at the Will of the Alderman.

And it is observable, that the Wards or Aldermanries of this City were denominated from the Aldermen, and anciently changed their Names as often as their Masters; and that the Division of the City into Wards or Aldermanries, appears to be of great Antiquity; for it is manifest, that London had both Wards and Aldermen in the Reign of King Richard the First, which is above five hundred and fifty Years ago.

The first Number of Wards I read of in this City was twenty-four; (see Page 105, Vol. I.

but in the Year 1394, Farringdon Ward being divided by Act of Parliament, the outward Division was erected into a separate Ward, which made up the present Number of twenty-five; (see Page 125, 126, Vol. I.) for that called the Bridge Ward without being only nominal, it is well adapted to the Senior Alderman, who by his great Age is rendered incapable of undergoing much Fatigue; but in case of Non-acceptance, the Court of Aldermen choose another of their Brethren to supply the Vacancy.

In the seventeenth of Richard the Second, Anno 1394, it was by Parliament enacted, that the Aldermen of the City of London should not from thenceforth be elected annually, but continue in their several Offices during Life, or good Behaviour. A& Parl. 17 R. II.

The Aldermen of London having anciently become so by Purchase, occasioned great Jealousies and Heart-burnings among the Commonalty; for the laying of which, and preventing the like for the future, it was in the Year 1402 by the Common Council enacted, that they should be elective; the Manner of which Election has several times varied: But in the Year 1714, by the Common Council of the City it was enacted, that from thenceforth in all Elections of Aldermen, there shall be chosen only one Citizen by the Inhabitants of every Ward destitute of an Alderman, and the Person so elected to be returned by the Lord-Mayor (or other returning Officer, duly qualified to hold a Court of Wardmote) to the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen, by whom the Person so returned is to be admitted, and sworn into the Office of Alderman. A& Com. Council.

The different Factions in the City continuing vigorously to oppose each other in the Choice of their Representatives to serve in Parliament, Lord-Mayor, Aldermen, Sheriffs, Common-Councilmen, Chamberlain, Town Clerks, &c. Application was made to Parliament to prevent such Disputes for the future, by reducing the Number of Electors, which was thought would in a great measure prevent violent Contests on all such Occasions. See Page 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, Vol. I.

For the attaining so salutary an End, it was by Parliament enacted, "That at all times from
 "and after the first Day of June in the Year of "our Lord 1725, upon every Election of a "Citizen or Citizens to serve the said City of "London in Parliament; and upon all Elections
 "of Mayors, Sheriffs, Chamberlains, Bridge-
 "Masters, Auditors of Chamberlain's and Bridge-
 "Master's Accounts, and all and every other "Officer or Officers to be chosen in and for the "said City by the Liverymen thereof; and upon
 "all Elections of Aldermen and Common-Coun"cilmen chosen at the respective Wardmotes
 "of the said City; the Presiding Officer or "Officers at such Elections shall, in Case a Poll
 "be demanded by any of the Candidates, or "any two or more of the Electors, appoint a "convenient Number of Clerks to take the same,
 "which Clerks shall take the said Poll in the "Presence of the Presiding Officer or Officers,
 "and be sworn by such Officer or Officers,
 "truly and indifferently to take the same, and
 "to set down the Name of each Voter, and his
 "Place

“ which the Citizens of London are at this Time “ liable.”

And as an Encouragement to Merchants, and other Persons of Wealth and Abilities, residing within the City, who have hitherto been prevented from becoming free of the same, by Freemen being restricted from disposing of their Estates by Will: It was enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That from and after the First of June in the Year above-mentioned, all Freemen unmarried, and who have not Issue by any former Marriage, as well as all such that shall become free of the City of London after the Time aforesaid, may dispose of their personal Estates in all Respects, as if there never had been any Custom in the City to the contrary.

And to prevent the inevitable Crime of Perjury in the Citizens, by their being formerly obliged, at their Admission into the Freedom of the City,
to take the following Oath:

“ Ye shall swear that ye shall be good and “ true to our Sovereign Lord King George, and to “ the Heirs of our said Sovereign Lord the “ King: Obeysant and obedient ye shall be to “ the Mayor and Ministers of this City; the “ Franchises and Customs thereof ye shall main“ tain, and this City keep harmless in that
“ which in you is. Ye shall be contributory to
“ all manner of Charges within the City, as “ Summons, Watches, Contributions, Taxes,
“ Tallages, Lot and Scot, and to all other
“ Charges, bearing your Part as a Freeman
“ ought to do. Ye shall colour no Foreigners, “ Goods, under or in your Name, whereby the “ King, or this City, might or may lose their “ Customs or Advantages. Ye shall know no “ Foreigner to buy or sell any Merchandize
“ with any other Foreigner within this City,

“or Franchise thereof, but ye shall warn the “Chamberlain thereof, or some Minister of the “Chamber. Ye shall implead or sue no Free“man out of this City, whilst ye may have “Right and Law within the same City. Ye “shall take none Apprentice, but if he be free “born, (that is to say) no Bondman’s Son, nor
 “the Son of any Alien, and for no less Term “than for seven Years, without Fraud and De“ceit: And within the first Year, ye shall “cause him to be enrolled, or else pay such “Fine as shall be reasonably imposed upon you
 “for omitting the same; and after his Term’s End, “within convenient Time, (being required) ye “shall make him free of this City, if he have “well and truly served you. Ye shall also keep “the King’s Peace in your own Person. Ye shall “know no Gatherings, Conventicles, or Con“spiracies made against the King’s Peace, but “ye shall warn the Mayor thereof, or let it to “your Power. All the Points and Articles ye “shall well and truly keep, according to the “Laws and Customs of this City to your Power.
 “So God you help.”

The following, which is administered to all Persons at their Admission into the Freedom of the City was constituted in its room.

“Ye shall swear, that ye shall be good and “true to our Sovereign Lord King George, and “to the Heirs of our said Sovereign Lord the “King. Obeisant and obedient ye shall be to “the Mayor and Ministers of this City; the “Franchises and Customs thereof ye shall main“tain, and this City keep harmless in that
 “which in you is. Ye shall be contributory to
 “all manner of Charges within the City, as “Summons, Watches, Contributions, Taxes,
 “Tallages, Lot and Scot, and to all other
 “Charges, bearing your Part, as a Freeman
 “ought to do. Ye shall colour no Foreigners
 “Goods under or in your Name, whereby the “King, or this City might or may lose their “Customs or Advantages. Ye shall take none “Apprentice for any less Term than for seven “Years, without Fraud or Deceit: And within “the first Year ye shall cause him to be enrolled,
 “or else pay such Fine as shall be reasonably “imposed upon you for omitting the same; and “after his Term’s End, within convenient Time “(being required) ye shall make him free of “this City, if he have well and truly served “you. Ye shall also keep the King’s Peace in “your own Person. Ye shall know no Gather“ings, Conventicles, or Conspiracies made a“gainst the King’s Peace, but ye shall warn the “Mayor thereof, or let it to your Power. All “these Points and Articles ye shall well and truly “keep, according to the Laws and Customs of “this City to your Power. So God you help.”

To what has been said of the Aldermen of this City, I shall only add, that they are the second constituent Part of the City Legislature, and all of them that have passed the Chair, and three under it, are by Charter perpetual Justices of the Peace within the City; and by the same Power, they are by virtue of their Office exempt from serving on Inquests, Juries, &c. as they are likewise without the City from Parish Offices, &c.

Richard I. as already observed, having changed the Names of two of the Magistrates of this City, from those mentioned in the Charter of Henry I. his Great-Grandfather, viz. from the Appellation of Sheriffs to that of Bailiffs; however it was only a Change of Name, and not of Office: For as the Norman Appellative of Bailiff implies an Intendant, Collector, or petty Magistrate; so doth the Saxon Scirgrave or Sheriff import the same, Scire signifying a Division, and Grave (as already mentioned) a Judge, Overseer, or Collector; which Epithet of Sheriff was probably at first brought into Use in this City, upon King Henry I’s granting the Sheriffwick of Mid-dlessex to the Citizens of London.

The Appellation of Bailiff proving of no long Duration, the more antient one of Sheriff was restored to the Executors of that Office, who at present are chosen by the Liverymen of the several Companies on Midsummer-day, and whose Office, according to our great Antiquary, is to collect the publick Revenues within their several Jurisdictions, to gather into the Exchequer all Fines, to serve the King’s Writs of Process, and by the Posse Comitatus to compel head-strong and obstinate Men to submit to the Decisions of the Law, to attend the Judges and execute their Orders, to impanel Juries, to bring in their Verdicts to the Judges, and to take care that all condemned Criminals be duly executed.

The List of the Sheriffs of London being carried no higher, by any Author hitherto published, than the first of Richard I. in the Year 1189, I shall supply that Defect from a Manuscript in the King’s Library, wherein the Names of the said Officers are carried up to the Time of King Edward the Confessor; but the Years of their respective Governments not being ascertained, the Dates of such Offices of this City are only recorded from the Year 1188, as will appear by the following Account of the said Officers, taken from the most antient Record in the Archives of Guildhall, intitled, De Antiquis Legibus Liber; by which I am not only enabled to rectify the Mistakes and Misnomers in Fabian, Arnold, and Stow, till the Year 1266, but likewise the Dates of the several Governments, and Spelling the Names of the said Officers, which the said Authors have unwarrantably modernized.

Besides the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen, there are several other eminent Officers belonging to the City.

The Recorder.

First, There is a Recorder of the City of London, a grave and learned Lawyer, skilful in the Customs of the City: Also he is to be a chief Assistant to the Lord-Mayors, for their better Direction in Matters of Justice and Law. He takes Place in Councils and in Courts before any Man that hath not been Mayor, and learnedly delivers the Sentences of the whole Court.

His Qualifications.

The Qualifications of the Recorder of the City are thus set down in one of the Books of the Chamber: That "He shall be, and is wont to be, one of the most skilful and virtuous Apprentices of the Law of the whole Kingdom: "Whose Office is always to sit on the right Hand of the Mayor, in recording Pleas, and passing Judgments; and by whom Records and Processess, had before the Mayor and Aldermen at Great St. Martin's, ought to be recorded by Word of Mouth before the Judges assigned there to correct Errors. The Mayor and Aldermen have therefore used commonly to set forth all other Businessess, touching the City, before the King and his Council, as also in certain of the King's Courts, by Mr. Recorder, as a chief Man endued with Wisdom, and eminent for Eloquence."

The Fee of the Recorder was sometimes more, and sometimes less, according to Time and Merit, as appears in the fourth Book of Liber Albus. After, the Recorder's Fee was settled at an hundred Marks: And he was to have of the Chamber such Vesture (Lineatam vel penulatam) lined or faced, and as often as the Mayor and Aldermen take every Year. And his Clerk, such as the Serjeants of the Chamber. The Recorder, and his Clerk are wont to sit at the Mayor's Table.

What the Recorder's Office was long ago demanded to be, to wit, in the Year 1304, may be worthy to be read out of a Record, viz. Die Lunæ, &c. "On Monday after the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, in the 32d of King Edward, before the Lords, John le Blund, Mayor, John de Burreforch, Sheriff, William de Beton, Walter de Fynchingfield, William de Leyre, Thomas Romeyn, Adam de Folham, John of Canterbury, Simon de Paris, John de Dunstable, Richard de Gloucestre, Henry de Loucestre, Adam de Rokefle, &c. Aldermen,

VOL. II. NUMB. CII.

"meeting together, John de Wengrave, Alderman and Recorder, was sworn, well and faithfully to render all the Judgments of the Hustings, after the Mayor and Aldermen should meet concerning their Pleas, and agreed together; and also all other Judgments touching the City of London, &c. And that he shall do Justice as well to Poor as Rich. And that all the Pleas of the Hustings, presently after the Hustings is finished, he shall oversee, order, and cause to be enrolled, according to the Things pleaded, &c. And that he shall come prepared to dispatch the Business of the City, &c. when he shall be lawfully warned by the Mayor and Bailiffs. For which Labour the abovesaid Mayor and Aldermen have yielded to give the aforefaid John 10 l. Sterling by the Year out of their Chamber, and 20 d. of each Charter written, and each Testament enrolled in the said Hustings, &c."

The present Recorder is Sir William Moreton, Knight.

The following are also Officers of especial Respect in the City.

The Chamberlain of London.

He is an Officer of great Repute and Trust; and tho' annually chosen on Midsummer-day, yet not displaced, but continues during Life, if no just and great Crimes are made out against him. He had the keeping of the Monies, Lands and Goods of the City Orphans, or took good Security for the Payment thereof when the Parties came to Age. And to that End he was deemed in the Law a sole Corporation, to him and his Successors, for Orphans; and therefore a Bond, or a Recognizance made to him and his Successors, was recoverable by his Successors. This Officer hath a Court peculiarly belonging to him, which will be spoken of hereafter. His Office may be termed a Publick Treasury, collecting the Customs, Monies, and yearly Revenues, and all other Payments belonging to the Corporation of the City. The present Chamberlain is Sir Thomas Harrison, Knt.

The Common-Serjeant.

He is to attend the Lord-Mayor and Court of Aldermen on Court-Days, and to be in Council with them, on all Occasions, within and without the Precincts or Liberties of the City. He was to take Care of Orphans' Estates, either by taking Account of them, or to sign their Indentures, before their passing the Lord-Mayor and Court of Aldermen. And likewise he was to let, set and manage the Orphans' Estates, according to his Judgment, to their best Advantage. The present Common-Serjeant is Thomas Garrard, Esq;

The Town-Clerk, or Common-Clerk.

He keeps the Original Charters of the City, the Books, Rolls, and other Records, where-in are registered the Acts and Proceedings of the City;

City; so that he may not be improperly termed the City-Register: He is to attend the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen at their Courts. The present Town-Clerk is Miles Mann, Esq;

The Town-Clerk and Common-Serjeant take Place according to their Seniority. The Fees of the Chamberlain, Common-Serjeant, and Common-Clerk, or Town-Clerk, were antiently 10 l. per Ann.

The Coroner of London.

The Coroner.

Called so from Corona, i. e. a Crown, because he deals principally with the Crown, or in Matters appertaining to the Imperial Crown of England. As to the Antiquity of this Office; There were Coroners in the Time of King Alfred, as appears by the Book, intituled, The Miroir. The Lord-Mayor for the Time being is Coroner, but hath his Deputy for the Management thereof. In antient Time this Office was of such great Esteem, that none could execute it under the Degree of a Knight. As the Sheriff may inquire of all Felonies, so the Coroner is to inquire of all sudden Deaths: And to that End he impannels a Jury, takes Evidence upon Oath, and gives the Charge to the Jury.

In former Times this Officer was nominated and appointed by the King. In 51 Edw. III. the Citizens prayed, That they might place and displace a Coroner among themselves, answering unto the King what belongs thereunto. It was answered, The King will not depart with his antient Right. The present Coroner is George Grew, Esq;

Two Judges of the Sheriffs' Court; four Common Pleaders; Comptroller of the Chamber; Secondary of Wood-street Compter; Secondary of the Poultry Compter.

The City Remembrancer.

The City Remembrancer.

This Officer is to attend the Lord-Mayor on certain Days, his Business being to put his Lordship in Mind of the select Days he is to go abroad with the Aldermen, &c. He is to attend daily at the Parliament House, during the Sessions, and to report to the Lord-Mayor their Transactions. The present Remembrancer is R. Cbeslyn, Esq;

A Register of the Orphans' Fund; a Solicitor; eight Attornies in the Sheriffs' Court; two Bridge-Masters; a Hall-Keeper.

There are also Officers peculiarly belonging to the Lord-Mayor's House. The first are, the four Esquires of the Lord-Mayor's House.

The Sword-Bearer.

The Sword Bearer.

This Officer is to attend the Lord-Mayor at his going abroad, and to carry the Sword before him, being the Emblem of Justice. He hath his Table at the Lord-Mayor's: For the Support of which, there is 1000 l. a Year allowed. His Dwelling, allowed him by the City, is at Justice-Hall in the Old-Bailey. The Gentleman that bears this Office is Heron Powney, Esq;

The Sword-Bearer's Place is honourable; in as much as the Sword is needful to be born before head Officers of Boroughs, or other corporate Towns, to represent the State and princely Office of the King's Most Excellent Majesty, the chief Governor. To the Right of bearing which Sword, in the Chamber of London, this Observation is to be made, according to an an-tient Writer of Armoury: "That the Bearer must carry it upright, the Hilts being holden under his Bulk, and the Blade directly up the Midst of his Breast, and so forth between the Sword-Bearer's Brows. This, in Distinction from bearing the Sword in any Town for a Duke, or an Earl, or a Baron. If a Duke, the Blade thereof must lean from the Head between the Neck and the right Shoulder, nearer to the Head than the Shoulder. And for an Earl, the Bearer must carry the same between the Point of the Shoulder and the Elbow: And so there is another different Bearing of the Sword for a Baron."

The Common-Hunt.

The chief Business of this Officer is to take Care of the Pack of Hounds belonging to the Mayor and Citizens, and to attend them in Hunting, when they please. This Officer's House, allowed him, is in Finsbury-Fields. He has a yearly Allowance, besides Perquisites. He is to attend the Lord-Mayor on set Days. This Officer is Michael Lally, Esq;

The Common-Hunt.

The Common-Crier.

It belongs to him and the Serjeant at Arms to summon all Executors and Administrators of Freemen to appear, and to bring in Inventories of the Personal Estates of Freemen, within two Months after their Decease: And he is to have Notice of the Appraisements. He is also to attend the Lord-Mayor on set Days, and at the Courts held weekly by the Mayor and Aldermen. He has his Dwelling allowed him in Aldersgate. This Office is executed by Peter Roberts, Esq;

The Common-Crier.

The Water-Bailiff.

This Officer is to look after the Preservation of the River Thames, against all Encroachments; and to look after the Fishermen, for the Preservation of the young Fry, to prevent the destroying them by unlawful Nets. For that End there are Juries for each County, that hath any Part of it lying on the Sides or Shores of the said River. Which Juries, summoned by the Water-Bailiff at certain Times, do make Inquiry of all Offences relating to the River and the Fish; and make their Presentments accordingly. He is also bound to attend the Lord-Mayor on set Days in the Week: And has his House in Cripplegate. The present Water-Bailiff is Roger Griffith, Esq;

The Water Bailiff.

There are also three Serjeant-Carvers; three Serjeants of the Chamber; a Serjeant of the Channel; a Yeoman of the Channel; four Yeomen of the Water-side; an under Water-Bailiff; two Yeomen of the Chamber; two Meal-Weighers; two Yeomen of the Wood-Wharfs; a Foreign Taker; City Marshals. There are besides these, seven Gentlemen's Men; as,

The Sword-Bearer's Man, the Common-Hunt's two Men, the Common-Crier's Man, the Water-Bailiff's two Men, and the Carver's Man.

Nine of the foregoing Officers have Liveries of the Lord-Mayor, viz. the Sword-Bearer and his Man; the three Carvers; and the four Yeomen of the Water-side. All the rest have Liveries from the Chamber of London.

The

The following Officers are likewise belonging to the City; Farmer of the Markets; Auditor; Clerk of the Chamber; Clerk to the Commissioners of the Sewers; Clerk of the Court of Conscience; Beadle of the same Court; Clerk of the City Works; Printer to the City; Justice of the Bridge-Yard; Clerk Comptroller of the Bridge-House; Steward of the Borough; Bailiff of the Borough.

The Lord-Mayor's Officers, and their Days of Waiting, according to a Table that hung up in the antient Council-Chamber.

Mr. Sword-Bearer, to wait daily.

Mr. Common-Hunt, to wait Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

Mr. Common-Crier, to wait Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

Mr. Water-Bailiff, to wait Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

The three Serjeant-Carvers, to wait weekly, all Excuses set apart.

The three Serjeants of the Chamber, to wait weekly, without any Excuse.

The Serjeant of the Channel, to wait daily.

The two Yeomen of the Chamber, one of them to wait daily at Dinner, to usher the Hall.

The four Yeomen of the Water-side, two of them to wait weekly, and not to be absent.

The Yeomen of the Channel, to wait daily.

The Under Water-Bailiff, to wait on Holidays and Court-Days, if he goes not up the River.

The six Young Men, to wait daily.

The three Meal-Weighers, to wait on Holidays and Court-Days.

The two Yeomen of the Wood-Wharf, to wait on General Days.

The Foreign-Taker, to wait likewise on General Days.

The Sheriffs' Officers.

Sheriffs' Officers.

The Sheriffs also of London, as the Mayor, for the State of the City, had their Officers. In the Year 1471, they were appointed each of them to have sixteen Serjeants, every Serjeant to have his Yeoman. And six Clerks, viz. a Secondary, a Clerk of the Papers, and four other Clerks; besides the Under-Sheriffs' Clerks, their Stewards, Butlers, Porters, and others in Household, many.

CHAP. IV.

An Account of the several Courts within the City and Liberties of London.

THE various Opinions concerning the Antiquity of the Commonalty of this City's having a Share in the Government thereof, have occasioned warm Disputes between the Advocates for the Aldermen and Commons, but seemingly to very little Purpose; for instead of determining on either Side, Matters are as much embarrassed as ever. I shall therefore endeavour to come as near the Origin of the same as I can.

That the Government of London by Aldermen is of Saxon Origin, is almost demonstrable, by the Charter of Henry I. granted to the City about thirty-five Years after the Conquest;

wherein all Strangers are expressly commanded to pay no Custom to any Person, save to the Owner of the Soke, or his Deputy: That the Owner of the Soke, or Ward, was the Alderman, I think, is beyond Dispute. But that the Government of the City was not vested in the Aldermen exclusive of the Commons, I think, does in some measure appear by the said Charter; for as the latter were thereby impowered to chuse their own Sheriff and Justiciary, I think, it is not to be questioned, but they were a Part of the City Legislature.

The Common-Councilmen at first returned being only two for each Ward, the City Commons thought it a Number very insufficient to represent their numerous Body; wherefore, in the Year 1347, it was agreed, that each Ward of the City should choose a Number of Common-Councilmen according to its Dimensions, but none to exceed twelve, nor any to have less than six; which has been since increased to the present Number.

The City of London being divided into twenty-five Wards, and they into two hundred and thirty-six Precincts, each thereof send a Representative to the Common Council, who is elected after the same Manner as an Alderman, only with this Difference, that as the Lord-Mayor presides in the Wardmote, and is Judge of the Poll at the Election of an Alderman; so are the Aldermen of the several Wards in all Respects the same at the Choice of Common-Councilmen.

The several Parts which compose the City Legislature very much resemble those which constitute that of the Kingdom; for as the King is the chief Estate of Parliament, so is the Lord-Mayor of the Common Council; and as the Houses of Lords and Commons are subordinate to the former, so are the Aldermen and Common-Councilmen to the latter; but the three Estates of the national Representative enjoying separately the Right of the Negative, that belonging to the Common Council of the City is only vested in two, viz. the Aldermen and Common-Councilmen.

The Court of Common Council.

This Court, as already observed, consists of the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen and Representatives of the several Wards; and being the City Legislature, make By-laws for the good Government thereof: They assemble in Guildhall, as often as the Lord-Mayor by his Summons thinks proper to convene them: They annually select from among themselves a Committee of six Aldermen and twelve Commoners, for letting the City Lands, to which end they usually meet at Guildhall on Wednesdays. They likewise appoint another Committee of four Aldermen and eight Commoners, for transacting the Affairs belonging to the Benefactions of Sir Thomas Gresham, who generally meet at Mercers-hall, at the Appointment of the Lord-Mayor, who is always one of the Number. They also, by virtue of a Royal Grant, yearly appoint a Governor, Deputy and Assistants, for managing the City Lands in Ireland. They have also a Right of disposing of the Offices of Town-Clerk, Common-Serjeant, Judges of the Sheriffs' Court, Common-Crier, Coroner, Bailiff of the Borough of Southwark, and City Garbler.

The Court of Common Council.

The Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen.

The Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen is a Court of Record, wherein is lodged a great Part of the executive Power, whereby all Leases and other Instruments that pass the City Seal are executed, the Assize of Bread ascertained, Contests relating to Water-courses, Lights, and Party-walls, adjusted, and the City Officers suspended and punished according to the Notoriety of their several Offences.

The said Court has not only a Power of electing annually eleven Overseers, or Rulers of the Fraternity of Watermen; but likewise a Right of fixing their several Taxes, with the Approbation of the Privy Council: And also a Right of disposing of most of the Places belonging to the City Officers.

The Court of Husting.

As this Court is of a Saxon Origin, and the most ancient in the Kingdom; so is its Name a Saxon Compound, of Hus and Ding, the former implying a House, and the latter a Thing, Cause, Suit or Plea; whereby it is manifest, that Husding imports a House or Hall wherein Causes are heard and determined; which is farther evinced by the Saxon Dingere or Thingere, an Advocate or Lawyer.

This, which is a Court of Record, and the supreme Judicature of the City of London, and weekly held on Tuesdays, was originally established for the Preservation of the Laws, Franchises and Customs of the City, and wherein presided as Judges the principal Magistrates, as at present do the Lord-Mayor and Sheriffs, who are assisted by the Recorder upon all Causes of Consequence. In this Court two Sorts of Causes are pleadable, viz. Pleas of Land, and Common Pleas, which are held distinctly; for one Week Pleas merely real are held, and the next, mixed Actions are decided. Here Deeds are inrolled, Recoveries passed, Writs of Right, Waste, Partition, Dower and Replevins determined.

The Lord-Mayor's Court.

Lex Lond. This is a Court of Record, held before the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen and Recorder, every Tuesday in Guildhall, wherein Actions of Debt, Trespass, Attachments, Covenants, &c. arising within the City and Liberties of any Value may be try'd, and Actions from the Sheriffs' Court removed hither, before the Jury be sworn.

Privi. Lond. This is also a Court of Chancery or Equity, respecting Affairs transacted in the City and Liberties; and gives Relief when Judgment is obtained in the Sheriffs' Court, for more than the just Debt. This Court has an Office peculiar to itself, consisting of four Attorneys, by whom all Actions cognizable therein are entered, for the Execution whereof there are six Serjeants of Mace, who daily attend in the said Office.

Lex Lond. This Court, in divers Respects, is the best to commence a Process in, seeing an Action (exclusive of Stamps) may be entered at the small Charge of four Pence, and which, tho' not proceeded upon, never dies, as those in other Courts. Besides, a Suit may be begun and ended here, within the Space of fourteen Days, for so small a Charge as thirty Shillings. In short, this is the most extensive Court of the Kingdom, for all that's cognizable in the several Courts of England, is the same in this.

The Juries for trying Causes in this, and the Sheriffs' Courts, are by the several Courts of Wardmote annually returned at Christmas, when each Ward, according to Custom, appoint a sufficient Number of Persons to serve on the said Juries for every Month of the Year, as follow:

Ibid.

Months	Wards.
January	Aldgate, Portoken and Cornhill.
February	Cheap Ward.
March	Bassishaw and Cripplegate.
April	Vintry and Breadstreet.
May	Tower and Billingsgate.
June	Farringdon without.
July	Bridge Ward.
August	Aldergate, Colemanstreet and Broadstreet.
September.	Farringd. within and Caste Baynard
October	Queenhithe, Dowgate and Walbrook.
November	Langbourn and Linestreet.
December	Candlewick, Cordwainer and Bishopsgate.

The Sheriffs' Courts.

These are Courts of Record, held in Guildhall every Wednesday and Friday, for Actions entered at Woodstreet Counter, and on Thursdays and Saturdays for those entered at the Poultry Counter, of which the Sheriffs being Judges, each has his Assistant or Deputy, who are commonly called Judges of these Courts, before whom are tryed Actions of Debt, Trespass, Covenant, &c. and where the Testimony of an absent Witness in Writing is allowed to be good Evidence. To each of these Courts belong four Attorneys, who upon their being admitted by the Court of Aldermen, have an Oath administered to them, which for its remarkable Contents I shall subjoin, to remind the Gentlemen of the Faculty of their several Duties.

Ibid.

The Oath.

"Ye shall swear, that ye shall well and lawfully do your Office of Attorney, and well and lawfully examine your Clients, and their Quarrels, without Champarty, and without procuring of any Juries, or any Inquest embracing. And that ye shall change no Quarrel out of his Nature, after your Understanding. Also ye shall plead, ne ley, nor suffer to be pleaded or leyd by your Assent, no foreign Release, Acquittance, Payment, Arbitration, plain Account, whatsoever it be, to put the Court out of his Jurisdiction, nor none other Matter; but it be such as ye may find rightful and true by the Information of your Client, whose Information and Saying upon your Oath and Conscience ye shall think to be true.

Ibid.

"And ye shall not inform ne inforce any Man to sue falsely against any Person by false or forged Action. Ready ye shall be at all times to come and attend at the Warning of the said Maior, and of the Sheriffs of the said City, unless ye be letted about the Business of this City, or for some other reasonable Cause. The Franchises, Laws and Ordinances of this City you shall

"shall keep, and due to be kept to your Power.
"And that well and lawfully ye shall do all "things that to the Office of Attorney pertaineth
"to do. As God help you."

Ibid. To each of these Courts likewise belong a Secondary, a Clerk of the Papers, a Prothonotary, and four Clerks Sitters. The Secondary's Office is to allow and return all Writs brought to remove Causes out of the said Courts; the Clerk of the Papers files and copies all Declarations upon Actions; the Prothonotary draws and ingrosses all Declarations; the Clerks Sitters enter Actions and Attachments, and take Bail and Verdicts. To each of the Counters or Prisons belonging to these Courts appertain sixteen Serjeants at Mace, with a Yeoman to each, besides inferior Officers, and the Prison-keeper.

The Court of Orphans.

Ibid. This Court is occasionally held by the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen, who are Guardians to Children that are under the Age of twenty-one Years, at the Decease of their Fathers; and who take upon them not only the Care and Management of their Goods and Chattels, but likewise that of their Persons, by committing them to careful and faithful Tutors, to prevent disposing of themselves during their Minority, without their Approbation.

Privil. Lond. The Common Serjeant is authorized by the said Court, to take exact Accounts and Inventories of all deceased Freemen's Estates; and the youngest Attorney of the Mayor's Court, being Clerk to that of the Orphans, is appointed to take Securities for their several Portions, in the Name of the Chamberlain of London, who is a sole Corporation of himself, for the Service of the said Orphans; and to whom a Recognizance or Bond, made upon the Account of an Orphan, shall, by the Custom of London, descend to his Successor; which is hardly known elsewhere.

LexLond. When a Freeman of London dies, and leaves Children in their Minority, the Clerks of the several Parishes are to give in their Names to the Common-Crier, who is thereupon immediately to summon the Widow, or Executor, to appear before the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen, to bring in an Inventory of, and give Security for the Testator's Estate; for which, two Months time is commonly allowed: And in case of Non-appearance, or Refusal of Security, the Lord-Mayor may commit the contumacious Executor to Newgate.

Justice-Hall Court.

Roy. Char. Lond. This Court is held by the King's Commission of Oyer and Terminer, at Justice-hall in the Old-Bailey, eight times a Year, for trying of Criminals; for Crimes committed within the City of London and County of Middlesex; the Judges of this Court are, the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen that are past the Chair, and the Recorder, who on all such Occasions are attended by both the Sheriffs, and generally by one or more of the national Judges. All Offences committed in the City are try'd by a Jury of Citizens; and those committed in the County, by one of that. The Crimes and Misdemeanours try'd in this Court, are, High and Petty Treason, Murder, Felony, Perjury, Forgery, Petty Larceny, Cheating, Libelling, false Weights and Measures, &c. the Penalties incurred by which, are, the Loss of Life, corporal Punishment, Transportation, Amerciaments, &c. The Charge of a Prosecution in this Court is but a Trifle, for the Encouragement of People to prosecute Rogues.

The Coroner's Court.

The Lord-Mayor being perpetual Coroner of the City, this Court is held before him, or his Deputy, who is to inquire into the Cause of the Death of any Person, who, upon Sight of the Body, is supposed to have come to an untimely End, as he is likewise into the Escape of the Murderer; and also concerning found Treasure, Deodands, and Wrecks at Sea. Ibid. Cok. Inst. p. 4.

The Court of Escheator.

The Lord-Mayor of London being perpetual Escheator within the City, this Court is also held before him or his Deputy, to whom all original Writs of Diem clausit extremum, Mandamus, Devenierunt, Melius inquirend', &c. are directed, to find an Office for the King, after the Death of his Tenant who held by Knight's Service. The Escheator may also find an Office for Treason, Felony, &c. Roy. Char. Lond.

The Court of Conservacy.

This Court is yearly held eight times before the Lord-Mayor, at such Places and Times as his Lordship shall think fit to appoint within the respective Counties of Middlesex, Essex, Kent and Surrey; in which several Counties he has a Power of summoning Juries, who for the better Preservation of the Fishery of the River Thames, and Regulation of the Fishermen that fish therein, are upon Oath to make Inquisition of all Offences committed in and upon the said River from Staines-bridge in the West, to Yenfleet in the East; and to present all Persons that are found guilty of a Breach of the Articles recited in Vol. I. Page 60. Ibid.

And for the more effectual Preservation of the Navigation, and Fish in the River Thames, the Lord-Mayor, as Conservator thereof, has his Assistant or Deputy, the Water-Bailiff; who, together with his Substitutes, detect and bring to Justice all such Persons as shall presume to destroy either the Current or Fish of the said River.

The Court of Requests.

This excellent Court, from its reasonable and equitable proceedings, is commonly called, The Court of Conscience, and which had its Beginning in the Ninth of Henry the Eighth, Anno 1518, by Act of Common Council, whereby it was ordained, that the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen should monthly appoint two Aldermen and four Commoners to be Commissioners thereof, who were to sit weekly in Guildhall on Wednesdays and Saturdays, to hear and decide all Causes brought before them for the Recovery of Debts not exceeding forty Shillings. LexLond.

This, being an experimental Act, was only made for two Years; but upon its being found to be of great Use and Benefit to the Poor, it was renewed and continued by divers Acts of Common Council, and the Number of Commissioners increased to fourteen; in which State it continued till till the Third of King James the First, Anno 1606; at which Time divers cruel and inexorable Creditors, despising the Authority of the same, commenced Suits in superior Courts against several Citizens for trifling Debts, to the Ruin of them and their poor Families; wherefore the City in the Year aforesaid, applied to Parliament for Redress of this Grievance, by which it was enacted, that all the Citizens, and others inhabiting within the City of London, and Liberties thereof, who then had, or thereafter should have any Debt or Debts due, or becoming due to him or them, by any Citizens, &c. as aforesaid, not amounting to the Sum of forty Shillings, that he or they should, or might cause such Debtor or Debtors to be summoned to appear before the Commissioners of the Court of Requests at Guildhall by the Officer thereunto belonging; where they, or any three thereof, are impowered to hear and determine all Matters between Citizen and Citizen, &c. touching Debts not amounting to forty Shillings; and in a judicial Manner to administer Oaths to Plaintiffs, Defendants and Witnesses. And for the more effectual preventing all litigious and merciless Creditors from ruining their poor Debtors, it was ordained, that if by any Action of Debt, brought against a Citizen of London, in any of the Courts of Westminster, or elsewhere (out of the said Court of Requests) it shall appear to the Judge or Judges where such Action shall be prosecuted, that the Debt sued for does not amount to forty Shillings, in such Case, the said Judge or Judges, instead of allowing the Plaintiff or Plaintiffs any Costs of Suit, they shall adjudge the said Plaintiff to pay to the Defendant all such Costs as he shall make appear to have been by him disbursed in defending the said Suit.

A^d Parl.
3 Jac. I.

It was also ordained, by the Authority aforesaid, that if either Plaintiff or Defendant, after having been duly summoned, shall refuse to appear before the said Commissioners in the Court of Requests, or shall refuse to obey the Orders or Decisions of the said Court; in both such Cases, the Commissioners are impowered to commit such Person or Persons to either of the Counters, till he, she, or they shall submit to the Rules and Determinations of the said Court.

LexLond.

Perhaps never a Court of Justice was better adapted than this, for the Ease and Relief both of Debtor and Creditor; for here the first is not exposed to the Payment of exorbitant Charges, and the latter may recover his Debt with the greatest Expedition, at so small an Expence as ten Pence; viz. For the Plaintiff and Summons, six Pence; and for the Order, four Pence. But if the Defendant do not appear the second Court Day, after being regularly summoned, an Attachment is awarded against him; which compelling him to appear, the Charge is thereby enhanced.

Ibid.

And if any Citizen happen to be arrested for a Debt under forty Shillings, this Court grants a Summons for the Plaintiff; who, in case of Non-appearance the first Court Day, has an Attachment granted against him, whereby he is obliged to take his Debt, and pay the Defendant his Costs. And in case any Attorney shall presume to prosecute the Suit after Notice to the contrary, or shall refuse to adhere to the Order of Court, he shall, upon Complaint thereof to the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen, immediately be suspended.

The Court of Wardmote.

This Court is denominated from the Words Cok. Inst.
Ward and Mote, that is, the Ward Court; P. 4.
for in this City Parishes are as Towns, and Wards as Hundreds; wherefore this Court resembles that of the Leet in the County: For, as the latter derives its Authority from the County Court, so does the former from that of the Lord-Mayor; as is manifest by the annual Precept issued by the Lord-Mayor to the several Aldermen, for holding their respective Leets, for the Election of proper Officers in each Ward; the Tenor whereof is as follows:

To the Alderman of the Ward of —

“ We charge and command you, that upon LexLond.
“ St. Thomas's Day the Apostle, next coming, you “ do hold your Wardmote; and that you have “ afore us, at our general Court of Aldermen, to be “ holden the Monday next after the Feast of the Epi- “ phany next coming, all the Defaults that shall be “ presented afore you by Inquest in the said Ward“ mote; and the said Inquest shall have full Power
“ and Authority, by one whole Year, to inquire
“ and present all such Defaults as shall be found “ within your said Ward, as oftentimes as shall be “ thought to you expedient and needful; which we “ will shall be once every Month at least.

“ 2. And if it happen any of your said Inquest “ do die, or depart out of your said Ward within
“ the said Year, that then in Place of him or them
“ so dying, or departing out of your said Ward,
“ you cause to be chosen one able Person in his “ stead, to inquire and present with the other, in “ Manner and Form abovesaid.

“ 3. And that at the said general Court, you “ give afore us the Names and Surnames of all of “ them of your said Ward that come not to your “ said Wardmote, if they be duly warned, so that “ due Redress and Punishment of them may be “ had, as the Case shall require, according to the “ Law.

“ 4. And that you do provide, that at all “ Times convenient a sufficient Watch be kept;
“ and that Lanterns with Light by Nightertail,
“ in old Manner accustomed, be hanged forth;
“ and that no Man go by Nightertail without “ Light, nor with Vizard, on the Peril that be“ longeth thereto.

“ 5. And also, that you do cause to be chosen “ Men, of the most sufficient, honest and dis“ creet Men, of your said Ward, to be for your “ said Ward of the Common Council of this City “ for the Year ensuing, according to the Custom in “ that behalf yearly used. And also, that you do “ cause the said Men, so to be chosen to be of the “ Common Council, to be sworn before you, and “ in your Presence, according to the Oath by “ them used, and of old Time accustomed.

“ 6. And that also in the said Wardmote you “ cause to be chosen certain other honest Persons,
“ to be Constables and Scavengers, and a com“ mon Beadle, and a Raker to make clean the “ Streets and Lanes of all your said Ward, ac“ cording

“ cording to the Custom yearly used in that be“ half; which Constables have, and shall have “ full Power and Authority to distrain for the “ Salary and Quaterage of the said Beadle and “ Raker, as oftentimes as it shall be behind or “ unpaid.

“ 7. Also, that you keep a Roll of the Names, “ Surnames, Dwelling-places, Professions and “ Trades of all Persons dwelling within your “ Ward, and within what Constable's Precinct
 “ they dwell; wherein the Place is to be specially “ noted by Street, Lane, Alley or Sign.

“ 8. Also that you cause every Constable,
 “ from time to time to certify unto you the Name,
 “ Sirname, Dwelling place, Profession and Trade
 “ of every Person who shall newly come to dwell “ within his Precinct, whereby you may make
 “ and keep your Roll perfect; and that you cause
 “ every Constable for his Precinct, to that Purpose,
 “ to make and keep a perfect Roll in like man“ ner.

“ 9. Also, that you give special Charge to “ every Innholder, and other Persons within your “ Ward, who shall receive any Person to sojourn “ in his House above two Days, shall, before the “ third Day after his coming thither, give Know“ ledge to the Constable of the Precinct where he “ shall be so received, of the Name, Sirname, “ Dwelling-place, Profession and Trade of Life, “ or Place of Service of such Person, and for “ what Cause he shall come to reside there. And “ that the said Constable give present Notice “ thereof to you. And that the said Innholder “ lodge no suspected Person, or Men or Women
 “ of evil Name.

“ 10. Also, that you cause every Constable “ within his Precinct, once every Month at the “ farthest, and oftener if Need require, to make “ diligent Search and Inquiry what Persons be “ newly come into his Precinct to dwell, sojourn
 “ or lodge; and that you give special Charge,
 “ that no Innholder or Person shall resist, or deny “ any Constable in making such Search or Inquiry, “ but shall do his best endeavour to aid and as“ sist him therein.

“ 11. And for that of late there is more Re-
 “ fort to the City, of Persons evil-affected in Reli“ gion and otherwise, than in former Times hath “ been; you shall diligently inquire if any Man
 “ be received to dwell or abide within your Ward, “ that is not put under Frank-pledge, as he ought “ to be by the Custom of the City: And whether “ any Person hath continued in the said Ward by “ the Space of one Year, being above the Age of “ twelve Years, and not sworn to be faithful and “ loyal to the King's Majesty, in such Sort as
 “ by the Law and Custom of this City he ought “ to be.

“ 12. To all these Purposes, the Beadle of “ every Ward shall employ his Diligence, and “ give his best Furtherance.

“ 13. Also you are to take Order, that there “ be provided and set up a Pair of Stocks, and “ a Whipping-post, in some convenient Place in “ every Parish within your Ward, for the punish“ ing of Vagrants and other Offenders.

“ 14. Also, that you have special Regard that
 “ from Time to Time there be convenient Provision “ for Hooks, Ladders, Buckets, Spouts and En“ gines in meet Places, within the several Pa“ rishes of your Ward, for avoiding the Peril of “ Fire.

“ 15. Also, that the Streets and Lanes of this “ City be from Time to Time kept clean before “ every Church, House, Shop, Warehouse, Door, “ Deadwall, and in all other common Passages
 “ and Streets of the said Ward.

“ 16. And whereas by divers Acts of Common “ Council aforetime made and established for the “ Common-weal of this City, among other “ things it is ordained and enacted, as hereafter “ ensueth:

“ Also it is ordained and enacted, as hereafter “ ensueth: That from henceforth no Huckster of “ Ale or Beer be within any Ward of the City of “ London, but honest Persons of good Name and “ Fame, and so taken and admitted by the Alder“ man of the Ward for the Time being; and that “ the same Hucksters do find sufficient Surety afore
 “ the Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being,
 “ to be of good Guiding and Rule; and that the “ same Hucksters shall keep no Bawdry, nor suffer
 “ no Letchery, Dice-playing, Carding, or any “ other unlawful Games to be done, exercised or “ used within their Houses; and to shut in their “ Doors at nine of the Clock in the Night from “ Michaelmas to Easter, and from Easter to Mi“ chaelmas at ten of the Clock in the Night, and “ after that Hour sell no Ale or Beer. And if “ any Huckster of Beer or Ale, after this Act pub“ lished and proclaimed, sell any Ale or Beer, “ within any Ward of the City of London, and
 “ be not admitted by the Aldermen of the same “ Ward so to do, or find not sufficient Surety, as “ it is above rehearsed, the same Huckster to have “ Imprisonment, and make Fine and Ransom for “ his Contempt, after the Discretion of the Lord-“ Mayor and Aldermen. And also that the said “ Hucksters suffer no manner of common Eating
 “ or Drinking within their Cellars or Vaults, “ contrary to the Ordinance thereof ordained and “ provided, as in the said Act more plainly ap-“ peareth at large. We charge you, that you “ put the same in due Execution accordingly.

“ 17. And also, that you see all Tipplers, and “ other Sellers of Ale or Beer, as well privy Oste“ ries, as Brewers and Innholders within your “ Ward, not selling by lawful Measures sealed
 “ and marked with the City Arms, or Dagger, “ be presented, and their Names in your said In“ dentures be expressed, with their Defaults, so “ that the Chamberlain may be lawfully answered
 “ of their Amerciaments.

“ 18. And also, that you suffer no Alien, or “ Son of any born an Alien, to be of the Com“ mon Council; nor to exercise or use any other “ Office within this City, nor receive or accept “ any Person into your Watch, privy or open,
 “ but Englishmen born; and if any Stranger born
 “ out of this Realm, made Denizen by Letters
 “ Patents, or any other, after his Course and Lot
 “ be appointed to any Watch, that then ye com“ mand and compel him, or them, to find in “ his stead and place an Englishman to supply the “ same.”

“ 19. And also, that you cause an Abstract
 “ of the Assize appointed by Act of Parliament
 “ for Billets and other Fire-wood, to be fair “ written

“ written in Parchment, and to be fixed or hanged
 “ up in a Table, in some fit and convenient Place “ in the Parish within your Ward, where the “ Common People may best see the same.

“ 20. And furthermore, we charge and com“ mand you, that you cause such Provision to be “ had in your said Ward, that all the Streets and “ Lanes within the same Ward be from Time to “ Time cleansed, and clearly voided of Ordure, “ Dung, Mire, Rubbish, and other filthy Things, “ whatsoever be to the Annoyance of the King’s “ Majesty’s Subjects.

“ 21. And also, that at all Times, as you “ shall think necessary, you do cause Search to “ be made within your said Ward for all vagrant “ Beggars, suspicious and idle People, and such “ as cannot shew how to live; and such as shall “ be found within your said Ward, that you “ cause to be punished, and dealt with accord“ ing to the Laws and Statutes in such Case or“ dained and provided.

“ 22. And also, we will and charge you the “ said Alderman, that yourself certify and present
 “ before us at the said general Court, to be holden
 “ the aforesaid Monday next after the Feast of the “ Epiphany, all the Names and Surnames truly writ“ ten of such Persons being and dwelling within “ your said Ward, as to be able to pass in a Petty “ Jury by themselves; that is to say, every Grand“ juryman to be worth in Goods an hundred “ Marks, and every Petty-juryman forty Marks, “ according to an Act in that Case ordained and “ provided: And the same you shall indorse on “ the Backside of your Indenture.

“ 23. Item, For divers reasonable and urgent “ Considerations especially moving, we straight-“ ly charge and command you, on the King our “ Sovereign Lord’s Behalf, that you diligently “ provide and foresee, that no manner of Person “ or Persons within your said Ward, what Condi“ tion or Degree soever he or they be of, keep“ ing any Tavern or Ale-house, Ale-cellar or “ any other Victualling-house, or Place of com“ mon Resort to eat or drink in within the same “ Ward, permit or suffer at any Time hereafter,
 “ any common Women of their Bodies, or Har-
 “ lots, to resort and come into their said House,
 “ or other the Places aforesaid, to eat or drink,
 “ or otherwise to be conversant, or abide, or “ thither to haunt, or frequent, upon Pain of “ Imprisonment, as well of the Tenant and Keeper
 “ of every such House or Houses, and all other
 “ the Places afore-remembered, as of the com“ mon Women and Harlots.

“ 24. Also, that you do give in charge to the “ Wardmote Inquest of your Ward, all the Ar“ ticles delivered to you herewith; and that you “ may have a special Care of keeping the Peace “ and good Order during your Wardmote; and “ if any offend herein, you may fine or punish “ him or them according to Law.

“ 25. And whereas the Monies received for “ the Fines of Persons refusing to hold Ward “ Offices within your Ward, ought to be em-

By this Precept it does appear, that the Court of Wardmote consists of the Alderman and the respective Householdors of his Ward, by whom are annually elected the several Officers peculiar to the same; among whom being those of the Inquest, they receive the aforesaid Instructions for their better Regulation.

The Chamberlain’s Court.

This is an Office kept in the Guildhall of London, by the Chamberlain of the City, who is thereunto annually chosen by the Liverymen of the respective Companies on Midsummer Day. But this Practice is rather a Custom than otherwise; for there are no Instances (that I can learn) of any of the said Officers being turned out, without their being found guilty of Mal-Practices.

This being a Place of great Trust, the Chamberlain at his first being chosen, is obliged to give Security for his Fidelity. He receives and pays all the City Cash, and with whom are deposited all publick Securities, for which he annually accounts to the proper Auditors.

This Officer attends every Morning for inrolling and turning over Apprentices, admits all Persons duly qualified into the Freedom of the City, and decides all Differences that arise between Masters and Apprentices; of the latter about fifteen hundred are yearly admitted into the Freedom of the City.

The Court of Hallmote.

This Court is denominated from the Place wherein it is kept, and belongs to the several Companies of Citizens, by whom it is occasionally held in their respective Halls, and wherein the Affairs belonging to each of the said Corporations are respectively transacted.

Pie-Powder Court.

This Court of Record, denominated Pepou- Cok. Int., dres, (vulgarly Pie-powder) is incident to every P. 4.
 Fair, as a Court-Baron is to a Manor; it is derived from Pedes Pulverisati, and is so called from its expeditious Proceedings in the Decision of all Controversies that happen in Fairs, which,
 for the Encouragement of Traders who frequent the same, Justice is as quickly administred as Dust can fall from the Foot.

This Court is held in Cloth-Fair (during the time of Bartholomew-Fair) by the City of London and Mr. Edwards, for hearing and deciding all Differences committed against the Tenor of the following Proclamation, which is annually made before the Lord-Mayor, or the Eve of St. Bartholomew,

tholomew, for the better Regulation of the said Fair:

Privi.
Lond.

"The Right Honourable Sir A. B. Kt. Lord-Mayor of the City of London, and his Right Worshipful Brethren the Aldermen of the said City, straightly charge and command, on the behalf of our Sovereign Lord the King, that all manner of Persons, of whatsoever Estate, Degree or Condition they be, having recourse to this Fair, keep the Peace of our Sovereign Lord the King.

"That no manner of Persons make any Congregation, Conventicles or Affrays, by the which the same Peace may be broken or disturbed, upon Pain of Imprisonment, and Fine to be made after the Discretion of the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen.

"Also, that all manner of Sellers of Wine, Ale, or Beer, sell by Measures ensealed, as by Gallon, Pottle, Quart and Pint, upon pain that will fall thereof.

"And that no Person sell any Bread, except it keep the Assize; and that it be good and wholesome for Man's Body, upon Pain that will follow thereof.

"And that no manner of Cook, Pie-baker, nor Huckster, sell, or put to sale any manner of Victual, except it be good and wholesome for Man's Body, upon Pain that will fall thereof.

"And that no manner of Person buy, nor sell, but with true Weights and Measures, sealed according to the Statute in that behalf made, upon Pain that will fall thereof.

"And that no manner of Person or Persons take upon him or them, within this Fair, to make any manner of Arrest, Attachment, Summons or Execution; except it be done by the Officers of this City thereunto assigned, upon Pain that will befall thereof.

"And that no Person or Persons whatsoever, within the Limits and Bounds of this Fair, presume to break the Lord's Day, in selling, shewing, or offering to Sale, or in buying or offering to buy, any Commodities whatsoever; or in sitting, tippling or drinking in any Tavern, Inn, Alehouse, Tippling-house, or Cook's-house, or in doing any other Thing that may tend to the Breach thereof, upon the Pains and Penalties contained in several Acts of Parliament, which will be severely inflicted upon the Breakers thereof.

"And, finally, That what Persons foever find themselves grieved, injured, or wronged by any manner of Person in this Fair, that they come with their Complaints before the Stewards in this Fair, assigned to hear and determine Pleas; and they will minister to all Parties Justice, according to the Laws of this Land, and the Customs of this City."

St. Martin's le Grand Court.

This Court, though within the City, is yet without its Jurisdiction, as being in, and belonging to the Liberty of that Name, which is subject to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster: It is a Court of Record, held weekly on Wednesdays, for the Trial of all Personal Actions whatsoever; the principal whereof is a Capias against the Body, or an Attachment against the Goods; so that a Man's Goods may be seized upon in his own House, upon the first Process, if his Person is not secured before; which is according to the Practice of all ancient Liberties or Franchises.

The Court of the Tower of London.

This is a Court of Record held by Prescription, within the Verge of the City, on Great Tower-bill, by a Steward appointed by the Constable of the Tower of London, by whom are tried Actions of Debt (for any Sum) Damage, and Trespas.

C H A P. V.

An Account of the Settling the Christian Religion in London; with the Progress thereof under divers of its Bishops.

According to the Testimony of an ancient Writer, the Gospel was at first preached in Britain by St. Paul; which is seemingly corroborated by the most ancient British Historian, who, before the Revolt under Boadicia, mentions the planting of Christianity in Britain, where it peaceably continued till the dreadful Persecution under Dioclesian: The Heat hereof was no sooner over, than it flourished again in great Peace and Amity, except the Disturbance it met with by the Doctrines of Arius.

The earliest Account we have of the Christian Religion being settled in the City of London, whereon we can depend, is, that in the Year 314 three Bishops were sent from Britain to the Council of Arles; one whereof was Restitutus Bishop of London, who is the first Bishop we read of in this City, without regarding the pretended List thereof by Jocelin of Furnes, which is not worth mentioning.

Though we have no Account of the Predecessors of Restitutus in the See of London, it may nevertheless be presumed, that he was not the first Bishop thereof; for if, according to Gildas, Christianity was planted in Britain in the Reign of Tiberius, it is not to be questioned, but there was a regular Succession of Bishops from that Time; and as this City was then the Capital of the Kingdom, it may reasonably be presumed to have had many Bishops before Restitutus: And though the Successors of that Bishop are likewise buried in Oblivion, I am nevertheless of Opinion there was a regular Succession from him to Theon, the last British Bishop of this City, who retired into Wales toward the Close of the sixth Century, to avoid the cruel Persecution carried on by the Pagan Saxons.

The Christian Religion, with its Professors the Britons, was obliged to make way for Pagan Idolatry, and their perfidious and cruel Enemies the Saxons, who established their detestable and idolatrous Worship in this City and Neighbourhood, where it continued till the Year 527, when Austin the Monk, a Missionary from Pope Gregory, together with divers of his Brethren, landed in the Isle of Thanet, in the Dominions of Ethelbert King of Kent; who being soon after converted to

to the Christian Faith, greatly encouraged the Propagation thereof throughout the several Parts of his Kingdom; whereupon Austin, in the Year 604, ordained Mellitus a Bishop, and sent him to preach the Gospel to the East Saxons, whose Kingdom consisted of the Counties of Middlesex, Essex, and Part of Hertfordshire, the Capital City whereof was London. But this Kingdom being a Fief of that of Kent, Ethelbert granted the Investiture thereof to his Nephew Seberht, who, upon the Preaching of Mellitus, was likewise converted; this was so highly pleasing to Ethelbert, that he caused to be erected the first Saxon Christian Church in London, and dedicated the same to St. Paul the Apostle; since which Time it has been subordinate to, and a Suffragan of, the Archiepiscopal See of Canterbury.

ChronSax.
Bed. Eccl.
Hist.

In the Year 616 Ethelbert King of Kent departing this Life, was soon followed by Seberht his Nephew, King of the East Saxons; whose three Pagan Sons succeeding him, they expelled Mellitus Bishop of London their Dominions, who retiring into France, the Londoners soon returned to their primitive Idolatry. But no sooner were the three Brothers killed in Battle against the West Saxons, and Eadbald King of Kent converted to Christianity, than the Storm abated, and Mellitus and Justus recalled to their respective Bishopricks. Justus was received again by his Flock at Rocheſter; but the Londoners, chusing rather to live in their ancient State of Paganism, and shewing but little Regard to the Authority of Eadbald, rejected Mellitus; which Eadbald, with Grief was forced to wink at, as being sensible, it was not in his Power to restore him by Force.

By the great Opposition made by the Citizens of London to the Return of Mellitus their late Bishop, it cannot reasonably be imagined that he had made any great Progress in the Conversion of the East Saxons, for, in all Appearance, the Success he met with was owing to the Authority of Ethelbert and Seberht: For upon their Demise, both their Successors and People returned to Paganism: Wherefore the Conversion of the East Saxons cannot properly be dated from this Period, but rather from the Time of Sigbercht the Good, their King, who living in great Amity with Oswy King of Northumberland, frequent Visits passed between them; on which Occasions Oswy failed not zealously to inculcate the spiritual and temporal advantages arising from the Christian Religion; which at last so effectually prevailed upon Sigbercht, that he was baptized in Oswy's Palace, and returning home, brought Cedda, a Northumbrian Priest, along with him, who, upon his Arrival in these Parts, heartily set about the Work of Conversion; wherein he so happily succeeded, that in a short Time he not only made abundance of Profelytes, but likewise built divers Churches; and returning some Time after into Northumberland, to visit Bishop Finan, he was, for his great Zeal and Pains in the Propagation of the Gospel, consecrated a Bishop by the said Finan, whereupon he became the first Saxon Prelate of London.

Ibid.

Ann. 664.

Upon the Murder of Sigbercht, and Demise of Swithelm his Brother, Sighere and Sebba succeeded to the Crown, which they held in Fee of Wulfhere, King of Mercia; at which Time a dreadful Pestilence raged in this City, which carrying off abundance of People, Sighere concluded it was an immediate Judgment sent by the Gods, to punish him and his People for abandoning the Religion of their Ancestors; wherefore he returned to Idolatry, and drew after him such of his Subjects as were not thoroughly confirmed in the Articles of Christianity: But Sebba, his Associate in the Government, with the People immediately under his Care, steadfastly adhered to the Christian Faith.

In the Interim Wulfhere, King of Mercia and Lord Paramount of East Saxony, receiving Advice of the Apostacy of Sighere, sent Faruman, Bishop of Mercia, to endeavour the Recovery of the apostatized King and his People: The Labours of this Prelate were crowned with such Success, that in a short Time he not only regained Sighere and his Subjects to the Faith, but likewise prevailed upon him to destroy all the Pagan Temples and Altars in his Dominions.

Bed. Eccl.
Hist.

Some Time after, Wulfhere, King of Mercia, begun to lord it over his Vassals the East Saxons, gave the first Instance of Simony in this Island, by selling the Bishoprick of London, in the Year 666, to Wini (who had some Time been expelled the Bishoprick of Winchester, by Cenwalch King of the West Saxons) who continued Bishop thereof till the Year 675.

Ibid.

To Wini succeeded Earconwald (the Son of Offa, King of the East Angles). This Bishop is highly celebrated for his great Devotion, and Works of Piety; in the latter of which he spent his Patrimony, by erecting two Monasteries, viz. One at Chertsey upon Thames for Men, and the other at Barking in Essex for Women. He likewise very much enlarged and beautified his Cathedral Church of St. Paul, increased its Revenues, and obtained for it many great Privileges of divers Kings.

Ibid.

Waldker is supposed to have succeeded Earconwald about the Year 685; in whose Time it is pretended, that a Council was held in London, wherein, according to Bale and Magdeburgensis, the Worship of Images and Celibacy of Priests were decreed.

958. Dunstan. This Man had no sooner finished his Studies, than he was recommended to King Athelstan; who sending for him to Court, his Deportment was such, that he was soon expelled the same; but Athelstan, dying some Time after, was succeeded by Edmund, with whom Dunstan had so dextrously ingratiated himself, that he became the sole Director of all his Affairs, and not only continued chief Favourite during his Reign, but likewise so during that of his Successor Edred. But Edwy succeeding to the Crown, could not bear the imperious Behaviour of

of that haughty Abbot; therefore, soon after his Accession, not only banished him the Kingdom, but likewise sequestered the Revenues of the Regulars, his Friends and Followers, in Favour of the Secular Clergy. This Proceeding highly enraged the Monks, to be deprived both of their Patron and Estates at once; who breathed nothing but Revenge against the Authors of their Sufferings, and bitterly inveighed against the Administration of Edwy, till, by their enormous Fallhoods, they persuaded their Votaries, that Edwy was the most impious and abandoned Wretch upon Earth. This soon had the desired Effect; for great Numbers of Malecontents appearing in Mercia, they declared for Edgar the King's Brother, by whose Assistance they not only became Masters of all Mercia, but likewise of all the Countries on the North Side the River Thames (except that of Essex); whereof they no sooner proclaimed Edgar King, than he recalled Dunstan, which made it strongly suspected, that he was the chief Fomentor of the Rebellion.

1 Tim. c. 4.
v. 1 & 3.

Dunstan, highly in Favour again, by soothing the Vices of Edgar, soon got the Ascendant over that cruel and vicious Prince; whereby he was enabled effectually to put in Execution the Pope's diabolical Scheme, by expelling the secular Clergy from their several Benefices, on no other Account than that of their being married; which their Enemies would have regarded as the worst of Crimes, and their Wives to be deemed Whores.

Upon the Demise of Edgar, many of the Nobility, who had in the late Reign with great Impatience beheld the grievous Power and intolerable Insolence of the Monks, embraced this Opportunity to dispossess them of their ill-gotten Livings; but Dunstan having craftily gained divers of the principal to side with him, great Divisions arose, which had like to have ended in Blood. But when they came to deliberate upon the Succession to the Crown, the Breach grew wider, most of the Nobility being for Ethelred, the lawful Successor; but Dunstan, siding with Edward, alledged, he ought to succeed to the Crown, as being thereunto named in Edgar's Will; whereas the principal Motive that induced Dunstan to espouse his Interest, was, that he expected the whole Management of Affairs under Edward, which there was not the least Room to hope for under his Brother Ethelred, seeing his Mother Elfrida had no Veneration for the Monks. Dunstan, in the interim, observing the contrary Party daily to increase, and that it was vastly superior to that of Edward, in an illegal and unprecedented Manner, conducted Edward to Church, and anointed him King, amidst his Brethren the Bishops and a mighty Rabble, without the least Regard to Justice or the adverse Party, who, perceiving that it was not in their Power to prevent it, tamely submitted to the arbitrary and imperious Ministry of the haughty Dunstan.

The Pope and Monks, in Consideration of the many eminent Services done them by Dunstan, have raised him to the Dignity of a Saint, whereby he is intitled to a Place in the Roman Rubric; however, he has, by some good Judges, been removed from thence, and ranked among the vilest of Men.

According to the London Catalogue, Dunstan only held [the Bishoprick of London by way of Commendam, and where he sat Bishop only one Year.

Elfstan succeeded Dunstan about the Year 959, and continued Bishop upwards of thirty Years.

Wulfstan was consecrated Anno 996, and subscribed the Charter of Rocheſter two Years after.

Alfhun, Tutor to the Sons of Ethelred, succeeded Anno 1004.

Alwy was consecrated to this Bishoprick about the Year 1016.

Elfward, the last of the Saxon Bishops, succeeded to the See of London about the Year 1034.

Robert, a Norman, had the Bishoprick of London conferred upon him by Edward the Confessor, Anno 1044.

Upon the Translation of Robert to the Archbishoprick of Canterbury, his Countryman William (the great Friend and Benefactor to the Citizens of London) was by Edward preferred to this See. In some Catalogues of the Bishops of London, this Prelate is said to have died in the Year 1067, and by his monumental Inscriptions, Anno 1070. But that both these Accounts are erroneous, is manifest from an Author of good Authority; who shews, that he was present in two Synods at London in the Years 1072, and 1075, in the last of which he died.

Hugh de Orivalle was, Anno 1075, promoted to this See by William the Conqueror. This Prelate, soon after his Advancement, was seized with a violent Leprosy, who for Cure thereof caused himself to be castrated; but that not having the desired Effect, he continued a Leper during Life.

Maurice, Chaplain and Chancellor to the Conqueror, was by him nominated to the See of London, Anno 1085. Maurice, it seems, had in some sort injured his Cathedral Church; therefore, as an Atonement for the same, he, after the Destruction thereof by Fire, began the Foundation of a magnificent Pile, the Dimensions whereof were so very stupendous, that after a constant Application to the Work for about forty Years, the same appeared to be but little advanced.

Richard de Belmeis, upon the Death of Maurice, was promoted to this Bishoprick in the Year 1108, and soon after by Henry I. constituted Warden of the Marshes of Wales. Richard applied himself very assiduously to the Work of St. Paul's Church, wherein he employed the whole Revenue of his Bishoprick; but observing that the prodigious Work was thereby but little advanced, became weary thereof, and giving over the same, applied himself to the erecting a College of Regular Canons at St. Osyth's in Essex, intended to resign his Bishoprick, and become a Canon in his new Monastery; but deferring to put his Resolution in Execution, he died of the Dead Palsy on the sixteenth of January, Anno 1127.

Gilbert Universalis, a Canon Regular of Lyons in France, being elected to this Bishoprick, was consecrated by William Archbishop of Canterbury, on the 22d of January, Anno 1128. This Bishop has different Characters assigned him by Authors; some say he was a very antient, but a very good Man; and others, that he was very rich and covetous, but a very learned Man; however, he seems to have been a Person of considerable Note, seeing seeing St. Bernard held an Epistolary Correspondence with him; and is said to have died in a Journey to Rome, Anno 1133, by the London Catalogue Anno 1139, and by Stow in 1141. But that these Authors are all mistaken, is manifest by the Annals of Winchester; wherein it plainly appears, that he died on the tenth of August, Anno 1134.

Ibid.

About two Years after the Decease of Gilbert, King Stephen summoned a Council to meet at Westminster, at the Feast of Easter, Anno 1136, when a Faction of the Canons of St. Paul's, in Opposition to the King and the Dean of St. Paul's, chose for their Bishop Anselm, Abbot of St. Edmund, and Nephew to the late Archbishop Anselm; and the more effectually to support their Election, introned him in St. Paul's Cathedral, and furnished him with Money sufficient to procure from Rome a Confirmation of their Choice. But in the Interim, the Dean and his Party were not unmindful of their Interest; for by their repeated Application to the Pope, they obtained a Decree for setting aside the Election; which divesting Anselm of his new Honour, he not without some Difficulty was re-admitted into his former Station of Abbot.

Ibid.

During the Heat of the Civil War, the See of London was by the Pope, with the Consent of King Stephen, committed to the Care of the Bishop of Winchester; till at length Maud the Empress being received into London, Anno 1141, she conferred the same upon Robert de Sigillo, a Monk of Reading; who being soon after taken Prisoner in his House at Fulham, by Geoffrey de Mandeville, (an Officer of King Stephen's) he was by him committed Prisoner to the Tower of London, whence he was obliged to purchase his Liberty at a very high Rate; however, he kept his Bishoprick till his Death, which was occasioned, as 'tis said, by eating preserved Grapes impregnated with Poison, in the Year 1150.

Ibid.

Richard de Belmeis, the second, who was Nephew to his Predecessor of that Name, and Archdeacon of Middlesex; was consecrated by Theobald, Archbishop of Canterbury, on the 28th of September, Anno 1150, and is generally believed to have died on the fourth of May, Anno 1156.

Ibid.

After the Decease of Richard, this See continued vacant upwards of two Years; when Richard Fitzneal of Ely, Canon of St. Paul's, Prebend of Kentish-town, Archdeacon of Colchester and Ely, Dean of Lincoln, and Lord High Treasurer of England, was by Richard I. (in pursuance of his Father's Design) nominated to this Bishoprick, and consecrated Bishop thereof at Lambeth, by Baldwin Archbishop of Canterbury, on the 31st of December, Anno 1158, and, after having assigned all the Titles of his Demeans at Fulham and Horseshoe to St. Paul's School, died on the tenth of September, Anno 1162.

Ibid.

Gilbert Foliot being advanced to the See of London, he was translated hither from that of Hereford, on the 24th of March, Anno 1163, being the first English Bishop that ever was canonically translated from one Bishoprick to another. This Prelate gave a Piece of Ground in St. Paul's Church-yard, whereon to erect a House for the Dean; and when he had continued Bishop of this See twenty-three Years, ten Months, and seventeen Days, died in London on the 18th of February, Anno 1187.

William de Sancta Maria, a Canon of York and of St. Paul's, and Dean of St. Martin's le Grand, was elected Bishop of London, September the sixteenth, Anno 1198, and consecrated at Westminster by Hubert Archbishop of Canterbury on the 23d of May, Anno 1199. He was one of the Bishops that interdicted the Kingdom by Command of the Pope, on the 24th of March 1208, for which he and his Associates were expelled the Nation, for the Term of five Years; whereupon King John caused his Castle at Stortford (now Bishop-Stafford in Hertfordshire) to be demolished. But being returned from Exile, the King, it seems, to make him Amends, gave to him and his Successors for ever, the Manor of Stoke near Guildford in Surrey; and being returned to his Bishoprick, he after having sat above twenty-one Years, on the 26th of January, Anno 1221, voluntarily resigned the same.

Ibid.

Eustace de Fauconberge, Prebend of Holborn, one of the King's Justices, Privy Counsellor to King John and Henry III. by whom he was sent Ambassador twice into France, and afterwards constituted Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lord High Treasurer, was on the 25th of April, Anno 1221, consecrated Bishop of London at Westminster.

Ibid.

In the Year after, a great Difference was compromised between Eustace and the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, on the one Part, and William the Abbot, and Monks of Westminster on the other, by the Arbitration of Stephen, Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishops of Winton and Sarum, and the Priors of Merton and Dunstable; by whom 'twas awarded, that in all Futurity the Monastery of Westminster, and the Church of St. Margaret's adjoining, shall be exempt from the Jurisdiction of the Bishop of London, and the Church of Staines given to the said Abbot and Monks; and the Manor and Church of Sunbury, for ever appropriated to the Bishop of London and Canons of St. Paul's. This my Author takes to be the first Exemption the Church of Westminster ever had, from the Authority of the Bishop of London, notwithstanding the many Charters of pretended Privileges alledged by the Monks.

Ibid.

This Bishop, after having appropriated the Church of Bumsted to the Clerks daily officiating at the Altar of the Virgin Mary, died on the 2d of November, Anno 1228.

Ibid.

Roger Niger, Archdeacon of Colchester, being elected Bishop of London, was consecrated as such on the 10th of June, Anno 1229, at Canterbury, by the Bishop of Rochester, &c. This Prelate is said to have been religious, learned and eloquent, an indefatigable Preacher, courteous, hospitable, and of great Courage; the latter whereof appears by his excommunicating the King's Officers for detaining Walter Bishop of Carlisle at Dover, from going beyond Sea without the King's Permission; and also by his Threatening to anathematize his Majesty's Servants, for violently forcing Hubert de Burg, Earl of Kent, from the Altar. His Menaces had so good an Effect, that Hubert was not only restored to the Place from whence he was taken, but soon after to his Liberty.

This Prelate made an ecclesiastical Constitution, whereby he enjoined the Citizens of London to pay to their respective Parish Priests, on all Sundays and Festivals whose Vigils were to be observed as Fasts, one Farthing for every House of ten Shillings per Annum Rent, a Halfpenny for one of twenty, and for those of forty Shillings one Penny each. The last being the highest Rent mentioned in that Ordinance, it occasioned divers Contests between the Citizens and their Ghostly Fathers; for the obviating of which for the future, the Pope judged it convenient by his Bull to explain the said Constitution, whereby the Citizens were obliged to pay to their several Incumbents on the aforesaid Days a Pound-Rate of one Halfpenny, for the Amount of their respective Rents; which was not only confirmed by a Bull of Pope Nicholas the fifth, but also by an Act of Common Council, which enforced the Citizens to submit to the Decrees of Rome.

In the Year 1255, a mighty Contest happened between Fulk and Rustand the Pope's Legate, who by the King's Permission held a Council of all the Prelates of the Kingdom at London, whom he not only acquainted with the pressing Occasions of the Pope for Money, but likewise with the Method he intended to raise the same; which was of so vile a Nature, as not to be passed over in Silence: viz. The iniquitous Pope caused a great Number of obligatory Notes to be drawn, wherein the several Bishops of England acknowledged to have received of divers Merchants of Sienna, Florence, and other Cities of Italy, certain Sums of Money for the immediate Occasion of their respective Churches, which they severally bound themselves (as mentioned in the said Notes) to repay against a certain Time: Wherefore Endeavours were used to prevail upon, or compel each Man to sign one of those Notes, (as if they had actually received the Money therein-mentioned) upon pain of Excommunication! An Oppression so detestable, that it cannot be paralleled among the most wicked and infamous Tyrants! and this too by a Person who stiled himself Christ's Vicegerent.

Ibid.

This wicked and most iniquitous Proposal greatly alarmed the Council, insomuch that our worthy Prelate and Patriot declared, that rather than submit to such an unjust and tyrannical Oppression, he'd sooner lose his Life. This generous Resolution animated the rest of the Members to such a Degree, that they resolved not to shew the least Regard to the Authority of Rustand, nor his threatened Censures; which so highly enraged the Legate, that he immediately applied to the King for Redress; intimating, that the Bishop of London was the chief Occasion of the Clergy's Disobedience.

The King, no less nettled at the Disappointment than the Legate, fell into a violent Passion with the Bishop, and told him, that since he was neither afraid of his, nor the Pope's Displeasure, he should quickly feel the Effects of both. However, this Menace was so far from intimidating our brave Patriot, that he replied, he was very sensible that his Majesty and the Pope were much more powerful than he; and in case he was deprived of his Mitre, he would soon find a Helmet to wear in its stead.

In the Month of January, Anno 1259, he was elected Bishop of Winchester; which he refused to accept, lest the Plurality of Places, and accumulating of Riches, should draw upon him the Censure and Ill-will of the People. However, towards the Close of the Year, he accepted of the See of London, to which he was consecrated in the Church of St. Mary Overie, by Boniface Archbishop of Canterbury, on the fifteenth of January, An. 1260. During the Vacancy of the See of London after the Death of Henry, the antient Controversy revived between the Archbishop and the Chapter of St. Paul's, concerning Jurisdiction; which was soon adjusted on the 21st of August 1262. City, he at last, with much Difficulty and great Expence, obtained an Absolution; and returning to England, died in the Year 1273; soon after whose Decease, the Controversy was again renewed between the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's concerning the above-mentioned Agreement, but after an Explication thereof, Matters were soon accommodated.

Whart. Hift. de Episc. John de Chisboul, Provost of Beverley, Dean of St. Paul's, and Lord High Treasurer of the Kingdom, was elected Bishop of this See on the 7th of December, Anno 1273, and consecrated at Lambeth the April following; but becoming infirm, was rendered unable to perform his Pastoral Office: Wherefore the Archbishop of Canterbury, in his Metropolitcal Visitation, assigned him the Dean and Treasurer of St. Paul's for his Coadjutors; but their Commission being soon after revoked, Fulk Lovell, Archdeacon of Colchester, was assigned his Coadjutor, Anno 1280, which the Bishop only survived a few Days.

Ibid. After the Decease of John de Chisboul, Fulk Lovell, Prebend of York and Archdeacon of Colchester, as aforesaid, was elected Bishop of London; but renouncing the same, as he had some Time before that of Lincoln, Richard de Gravesend was elected in his stead, and consecrated at Coventry by John Archbishop of Canterbury, August 11, Anno 1280. Soon after a Contest happened between Richard and his Metropolitan, occasioned by the citing of a Rector of his Diocese into the Archiepiscopal Court of Arches, the Bishop insisting that Causes in the first Instance could not be legally brought before the Metropolitan. But this Dispute seems to have been only epistolary.

Ibid. In the Year 1289, the Archbishop of Canterbury appointed as Coadjutor to Richard, the Dean and Treasurer of St. Paul's, not on account of his Incapacity of performing the Office, but rather on that of his being much employed in publick Affairs, both at home and abroad; for, soon after, he was sent Ambassador to France, and at his Return constituted one of the National Regents.

Ibid. This Prelate, Anno 1290, instituted in the Church of St. Paul, the Office of Sub-Dean; and ordained, that the Chancellor of the said Church should read a Divinity Lecture therein; and that for the future none be admitted Chancellors of the same, but such as were either Bachelors or Doctors of Divinity. Richard was a great Benefactor to his Church, wherein he founded a Chantry for the Repose of his Soul; and died on the 9th of December, Anno 1303.

Ibid. Ralph de Baldock, Dean of St. Paul's, was elected to the See of London in the Month of February, Anno 1304. But his Election being controverted by three of the Canons, who had sometime before been suspended, Ralph, to secure his Election, found it necessary to repair to Rome; where having succeeded according to his Wish, he was on his Return consecrated at Lyons in France, by Cardinal Hispanus, on the 30th of January, Anno 1306.

Ibid. This Prelate, who was some time Lord High Chancellor, was eminently distinguished for his Learning, having wrote a History of England, and an Account of the Statutes and Customs of his own Cathedral: He was also eminent for his Generosity, in appropriating the Church of Yelling in Middlesex to the Chancellorship of St. Paul's, reserving only ten Pounds per Annum, as a Stipend for the Vicar. He likewise gave an Annuity of two hundred Marks towards finishing the additional Work of St. Paul's Church, wherein he founded and endowed a Chantry for two Priests, at the Altar of St. Erkenwald; and died July 14, Anno 1313. During Baldock's Government a Provincial Synod was held in this City, Anno 1310, wherein was condemned the Order of Knights Templars, for their scandalous and dissolute Lives; upon which Occasion the whole Fraternity were seized in all Parts of the Kingdom, and committed to Prison.

Gilbert de Seagrave, Canon of Lincoln, Prebendary of Portpool, and Precentor of St. Paul's, was elected Bishop of London on the 17th of August, Anno 1313, and consecrated at Canterbury the 25th of November following by Henry Bishop of Winchester. He re-edified St. Erkenwald's Shrine, and dedicated several Altars in the new Work of St. Paul's; and to fortify the Cross that was to be erected on the towering Spire of his Cathedral against Storms of Wind, Thunder, Lightning, or other Contingencies, put therein a great Quantity of the Reliques of reputed Saints, and died the 15th of January, Anno, 1316.

Richard de Newport, Dean of St. Paul's, was, on the 27th of January, Anno 1317, chosen to succeed to the See of London, and to that end consecrated the 15th of May following, by Walter Archbishop of Canterbury, and died August 24, Anno 1318.

Stephen Gravesend, Prebendary of Wenlakebarn and Chamberlain-Wood, was elected Bishop of London, Sept. 11, Anno 1318, and consecrated by Walter Archbishop of Canterbury on the 14th of January after.

About the Year 1320, Walter Archbishop of Canterbury, having obtained a Power of the Pope for the Inlargement of his Authority, in pursuance thereof ordered a Metropolitcal Visitation throughout his whole Province; which was opposed by Stephen alone, who, appealing to the Pope, refused to admit the same; but being overpowered by the great Interest of his Metropolitan, was forced to submit.

Upon the Death of the said Archbishop, a Contest arose between Stephen and the Convent of Canterbury; the Monks whereof, who antiently enjoyed the Archiepiscopal Jurisdiction during the Vacancy of that See, were, by a Composition of the 24th of June, Anno 1278, to present two fit Persons to the Bishop of London, as Dean of the Province, of whom he was to select one to exercise the said Jurisdiction during the Vacancy: But the Monks proving refractory, chose one of their Brethren to execute that Authority, without ever applying to the Dean, who strenuously opposing their Measures, obliged them to submit, and regulate themselves according to the Tenor of the aforesaid Composition.

Stephen openly opposed the Deposing of Edward II. and refused to qualify himself to his Son and Successor. And upon a Report, that the unfortunate Prince was still alive, (but in reality was barbarously murdered some Time before) tho' in Prison

In the Year 1549, an Information was preferred against Bonner, by William Latimer, B. Beside, he was charged with an Omission of Duty, in not searching after Polygamists, and such Persons who either officiated, or were present at any Forms of Divine Worship, not tolerated by the Government; and that, instead of going to the Sermons at Paul's-Cross, and countenancing the same with his Presence, pursuant to the King's Order, he not only left the Congregation at the Beginning of the Discourse, but likewise writ to the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of the City to persuade them to do the like: Wherefore a Commission was directed to Thomas Cranmer, Archbishop of Canterbury, Nicholas Ridley, Bishop of Rochester, Sir William Petre, and Sir Thomas Smith, Secretaries of State, and Dr. Williams, Dean of St. Paul's, before whom Bonner appeared at Lambeth, and, being convicted of the several Charges brought against him, was, on the first of October, Anno 1549, deprived of his Bishoprick.

Yet Bonner, in Expectation of being restored, subtly applied to the King, by way of Petition, wherein he fraudulently set forth his sincere and hearty Attachment to his Majesty, tho' the very Reverse had just before appeared upon his Trial. But this Artifice not succeeding, Nicholas Ridley, Bishop of Rochester, was preferred to this See in his Stead, where he was inthron'd April the 12th, Anno 1550. But upon the Accession of Queen Mary to the Crown, Ridley was not only deprived of his Bishoprick, but likewise committed to Prison, and try'd and condemned at Oxford for the sincere and constant Profession of his Faith, for which he was burnt October the 16th, Anno 1555. This pious Prelate, thro the whole Course of his Sufferings, behaved with such an admirable Patience and Resolution, as even shocked the most cruel of his Persecutors.

Ridley being removed, Bonner was restored to his Bishoprick September the 5th, Anno 1553, when, after having glutted himself about five Years with Human Gore, by a grievous Persecution of the Protestants, was, on the 30th of May, Anno Edmund Grindal, some Time Master of Pembroke Hall in Cambridge, Chaplain to the late Bishop Ridley, and Precentor of St. Paul's, after a voluntary Exile in Germany on the Account of Religion, during the Reign of Queen Mary, was, at his Return, elected Bishop of this See, July the 26th, Anno 1556, where, after he had sat above ten Years, he was translated to York, in the Month of May, Anno 1570.

This Prelate, for his rare Qualities, was in great Favour with Queen Elizabeth, till dispossessed thereof by the malicious Insinuations of his Enemies, who represented him to her Majesty as too great a Favourer of her dissenting Subjects the Puritans; whereas in Truth the real Cause was, for his having condemned the illegal Marriage of Julio, an Italian Physician, with the Wife of another, wherein he was strongly opposed by the Earl of Leicester, who, it seems, approved of the same.

Ibid.

This worthy Prelate employed the little Wealth he had gathered together in the founding and endowing a Free-School at St. Bee's in Cumberland, the Place of his Nativity; and towards the Advancement of Learning in both Universities. And having been re-translated from the See of York to that of Canterbury, February the 15th, Anno 1575, died at Croydon in Surrey, July the 6th, Anno 1583.

Edwin Sandys, Master of Catbarine-Hall in Cambridge, and Vice-Chancellor of that University, interesting himself in the Proclamation of the Lady Jane Grey, was committed to Prison, where, after a long Durels, he was, at the Intercession of Friends, released, and withdrawing into Germany, resided there during the Life of Queen Mary; and returning to England upon Queen Elizabeth's Accession to the Crown, had the See of Worcester conferred upon him, to which he was consecrated December 21, Anno 1559, whence he was translated to this of London, June 2, Anno 1570, where after he had sat six Years, was preferred to that of York, wherein he died August the 8th, Anno 1588.

John Aelmer, Chaplain to Henry Duke of Norfolk, was, in the Year 1553, made Archdeacon of Stow; but not conforming himself according to the Times, was deprived of his Archdeaconry, and retiring into Germany, continued there till the Death of Queen Mary, and Accession of Queen Elizabeth, by whom he was appointed one of the Protestant Disputants against seven Popish Bishops in a religious Controversy. He was made Archdeacon of Lincoln, Anno 1562, and March 12, 1576, elected Bishop of London, and on the 24th of the same Month consecrated at Lambeth.

Aelmer was a great Enemy to the Puritans whom he opposed to the utmost of his Power, notwithstanding his having been an Exile himself on the Account of Religion. He died June 3, Anno 1584.

Richard Fletcher, Prebendary of Islington, and Dean of Peterborough, was sent down to Fotheringhay in Northamptonshire, in order to assist Mary Queen of Scotland in her Devotions, and likewise to prevail upon her to renounce the Errors of Popery before she suffered.

Upon Fletcher's Arrival at Fotheringhay, the unfortunate Princess was deprived of her Almoner, Confessor, and all spiritual Assistance of her own Communion; and, in lieu thereof, had Fletcher forced upon her, to her great Displeasure and Disturbance in her Devotion, by the Company of a Minister whose Religion she abhorred; yet nevertheless she was cruelly and ungenerously denied the Assistance of her Confessor in her last Moments.

Some Time after, Fletcher was elected Bishop of London, December 30, Anno 1594, but having the Misfortune to fall under the Queen's Displeasure for taking the Lady Baker, a beautiful young Widow, to his second Wife, died soon after suddenly, (as 'tis said, by Discontent, and the immoderate Use of Tobacco) June 15, Anno 1596.

This Prelate having the Misfortune at Bramzil, to kill the Keeper, instead of a Buck, was so deeply affected therewith, that he retired, in the most inconsolable Condition, to Guildford, the Place of his Nativity, where he spun out the Thread of his sorrowful Life, and died August 4, Anno 1633.

Henry Compton, youngest Son of Spencer Earl of Northampton, was translated from Oxford to London, December 18, 1675. This worthy Prelate, by his good Deportment, having gained the Love of the Protestant Churches both at Home and Abroad, became the Butt of the Popish Party at Court, who watched all Opportunities to ennoble their new Ecclesiastical Commission with an illustrious Sacrifice. For King James, to facilitate the Introduction of Popery, ordered certain Directions concerning Preachers, published in the Year 1662, to be reprinted, and for the better Observation thereof, wrote to the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, strictly to prohibit all Ministers in their respective Provinces from preaching upon controverted Points of Religion, in order to prevent the Protestant Clergy from defending their Principles in the Pulpit, whilst the Popish Priests were encouraged to attack them on all Sides. However, the Clergy of the Church of England, (without regarding the King's insnaring Letter, or the Menaces attending it) to their immortal Honour be it remembered, laudably continued to exert themselves in Defence of the Protestant Religion, and to detect the Errors of Popery, both in their Sermons and Writings, with greater Resolution, than ever had at any other Time been done since the Reformation: Upon this Occasion, the learned and ingenious Dr. Sharp, Rector of St. Giles's in the Fields, did signalize himself in an extraordinary Manner; which so enraged King James, that he sent a Letter to the Bishop of London, peremptorily commanding him, upon the Receipt thereof, to suspend Dr. Sharp from preaching in any Church or Chapel in his Diocese, till he should make Satisfaction for his bad Deportment.

The Bishop perceiving the Design of the King's Letter was absolutely to forbid all preaching against Popery, the Result whereof, in all Probability, would be the Suspension of all the celebrated Preachers of the Kingdom: Wherefore our noble Prelate endeavoured to divert the impending Storm, by the following submissive Letter to the Earl of Sunderland, to be communicated to the King, which he sent by the pretended Aggressor, Dr. Sharp, to Hampton-Court, June 18, Anno 1686.

My Lord,

"I always have, and shall count it my Duty
"to obey the King in whatever Commands he lays "upon me, that I can perform with a safe Con"science; but in this I humbly conceive, I am "obliged to proceed according to Law, and there"fore it is impossible for me to comply, because,
"though his Majesty commands me only to exe"cute his Pleasure, yet, in the Capacity I am to "do it, I must act as a Judge; and your Lord"ship knows no Judge condemns any Man be"fore he has Knowledge of the Cause, and has "cited the Party. However, I sent to Mr. Dean,
"and acquainted him with his Majesty's Displea-
"sure, whom I find so ready to give all reasona"ble Satisfaction, that I have thought fit to make "him the Bearer of this Answer, from him that "never will be unfaithful to the King, nor other"wise than, &c."

No Answer could be obtained to this Letter; therefore Dr. Sharp the Sunday following endeavoured to present a Petition to the King, which was rejected, on a Resolution taken to execute the King's Displeasure upon the Bishop; and in order thereunto, Compton was cited to appear before the Commissioners of a new-erected, illegal and arbitrary Ecclesiastical High Commission Court, held in the Council Chamber at Whitehall; where having accordingly appeared, and begged Copies of their Commission and his Charge, both were unjustly denied, and only a Week's Time allowed him to prepare for his Trial, though at that Time there was not one Civilian in Town; wherefore his Lordship found himself necessitated humbly to apply for a longer Time; when after some Deliberation, the Commissioners returned him for Answer, that they were resolved to allow him no Time to controvert their Commission; but in other Matters granted him a Fortnight longer.

In the Interim, the Bishop humbly applied for Copies of the several Orders and Minutes that had had been taken relating to his Process, which were likewise unjustly denied, though never refused in any Court of Justice. However, the Bishop, at the Time and Place prefixed, appeared before the Commissioners, to offer his Plea to their Jurisdiction; which being rejected, he protested against their not receiving it; and offering divers other Things material to his Defence, they were likewise rejected, and the Commissioners in an arbitrary and illegal Manner proceeded to give Sentence; whereby the Bishop was suspended from the Function and Execution of his Episcopal Office, and all Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, during the King's Pleasure, upon Pain of Deprivation. However the pusillanimous King, not long after, thought proper to consult Compton, and some of his Brethren, upon the threatened Invasion from Holland; and they having faithfully delivered their Opinions at that critical Juncture, he thought proper to accept of their Advice, which at another Time would have been rewarded with Suspensions and Deprivations.

Our Prelate, soon after the Prince of Orange's Landing, seems to have changed his Crossier for a Sword; for, mounted on Horseback, compleatly armed, he attended the Princess Anne (since Queen Anne) of Denmark in her Escape from Court to Nottingham, and afterward exerted himself in accomplishing the Revolution, Anno 1688, the Fruits whereof he happily enjoyed till the Year 1713.

John Robinson, at first Domestick Chaplain to the English Ambassador at the Court of Sweden, upon the Return of his Master to England, was appointed Resident, and soon after Envoy Extraordinary, by King William, wherein he was continued by Queen Anne; by whom, upon his Arrival in England, he was made Dean of Windsor, Register of the Garter, and Prebendary of Canterbury; and in the Year 1710, preferred to the See of Bristol, and the Office of Lord Privy Seal, one of her Majesty's Plenipotentiaries at the Congress of Utrecht, Privy Counsellor, and one of the Commissioners for building fifty new Churches within the Bill of Mortality; and upon the Decease of Dr. Henry Compton, Anno 1713, was preferred to the See of London, wherein he died in the Year 1723.

Edmund Gibson was in the same Year translated from the See of Lincoln to this of London.

He was descended of honest Parentage in the County of Cumberland; and by his Learning ingratiated himself so thoroughly with Archbishop Tenison, that he was admitted his Chaplain, made Rector of Lambeth, and by his Recommendation to King George I. consecrated Bishop of Lincoln, and thence translated, as he says in his first Pastoral Letter to the Clergy of London, without his own seeking to the See of London. He in his younger Days distinguished himself among the Clergy, by several Pieces wrote in the Controversy between the Archbishop and the Convocation: And afterwards by his Collection of the Ecclesiastical Laws in that voluminous Work, called by him the Codex. He published several Pastoral Letters to the People of his Diocese of London, occasioned by the Impiety of Woolston's Writings, and the Enthusiasm of the Methodists; besides some Pieces of Devotion. He died in the Year 1748, and is succeeded by Dr. Thomas Sherlock, translated from the See of Salisbury.

The Bishoprick of London, consisting of the ancient Kingdom of the East-Saxons, is composed of the Counties of Middlesex, Essex, and Part of Hertfordshire, and governed by a Bishop, assisted by a Dean, Precentor, Chancellor, Treasurer, five Archdeacons, thirty Prebendaries, twelve Petty or Minor Canons, six Vicars Choral, a Sub-Dean and two Cardinals.

The Precentor or Chanter's Office is to superintend the Church Music, who, as an Assistant, has a Sub-Chanter to officiate in his Absence. To this Officer belongs the second Stall on the North Side of the Choir, and whose Corps is in the Church of Stortford, whereof he is perpetual Rector, and Proprietor of the same, and Patron of the Vicarage.

The Chancellor was anciently called Magister Scholarum, from his having had the Charge of Literature within the City of London committed to him; whereby he was empowered to licence all the School-masters in the City, except those of St. Mary le Bow and St. Martin's le Grand; but at present he is only Secretary to the Chapter, has the third Stall on the North Side of the Choir, and his Corps in the Church of Borham and Telling.

The Treasurer has the Custody of every Thing of Value belonging to the Cathedral Church of St. Paul; for the faithful Keeping of which he is bound by Oath to the Dean and Chapter. This Officer has a Sacrist for an Assistant, whom he presents to the Dean for his Approbation, by whom he is admitted upon Oath for the faithful Discharge of his Office, which is to open the Church Doors at first ringing the Bell for Morning and Evening Prayers, and keeping in Order all things belonging to the Altar.

The Sacrist has three Servants under him called Vergers, who likewise keep Servants for cleansing the Church, tolling the Bell, blowing the Organ Bellows, and other servile Business.

The Treasurer has the third Stall on the South Side of the Choir, and his Corps is in the Church of Pelham and Aldebri.

The five Archdeaconries are of London, Essex, Middlesex, Colchester and St. Alban's.

The Appellation of Archdeacon is of primitive Antiquity, and whose Office it is annually to visit the several Cures in their respective Archdeaconries, by inquiring into the Deportment of the several Incumbents, as well as Parish Officers, and with ghostly Advice to reform what is amiss; and in Case of Contumacy, to inflict Pains and Penalties, for which he receives Procuration from every Parish Priest within his Jurisdiction.

The thirty Canons or Prebendaries, with their Head the Bishop, compose the Chapter, which manageth the Affairs of the Church: These Canons have the Election both of Bishop and Dean, yet nevertheless the several Prebends or Canonries are in the Collation of the Bishop, and are as follow: Holwell alias Finbury, in the Parishes of St. Giles Cripplegate and Shoreditch; Chamberlain's-Wood, in the Parish of Willesdon, in the County of Middlesex; Holbourn, in the Suburbs of London; Harleston, in the Parish of Willesdon, in Middlesex; Portpool,

There are likewise two Officers chosen out of the Petty Canons, by the Dean and Chapter, who are denominated Cardinals of the Choir; whose Office it is to superintend the Behaviour and Attendance given by the several Officers belonging to the Choir; and to minute the several Crimes they are guilty of when on Duty, in order to their being corrected for the same by the Dean and Chapter.

CHAP. VI.

An Account of the Military Government of London.

Chron.
Sax.

Though the Origin of the Military Government of London cannot be ascertained, it nevertheless appears to be of great Antiquity;

for in the Year 896, the London Auxiliaries, having joined Alfred, marched to dislodge the Danes from a Place in Hertfordshire, supposed to have been the Town of Hertford. Therefore it is highly probable, that if a Military Government was not at first settled in this City by that great Prince; yet that the same was re-established by him after the Reduction thereof from the Danes, in the Year 883, I think may reasonably be presumed; since which Time, by the many gallant Actions performed by the Citizens, in the most dangerous Enterprizes, we may reasonably conclude, that they have always had the greatest Regard to the Support of the Military Art, seeing their Lives and Fortunes so often thereon depended.

But the Citizens being greatly harrassed with incessant Exercises, and endless expensive Musters, occasioned many of the most experienced in Military Discipline to form themselves into a Company; which in less than two Years consisted of almost three hundred of the principal Citizens, who by their frequent Exercises, became such Adepts in that Art, that they were capable of instructing others in all the Branches thereof; wherefore they assumed the Appellation of the Artillery Company.

In the Year 1585, a great Storm began to gather in Spain, which threatened no less than the intire Destruction of this Kingdom; divers Citizens of London, of great Experience in Military Affairs, were by Order of the Government taken out of this Company, and, to their great Honour, were appointed Officers in several Parts of the Kingdom; by whose Care and indefatigable Application, the Militia in most Parts were put into a good State of Defence.

In this Time of common Danger, the City of London, (not less mindful of the common Safety, than her above-mentioned brave Sons) the more effectually to prevent all sudden and traiterous Attempts, that might be made by Papists and other Enemies of the Government in favour of the Spaniards, in the Year 1586, drew up the following Regulations, intituled,

The Manner of ordering the Citizens of London, to the Safe-keeping and Defence of that her Majesty's City, against the traiterous and sudden Attempts of all Conspirators and Traitors whatsoever.

"1. That every Alderman of his Warde, assisted with the gravest Inhabitants there, do gather and register the Names of all such Household-ers, their Children and Servants, as dwell in the same Warde, who openly profess and shewe themselves to love the Gospel, and hate Poperie, being of sufficient Wealthe to maynteyne their own State, and able to beare Armes.

"2. That of the most apte of those Cittizens, there be chosen out for special Leaders (every of them to lead five and twenty of his Neighbours dwelling next him); and that there be so manye of those Leaders, as after that Rate shall be sufficient to lead four or five thousand Men, or more, or less, as shall be thought meete; and that the said Number of Men be chosen out of those, to be registred as aforesayd.

"3. That of the most Valiant, Grave and Wise amonge the sayd registred Cittizens, there be

“be chosen Captaynes of Bandes, every of them “under severall Ensignes; to receive Tenne of
“the sayd speciall Leaders, with every of them
“his five and twenty Men. So shall there be
“two hundred and fifty Men under an Ensigne;
“and that they have their severall Ensignes ac“cordinglye.

“4. That of the sayd Cittizens there be cho“sen to serve under everie suche of their Cap“taynes. their severall Lyvetenantes, Ensigne“bearers, and Sergeantes, with a fit Drumster:
“And that there be assigned a Place certen
“to every Captayne, whereunto he shall resort
“upon any Sudden Alarme. And that he know
“all his Officers, and those petty Leaders espe“ciallie appointed, to bring his Men thither to “him. And likewise, that those Officers and Le“aders know the same Place, and their Captayne.

“5. That after suche Election and Appoint“ment as aforesayd, everie one applye himself
“to learn and know how to exercise their feve“ral Offices and Roomes, as apperteyneth. And “that everie Houfholder have readie in his Howse
“all Weapons, and Furniture, for himself, and “those of his Howse to be appointed in his Service.

“6. That the Watches for the Nighte be kepte
“according to the former Order; but the same
“to be of more sufficient Persons. And that es“peciallie there be at every Gate a Watche, from “nine of the Clocke at Nighte till six in the “Morning, for the Wynter; and from ten to “five in the Sommer; and that the Portcullises
“at everie Gate be surveyed, and made readie to “use at any Suddeyn, yf any Nede be.

“7. That inasmuch as that Syde of the Cytie “next the River lyeth open; that therefore “from the Tower to Brydewell, they do appoint all “alongest a sufficient Number of Watche-howfes;
“and therein nightlie to be good Watches, to “come and continue as at the Gate. And that “all pryvate Kayes, Alleys, and Wharfes, dur“ing the Howers aforesayd, be close shut upp.

“8. That as thendes of Streets be prepared “Chaynes, as shall be thought needfull, for inter“rupting thentrie and Passage of anye Adversarie.

“9. For quenching of sudden Fiers, yt will be “necessarie to have a thousand trustie Persons “to carry Leather Bucketts and Ladders; and “that to them of the graver Cittizens, there be “appoynted Leaders, to lead them as Nede may “be, by hundreds and fifties, for to be ready to “releve anye fiered Place. And that likewise, “under like Leading, there be appointed five “hundred Pyoners, with Mattocks and Shovels, “ready to make Trenches, and Rampyers at “all Occasions.

“10. That the whole ordering and disposing
“of the Premises be at the Direction of the Lord-“Maier, Sheriffs and Aldermen, and such grave
“Persons as they shall take and chuse of the sayd “Cytte to assiste them; and so from Tyme to “Tyme, and not otherwise.

“11. That upon any Alarme to be geven, “everye Captayne forthwith to repayre to his “appointed Place, and all his Officers and the “severall Leaders, with their five and twenty “Men apeece, forthwith to resort that Place,
“to their special appointed Captayne. And two

“of those Captaynes being placed next to the “Lord-Maier's Howse for the Tyme being,
“with both their Bandes, to repayre ymmediately “to his Lordship. And to either of the She“riffs in like sorte, to repayre one severall Cap“tayne, with his severall Bande; and all other “Captaynes and their Companies to remayne at “their appointed Places, till they receive Order “from the Maier. And that in such case one “general Watch-word be geven to every Sol“dier; and that they have some special Token, “whereby everye of them may be knowen one
“to another.

“12. That upon any Shewe, or Suspicion of “any dangerous Attempt descry'd or perceyved
“by any of the Watches; that then forthwith
“they shall geve Knowledge thereof to the Lord-“Maier, and Sheriffs, and to everye Alderman, “or his Deputie, in the severall Wardes; that they “may call so many to Armes, as in case by them “shall be thought convenient and sufficient.

“13. That upon any Alarme, or Warning
“geven, everie Inhabitant prepare and have rea“die in his Howse a Lanthorne with Lighte
“ready to hang oute, when by Authoritie it “shall be so commanded.

“14. That straighte Order be taken, that yf
“any Alarme be proclaymed, that no Masters
“of Houses goe noe further than the Street Dores
“of their Howses; and that no Servante, or “other (upon grevous Payne) do then issue into “the Streete, except the Lord-Maier, Alder“men, Sheriffs, Captaynes, Leaders, Officers “and Soldiers aforesayd, and their Buketiers and “Pyoners, and their Leaders; and suche others
“as shall be especiallie called or commanded by “the Lord-Mayor or Sheriffes.

“15. That one of the Watche-howfes at the “Waterfyde be nere the Engine there that serv-“eth the Cytie with Water; for that above all “other is most present, and abundant to that “Purpose, and most ready for quenching Fyer,
“and therefore is specially to be guarded.

“16. That such Recusants as have greate “Houses and Lodgings within the Liberties of “the Citty; and likewise all dangerous and “suspicious Persons to the State, may by her “Majestie's Authority be remov'd from lodging “within the Walles of the Citty (or Suburbs, “yf that may be); for those Houses are like
“to harbour and cover dangerous Persons, to be “nearer and readier to make suddeyn Invasion
“upon the Citty.

“17. That some special Consideration may “be had of all Strangers, having Howses in the “City, and which are not of the French or Dutche
“Churches; and that some Order may be sette “downe, especiallie concerning them, as in this “Tyme and State shall be found requisite.”

The Queen having received repeated Advices of the prodigious Preparations carried on in Spain, for the Reduction of England, occasioned her Majesty to redouble her Diligence in putting the Kingdom into a good State of Defence, but especially her capital City of London; wherefore the Privy Council ordered Edmund York (a Gentleman, who, by his long Service in the Low Countries, had attained to a very great Knowledge in
the

the Art Military) to give his Opinion how the same could the most effectually be put in Execution. Wherefore York, in Obedience to their Lordships Order, drew up the following Rules, to be made use of for the better Defence of the City, in Case of Necessity.

An Order to be observed for the marshalling of the City of London into a true Form of Discipline, to be used in Time of Occasion.

“ Considering the auncient Government of the “ Citie hath alwayes depended on the Lord-Maior,
“ and his Brethren; which Course hath alwayes “ been found so pleasinge to our Prynces, and “ liking to the People, as to alter were inconven“ nient; if therefore your Lordships shall please “ rather to give them some Authority (by your “ Directions) Marshall, then to derogate anye “ thinge from them, it will animate them in their “ Accounts and Expences: Which Authoritie “ shall contynue till her Majesty and your Lord“ ships shall please to the contrary. Yet con“ sideringe their Professions and Nurritures not to “ performe these Actions; therefore to joine unto
“ the Maior’s Authority some Man of Judgment, “ Experience, and Fidelitie, it were convenient,
“ as Marshall; by whose Advice, with the Maior’s “ Consent, all Causes Marshall shall be directed:
“ Then a Serjeant-Maior and a Provost, the one
“ to marshall the Men, and the other to do Jus“ tice; wherein the French truly saith, that three “ Things mayneteyne the Warres: Which is,
“ Bon Chief, Bonne Burse, & Bon Burreau, mean“ ing Justice; all which may be well performed
“ in the Citie: For the Chief, or Marshall, being “ appointed by your Lordships, there is no doubt “ of his Sufficiency, upon whom the greatest “ Weight of Burthen must lie. The Purse, con“ sidering the Charges so small, it will soon be “ performed. The Justice, by your Lordships “ Directions, and the Provost’s Diligence, shall “ be duely administred. So as all Things shall “ proceede to the Glory of God, to the Honour
“ of her Majestie, and to the Benefit of the Peo“ ple. Object they canne not, for that the “ Charges is defrayed by the Entertainment “ only of three Persons: So as no doubt of “ the Allowance, in respect to Charges. For “ infringing the Liberties and Privileges, your “ Lordships do give them more than ever they “ had. For Reputation and Trust, her Majestie “ and your Lordships do put Armes, and the “ managing of Armes, into their Hands: So as
“ no doubt but of a most gracious Acceptance
“ and Acknowledgment of so an especiall gracious “ Favour and Trust, and may justly saye them“ selves to be the happiest People of the World,
“ in having so gracious a Prynce; who, contra-“ rie to the Policie of all other Prynces, (who “ disarme their Subjects) doth put Armes, and “ managing of Armes, into their Handes. O “ blessed Prynce, and happie People! By how “ much therefore are we more bound to her “ Majestie, than any other Subjects of the World “ to their Prince; by as much as our Lives, our “ Wives, our Children, our Goods, our Free-
“ dome, and Posterity is worth!

“ The Marshall, Serjeant-Maior, and Pro“ vost, being by your Lordships appointed, the “ first Thing they are to doe (after the receivinge “ of their Commissions from your Lordships) is “ to make a Review general of all the Armes and “ Munition within the City and Suburbes, and “ thereof to informe your Lordships.

“ The next is, to make a Review of all the “ Garners of Corne, as well in private Houses,
“ as in common Magasyns, not onely of Corne,
“ but of all manner of Victuals, and thereof en-
“ forme your Lordships.

“ These Reviewes made by the Maior, his “ Brethren, and Marshall, (to whom all Provision “ of Munition, Armes, and Victuall belongeth)
“ then shall they warne everie common Mer“ chant of Corne, to have such a Quantity; and “ to every common Baker and Brewer, to have “ alwayes in a Readynes such a Quantitie of “ Corne, as he uttereth in forty Days, over and “ above his ordinary uttering. And so shall “ geve like Order of Provision to every severall “ Person, that lives and gaynes by felling of “ Victuals. As for the Marchant of Armes and “ Munitions, the Baker, the Brewer, the Butcher,
“ and all other Trades, have a contynual Getting;
“ so let them be bound to have an Overplus
“ alwayes in their Handes, to serve her Majestie,
“ and to susteyne themselves, upon any Occasion
“ of Warres, Dearth, or the Sustenance of di“ stressed Friendes.

“ This done, the City shall be divided into
“ so many Quarters as there is fiftene hundred “ Men; in everie Quarter shall be chosen one “ Colonell, a Man there dwellinge, and a Citi“ zen of Honestie, Reputation and Wealth, “ elected by the Maior and Marshall, (after your “ Lordships Allowance) who shall have under “ hym tenne Captaynes, all Dwellers in that “ Quarter; and everie Captayne shall have a “ hundred and fiftie Men, all Inhabitants of “ that Quarter; which shall be either the Houf-“ holder, his Sonne, or his continewd Ser“ vant. Provided that the Collonells be none “ of the Aldermen; because they are already “ chosen to the Civill Government.

“ The Regiment being all Dwellers together
“ in one Quarter, doth make the Collonell’s Go“ vernment easie, and makes the Assemblie of “ the Souldiers speedie.

“ The Collonells chosen, and the Quarters di“ vided, then shall everie Collonell choose six “ Captaynes, which shall be allowed by the “ Maior and Marshall, (after they have inform“ ed your Lordships) being all Dwellers in the “ Collonell’s Quarter.

“ After the Captaynes chosen, the Lord-Maior,
“ his Brethren, and the Marshall, shall deliver
“ so many Householders, their Sons, or con-“ tynewd Servants, as will furnish everie Cap“ tayne one hundred and fiftie Men with Wea“ pons, thus divided: That is, eight Halbar“ diers, sixty armed Pikes, thirty Musketeers,
“ and fiftie Harquebusiers; and the two odd “ Men shall be for the Sergeants. For to put “ into these trayned Companyes any Archers,
“ or superfluous Number of short Weapons, it
“ were inconvenient; for that the Multitude, “ upon any Alarum, will come furnished with “ those Weapons; and therefore to teach that
“ by Art, which Nature gives, were Tyme lost;
“ and

“ and to charge a People with that which is not “ wanting, were frivolous.

“ The Companies furnished, as aforesayd,
“ then the Sergeant-Maior, or his Corporals, shall “ visit every Man's particular Furniture in their “ private Houses; as well to see the Goodness “ of their Arms, as to see it in Order, lest they “ should dishonour their Commanders, for not “ performing that which apperteynes to Men of “ Judgment and Souldiers to doe.

“ After your Armes provided and reviewed,
“ a Muster-general of all the Army shall be held,
“ in some convenient Place; at which Musters “ shall only be the Shew of the Men, with their “ Armes, without any Exercise; which shall be “ held in the Presence of such honourable Per“ sons as your Lordships shall appoint, joined “ with the Maior, his Brethren, the Marshall,
“ and Sargeant-Maior: At which Tyme, the “ Marshall, Sargeant-Maior, and Provost shall “ be presented unto all the Collonells, Captaynes,
“ and Souldiers, and their Commissions pub“ lished.

“ When your Collonells, Captaynes, and Soul-“ diers know this, then everie Night, at six of “ the Clock, shall five Companies of severall “ Regiments put themselves in Armes; and so “ with their Ensignes shall marche unto the “ Exchange, and there stand in Battell a Quar“ ter of an Houre: To whom the Marshall shall “ come with the Word, which he shall take from “ the Maior, who shall have it from her Majestie
“ (if she be neare London); which the Marshall “ shall deliver to the Sargeant-Maior, with “ great Duty and Respect; and who shall give “ it to the Captain of the Watch, and to everie “ Officer that is in Garde that Night. After the “ Word delivered, a Prayer for her Majestie's “ Estate and Kingdome, the Lord's Prayer shall “ be sayed. Then the Sargeant-Maior shall put “ five Billets in a Hatt, which the Captaynes that “ are in Garde drawe for their Places of gar“ ding; so as he that draweth the Billet of the “ Exchange, shall that Night be Capitaine of the “ Watche; he that drawes the Billet of the “ Bridge, shall garde it, and St. Catheryne's Gate
“ by the Tower; he that drawes Aldgate, shall “ garde it, and Bishopsgate; he that drawes Cree“ plegate, shall garde it, and Aldersgate; he that “ draws Newgate, shall garde it, and Ludgate;
“ as for Moorgate, it is no Avenew, but a Pas“ sage, as the Posterne and Grave-Fryers are.
“ Why I divide the Companies into two Gardes, “ is, for not overtoylinge the Souldiers, being “ Men of Trade; for by this Meanes, they garde
“ but once in twenty Dayes, which else would “ come everie tenne Dayes.

“ When the Companies are thus entered into “ Garde, the chief Cor de garde, for the Cap“ taine of the Watche, shall be kept at the Ex“ change, by his whole Companye; and the “ other Cor de gards, at the Gates, by Half-“ Companies. Upon everie Cor de garde, shall “ continually stand in Armes five or six Soul-“ diers; who shall be relieved every Half-hour.
“ And considering the continually Stirring and “ Travayle that is in London, it shall not be in“ convenient to shut the Gates till tenne of the “ Clocke, or after; and then at eleven, to put

VOL. NUMB. CIV.

“ forth the Centinells; which ought to be placed “ upon the Walles, as near as they may be;
“ and so shall stand centenelled tyll three in the “ Morninge, and shall be changed everie “ Houre; and everie Half-houre they shall “ make the Round; which is the surest Garde
“ in the World. But considering how impossi“ ble it is to place the Centenells, by reason “ of the disorderlye and dangerous Building of “ Houses, which are upon the Walles; by which “ Meanes I have known many Townes sur-“ prized, and great Intelligence passed, to their “ utter Ruine; for where your Centenells canne
“ not come to the Walles, nor your Round
“ have free Passage, it is impossible of any cer-“ ten Safetie: Which Manner of Building ought “ carefully to be looked unto, especially in any “ Place of Importance, as the Towers and such “ like Forts are. Therefore must the Centenells “ be placed in the Streetes; who, after they “ are once pozed, shall not suffer any to pass “ without the Worde. Which Manner of severe “ Gardinge shall be used tyll the Companies “ have one all gone over: Which is onelye to “ teache them to know how to stande upon “ their Gardes; during which Tyme onelye the “ Gattes shall be shutt, and the Keyes delivered “ to the Maior; and no Man to come in, but “ by Commandment from your Lordships, is as “ good and orderly Forme, as in any Towne of “ Warre.

“ And the Orders and Ordynances for this “ Disciptyne shall be published by the Provost
“ that in offending no Man pleade Ignorance
“ hereafter. At this Muster, a perfect Rolle “ shall be made by some sufficient Person, of all “ Persons and Weapons in their Army; which “ shall be delivered to your Lordships, and re“ gistered in Guildhall. And at these Musters “ everie Collonell shall bringe his Stampe and “ Marke particular, with the which everie Cor“ net, Pike, Harquebuz, Musket, Mufrion,
“ and Furniture of his Regiment shall be “ marked, to avoyde this unmeet Lending of “ Armes; whereby they neglect their Duties to “ her Majestie, dishonour their Commanders,
“ and utterly deceave themselves. I remember “ when I was first brought up in Piemount, in “ the Count of Brisack's Regiment of the Old “ Bandes, we had our particular Calibre of “ Harquebuz to our Regiment; both that for “ one Bullet should serve all the Harquebuzes of “ our Regiment, as for that our Collonell would “ not be deceived of his Armes: Of which “ Worde of Calibre, came first this unapt Term
“ we use to call a Harquebuz a Calliver;
“ which is the Height of the Bullet, and not
“ of the Piece. Before the Battell of Moun“ gunter, the Prynces of the Religion caused fe“ ven thousand Harquebuzes to be made, all of “ one Calibre; which were called Harquebuz du “ Calibre de Monsieur le Prince. So as I think “ some Man not understandinge Frenche, brought “ hither the Name of the Height of the Bullet “ for the Piece: Which Worde of Calibre, is “ yet continued with our good Cannoniers.

“ After the Musters passed, the Maior, the “ Marshall, and the Sargeant-Maior shall ride “ round about the Citie, to see all the Wayes,

“or Avenues that come into the Towne, to “looke what Places are most fitt to place Gardes “upon, what Streetes are most convenient to “make Places of Armes, or Rendevous general,
 “for Assembly upon any Alarum in; which “I think will be most necessary in two Places:
 “That is, one Place of Assembly shall be at “Leadenhall; which answeres Aldgate, Bishopsgate,
 “the Bridge, and directly into London.
 “The other shall be without Newgate; which “answeres Holbourn, Smithfield, Ludgate, and “directly into London. To everie one of these “Rendevouses shall, upon any Alarum, assemble “five Companies of five particular Regiments;
 “The other five Companies of every one of “those five Regiments shall be thus employed;
 “that is, one Company shall go to Aldgate, an-“ther to Bishopsgate, and the other three Com“panies of the Regiment shall stand in Armes
 “in their Quarter, tyll the Marshall, or Sar“geant-Maior shall command them; so as,
 “upon any sodeyne Alarum, your Soldiers “knowe whither and how to assemble without “Confusion; which is a Matter of great Weight.
 “By this Means, your Lordships have two “whole Companies at everie Gate, twenty Com“panies at either of the Places of Assembly,
 “and one Companye in everye Streete of Im“portance in London.

“When your Collonells and Captaynes knowe “whither to assemble, upon any Alarum, (with“out Confusion) which shall be shewed by the “Marshall, or Sargeant-Maior; then shall the “Sargeant-Maior, and his Corporalls, have five “Companies everie Day abroad, in some pri“vate Place, to teache them to weare their Fur“nitures, and to use their Armes; so as in “twenty Dayes the whole fifteen thousand
 “will know how to weare their Furniture,
 “and to carrye their Armes, (which Number
 “I esteeme easye to be leavyed, of the best and “honestest Sort) which is asmuche as for this “Tyme is requisite.

“As you have here the Forme, howe these “Companies shall enter into Garde, how to “divide themselves to their Gardes, howe to “place their Centenells, and how to make the “Ground (which Forme shall everye Night be “observed; and when the Drums sounde, to “put the Companies that enter into Garde in “Armes); then shall the Companies that are in “Garde put themselves in Armes, and so stand “upon their Cordegarde, tyll the Companye
 “that enters into Garde, be possessed of the “Cor de garde. Then shall they depart, and “marche orderlye to garde home their Colours:
 “All which is onelye done to teache your “Captaynes, Officers, and Souldiers, to knowe
 “how to enter into Garde, how to place their “Gardes; which is the most assuredst Thing “that ever was devized for the Safetie of “anye Citie, Town, Place, Camp or Armye;
 “which in the open Field, without any Covert
 “in the World, of Wall, Trench, or Carriage, “will be as orderly and safely performed, as
 “in any Towne, if the Maister of the Campe “have Judgment in placing of the Armye, and “the Sargeant-Maior Discretion in placing of “the Gardes.

“By this Meanes, there is everie Night at
 “at fix of the Clock, tenné Ensignes marching
 “in London; which is drawn out of severall “Regiments, and severall Quarters, to make “the greater Stirring, and greater Showe. And “because Townes Men love Ease and Profit;
 “therefore there shall onely remayne all Night, “twenty-five at everye Gate, and fifty at the “Exchange; so as they enter into Garde but “once every twenty Dayes, and stand upon “their Garde but once in sixty Dayes, which “is notinge.

“When the Gates, and chief Bodie of the “Watche by the Exchange is possessed, (for that “you must never carrye out your Souldiers, but “that you are first possessed of your Gardes, for “the Assurance of your Retreate) then shall the “Sergeant-Maior have five Companies every “Day abroad, and the Sargeant-Maior of “everye Regiment shall have one Companye “abroad; to teach them to use their Armes, to “march, assaile, defend; so by this meanes
 “there is everye Day in armes nine particular “Companies, with their Sargeant-Maior, and “five Companies with the Sargeant-Major Ge“neral, and tenné Companies entering into “Garde, and in Garde; so that there is twenty-“four Companies everie Day in Armes.

“Once everie twentie Days, the Marshall and “Sergeant-Maior shall have one whole Regiment “abroad, to teache them to marche, and range “them in Battell, and to use their armes; and “once everye two Months, the Maior, the Mar“shall, the Sargeant-Maior, and the Provost, “shall have all the Armye abroad for two Days “(saving the Companies in Garde, and those “that must enter the next Dayes into Garde;
 “for you must never leave the Gardes unguarded,
 “or unprovided of those that shall susteyne
 “the Gardes; whereby they shall knowe how to “marche, how to garde in Camp, how to range
 “in Battell, and how to lodge in the Feeld; for “on their Marches it were good they should “learne how to marche in Covert and Cham“pion, how to attack a Skyrmise, how to range
 “suddenly in Battell, and how to assaile and de“fend; so as if her Majestie, upon any sodden “Occasion, shall please to use this Armye, they “are at all Tymes readie to marche, and know
 “how to marche, how to lodge, how to garde,
 “and how to use their Armes, and (which “is more) knowe how to command, and how to “obey; which is onely brought unto them by “her Majestie's great Care, and special Favour
 “and Trust, with your Lordship's Directions,
 “and not anye wayes to their Charges; for
 “they onelye are charged with the Enterteynment
 “of three Persons. Synce therefore it pleaseth
 “her Majestie and your Lordships, to laye upon “upon them this especiall Honour and Trust,
 “as to make the Maior Lieftenant, in making “Collonells, Captaynes, Officers and Souldiers, “being all Citizens, is suche an Honour, such “a Truste, and suche a gracious Favour, as ne“ver happened unto anye People, neither was “the like ever heretofore done unto them, or “anye other, by anye Prynce.

“As your Lordships have provided for the “marshalling of the Citie, so to prevent anye “Incon-

“ Inconvenience that by anye Foreign Enemy
 “ may happen, which no wayes canne annoye
 “ London, (in respect of the Multitude of People “ therein) but by some foodeyne Attempt, which “ may breede a verye great Amazement and “ Fright, with most assured Daunger: If there“ fore, to prevent anye foodeyn Furye, either
 “ of Horse or Foot, your Lordships shall please
 “ to give Directions, that at everie End of everie
 “ Suburbe, there be thirty or forty emptye
 “ Pipes, which shall be kept in some Place
 “ tyll Occasion serve, and then to place them
 “ in such Manner, (as I will hereafter shew unto “ your Lordships, when it shall please you to “ command) so as a hundred shall withstand anye
 “ two thousand, till further Ayde shall be in a “ Readynes.

“ My Meaning is not, that these Forces con“ tinually use this Trayning and Gardinge, but “ onely during such Tyme as your Lordships “ shall best like; and that they be once well and “ orderly marshalled, and reduced into good “ Form, being divided into Regyments and “ Companies; that every Capteyne may know
 “ his Collonell, everie Souldier know his Cap“ teyne and Officer, whither to assemble upon “ anye Alarum, and how to assemble, to avoyde
 “ that dangerous Mischiefe of assembling in Con“ fusion, and to put them in true Order and “ Forme of the Use of their Armes, and in “ their Gardes. So as if at any Instant here“ after, her Majestie and your Lordships shall “ please to use their Service, they are at all “ Tymes readie without further Direction or “ Trouble to performe their Duties, and to “ obey her Majesty and your Lordships Com-“ mandements, havynge only a Sergeant and “ two Corporalls to every Regiment; which “ three shall bringe the whole Regiment in “ order, being Souldiers of worth; without the
 “ which, it is impossible to reduce them into anye “ Order; so as by this meanes her Majestie shall “ contynuallie have thirty Souldiers of worth in a “ readyness.

“ Thus to obey your Honours Commande“ ments, I shew my Wants, which I will rather “ do then disobey you, knowing your honourable “ Vertues such, and your Care of me so favou“ rable, as that which is superfluous you will “ forget, and that which is wanting, you will
 “ with your honourable Favour help: Being “ therefore neither Scholar nor Learned, I hope
 “ your Honours will bear with my Imperfecti“ ons; but fearing you should try the Opinion
 “ of a great Man of Warre, who sayed, a “ Souldier ought never to be without his Sword
 “ or his Penne in his Hand, (meaning in Tyme
 “ of Warre to follow those Accounts, and in “ Tyme of Peace, or idle Tyme, which I have, “ whereof I am ashamed) to observe that which

 “ by Experience he hath learned, wherein I finde
 “ my self farre unable to accomplish your Lord“ ships Expectation; yet rather than neglect my “ Dutie, I bewraye my Ignorance. Thus be“ seeching God to geve you long Life, and greate “ Honour, I commit your Lordships to his Tui“ tion, and my self to your Direction, this Day
 “ of March, 1588, &c.”

The Danger being over, (by the Destruction of the Spanish Fleet, which from its vast Number of Ships of great Force, was stiled The Invincible) the laudable Practise of instructing the Citizens in the Art Military, was discontinued till the Year 1610, when it was revived, and the Promoters thereof, to encourage Practitioners in that Art, erected a handsome Armoury, and furnished it with a Variety of Arms; and, reassuming the ancient Appellation of the Artillery Company, increased to such a Degree, that in the late Civil War they supplied the Parliament with a great Number both of Officers and Soldiers, who for Courage and Conduct were not to be excelled.

At present the Military Government of London is managed by a Lieutenancy, which is composed of a certain Number of Citizens, the principal whereof are the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen: The Commissioners appoint the Officers for the City Trained Bands, who are ranked into six Regiments; first, the Blue, containing eight Companies and 1411 Men; second, the Green, eight Companies and 1566 Men; third, the Yellow, eight Companies and 1526 Men; fourth, the Orange, eight Companies and 1740½ Men;
 fifth, the White, eight Companies and 2088½
 Men; sixth, the Red, eight Companies and 1630
 Men; including Officers and Drums.

In the out Parts, not subject to the Government of the City, there is also a Military Government in this Form:

Two Regiments of Trained Bands belonging to the Tower Hamlets; the first Regiment containing 2299½ Men; the second 1898 Men; including Officers and Drums.

Two Regiments of Trained Bands belonging to the City of Westminster, and County of Middlesex: The Westminster Regiment containing twelve Companies and 4182 Men; the Middlesex Regiment nine Companies and 2597 Men.

Besides the above-specified eleven Regiments of Trained Bands, the Artillery Company, of about four hundred Men, is still subsisting, and serves as a Nursery of Officers for the said Regiments; whereby it appears, that the Number of Troops for the Defence of this City and Suburbs amount to twenty-four thousand six hundred and twenty-one.

And for the greater Encouragement of the Trade and Navigation of this City and Kingdom, King Ethelstan, in the Year 928, made a Law, that, If a Merchant on his own Account make three Voyages into the Straights, he shall be advanced in Honour, and enjoy the Privilege of a Gentleman. And as an Encouragement to Foreign Merchants to frequent the Ports of this Kingdom, it was granted by Henry III. in his great Charter, that they (exclusive of such as were previously precluded) should not only have free Egrefs and Regrefs from and to all the Ports of the Kingdom, but likewise the Liberty of travelling into all Parts thereof, to negotiate their Trade, Toll-free, except in Time of War.

The Secular Guilds were either Gilda Mercatoria, a Merchant-Guild, or Gilda Mercatorum, a Guild of Merchants, Tradesmen and Artizans; each of which Guilds were composed of an Alderman, Chaplain, Eschevins, Elders and inferior Members, as appears by a Convention made between the Dean and Canons of St. Martin's le Grand, and the Guild or Company of Sadlers, towards the Close of the twelfth Century. And the Religious Guilds, founded for Devotion and Almsdeeds, consisted of an Alderman, Master, Brothers and Sisters.

That Guilds or Gilds are of great Antiquity in this City, is apparent by the Devotional Guilds of St. Andrew Wardrobe, St. Dunstan's in the East, and St. Laurence Poulteney. But that the Secular are of a more antient Date, is manifest from the Companies of Weavers and Bakers.

And as the said Guilds are the Basis of Commerce, I shall give an Account of the several Companies and Fellowships of Trades belonging to the Citizens; and by proper Numbers shew their respective Precedence.

Mercers, I.

This Company was incorporated by Letters Patent of the seventeenth of Richard II. Anno 1393, by the Name of The Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of the Mercers of the City of London; with a Licence to purchase in Mortmain an Estate of twenty Pounds per Annum; which, by numerous Gifts, and additional Grants, did so vastly increase, that when the Company, in the Year 1698, accepted of Dr. Ashton's Project for providing a Maintenance for Clergymen's Widows, &c. they settled for that Purpose a Fund of about fourteen thousand Pounds per Annum, for securing to the Widow of each Subscriber thirty per Cent. per Annum, during Life. But the Company soon perceiving that this was more than they could afford to pay, reduced the same to twenty Pounds per Annum for each hundred Pounds. Thus stood the State of these Annuities in the Year 1738. But in the Year 1750, 24 George II. the Circumstances of the Company failing, an Act of Parliament was obtained for their further Relief. The Revenues of this Corporation seem to be better applied than some of the other Incorporations of this City; for the Members of the Company are not only exempt from Quarterage, but at their Admission upon the Livery pay only a Fine of two Pounds thirteen Shilling and four Pence. Exclusive of the above-mentioned great annual Income, the Company pay in charitable Benefactions about three thousand Pounds per Annum.

This Fraternity appears to be of great Antiquity (and was antiently in French denominated Bolengarii); for in the Beginning of Henry II's Reign, Anno 1155, it was charged in the great Roll of the Exchequer, with a Debt of one Mark of Gold, for their Guild: Which seems as if the antient Guilds had held their Privileges in Fee-Farm of the Crown; which in some measure will hereafter be evinced. However, this Company does not appear to have been incorporated, till about the Year 1307, by Letters Patent of Edward II. which Charter was renewed by Henry VII. and confirmed by divers of his Successors. But when, or by whom their Arms were at first granted, does not appear; tho' it must have been

The Bakers probably observing, that great Profits arose to the Clergy, by the Use of the Symbols of the Cross, Agnus Dei's, and Name of Interest) began to imprint upon their Bread the like Representations: Which induced Henry the Third, by his Mandate from St. Edmund's-Bury, of September 1, Anno 1252, strictly to injoin all Bakers, thenceforth not to put any of those sacred Representations upon their Bread.

Barber-Surgeons, 17.

The Art of Surgery,
anciently, being solely practised by the Barbers of this City, they were, by Letters Patent of Edward the Fourth, Anno 1461, incorporated by the Name of The Masters, or Governors of the Mystery or Commonalty of the Barbers of London.

Ast Parl. Sometime after, others assuming the Practice
3 H.VIII. of Surgery, the Barbers, in the third of Henry the Eighth, Anno 1512, obtained an Act of Parliament, to prevent all Persons from practising Surgery, within the City of London and seven Miles of the same.

Ibid. In the sixth Year of the said Reign, Anno 1515, the practising Barbers, or Surgeons of this City, in Number nineteen, were, in Consideration of their constant Attendance upon Patients, not only by Parliament exempted from serving Ward and Parish Offices, but likewise from all Military Services.

Ibid. By Virtue of the first-mentioned Act of Parliament, divers Persons (not Barbers) being examined and admitted as Practitioners in the Art of Surgery, they soon erected themselves into a Society, separate from that of Barbers; which the Parliament taking into Consideration, for their mutual Interest, united them, by the Appellation of The Masters, or Governors of the Mystery or Commonalty of Barbers and Surgeons of London. And as the said Act strictly enjoins all Persons practising the Art of Shaving, not to intermeddle with that of Surgery, except what belongs to the drawing of Teeth; so does it likewise all Surgeons, from following the Practice of Shaving.

Ibid. However, all the above-mentioned Encouragements could not prevent the Surgeons from falling into a scandalous Ignorance and Extortion, whereby the Lives of many were destroyed, and the Substance of others basely extorted. Yet nevertheless they shamefully continued to harraß Persons more worthy and skilful than themselves;
and that for no other Reason, than their extensive Charity and universal Benevolence, in administring proper Remedies to Objects of Commiseration, at their own Expence. Which the Parliament in the Year 1544, taking into consideration, occasioned their laying open the Practice of Surgery, as an Encouragement for all Persons skilled in the Nature of Herbs, Roots, and Waters, to exert themselves in the Exercise thereof, for the Relief and Cure of wounded and distressed Objects of Compassion.

All which will appear more fully by the Preamble of the following Act of Parliament, 18

Surgeons is dissolved.

This was a Fraternity by Prescription, till the 18th of James the First; who incorporated the same by his Letters Patent 25 May, Anno 1620. By the Name of The Master, Wardens and Society of the Mystery of Bowyers of the City of London.

That the incorporating of this Fraternity should be deferred to this Time, is somewhat surprizing; tho' not so much, as that of its being incorporated then, when the Military Engine called the Bow was almost rendered useless, by the Invention of Fire-Arms. The first Mention I find of this Fraternity is in the Reign of Edward the Fourth; when the Prices of the best Bow-staves were, by Act of Parliament, fixed at three Shillings and fourpence each. But this not answering according to Expectation, the same was repealed in the Year 1560, when the Prices of the several Sorts of Bows were settled by Parliament, as followeth: viz. each Bow of the best foreign Yew, at six Shillings and eight Pence; the second Sort, three Shillings and four Pence; and the coarser Sort, and those made of English Yew, at two Shillings.

This Company, for the Management of their Affairs, have a Master, two Wardens, and twelve Assistants; with thirty Liverymen, each whereof, at the Time of his Admission, pays a Fine of eight Pounds. They have at present no Hall, tho' anciently they had one in Noble-street.

This Corporation anciently bore the Arms of Thomas a Becket, (sometime Archbishop of Canterbury) impal'd with their own; from which they were separated by Clarencieux King at Arms, Anno 1544, in lieu of which he added a Crest to theirs.

However, it was not incorporated till the Third of James I, who by his Letters Patent 16 September, Anno 1605, incorporated the same by the Title of The Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art or Mystery of Butchers of the City of London.

In the Reign of Henry the Eighth, the Carmen, by an Act of Common Council, were constituted a Fellowship of this City; and by Letters Patent of James the First, Anno 1606, were incorporated with the Fraternity of Fuellers, under the Appellation of Wood-mongers, with whom they continued till the Year 1668, when the Wood-mongers were by Parliament convicted of many enormous and grievous Frauds in the Sale of Coals, and other Fuel; and being apprehensive of a Punishment adequate to their detestable Crimes, threw up their Charter to avoid the same. Whereupon the Carmen were, by an Act of Common Council, re-appointed a Fellowship of this City, under the Title of The Free Carmen of the City of London.

They are governed by a Master, two Wardens, and forty-one Assistants; under the Direction of the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen; but have neither Hall, nor Livery.

To this Fellowship belong four hundred and twenty Cars, or Carts, for the carrying of Goods and Merchandize to and from all Parts within the City and Suburbs; the Rule and Government of which are, by an Act of Common Council, vested in the President and Governors of Christ's Hospital, under the following Regulations and Restrictions.

1. That no more than four hundred and twenty Cars, or Carts, be allowed to work within the City of London, and Liberties thereof; every Person presuming to work a supernumerary Car, or Cart, contrary to the Tenor of this Injunction, shall, for every such Offence, forfeit forty Shillings.

2. That no Car, or Cart, be kept by any Wharfinger, Wood-monger, &c. but such as shall be duely licensed by the President and Governors of the aforesaid Hospital, upon Penalty of forty Shillings.

3. That a Fine of twenty Shillings be paid upon the Admittance, or Alienation of every Car or Cart; and that each of the Owners thereof do annually pay to the President and Governors of Christ's Hospital, for a Licence to work, the Sum of seventeen Shillings and four Pence; in default of which, every Offender to be suspended, and disabled from working.

4. And for the more effectual preventing all Abuses and Impositions upon the Citizens, by the Carmen, or Workers of the said Carts, every Car, or Cart, is to have a Number cut in Brass put upon it. And the following Rates, or Prices, ascertained by an Act of Common Council, are to be paid for the Carriage of Goods from and to the under-mentioned Places: viz.

1. From any Wharf between the Tower and London-bridge, to Tower-street, Gracechurch-street, Fenchurch-street, Leadenhall-street, Cornhill, Bishopsgate-street within, and Places of the like Distance, up-hill, with 1800 Weight, not exceeding 2000 Weight, two Shilling and two Pence.

And being above 2000 Weight, two Pence for every hundred. Provided the Carmen for this Rate, and all other Rates herein contained, help to load and unload their Carts.

2. From any Wharf aforesaid, to Broad-street, Lotbury, Old-jewry, Bassishaw, Coleman-street, Ironmonger-lane, St. Laurence-jewry, Milk-street, Aldermanbury, Cheapside, Wood-street, Friday-street, Bread-street, and Places of like Distance, for the like Weight as aforesaid, two Shillings and six Pence.

3. For every Half-Chaldron of Coals, and for every Hundred of Faggots, one Shilling and four Pence.

4. From any of the Wharfs aforesaid, to Smithfield-bars, Holbourn-bars, Temple-bar, or any of the Bars on the North Side of the City, and Places of like Distance, up the Hill, with 1800 Weight, for every Load, three Shillings and four Pence. And going beyond the said Places, the Parties to agree with the Carmen.

5. From any of the Wharfs aforesaid, to Tower-street, Fenchurch-street, Leadenhall-street, Bishopsgate-street, &c. with a Load of 1500, not exceeding 1800 Weight, one Shilling and eight Pence, and so in Proportion for the rest.

This Fraternity was incorporated by Letters Patent of the eleventh of Henry the Fourth, Anno 1410, by the Name of Cordwainers and Coblers, the latter whereof at that Time was no despicable Epithet, as at present; for the genuine Meaning thereof then was, that it not only signified a Shoe-maker, but likewise a Seller or Dealer in Shoes; for it does not appear that the Word Shoe-maker was then in Use.

Some Time after, the Fashion of Shoes was so preposterous, that it occasioned the making of an Act of Parliament to restrain the same, wherein it was enacted, that no Cordwainer or Cöbler within the City of London, or three Miles of the same, shall make any Shoes, Galoshes or Hufeans (Boots or Buskins) with any Pyke or Poleyn, passing the Length of two Inches, to be adjudged by the Wardens or Governors of the same Mystery in London, nor shall they presume to sell, or put upon the Legs, or Feet of any Person, any Shoes, Boots, or Buskins on Sundays, or Feasts of the Nativity and Ascension of our Lord, or Corpus Christi, on the Penalty of twenty Shillings for each Offence.

This Fraternity was incorporated with that of Glass-painters by Charter of the thirteenth of Charles I. 6 November, Anno 1637, by the Appellation of The Master, Wardens and Commonalty of the Art or Mystery of Glaziers and Painters of Glass of the City of London.

They consist of a Master, two Wardens, twenty-one Assistants, and ninety-one Liverymen, whose Fine is three Pounds. But their Hall being consumed in the great Conflagration, Anno 1666, and the Site converted to another Use, they meet elsewhere to treat of their Affairs.

By an Act of Common Council, 14 Jac. I. Sir John Folles, Mayor, "it was enacted, ordained, and established by the Right Honourable the Lord-Mayor, the Aldermen his Brethren, and the Commons in this present Common Council assembled, and by the Authority of the same, That all Persons free of this City, of what Company soever they be, using the said Art of Glazing within this City and Liberties thereof, and making Gain thereby, shall from henceforth be under the Survey and Search of the Master and Wardens of the said Company of Glaziers for the Time being: And shall from Time to Time be subject to the Ordinances of the said Company, touching the exercising of the said Art of Glazing only.

"And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That no Person or Persons whatsoever, being Free of any Company of the City whatsoever, other than of the said Company of Glaziers which doth or shall use, or practise the said Art of Glazing within this City or Liberties thereof, and shall make Gain thereby, shall from henceforth take and bind any Apprentice or Apprentices to him or themselves; but within one Month after the taking of such Apprentice, and before the Binding of such Apprentice or Apprentices shall first present him or them before the Master and Wardens of the said Company of Glaziers at the Common-Hall of the said Company. And upon such Presentation of any Apprentice or Apprentices at the Place aforesaid, the same Apprentice or Apprentices shall become bound by Indenture to the Master, or one of the Wardens of the said Company for the Time being, for the Term and Number of Years agreed upon between the said Apprentice or Apprentices and the Party so presenting him or them. And that after the Binding of such Apprentice or Apprentices in Form before declared, the said Apprentice or Apprentices shall, at the Charges of the Master so presenting the same Apprentice, be, by the Party to whom he was bound, set over, before the Chamberlain of the said City of London for the Time being, to the Party by whom he shall be so presented, and him shall serve the Residue of his Time. To the Intent that, at the Expiration of the said Term, the said Apprentice or Apprentices may be made Free of the said Company of Glaziers.

"And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if any Person or Persons using the Art of Glazing within this City or Liberties thereof, and not being Free of the said Company of Glaziers, shall at any Time or Times hereafter take any Apprentice or Apprentices bound unto himself, or in any other Manner than is before declared, he or they shall forfeit for every Apprentice so bound the Sum of twenty Pounds of lawful Money of England, to be recovered by Action of Debt, Bill or Plaint, to be commenced and prosecuted in the Name of the Chamberlain of the said City of London for the Time being, in the King's Majesty's Court to be holden in the Chamber of the Guildhall of the said City, before the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of the said City, wherein no Essoign or Wager of Law shall be admitted or allowed for the Defendant. And the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being, in all Suits to be prosecuted by vertue of this present Act against any Offender, shall recover the ordinary Costs of Suit to be expended in and about the Prosecution of the same.

"And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That one Moiety of all Forfeitures to be recovered by vertue of this Act (the Charges of Suit for Recovery of them being deducted and allowed after the Recovery and Receipt thereof) shall be paid and delivered to the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being, to the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of the said City: And the other Moiety of the same Forfeitures (the Charges of Suit deducted as aforesaid) to be paid and delivered over to the Master and Wardens of the said Company of Glaziers

"for

"for the Time being, to the Use of the said Company. To the Intent that the said Master and Wardens of the said Company for the Time being, may be more careful to prosecute Suit against the Offenders in this Behalf, in Name of the Chamberlain of this City for the Time being."

This Company, consisting of Stationers, Book-fellers, Letter-founders, Printers, and Book-binders, has a Stock of about fifteen thousand Pounds, denominated the English Stock; which is employed in printing Almanacks, ABC's, Primers, Psalters, School-books, and privileged Ware, the sole Printing whereof is confirmed to them by Letters Patent of divers Kings.

This Stock consists of, nineteen whole Shares, of three hundred and twenty Pounds each, which are generally possessed by those who are of the Court of Assistants: The second are thirty-eight Half-shares, of one hundred and sixty Pounds each; the third are forty-eight Quarter-shares, of eighty Pounds each; the fourth are fifty-six Half-Quarter-shares, of forty Pounds each; all which are divided among such as have fined for, or served Renter-Warden.

Upon

Upon the Death of any of the married Possessors of this Stock, the Profits arising from his Share devolve to his Widow; which she enjoys during her Widowhood or Life: At the Expiration of either, another Person is chosen to enjoy the Profits of the said Share.

The Dividends upon the Stock are made at Christmas; which are increased or decreased, according to the Expence of the preceding Year; however, 'tis seldom less than forty Pounds upon a whole Share. The Master and Wardens of the Company are always in the Direction of the Stock; to them are joined six other Members, annually elected, who adjust all Accounts relating thereto; and at Christmas report the State thereof to the Board, who regulate the Dividends already mentioned accordingly.

This Company are by Charter to pay in Pensions, and other Charities, two hundred Pounds per Annum, but they generally make it above.

Watermen, 91.

By a Stat. 2 and 3 Phil. and Mar. it was enacted, That at the first Court of Aldermen in London, next after the first of March, out of the Watermen, betwixt Gravesend and Windsor, eight Overseers are to be chosen, to keep Order among the rest.

That two Watermen shall not carry any, but where one of them hath exercised that Profession two Years before that Time, and hath been allowed by the greater Part of the Overseers, under the known Seal, on Pain to be committed to one of the Compters, by the Rules and Orders relating to the Company of men.

the said Overseers for a Month, or a less Time, as the Offence shall deserve.

That no single Man, that is no Householder, nor retained as an Apprentice, or as a Servant, for one Year, at least, shall exercise that Profession betwixt the Places aforesaid, on Pain of like Punishment.

The Lord-Mayor, and Aldermen of London, and the Justices of Peace, within the Counties adjoining to the River Thames, upon Complaint of any two of the Overseers, or of any Waterman's Master, have Power, not only to hear and determine any Offence committed against this Act, and to enlarge any Waterman unjustly punished by the said Overseers, but likewise to punish the Overseers themselves, in Case they unjustly punish any Person, by Colour of this Act.

Also, a Wherry, that is not twelve Feet and a half long, and four Feet and a half broad in the Midship, and sufficient to carry two Persons, on one Side right, shall be forfeited; and the King shall have one Moiety, and the Informer the other.

Again, That Waterman that withdraws himself in Time of Pressing, (it being proved by two Witnesses, before the said Mayor, Aldermen, or Justices, and two of the said Overseers) shall suffer a Fortnight's Imprisonment; and shall be prohibited to Row any more upon the Thames, for a Year and a Day after.

Also, The overseers shall not only call the Watermen before them, and direct them, and Register their Names, but likewise examine their Boats before they be launched, whether they have due Proportion and Goodness, according to this Act; and if the Overseers refuse, or neglect their Office, they shall forfeit 5*l.* between the King and Informer.

Also, The Court of Aldermen shall assess the Fares of Watermen, which being subscribed by two of the Privy Council, (at least) shall be set up in Guildhall, Westminster-hall, &c. and the Waterman that takes more, than according to the Fare so assessed, shall, for every such Offence, suffer half a Year's Imprisonment, and forfeit 40*s.* to be divided as before.

And by the 1 Jac. I. 16, no Waterman shall retain any Servant, or Apprentice, unless he himself hath been an Apprentice to a Waterman by the Space of five Years before, and not an Apprentice under the Age of eighteen Years, or for less Time than seven Years, in Pain to forfeit for every such Offence 10*l.* to be divided between the King and the Prosecutor.

But this Act shall not restrain Watermen's Sons, of convenient Growth and Strength, and formerly trained up in Rowing; but that they be allowed to serve as Apprentices, and to carry Passengers from Place to Place, at the Age of sixteen Years.

Also, That eight Overseers shall yearly, upon the first Day of March, and the first Day of September, cause openly to be read in the Common Hall, all their Orders, made, or to be made, in Pain that every of them, for every such Default, shall forfeit twenty Nobles, to be divided betwixt the King and the Prosecutor.

The Lord-Mayor, for the Time being, may cause any Person, inhabiting within London, or the Liberties, to be summoned to appear before his Lordship, upon the Complaint of any Citizen; and for Non-appearance, may grant his Warrant to bring such Person before him; and hath Power to hear and determine Differences between Party and Party.

If any Apprentice, or other Person, shall be carried aboard of Ship, or there detained against his Will, the Lord-Mayor may send his Warrant

VOL. II. NUMB. CVI.

by his Water-Bailiff, and compel the Captain, or Commander, of the Vessel to release such Person.

By a late Statute, made Anno 11 and 12 Will. III. Cap. 21. for the better Ordering and Governing the Watermen, Wherry-men, and Lightermen, on the River Thames between Gravesend and Windsor, it is enacted, That all Laws in Force touching Watermen and Wherry-men, not thereby altered, or repealed, shall be duly put in Execution, under the Penalties therein contained. And that every Lighterman, or Owner, Keeper, or Worker of any Lighter, or other large Craft on the Thames, between Gravesend and Windsor, shall be taken to be of the Society, or Company, of Wherry-men and Lightermen, which Wherry-men, Watermen, and Lightermen, are, by this Act, made a Society, or Company, to be under the Direction of the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of this City; who are thereby impowered yearly to appoint eight Persons, of the best Sort of Watermen, and three Persons out of twelve to be yearly nominated by the Lightermen; which eleven Persons are to be named and styled The Overseers and Rulers of all the Wherry-men, Watermen, and Lightermen, that shall use, occupy or exercise any Rowing upon the River of Thames, between Gravesend and Windsor; who shall keep good Order and Obedience amongst the said Watermen and Lightermen.

And by the said Act the Rulers and Assistants of the Company are likewise enabled yearly, on the first of June, to appoint and direct the Watermen of the principal Towns, Stairs, and Plying-Places, between Gravesend and Windsor, to chuse a Free Waterman (being a Householder) for each of the said Places, to be of their Assistants, so that they do not exceed the Number of sixty, nor be less than that of forty: To which shall be added nine Lightermen; who together shall compose the Number of Assistants of the said Company.

And by the said Act of Parliament, the said Overseers and Rulers are impowered to appoint any Number of Watermen not exceeding forty, to ply and work on Sundays between Vauxhall and Lincolnboufe, at such Stairs and Plying-places (being seventeen in Number, besides the two at Westminster) as they shall judge convenient for carrying Passengers across the River Thames for One Penny each: The Money arising thereby, (amounting in the whole to upwards of 1450*l.* per Annum, including that of Westminster) is by each of the working Watermen to be paid every Monday Morning to the Order of the said Rulers; who, after having paid the said Watermen their proper Wages, the Surplus is to be applied to the Use of the Poor of the Company. And every Person employed in the Sunday's Work, that shall neglect to pay in the Money so earned by him, shall for every such Offence forfeit and pay the Sum of forty Shillings.

The Watermen of the City of Westminster, being exempt from the immediate Direction of the Company of Watermen in this Affair, annually appoint their own Watermen, to ply and work on Sundays, for carrying Passengers across the River Thames, from and to Westminster-bridge and Stangate, and the Horse-ferry at Lambeth; which Money so earned, is applied to the Use of the poor Watermen, or their Widows, of the Parish of St. Margaret in the said City.

It is also declared in the said Act, that if the Lord High Admiral, or Commissioners of the Admiralty, shall at any Time give Notice to the Company of Watermen, that there is Occasion for a certain Number of the said Company to serve on board the Royal Navy; then all such Persons as shall be duly summoned for that Purpose, that

Comp.
Conf.

By the Constitutions of this Company, all Boats and Barges belonging to the several Members thereof, are obliged to be numbered and entered in the Company's Register: The Number of the former, on the twenty-eighth of September, Anno 1734, amounted to five thousand nine hundred and seventy-two; and that of the latter, to seven hundred and sixty-seven. But many Watermen keeping a Plurality of Boats (to let to their poor Brethren) all of the same Number, the Number Total employed upon the River Thames cannot be known. However, Mr. Church, the Clerk of the Company, assured me, that by the best Account he had been able to come at, they amounted to above a thousand more than what are registred; which makes the whole amount to about seven thousand. And the Barges of the same Number being much more numerous than those of the Wherries, amount to upwards of seventeen hundred.

The Wherries or Boats being employed in carrying the Citizens to and from the several Parts of the City and Suburbs; therefore to prevent their being imposed upon by the Watermen in any Sort, their Boats, as already mentioned, are not only numbered, but likewise the subjoined Table of Rates, or Prices, were appointed by the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of this City, to be taken by the respective Watermen, rowing upon the River Thames between Gravesend and Windsor.

The Watermen's Table of Rates, made the seventh of September, 1671.

An Abstract of the Act for making more effectual several Acts passed, relating to Watermen, Wherry-men, and Lightermen, rowing upon the River Thames, and for the better ordering and governing such Watermen, Wherry-men, and Lightermen.

Anno secundo Georgii Regis.

“Enacted, That after the twenty-fourth of June 1729, no Person, who, now or hereafter, shall work any Wherry-Boat, Tilt-Boat, Barge, or other Vessel, for carrying Passengers, or Goods for Hire, on the River Thames, between Gravesend and Windsor, shall take an Apprentice or Servant, unless he shall be an Housekeeper, or have some known Habitation, where he may receive such Apprentice, and shall register with the Clerk of the Company where he shall reside, or where to he shall afterward remove, on Pain of 10 l. on Conviction before the Lord-Mayor, or one, or more Justices for the Place where the Offender shall be found, by the Oath of two, or more Witnesses, to be levied by Distress, or, for want of Distress, to be committed to the next Publick Work-house, without Bail, for not exceeding one Month, nor less than fourteen Days, and the Clerk of the Company, on Application made to him, is to register the Habitation, and every Removal of such Waterman, &c. in a Book of the Company without Fee, on Pain of 10 l. and if any such Waterman, &c. shall not register his Place of Abode, the Apprentice shall on Application made to the Rulers and Overseers, at their publick Courts, be turned over to any other Master.

“After June 24, 1729, no Apprentice shall take upon him the sole Care and Management of any Boat, within the said Limits, till sixteen Years of Age, if a Waterman's Son, and seventeen, if a Landman's, and unless he hath worked with some able Waterman, for two Years at least, on Pain of 10 s. on the Master.

“Where sufficient Distress cannot be found to pay and satisfy the Penalties, to be inflicted by any Rules, Orders, or Constitutions, made by the Rulers of the Company, approved by the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of London, and confirmed by the Chief Justice of the King's-

"King's-Bench; Oath being made of want of Distress before the Lord-Mayor, or Justice of the Peace where the Offender shall be found, they are to commit him to the House of Correction, without Bail, for any Time not exceeding one Month, nor less than fourteen Days, such Offender being convicted on this Act, or 11 or 12 Will. III.

"If any Person, not having served seven Years to a Waterman, &c. (except Trinity-men, Fishermen, Ballast-men, and Persons employed in Western Barges, Mill-Boats, Chalk-Hoys, Faggot or Wood-Lighters, Dung-Boats, and Gardiners'-Boats, as is allowed by the said Act, or Act 11 and 12 Will. III.) shall row any Boat, or other Craft on the said River for Hire or Gain, he shall for every Offence forfeit 1 l. to be levied as aforesaid.

"The Number of Assistants of the said Company, at their future Elections, shall be reduced to thirty, but to be elected as heretofore.

"This Act shall not prejudice any Right belonging to the Lord of the Manor of Gravesend, for holding a Court, called Curia Cursus Aquæ, or The Court of the Water-Course, for the better Management of Barges, Boats, and Vessels, using the Ferry, or Passage, from Gravesend to London, or to the Barges, Tilt-Boats, or other Vessel, plying at the Bridge of Gravesend, or the Persons working them.

"Nor to prejudice, or impeach any Grants or Usages held by the Mayor, Jurats, and capital Inhabitants of the Villages, and Parishes of Gravesend and Milton, in Com. Kent. relating to the Passage and Ferry on the Thames, from the said Villages and Parishes to London.

"The Lessees, Owners, and Occupiers of any Keys betwixt the Hermitage-bridge and London-bridge, may use their Lighters, or large Crafts, as hath been heretofore accustomed, for carrying Goods and Merchandizes to and from their Keys and Wharfs, and Ships loading or unloading, and may employ any Waterman, or Lightermen duly qualified, as in the said Act 11 and 12 Will. III. is directed.

"All the Penalties and Forfeitures incurred by this Act, may be sued for by the Rulers and Overseers of the Company, or any two of them, in such Manner as is provided by the Act of 11 and 12 Will. III. and when recovered shall be paid to the Rulers and Overseers, and be distributed for the Use of the Poor, as they shall think fit, and all Prosecutions shall be commenced within a Month after the Offence committed.

"All Constables and Headboroughs shall be aiding and assisting in the due Execution of this Act; and if any Suit shall be commenced against any Person for any Matter done in pursuance of this Act, or any former Act, relating to the Water Service on the River, or the regulating and governing the Company, the Action shall be brought within thirty Days after the Fact committed, and such Person may plead the General Issue, and give this, or any the former Acts in Evidence, and on a Verdict, &c. he shall recover treble Costs."

An Order made by the Court of Rulers, Auditors, and Assistants, of the Company of Watermen and Lightermen of the River of Thames.

"Whereas several Watermen, Lightermen, and the Apprentices of such, whilst they are rowing, or working, upon the River Thames, and at their several respective Places of Resort, or Plying-Places, between Gravesend and Windfor, do often use such immodest, obscene, and lewd Expressions, towards Passengers, and to each other, as are offensive to all sober Persons, and tend extremely to the corrupting and Debauchery of Youth: For Prevention therefore, of such ill Practices for the Future, it is hereby declared, and ordained, by the Court aforesaid, That if any Waterman, or Lighterman, after the sixteenth Day of October, 1701, shall upon the said River, or at any Place of their Resort, as aforesaid, be guilty of using any such lewd Expressions, and be thereof duly convicted, by one or more Witnesses, or Witnesses, or by the Confession of the Offender before the Rulers of this Company, he shall forfeit and pay for every such Offence, the Sum of 2 s. 6 d. And if any Waterman, or Lighterman's Apprentice shall herein offend, the Master or Mistress of every such Offender, (the Offender being duly convicted as aforesaid) shall forfeit and pay the like Sum of 2 s. 6 d. and in case of Refusal, the Offender shall suffer Correction, as the Rulers of this Company shall in their Discretion think fit and necessary. Which said Forfeitures (when paid) shall be applied to the Use of the poor, aged, decayed, and maimed Members of this Company, their Widows and Children. Dated at the Hall of the said Company, this eighth Day of October 1701."

This Company pay to their Poor about eight hundred Pounds per Annum, which chiefly arises from the Sunday Ferries.

Weavers, 42.

This Fraternity which was antiently denominated Telarii, seems to be the most antient Guild of this City; for it appears that in the Reign of Henry I. they paid an annual Rent of sixteen Pounds to the Crown for their Immunities, which tends to corroborate what has already been said, viz.

That the Guilds or Companies of London antiently held their Liberties and Privileges in Fee-Farm of the Crown.

Their Privileges were confirmed at Winchester, by Letters Patent of Henry II. (still in the Company's Possession, but without Date) wherein the annual Sum payable to the Crown is fixed at two Marks of Gold, to be paid yearly at Michaelmas, upon a Penalty of ten Pounds.

This Company originally consisted of the Cloth and Tapestry Weavers, who, by Act of Parliament of the seventh of Henry IV. were put under the Government and Correction of the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of this City.

The several Sums of Money annually disposed of to charitable Uses by the twelve chief Companies of Citizens, and eleven of the inferior, amount to the Sum of twenty-three thousand six hundred and fifty-five Pounds. But as I have no Account of the several Sums yearly given by the remaining Companies, I shall venture to reckon them only at forty Pounds each; which being added to the above Sum, it will make the same amount to twenty-six thousand three hundred and seventy-five Pounds. A very great Sum to be yearly bestowed upon the Poor by the City Corporations.

This Society, since the diminishing of their Privileges, and laying open their Trade in the Reign of King William III. is greatly reduced. And 'tis to be apprehended, from the Hamburgers having engrossed near all the Trade from Great Britain to that City, that in a few Years the Company will cease to be.

Merchants of the Staple.

The second Company of Merchants incorporated in England, were those of the Staple, by Edward III. who settling their chief Factory at Middleborough in Zeland, sent thither great Quantities of Leather, Woolfels, Lead, Tin, Butter, Cheese, Cloth, &c. But the Staple, in the Year 1389, being removed to Calais, it was soon after, viz. Anno 1391, removed from thence to England.

Hudson's Bay Company.

Though the Country to which this Company trade, was discovered by Sir Sebastian Cabott in the Year 1497, yet the Commerce thereof seems not to have been fully settled till the second of May, Anno 1670, when Charles II.

by his Letters Patent, incorporated the Adventurers, by the Name of The Governor and Company of Adventurers of England trading into Hudson's Bay; and granted to his Highness Prince Rupert, the Duke of Albemarle, Earl of Craven, Lord Arlington, Lord Aspley, and other Members of the Company, and their Successors for ever, all the Straights, Bays, Seas, Rivers, Lakes, Creeks, Islands, Shores, Lands, Territories and Places whatsoever, within Hudson's Straights and Hudson's Bay.

This Company, by a joint Stock, carry on a considerable Trade to the Places aforesaid, wherein they have settled divers Factories, whither the Natives repair with their fine Beaver, and other rich Furrs and Commodities of the Country. This Corporation is under the Direction of a Governor, Deputy Governor and seven Assistants, who have a handsome Hall in Fenchurch-street to transact their Affairs in.

Russia Company.

The Russia Merchants were at first incorporated by Letters Patent of Queen Mary, February 6, Anno 1555, which were granted to divers Noblemen and Merchants, whereby they were not only empower'd to carry on an exclusive Trade to all Parts of the Russian Empire, but likewise to all such Countries as they should discover in those Northern Parts, which they soon after did to their great Advantage, viz. The Cherry Islands, Greenland, Nova Zembla, Davies's Straights and Newfoundland: In Consideration of these valuable Discoveries, their Privileges were confirmed by Parliament; and in the Year 1614, enlarged by King James I. This Company is governed by a Governor, four Consuls, and four and twenty Assistants, who are annually elected on the first of March.

These Merchants were at first incorporated by Charter from Queen Elizabeth, Anno 1579. And the Factory belonging to the Company being at first settled at Elbing in Prussia, they received the Appellation of Merchants of Elbing; who, by their Charter, were empowered to Trade to Norway, Swedenland, Denmark, Poland, Prussia, and all other Parts of the Baltick Sea, exclusive of the City of Narva, previously granted to the Russia Company. But the small River of Elbing proving very incommodious to Navigation, occasioned the Merchants of the Factory to remove, and settle at Dantzick, Koningsberg, Riga and other Cities of the Baltick. However the grateful Citizens of Elbing are not ashamed to own, that the present Splendor and Beauty of their City is owing to the great Commerce formerly carried on there by the English.

This Company, in return for the several Sorts of English Commodities exported by them, import all Sorts of Oak and Firr Wood, Flax, Linen, Bees-wax, Pot-ashes, Tallow, Sturgeon, and all Sorts of Naval Materials.

Levant, or Turkey Company.

This Company was at first incorporated in the Year 1579, by Queen Elizabeth, who endowed the same with many great and ample Privileges, which have been often confirmed by divers succeeding Princes. The Trade of the Company at first extended no farther than the State of Venice, where discovering the Oriental Gems, and Place they came from, assumed the Turkey Trade, which they have carried on with great Success ever since. But a Way being discovered to East-India by Sea, a separate Corporation was erected for carrying on a Trade to it, exclusive of this Company: However, it continues in as great Reputation as ever, and at present is denominated The Turkey Company; the Government whereof consists of a Governor, his Deputy, and eighteen Assistants, who are annually elected in the Month of February; and by whom are appointed the Consuls, Vice-Consuls, Factors, and other Officers belonging to the Corporation.

East-India Company.

This Corporation was at first incorporated by Queen Elizabeth, Anno 1601. The Trade whereof is carried on by a Common Fund, by which their Commerce is extended to Arabia, India, China and Japan; for the Direction whereof are annually elected twenty-four Directors, one of which being Chairman, all the Company's Affairs are immediately under their Direction, and by whom are appointed all their Officers both at Home and Abroad. About the Beginning of the Protectorate of Oliver Cromwell, 'twas apprehended, that the laying open the East-India Commerce, would prove of great Advantage to the whole Nation; wherefore that Trade was made general, and continued so till the Year 1657. But the separate Trade proving fatal to the Undertakers, they were, for the Good of the Whole, united to the Company by the Legislature.

In the Year 1698, a new East-India Company was established by Act of Parliament; by virtue whereof, the old Company was to be dissolved after the Expiration of a certain Time allowed them for disposing of their Effects. However, by the kind Offices of Friends, and a due Consideration of their several Interests, the Companies were united; and notwithstanding the joint Stock amounted to three Millions and three hundred thousand Pounds, the united Company continued to divide ten per Cent. till the Year 1722, when the Ostend Company was erected in Opposition to them. This Dividend afterwards fell to eight per Cent. and now lately is reduced to six per Cent.

*African Company.*Cafe Roy-Afric.
Comp.

The first Eng-lish Ships sent to Africa on the Account of Commerce was about the Year 1553, from which Time the Trade to that Country was carried on by private Hands till the Year 1588, when Queen Elizabeth, by her Letters

Patent, erected a Company for the more effectual carrying on the said Trade, which at that Time was only for Gold, Elephants Teeth and Malaquetta; for the English, having then no Settlement in America, had no Occasion for Negroes.

Ibid.

This Company was greatly encouraged in the Reigns of James and Charles the First; but the Dutch, in the Year 1637, having taken divers Forts on the Coasts of Africa from the Portuguese, committed great Depradations on the English, to oblige them to leave off trading to those Parts. Charles the Second, the better to enable his Subjects to carry on the said Trade against the unjust Pretensions and Encroachments of these New-comers, by his Letters Patent of the 10th of January, Anno 1662, incorporated a Body of Merchants by the Appellation of The Company of Royal Adventurers of England to Africa.

Ibid.

The Subscriptions for carrying on this precarious Trade not answering the Expectation of the incorporated Merchants, they were soon involved in great Debts and Difficulties, which rendered them incapable of carrying on their Commerce to advantage; wherefore they agreed, for a certain Sum of Money, to surrender their Charter to the Crown, and to assign all their Estates and Effects both at Home and Abroad to certain Merchants, who intended to erect a new Company for the more effectual carrying on the Trade to Africa. Pursuant to this Agreement, the King, having accepted the Surrender of the said Charter, did, by his Letters Patent of the 27th of September, Anno 1672, incorporate the present Royal African Company, with a Power to trade in Africa, from the Port of Sally to the Cape of Good Hope, during the Term of a thousand Years, exclusive of all his other Subjects.

Ibid.

The Company, by Virtue of this Royal Grant, made a considerable Progress in erecting Forts and settling Factories. But their Trade being laid open by Parliament, in the Year 1697, they were rendered unable to support the said Forts; wherefore it was enacted, that all private Traders to Africa shall pay ten per Cent. to the Company for that Purpose. But this Duty not answering the End for which it was granted, the Company found themselves necessitated to apply to Parliament in the Year 1730, which being taken into Consideration, it was found necessary to grant a certain Sum for keeping up the said Fortresses.

The Affairs of this Company was managed by a Governor (the King) Sub-Governor, Deputy; and a Court of thirty-six Directors, who were annually chosen on the tenth of January.

South Sea Company.

During the long and expensive War against France in the Reign of Queen Anne, due Care was not taken for the regular Payment of Seamen employed in the Royal Navy; for, instead of Money, those necessitous and very useful Men had Tickets granted them in lieu of Pay; which, by their great Necessities, were often obliged to part with at a Discount of forty and sometimes fifty in the Hundred, to avaricious Men, who taking Advantage of the Necessities of those miserable and unhappy Men, raised to themselves great Estates upon their Ruin.

The Debt due by the Government upon this and other Accounts not provided for by Parliament, amounted to nine millions one hundred and seventy-seven thousand nine hundred and sixty-seven Pounds fifteen Shillings and four Pence. For the Discharge of which, this Company was incorporated by Act of Parliament, Anno 1710, and by an Act of Parliament made the Year after, the Company (after the Discharge of the Debt due to them from the Government) was made perpetual. In the Year 1714, by an additional Sum of eight hundred twenty-two thousand and thirty-two Pounds four Shillings and eight Pence, the Capital of the Company was, by Act of Parliament, enlarged to ten Millions, for which they received an Interest of six per Cent. or six hundred thousand Pounds per Ann.

Act Parl.
9 Anne.

In the Year 1720, an Act of Parliament was made to enable the said Company to increase their Capital, by redeeming several of the publick Debts, and to raise Money for the Discharge of fundry national Incumbrances; by the Amount of Subscriptions on this Occasion, the Capital Stock of the Company was increased to thirty-three Millions five hundred and forty three thousand two hundred and sixty-three Pounds eight Shillings and three Pence.

See South-Sea House in Broad-street Ward, and Page 525, Vol. I.

The Traffick carried on to the Spanish West-Indies by this Company, by reason of frequent Seizures made of their Effects by the Spaniards, and Stops in Trade, (on the Account of national Differences) is but of little Advantage to the Proprietors. And by the Traffick carried on to Greenland for nine Years, the Company lost about one hundred and ninety thousand Pounds, which caused the said Trade to be laid aside in the Year 1743.

Besides the above-mentioned Incorporations, there were divers other Companies of Merchants which had been incorporated, though at present extinct, viz. The Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, French, Dutch, American, &c. However, the Commerce to all those Countries (except that of France) is carried on with greater Advantage to the Nation, than when it was under the Direction of the said Companies.

The vast Increase of our Navigation, by the indefatigable Pains and Assiduity of the Merchants, has occasioned the Improvement of our Manufactures to such a Degree, that they far excel those of all other Nations; whereby this City is not only rendered the most populous and opulent that is, or, for aught appears, ever was upon Earth; but it is become the Envy of all other Cities, especially that of Paris, whose Citizens are incessantly striving for the Pre-eminence, though without the least Reason, Justice or Truth, as I have elsewhere made appear, and which I shall farther endeavour to corroborate by the stupendous Commerce of this City to and from all

all Parts of the terraqueous Globe, by the great Number and Magnitude of its Ships, (exclusive of those belonging to other Ports and Nations continually trading hither) an Account whereof I have subjoined, with their respective Names, Number of Tons, and Men carried by each.

A List of all the Ships that belonged to the City of London in the Year 1732, with the Number of Tons and Men carried by them respectively, taken from the General Register at the Custom-House.

To prevent the Reader's being surprized at the great Disparity of Seamen in Ships of the same Tonnage or Burden, it will be necessary to acquaint him, that all Ships trading to the Western and Southern Parts of the World, are, on Account of their long Voyages, obliged to carry a much greater Number of Men, than those that trade to the Eastern and Northern Parts, except those that go to Greenland and Davies's Straights on the Whale Fishery.

Having shewn the Number of Ships belonging to this City, I shall now for the Satisfaction of the Curious, subjoin an Account of the Number of Ships that arrived at London from all Foreign Parts, as well as from the several Ports of Great-Britain, from Christmas, Anno 1727, to Christmas 1728, viz. British Ships from all Ports beyond the Sea, eighteen hundred and thirty-nine, and foreign Ships, two hundred and thirteen; together, two thousand and fifty-two; and from the several Ports of Great Britain, the Numbers that appear in the following Table:

Number Total		Foreign Ships, 2052		Coaſters, 6837		General Total 8889

Though this is a prodigious Number of Ships to be imported in one Year, yet the ſame has been conſiderably increaſed in divers Years ſince.

For unlading this vaſt Number of Veffels, and carrying the amazing Quantities of Merchandize brought hither by them to and from the ſeveral Wharfs (which are one hundred and forty-four in Number) of the City, Suburbs and Vicinal Parts, there are not only employed about two thouſand Lighters, Barges and Boats, but like- wiſe four hundred and twenty great Carts be- longing to the City and Liberty thereof, beſides one hundred and twenty to the Coal, or Wood- mongers, and fixty-ſeven in the Out-Parts; to- gether, ſix hundred and ſeven, which are equal in Burden to that of Waggonſ.

By the indefatigable Induſtry of our Merchants, this City has not only attained to its preſent Height of Grandeur and Opulency; but alſo the Kingdom in general to ſuch an Affluence of Wealth by the Improvement and Export of our Manufactures, that the legal Intereſt, which was never lower than ten per Cent. till the Year 1625, is at preſent (though reduced by Act of Parliament only to five per Cent.) in reality under three; for ſome of the publick Securities of three per Cent. at this Time, bear a Premium of almoſt ſeven per Cent. whereby the Nobility and Gentry, are not only enabled to raiſe Money at a low Intereſt for portioning off their younger Sons and Daughters, but likewiſe the Value of their Eſtates are thereby riſen from ten, to five or ſix and twenty Years Purchase.

Beſides this vaſt Acceſſion of Treafure, owing to the inceſſant Labours of our Merchants, we are likewiſe indebted to them for the great Im- provement of our Lands by exotick Culture; therefore they may juſtly be deemed the Soul of the Commonwealth.

An Account of divers Offices, &c. within the Bill of Mortality.

AS many of the publick Offices in this City have their immediate Dependence upon Trade, I ſhall therefore ſubjoin the ſe- veral Accounts thereof; and though the other numerous Offices within the Bill of Mortality are ſeemingly independent of Commerce, I ſhall nevertheleſs for the ſake of Connection, and Eaſe to the Reader, interſperſe the ſame in Alphabeti- cal Order with the former.

Admiralty Office.

This is a magnificent Structure oppoſite Scot- land-Yard near Whitehall, wherein are tranſacted all maritime Affairs belonging to the Jurifdiction of the Lord High Admiral. For which end, he, or the Lords Commiſſioners of the Admiralty, fit on certain Days for the Management of the Royal Navy; the Determination of all Cauſes, (which at preſent are heard and decided by the Court of Admiralty at Doſtors-Commons) Civil and Criminal, committed at Sea; and the Amerce- ing their Dependents and Officers for Neglect of Duty, or other Irregularities; and unto whom belongs the Nomination of Admirals, Captains, and other Officers, to ſerve on board his Maje- ſty's Ships of War.

Amicable Society.

This Company (whoſe Office is in Serjeants- Inn-Court, Fleet-ſtreet) was incorporated by Let- ters Patent of the Fourth of Queen Anne, 25 March, Anno 1706, by the Name of The Amica- ble Society for a perpetual Assurance Office. The Number of Members, not to exceed two thou- ſand, are impowered to purchaſe Lands, Tene- ments, &c. to the Amount of two thouſand Pounds per Ann. the ſame to alien at Pleaſure, to ſue and be ſued, and to have a common Seal, al- terable at Diſcretion.

Each Member of this Society originally paid, during the Life of the Perſon inſured upon, the Sum of ſix Pounds four Shillings per Ann. out of which, for the firſt Year of the Incorpo- ration, was divided one ſixth Part of the ſeveral Payments or Contributions among the Nominees of the Members that died in the ſaid Year; which Dividend increaſed proportionably till the Year 1710, when they divided 10000 l. among the Nominees, which is to be yearly continued, with an Addition of ſo much as the General Court ſhall deem proper. But in caſe the Num- ber of Members ſhall not amount to two thou- ſand, then the annual Dividends to be made in Proportion to the yearly Payments of ſix Pounds four Shillings by each of the reſpective Mem- bers.

And for the more effectual Support of this Society, it is by a ſupplemental Charter of the third Year of his present Majesty, 16 January, Anno 1729, ordained, that all and every of the Members, or their Nominees, that shall be in Arrears to the Corporation for a Year and a Quarter, and who, upon proper Notice thereof given in the London Gazette, shall omit Payment thereof for three Months after, every such Member so offending to be excluded the Society, and deprived of all Benefits arising thereby, as if he, she, or they, had never belonged to the same.

Regist.

The Sum, as already mentioned, appointed by their Charter to be paid by the Members of the Society, is six Pounds four Shillings per Annum each, and the Sum to be divided among the yearly Claimants five Pounds. The Surplus, of one Pound four Shillings, is improved for the Benefit of the Corporation for granting Annuities upon Lives to their own Members: By which, and other good Management, the Society have a Stock of near thirty thousand Pounds; whereby they are not only enabled to defray all the Expences of the Society, but likewise to reduce the annual Payments of the Members from six Pounds four Shillings, to five Pounds each; and beside this, the Company divide about 700*l.* per Ann. or so much thereof as shall be required, (when the Dividend, by a great Mortality, does not amount to 100*l.* on each Claim) to pay each Claimant one hundred Pounds, whereby all Reductions are effectually prevented, and the Corporation kept in a flourishing Condition; which, by the good Footing it is on at present, it is not to be doubted, but it will improve to the great Advantage of its Members.

Bank-end Waterworks.

To this Office, which is kept at the Bank-end in Southwark, belongs a Horse-Machine for raising Thames Water for the Service of that Neighbourhood; but it having but one Main Pipe of a seven Inch Bore, neither their Stock, or Shares, can be very considerable.

Bank of England.

This Corporation was projected in the Year 1694, by William Paterson, Esq; a Scotsman, upon the following Occasion; viz. The Government having Occasion for great Sums of Money towards carrying on an offensive War against France, Paterson proposed the raising the Sum of twelve hundred thousand Pounds by Subscription, to be lent to the Publick on certain Conditions, the principal whereof was that for erecting a Bank in this City. This Proposal being cheerfully embraced by many of the chief Citizens, they immediately applied to Parliament; where the Terms proposed being readily accepted, the Subscribers of the said Sum were incorporated by the Appellation of The Governor and Company of the Bank of England; to have perpetual Succession, and a common Seal; to purchase Lands, Rents, Tenements, and Hereditaments of what kind soever; and to sell, grant, demise, and dispose of the same at Pleasure; to sue and implead, to be sued and impleaded, answer and be answered in Courts of Record, or any other Place whatsoever; and to have an Interest of eight per Cent. for the Money advanced till the same shall be repaid.

The Proprietors of the Bank and the Grocers Company not agreeing about a new Lease, they began to erect a Building in Tbreadneedle-street to transact their Affairs in: On which Occasion, the Governor and Directors of the Corporation repaired thither on the third of August, Anno 1732, to see the Pedestal of the Western Column of the interior Front laid; whereon were engraven the following Words: The Foundation of this Building of the Bank of England was laid August 1, 1732, in the sixth Year of the Reign of King George the Second; Sir Edward Bellamy, Knight and Alderman, Governor; the Honourable Horatio Townshend, Esq; Deputy Governor; together with the Names of the several Directors. This Inscription is partly a Mistake, for the Foundation of the Work was begun about four Months before.

In order to come at the Virgin Earth to lay a firm Foundation for this magnificent Structure, after digging a considerable Depth, the Workmen continued to discover artificial Ground, which occasioned their boring to discover the Depth thereof; when, to their great Surprise, they brought up Oyster-shells in a Moorish Soil upwards of thirty Feet below the Surface: But for want of an additional Length of a Borer, could proceed no deeper; which shews the Earth to be vastly raised in this Place. And being in the Neighbourhood of the ancient Watercouse of Walbrook, it does in some Measure corroborate Stow's Tradition of the River Thames having anciently flowed as far as Bucklersbury in this Neighbourhood.

Soon after the finishing of this stately Fabrick, the Proprietors of the Bank caused a Statue to be erected in the Hall of the same, in Commemoration of their great Founder, with this Inscription:

Ob

English'd thus:

And confirming these to Posterity,

This Corporation, from a Sense of Gratitude,
Has erected this Statue,

Bounty

*Bounty of Queen Anne.*Act Parl.
2 & 3
Anne.

This Corporation, who keep their Office in Dean's-yard, Westminster, was established by Act of Parliament Anno 1703, for the better Maintenance of the poor Clergy, by the Augmentation of small Livings. This Body Corporate consists of the Lords of the Privy Council, Lords Lieutenants and Custos Rotulorum, the Archbishops, Bishops, Deans of Cathedrals, Judges, the King's Sergeants at Law, Attorney, Solicitor and Advocate General, Chancellors and Vice-Chancellors of the Universities, Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of London, and Mayors of all other Cities within the Kingdom; seven whereof at least to compose a Court, provided a Privy Counsellor, Bishop, Judge, or one of the King's Council be three thereof. This Court, having the Direction of all Affairs belonging to the Corporation, appoint Committees of Governors, and invest them with such Powers as they judge convenient.

The Governors Business is to find out the Value of every Benefice under eighty Pounds per Annum, with their respective Distances from the City of London, &c. and to lay the State thereof before the King, with the Value of the First-Fruits and Tenths, &c. and all Pensions and Charges belonging to the same, to the end the Royal Bounty may be applied for the Support of such as the Clergy as are in the greatest Distress. The Corporation has already made a great Progress in the Augmentation of a vast Number of small Livings; but I was refused an Account thereof on my applying for the same.

Charitable Corporation.

This Corporation was incorporated (for lending Money to the Poor upon easier Terms than those of Pawn Brokers and Money Jobbers, who seldom take less than thirty per Cent.) by Letters Patent of the Sixth of Queen Anne, 22 December 1708, by the Style of The charitable Corporation for the Relief of Industrious Poor, by assisting them with small Sums upon Pledges at legal Interest: And to enable the Members of the Corporation to answer their Title, they were empowered to raise a Fund not less than twenty, nor more than thirty thousand Pounds. But this Fund afterwards, by additional Grants, being increased to six hundred thousand Pounds, the same, instead of being employed to the Advantage of the Proprietors, was wickedly embezzled by their Cashier, Warehouse-keeper, and others; the two former whereof, for their flagitious Crimes, and unparalleled Villany, fled to France to shelter themselves from Justice: On which Occasion the unfortunate Proprietors applied to Parliament for Redress, who, in Commiseration to their unhappy Circumstances, not only made an Act to oblige the two Miscreants to return to account with the Sufferers, (which they not complying with, they were, by the said Act, both declared Felons) but likewise granted them a Power to make a Lottery for the Sum of five hundred thousand Pounds; whereby they cleared about eighty thousand Pounds.

This Corporation, by their Charter, are, upon Pain of Dissolution, enjoined not to interfere with the Bank of England, by discounting of Bills either Foreign or Domestick, or keeping other Cash than their own, nor to traffick or deal in any Business other than that of lending Money upon Pledges, which they are to advance upon legal Interest, and a reasonable Allowance for Charges; which, by the Advice of able Council, they ascertained at five per Cent. which, with the Interest, amounts to ten per Cent. upon all Pawns.

The Affairs of this Corporation are under the Direction of a Committee of seven of the Proprietors, three or more whereof constitute a Court, who, in Conjunction with others, may call a general Court, which is to consist of seventeen at least, who are empowered to make By-laws for the better Government of the Company, and to appoint their Officers, who are a Chastier, Warehouse-keepers, Accomptant, Clerks, &c.

This Corporation, during its Prosperity, had two Offices, viz. One on Laurence Pountney's-Hill, and the other in Spring-Garden, Charing-Cross; but they transact their Affairs only in that of the Spring-Garden, Charing-Cross.

Chelsea Water-works.

This Society was incorporated by Act of Parliament in the Year 1722, by the Name of The Governor and Company of Chelsea Water-works; by which Name they are to have perpetual Succession and a common Seal, with a Power to purchase in Mortmain, Lands, &c. to the Amount of one thousand Pounds per Ann. with a Right to alien and dispose of the same as they shall see convenient. Which Works are divided into two thousand Shares. The Company's Affairs are managed by a Governor, Deputy, and thirteen Directors.

Act Parl.
8 G. I.Coal-meters Office.

In this Office, which is kept in Church-Alley, St. Dunstan's-Hill, are entered all Ships that arrive in the Port of London with Coals; and to which belong fifteen Master-meters, who appoint a sufficient Number of Persons to measure the Coals brought by the said Ships, to prevent Impositions, which would otherwise happen both to the King and Subject, in respect to the Duty and Measure. See Vol. I. A. D. 1713.

Custom-House.

Though the Antiquity of the Duties of Import and Export in this City cannot be ascertained, yet that they are almost coeval with the Commerce thereof, I think will not be controverted. That Custom was paid in London during the Saxon Government, is manifest by the twenty-third Law of King Ethelbert, which appoints a certain Toll to be paid at Billinggate, to the Collectors of the King's commercial and other Revenues in this City. See Tower Ward.

Joh.
Brompt.
Chron.

The Duties said to be collected in the Year 1728, amounted to upwards of two Millions and eight hundred thousand Pounds, than which nothing can so effectually shew the Opulency and prodigious Commerce of this vast City.

English Copper Office.

This Company, whose Office is kept in Busb-Lane, was incorporated by Letters Patent of

the

the Third of William and Mary, 22 September, Anno 1691, by the Appellation of The Governor and Company of Copper Miners in England; which was confirmed by Queen Anne, Anno 1710; and by subsequent Grants, their Power of working of Mines was extended to all Parts of Ireland and New England.

This Corporation consists of a Governor, Deputy Governor, and eighteen Assistants.

Excise Office.

Scob.
Act Parl.

The Duty of Excise was at first introduced into this City and Kingdom by the Parliament, 22 July, Anno 1643, by laying an Impost upon Beer, Ale, Wine, and other Provisions for carrying on a War against the King.

This Office, which is kept in the Old Jewry, was till of late managed by seven Commissioners; but there being so many new exciseable Commodities brought into the same, their Number is increased to nine, who have each a Salary of one thousand Pounds per Annum; as are likewise the Clerks and other Officers under them, both in Number and Salaries.

At the Desire of the Commissioners of this Office, a very laudable Practice is lately set on Foot, for the Support of the valetudinary and aged Clerks and Officers belonging to the same; for which Purpose the several Clerks and Officers contribute three Pence per Pound out of their respective Salaries; which is said to amount to about three thousand Pounds per Annum.

Before the Commissioners of Excise are try'd all Frauds committed in the several Branches of the Revenue under their Direction; and if any Person thinks himself injured by their Sentence, he may appeal to the Commissioners of Appeals for a Re-hearing, who are five in Number, and have each a Salary of two hundred Pounds per Annum. See Cheap Ward.

Friendly Society.

This Society was erected by a Deed of Settlement of the 28th of August, Anno 1684, for insuring Houses against Loss by Fire, which they do on Brick Buildings at the Rate of nine Shillings and four Pence per Cent. for the Term of seven Years, and double that Sum on those of Wood.

Besides this certain Charge, the Insured are obliged to contribute to the Payment of all Losses that may happen; in order to which, they make a Deposit of six Shillings and eight Pence per Cent. so much whereof as remains undivided, at the Expiration of the several Insurances, is returned to the respective Proprietors. And for securing the Payment of all Losses, that may happen by Fire, a considerable Security in Land is settled on Trustees. And, for extinguishing Fires, continually keep in their Service two and twenty Firemen, who wear the Company's Badge, and are annually cloathed.

Georgia Office.

The King having been graciously pleased to purchase the Properties of divers of the Proprietors of uncultivated Lands in the Province of South Carolina in America, in order for their Cultivation; and to which End, conferred the same upon a certain Number of Gentlemen in Trust, whom he incorporated by his Letters Patent, 9 June, Anno 1732, by the Appellation of The Trustees for establishing the Colony of Georgia in America; with a Power to receive Benefactions, and make Collections by Contribution, or Subscription, towards promoting the intended Settlement: For which Purpose the said Trustees having directed their Letters Commissorial, under their common Seal, to the Ministers, Churchwardens and Vestrymen of the several Parishes of this City and Suburbs; divers whereof, together with such Gentlemen as had Commissions directed to them for the same End, in a short time, so bestirred themselves, that they collected upwards of five thousand Pounds; which, with the ten thousand Pounds granted them by Parliament on the same Account, the whole Sum on the 9th of June, Anno 1734, amounted to fifteen thousand two hundred and twenty-six Pounds twelve Shillings and ten Pence.

Since which Time divers Collections were made in other Parishes, which greatly contributed to the forwarding of so great and laudable an Undertaking; but none so effectually as the generous Resolution of the House of Commons, in granting the Trustees an additional Supply of twenty-six thousand Pounds. By this Encouragement, and the great Progress made in the Cultivation of the Country by Foreigners who are sent thither, it is not to be doubted but this Colony will prove of as great Advantage to this Kingdom, as any of our American Settlements.

But by the Trustees manner of granting the Lands in Georgia to the People only in Tail Male, it is to be feared it will be a Means of deterring others from going to settle in that Country on such slavish Terms, seeing that the Female Descendants of industrious Parents (who, at the Expence of their All, and the wearing out of their Bodies in hard Labour, to improve the Ground, which, when granted them, probably was not worth six Pence an Acre) will be thereby deprived of their Father's Inheritance, which, on the Failure of the Male Branch of the Family, will revert to the Trust, while the distressed Females will be left to shift for themselves, perhaps under the direful Effects of a miserable Poverty.

Hackney-coach Office.

This Office, which is kept in Surrey-street in the Strand, was erected by Act of Parliament in the Year 1696, to consist of five Commissioners, for licensing Hackney and Stage Coaches.

Act Parl.
5 & 6 W.
& M.

For the better Government of the said Coaches and Chairs, and preventing the Drivers and Bearers thereof from imposing upon their Employers, each has its respective Number, whereby the Workers, in case of any Damage, Abuse or Imposition committed by them, may be found; and who, being on such Occasions summoned before the Commissioners, are generally fined for each Offence in the Sum of twenty or forty Shillings, without the Right of Appeal.

And as a farther Regulation for the said Hackney Coachmen and their Employers, the following ing Rates are by the said Act of Parliament appointed to be taken by them respectively.

Act Parl.
5 & 6 W.
& M.

That no licensed Hackney-coachman, or Driver of such Coach, shall presume to take for his Hire in and about the Cities of London and Westminster, or ten Miles of the same, above the Rate of ten Shillings per Day, reckoned at twelve Hours; and by the Hour, eighteen Pence for the first, and twelve Pence for every Hour after; and from any of the Inns of Court, or thereabouts, to any Part of St. James's or Westminster (except beyond Totbil-street) one Shilling; and from any of the said Inns of Court to the Royal Exchange, one Shilling; and if to the Tower of London, Bishopsgate-street, Aldgate, or thereabouts, one Shilling and six Pence; and from the same Places to the said Inns of Court; and the like Rates to and from Places of the like Distances.

Pursuant to the Directions of the said Act of Parliament, and for the better ascertaining the Fares between the most remarkable Places of this City and Suburbs, the Commissioners of the Hackney Coach Office caused the Distances between the following Parts to be measured, and the several Rates fixed accordingly.

Hampstead Water-Office.

To this Office, which is kept in Denmark-street, St. Giles's, belong two main Pipes of a seven Inch Bore, which bring Water from the Ponds at Highgate and Hampstead to supply this Neighbourhood.

Hand in Hand Fire-Office.

This Office was erected in the Year 1696, by about one hundred Persons, who mutually agreeing to insure one anothers Houses from Loss by Fire, by an amicable Contribution, entered into a Deed of Settlement for that Purpose; which being signed by every Person desirous of becoming a Member, he or she is thereby admitted into the joint Contributionship, and becomes an equal Sharer in Profit and Loss, in

Pro-

Proportion to his, her or their respective Insurances; which Deed of Settlement was inrolled in Chancery, 24 January, Anno 1698.

This Office being calculated for the mutual Ease and Advantage of all the Contributors, they insure Houses, Chambers, &c. at the following easy Rates, viz. The Deposite Money on Stone, or Brick Houses, is ten Shillings per Cent. and double on those of Timber; with a Premium of two Shillings per Cent. on Brick or Stone, and double on Timber Buildings, for any Sum not exceeding 1500*l.* And for any Sum from 1500*l.* to 2000*l.* four Shillings per Cent. on Brick or Stone, and double on Timber for any Term of Years not exceeding seven. But a Sum exceeding 2000*l.* not to be insured on any Building, without the Approbation of a General Court. And for the more effectual preventing the Office from being imposed upon, they insure only three-fourths of the Value of each House.

Surely never any Project was better calculated for the mutual Advantage of the Contributors than this; for the Deposite Money of ten and twenty Shillings per Cent. is returnable at the Expiration of seven Years, the Premium employed in defraying the Expence of the Office, and the Surplus thrown into the Dividend of Profits.

The annual Dividend of this Society arises from the Surplusage above-mentioned, and the Interest of their Stock in the publick Funds and other Securities; which on stating the Company's Accounts, 23 October, Anno 1732, amounted to fifty-five thousand two hundred and forty-seven Pounds seven Shillings and two Pence Half-penny. The Profits whereof amounting to above double the Expence of the Office, the Remainder is divided among the Proprietors.

The Affairs of this Community are managed by twenty-four Directors, who generously serve gratis; which together with their frugal and disinterested Management, the considerable Fund aforesaid, and a Call of ten Shillings per Cent. on Brick, and twenty on Wooden Buildings (which is the most that each Contributor is obliged to pay, in case so great a Loss should happen as to require the same, which hitherto has not happened, nor probably never will) on any extraordinary Event; a better Security cannot well be devised. And as this Office, as already hinted, is calculated for the general Good of the Members, they have likewise the Advantage separately to examine the Deed of Settlement, and all Orders and Proceedings, as well of the General Courts, as those of the Court of Directors.

This Company, for the extinguishing of Fires, keep in their Service thirty Firemen, who are annually clothed, and have each a Badge. See Aldersgate Ward.

Jewel-Office.

In this Office, which is kept in the Tower of London, besides Plate and Jewels of great Value, are contained the Regalia used at Coronations. See Tower of London, Vol. I. Page 146, &c.

Lead-Office.

This Company was incorporated by Letters Patent of the fourth of William and Mary, 4 Oct. Anno 1692, by the Appellation of The Governor and Company for smelting down Lead with Pit and Sea-Coal and by which they were impowered to raise a joint Stock for the effectual carrying on the Business of Smelting, or Refining Lead from the Ore, &c. with Sea-coal, instead of Wood.

This Corporation is under the Direction of a Governor, Deputy-Governor and twelve Assistants; who manage their Affairs in a convenient House in Ingram's-court in Fenchurch-street.

London-Assurance.

This Society, pursuant to an Act of Parliament of the sixth of George I. was incorporated by Letters Patent of the said Prince, 22 June, Anno 1720, by the Name of The London Assurance for assuring of Ships, Goods, and Merchandizes at Sea, or going to Sea; and for lending Money upon Bottomry. By which Name they are to have perpetual Succession, (yet subject to Redemption by Parliament) with a Power to sue and implead, be sued and impleaded, answer and be answered in Courts of Record, or elsewhere, touching or concerning the Transactions of the Corporation; to have a common Seal; and to purchase Lands, &c. in Mortmain, to the Amount of one thousand Pounds per Annum; and to grant, alien, or demise the same at Pleasure.

In Consideration of the Premises, the Corporation was to advance to his Majesty the Sum of three hundred thousand Pounds, without Interest, for the Term of thirty-one Years. Towards the raising of which Sum, and paying all just Demands, that may be made upon their respective Policies, the Company was impowered to raise a Sum not exceeding fifteen hundred thousand Pounds, to be called the Stock of the Corporation.

And in case the Government should think fit to repay the aforesaid Sum of three hundred thousand Pounds within, or at the Expiration of, the aforesaid Term of thirty-one Years; then, and in such case, three Years Notice shall be given by Parliament in the London Gazette, to be affixed on the Royal Exchange of London. Upon the Payment of which Sum, the Corporation to cease, and become intirely void, in all Respects, as if the same had never subsisted.

By a second Charter, granted to this Corporation, 29 April, Anno 1721, they were impowered not only to insure Houses, Goods, Ships, &c. from Fire, but likewise to assure Lives.

London-bridge Water-works.

These Water-works are divided into Shares, which belong to the several Proprietors; who, after a Deduction of Charges, divide the Profits arising thereby half-yearly. See Bridge Ward within.

Mercers Assurance-Office.

This Office of Assurance was projected by William Ashton, D. D. See Mercers Company. Acc.

Merchants Water-works.

To this Office belong three Engines for raising Water, viz. a Windmill in Tottenham-Court-Road-Fields; and two others wrought by the common Sewer at Tom's Coffee-house in St. Martin's and Harts-born Lanes in the Strand; whence issue three main Pipes of six and seven Inch Bores, whereby those Neighbourhoods are sup-supplied with Water. This Company, like others, after the defraying of all Charges, divide the Profits half-yearly.

Mines Royal.

Sir John Pettus's
Fodinae
Regale.

The English in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth having but little Knowledge in discovering and working of Mines, she, by the Advice of her Council, sent for divers Germans experienced in such Works, and those of Smelting and Refining of Minerals; who, on their Arrival, were no sooner naturalized, than the Queen, by her Letters Patent of the tenth of October, An. 1564, granted to Thomas Thurland and Daniel Houghsetter, and their Heirs for ever, Licence to search for Mines of Gold, Silver, Copper, and Quicksilver, in the several Royalties in the Counties of York, Lancashire, Cumberland, Westmorland, Cornwall, Devon, Glocester, Worcester and Principality of Wales, for their sole Use and Profit, other than that her Majesty reserved to herself the Tenths of all Gold, Silver, and Quicksilver Ores, and the Pre-emption of refined Gold and Silver; the former at eight Pence, and the latter at one Penny per Ounce lower than the current Price of the said Metals; and two Shillings and six Pence for every hundred Weight of Copper.

Ibid.

Thurland and Houghsetter aforefaid, having, by virtue of the Powers granted them, sold divers Parts, or Shares, of their said Privileges, &c. they were, with the Purchasers, by Letters Patent 22 May, Anno 1568, incorporated by the Style of The Governors, Assistants and Commonalty of the Mines Royal. The Shares of this Company at first consisted of twenty-four; which have since been increased to ninety-six.

Mineral and Mineral-works.

Ibid.

Queen Elizabeth, on the seventeenth of September, Anno 1565, granted to William Humsfreys and Christopher Schutz, a German, a Licence to search for all Mines, Minerals, and subterraneous Treasure, (except Copperas and Alom) in the several Royalties, in all Parts of England, (exclusive of the eight Counties specified in Thurland's and Houghsetter's Grant of the Mines Royal) and in the English Pale in Ireland; to be held of the Crown upon the same Terms as those belonging to the Company of Mines Royal.

Ibid.

Some Time after, Queen Elizabeth, on the twenty-eighth of May, Anno 1568, incorporated this Society by the Name of The Governors, Assistants and Society of the Mineral and Battery-works. The Number of Shares belonging to this Company at first were thirty-six; which being divided into Half and Quarter-parts, they are thereby increased to one hundred and forty-four.

Mint-Office.

Try. Pix.

This Office is kept in the Tower of London; the Moniers, or Members whereof, were incorporated by Edward III. See Tower of London, Vol. I. Page 146, &c.

Navy-Office.

In this Office, which is kept in Crouched-friars, are managed all Affairs belonging to the Royal Navy, by seven Commissioners under the Lord High Admiral, or Commissioners of the Admiralty; the Chief whereof being the Treasurer, his Office is to receive and pay all Sums for the Use of the Navy. See Tower Ward.

New-River Company.

Various were the Projects in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth and King James I. for supplying the City of London with a sufficient Quantity of Water, for domestick Uses. One of which, in the third of King James I. Anno 1606, was confirmed by Act of Parliament. See Vol. I. Page 294. Act Parl. 3 Jac. I.

By an exact Mensuration of the Course of the New-River, taken by Henry Mills, (Surveyor to the Company) in the Year 1723, it appeared to be thirty-eight Miles three Quarters and sixteen Poles in Length; to which it was reduced, by the Contraction of its Sinuosities, above two Miles. Mill. Surv. New Riv.

This River, wherein, and over it, are forty-three Sluices, and two hundred and fifteen Bridges, is carried over two Vales in Wooden Frames, or Troughs, lined with Lead; that at Busbil being six hundred and sixty Feet in Length, and thirty in Height; under which, for the Passage of the Land-waters, is an Arch, capacious enough to receive the greatest Cart, or Waggon, laden with Hay or Straw; and the other, at Highbury, is in Length four hundred and sixty-two Feet, and in Height seventeen. And over and under the said River, besides divers considerable Currents of Land-waters, a great Number of Brooks, Rills, and Water-courses have their Passage.

As this New-River is, in some Places, waisted over Hills and Vales, so in others, Mole-like, it forces its Way through subterraneous Passages; and arriving at the Place, unjustly called its Head, in the Neighbourhood of Islington, 'tis ingulfed by fifty-eight Main Pipes, of Bores of seven Inches; whereby 'tis conveyed into the several Streets, Lanes, &c. of the City and Suburbs of London, to the great Convenience and Use of the Inhabitants; who, by small Leaden Pipes of an Half-Inch Bore, have the Water brought into their Houses; which amount to upwards of thirty thousand, who take in the same.

This Corporation consists of a Governor, Deputy-Governor, Treasurer, and twenty-six Directors; who at present keep their Office in Bridewell Precinct; where, weekly, on Thursdays, they hold a Board, for appointing of Officers, granting of Leases, and redressing of Grievances.

The Officers and Servants belonging to this Company, besides the above-mentioned, are; a Clerk, and his Assistant; a Surveyor, and his Deputy; fourteen Collectors, who, after deducting five per Cent. for collecting the Company's Rents, pay their Money every Thursday to the Treasurer; fourteen Walksmen, who have their several Walks along the River, to prevent throwing in Filth, or infectious Matter, into the same; sixteen Turncocks; twelve Pavours; twenty Borers of Pipes, besides Horse Engines for boring of others; together with a great Number of inferior Servants and Labourers.

The Work of the New-River being finished, and the Water brought to the Basin, into which 'twas not admitted till the Michaelmas following, in the Year 1613, on which Day, Sir Thomas Middleton, Brother to our Undertaker, was elected

Lord-Mayor of London for the ensuing Year; who accompanying Sir John Swinerton, the Lord-Mayor, attended by many of the Aldermen, Recorder, &c. repaired to the said Bafon; when a Company of Labourers, about sixty in Number, (handsomly apparelled, with green Caps, carrying Spades, Shovels, Pickaxes, and other Implements of Labour) preceded by Drums and Trumpets, marched thrice round the Bafon; when stopping before the Lord-Mayor, &c. who were seated upon an Eminence, one of the said Labourers addrested himself to them in the following Lines:

Mund.Ed.
Stow.Sur.

Long have we labour'd, long desir'd and pray'd
For this great Work's Perfection: And by th' Ayd
Of Heav'n, and good Mens Wishe, tis at length
Happily conquer'd by Cost, Art and Strength.
And after five Yeeres deare Expence in Days,
Travaile and Paines, besides the infinite Wayes
Of Malice, Envie, false Suggestions,
Able to daunt the Spirits of mighty ones
In Wealth and Courage: This, a Work so rare,
Only by one Man's Industry, Cost and Care,
Is brought to blest Effect, so much withstood;
His onely Ayme the Cities generall Good.
And when (before) many unjust Complaints,
Enviouly seated, caused oft Restraints,
Stops, and great Crosses, to our Master's Charge,
And the Work's Hindrance; Favour now at large Spreads itself open to him, and commends
To Admiration both his Pains and Ends.
The King's most gracious Love Perfection draws,
Favour from Princes, and (from all) Applause.
Then, worthy Magistrates, to whose Content,
(Next to the State) all this great Care was bent;
And for the Publicke Good, (which Grace requires)
Your Loves and Furtherance chiefly he desires,
To cherish these Proceedings; which may give Courage to some, that may hereafter live,
To practise Deedes of Goodnesse and of Fame,
And gladly light their Actions by his Name.
Clarke of the Work, reach me the Booke, to show
How many Arts from such a Labour flow.
First, here's the Overseer, this tride Man,
An ancient Soldier, and an Artizan:
The Clarke, next him, a Mathematician.
The Master of the Timber-work takes place
Next after these; the Measurer, in like case;
Bricklayer, and Engineer; and after those,
The Borer and the Paviour. Then it shoves
The Labourers next; Keeper of Amwell-head;
The Walkers, last: So all their Names are read.
Yet these but Parcels of six hundred more,
That (at one Time) have been imployed before.
Yet these in Sight, and all the rest will say,
That all the Weeke they had their Royall Pay.
Now for the Fruits then: Flow forth, precious Spring,

So long and dearly fought for, and now bring Comfort to all that love thee: Loudly sing,
And with thy Chrystal Murmurs strook together,
Bid all thy true Well-wishers, Welcome hither.

At which Word, the Sluices being opened, the Stream ran plentifully into the Bafon, under the Sound of Drums and Trumpets, the Discharge of divers Chambers, and loud Acclamations of the People.

Sir Hugh Middleton, with the Assistance of King James I. and the Mayor and Commonalty of London, is supposed to have expended five hundred thousand Pounds in bringing this Work to Town: But so poorly did it answer at first, that the Projector was almost ruined by it, whereupon the King, who was intitled to a Moiety of the Profits, relinquished his Share, reserving only 500 Pounds per Ann. out of it: And for above thirty Years, there were not divided but five Pounds odd Money to each of the Shares, which are seventy-two in Number; and are now reckoned to be worth between 4 and 5000 Pounds each.

The New-River-Company supplies at this Time above 30000 Houses with Water, for they have more than that Number of Tenants, several of which pay for many Houses.

Office of Ordnance.

This Office, which is kept in the Tower of London, is under the Direction of a Master. See Tower of London, Vol. I. Page 146, &c.

Pay-Office.

This Office, which is kept in Broad-street near London-wall, is under the Direction of a Treasurer, and Pay-master, who pay for all the Stores for the Use of the Royal Navy, and Wages of Sailors that serve on board the same. See Broad-street Ward.

Penny-Post-Office.

This Office, which is of great Use and Convenience to the Citizens of London, (and unknown in other Countries) was projected by David Murray, an Upholder in Pater-Noster-row, in the Year 1683, who communicating the same to William Dockwra, he carried it on for some Time with great Success; till the Government laid Claim to the same, as a Royal Prerogative; which Dockwra being obliged to submit to, had, in return a Pension of two hundred Pounds per Annum granted him by the King during Life. It is under the Direction of the Post-master-general; who appoints, as Managers thereof, a Comptroller, an Accomptant, Receiver, and Comptroller's Clerk; who have under their Management six Sorters and eight Sub-sorters of Letters, seventy-four Messengers or Letter-carriers, and three hundred and thirty-four Houses within the Bill of Mortality, for receiving or taking in Letters, which are divided among the six Offices belonging to the Penny-Post, as follow: viz. To the chief Office in St. Christopher's-alley, Tbreadneedle-street, one Sorter, two Sub-sorters, twenty Messengers, and seventy-three Receiving-houses. To Westminster Office, in Little Suffolk-street, one Sorter, two Sub-sorters, fifteen Messengers, and seventy-nine Receiving-houses. To St. Paul's Office, in Queen's-Head-alley, Pater-Noster-row, one Sorter, a Sub-sorter, ten Messengers, and thirty-six Receiving-houses. To the Temple Office, in Chichester-rents, Chancery-lane, one Sorter, a Sub-sorter, twelve Messengers, and sixty-two Receiving-houses. To Southwark Office, in St. Mary Overie's Church-yard, one Sorter, a Sub-sorter, twelve Messengers, and fifty-four Receiving-houses. To the Hermitage Office, in King-street, Rose-mary-lane, one Sorter, a Sub-sorter, five Messengers, and thirty Receiving-houses.

Comptrol.
Account.

The Advantages arising to the Citizens of London, Westminster, &c. by this Post in respect to Trade, are very considerable; for instead of corresponding with their Customers in the distant Parts of the City and Suburbs, and circumjacent Towns and Villages, at the great Expence of Portage as formerly, they can at present, by this valuable Convenience, manage their Affairs in those Places, by sending Letters, or Parcels of a Pound Weight, at so small a Charge as one Penny upon the Stones. But beyond the Stones-end, two Pence, of which the Receiver as well as the Sender pays one Penny. Besides the above-mentioned Number of Receiving-houses in the City and Suburbs, there are within the Circuit of the Penny-Post, in the Neighbourhood of London, upwards of two hundred Towns and Villages, where Penny-post Letters and Parcels are taken in. See Broad-street Ward.

Post-Office.

Act Parl.
12 Car. II.

Of what Antiquity the Post in this Kingdom is, I cannot ascertain; but by the first Account I find thereof, it appears to have been managed by several private Offices, which had their respective Districts. Great Inconveniencies arising from their different Methods of Management, they were suppressed, and a certain Number of Publick Offices erected in lieu thereof: But these not answering the End proposed, a General Post-Office was erected by Act of Parliament, in the twelfth of Charles II. Anno 1660, to be kept within the City of London, under the Direction of a Post-master, to be appointed by the King, and with Power to appoint Post-houses in divers Parts of the Country hitherto unprovided, both in Post and By-roads.

By the said Act of Parliament, the Postage of Letters to and from all Places therein mentioned was not only ascertained, but likewise the Rates of Post-horses, to be paid by all such as shall ride Post.

Ibid.
9 Anne.

And upon the Union of the Kingdoms of England and Scotland, a General Post-Office was established by Act of Parliament in the Year 1710, not only for the united Kingdom of Great-Britain, but likewise for that of Ireland, and her Majesty's Plantations in the West Indies and North America; by which the Postage of Letters being raised, I shall subjoin an Account of the present Rates, payable upon all Letters and Packets, to and from the several Places therein mentioned.

The Office of Post-Master General is at present under the Direction of two Commissioners, assisted by a Secretary and Clerk, who have under their Management for the Inland Office, a Comptroller, Receiver, Accomptant and Solicitor, seven Clerks of the Roads, and thirteen others, with three Window-men: And for the Foreign Office, a Comptroller and Alphabet-keeper, and eight Clerks, including those of the Receiver and Accomptant. And the Number of Receiving-houses within within the Bill of Mortality, where Letters are taken in for the General-Post, amount to thirty; and that of Men who carry Letters to all Parts within the said District, to sixty-nine.

Record-Office.

This Office is kept in the Tower of London. See Tower of London, Page 146, &c.

This Office is in the Custody of a Keeper and his Deputy, who occasionally employ a Number of Clerks.

Rotherhithe Water-works.

This Office is kept at the upper End of Rotherhithe-wall, and lower End of Mill-street; where the Water Engine belonging to the same is wrought by Water from the River Thames, which being brought in by the Tide, is contained in the Canals in the neighbouring Streets: By this Engine a sufficient Quantity of Water is raised to supply two Main Pipes of a six Inch Bore each, whereby the Neighbourhood is plentifully served with Thames Water.

Royal-Exchange Assurance,

This Society, pursuant to an Act of Parliament of the sixth of George I. 22 June, Anno 1720, were incorporated by Letters Patent, by the Name of The Royal-Exchange Assurance for assuring of Ships, Goods and Merchandise at Sea, or going to Sea, and for lending Money on Bottomry: By which Name they are to have perpetual Succession, (yet subject to Redemption by Parliament) with a Power to sue and implead, be sued and impleaded, answer and be answered in Courts of Record, or elsewhere, touching, or concerning the Transactions of the Corporation; to have a common Seal, and to purchase Lands, &c. in Mortmain, to the Amount of one thousand Pounds per Annum, and to grant, alien or demise the same at pleasure.

In consideration of the Premises, the Corporation was to advance to the King the Sum of three hundred thousand Pounds, without Interest, for the Term of thirty-one Years. Towards raising this Sum, and paying all just Demands that shall be made upon their respective Policies, the Company were impowered to raise a Sum not exceeding fifteen hundred thousand Pounds, to be called the Stock of the Corporation.

And in case the Government should think fit to repay the aforesaid Sum of three hundred thousand Pounds, within, or at the Expiration of the Term above mentioned; then and in such case, (three Years Notice thereof shall be given by Parliament in the London Gazette, to be affixed on the Royal-Exchange of London; upon the Payment of which Sum) the Corporation to cease and become intirely void in all Respects, as if the same had never subsisted.

By a second Charter granted to this Corporation, they are impowered not only to insure Houses, Goods, Ships, &c. from Fire, but likewise to assure Lives.

Shadwell Water-works.

This Office is kept in Shadwell, and is wrought by two Fire Engines, who supply two Main Pipes of six or seven Inch Bores with Thames Water, wherewith that Neighbourhood is plentifully furnished.

Stratford or Bow Water-works.

So called from their Situation, between the Villages of Bow in the County of Middlesex, and Stratford in the County of Essex, on the great Road to Harwich. These Works are supplied by a Fire Engine, which throws up the Water out of a Creek, branched from the River Lea, which is conveyed first into Reservoirs to settle, and then by broader Pipes conveyed Eastward into Stratford, and Westward to Bow, Bromley, Old Ford, Mile-end Old Town, Stepney, Limehouse, Ratcliffe, and as far as Sun-Tavern Fields, in Shadwell Parish.

Sun-Fire Office.

This Office was projected by John Povey, about the Year 1706, for insuring Merchandize and Household Goods (as well as Houses from Fire) which, till then was never done. Povey having for some Time carried on his Project with Success, disposed of the same, and conveyed his Right therein to certain Purchasers; who, by a Deed of Settlement of the 7th of April, Anno 1710, erected themselves into a Society by the Name of The Sun-Fire Office, for insuring Houses, Goods, Wares and Merchandizes from Loss and Damage by Fire.

This Society not confining themselves, like other Offices, to insure Houses, Goods, &c. within the Bill of Mortality only, but, for the Advantage of the Inhabitants of Great Britain in general, have extended their Insurance to all Parts of the Island. And that all Persons may with the greater Security insure in this Office, the Proprietors have raised a Fund of forty-eight thousand Pounds for the Safety of the insured; who are assured according to the Rates set forth in the subjoined Table.

A Table of annual Premiums to be paid for Insurances.

2000l. to 3000l.	3s. 6d. per Ct.	5s. per Ct.

Under the Article of common Insurances, are to be understood all Brick, or Stone, Buildings, not inhabited by the hazardous Trades hereafter specified, nor the Goods hereunder mentioned. Under that of hazardous Insurances are to be understood Timber and Plaster Buildings, and Goods and Merchandize therein called hazardous. And under the Head of doubly hazardous, are to be understood all Thatched Timber, or Plaster Buildings, wherein hazardous Goods, or Trades are deposited, or carried on.

The hazardous Trades and Goods are, viz. Apothecaries, Chymists, Bread and Bisket-bakers, Ship and Tallow-chandlers, Stable-keepers, Inn-holders and Malt-houses; Hemp, Flax, Tallow, Pitch, Tar, Turpentine, Hay, Straw, Fodder of all Kinds, and Corn unthrashed.

To this Office belong thirty Firemen, and twenty Porters, to assist the Insured in case of Fire.

Trade and Plantation Office.

This Office, which is kept at the North-east Corner of King-street, Westminster, is under the Direction of eight Commissioners, whose Business it it is, to examine the Custom-house Accounts of all the Goods and Merchandize exported and imported from and to the several Ports of the Kingdom, as well as from Foreign Parts; thereby to inform the Government in respect to the Advantages and Disadvantages of the Trade of the Nation, with the several Kingdoms and States beyond Sea, in regard to the Balance of Trade. And also, to encourage our Plantations abroad, by endeavouring to discover what Branches of Trade are the most conducive to their respective Interests, as well as that of the Kingdom.

Char.
Frater.

This Society was incorporated by Henry VIII. 20 May, Anno 1515, who confirmed to them not only all the antient Rights and Privileges of the Shipmen and Mariners of England, their Predecessors, but also their several Possessions at Deptford; which, together with divers Grants of Queen Elizabeth and King Charles II. were confirmed by Letters Patent of the first of James II. 8 July, Anno 1685, by the Name of The Master, Wardens and Assistants of the Guild or Fraternity of the most glorious and undivided Trinity, and of St. Clement in the Parish of Deptford Strand in the County of Kent.

This Corporation is governed by a Master, four Wardens, eight Assistants and eighteen Elder Brethren; the inferior Members of the Fraternity, denominated Younger Brethren, are of an unlimited Number, (for every Master, or Mate, expert in Navigation, may be admitted as such) and serve as a continual Nursery to supply the Vacancies among the Elder Brethren, when removed by Death, or otherwise.

The Master, Wardens, Assistants and Elder Brethren of this Fraternity are by Charter invested with the following Powers:

- Ibid
1. The examining of the Mathematical Children of Christ's Hospital.
 2. The Examination of the Masters of his Majesty's Ships, the appointing Pilots to conduct Ships in and out of the River Thames, and the amercing all such as shall presume to act as Master of a Ship of War, or Pilot, without their Approbation, in a pecuniary Mulct of twenty Pounds.
 3. The settling the several Rates of Pilotage, and erecting Light-houses and other Sea Marks upon the several Coasts of the Kingdom, for the Security of Navigation.
 4. The preventing of Aliens from serving on board English Ships, without their Licence, upon Penalty of five Pounds for each Offence.

5. The punishing of Seamen, for Desertion, or Mutiny, in the Merchants Service.

6. The Hearing and Determining the Complaints of Officers and Seamen in the Merchants Service; but subject to an Appeal to the Lord High Admiral, or Judge of the Court of Admiralty.

7. The granting of Licences to poor Seamen (Non-Freemen) to row on the River Thames for their Support in the Intervals of Sea Service.

To this Company belongs the Ballast Office, for clearing and deepning the River Thames, by taking from thence a sufficient Quantity of Ballast for the Supply of all Ships that sail out of the said River; in which Service, sixty Barges, of the Burden of thirty Tons and two Men each, are continually employed.

And in Consideration of the great Increase of the Poor of this Fraternity, they are by their Charter impowered to purchase in Mormain, Lands, Tenements, &c. to the Amount of five hundred Pounds per Annum; and also to receive charitable Benefactions of well-disposed Persons, to the like Amount of five hundred Pounds per Annum, clear of Reprizes.

Ibid.

The Company annually relieve about three thousand poor Seamen, their Widows and poor Orphans, at the Expence of about six thousand Pounds.

Union Fire-Office.

This Office was erected in the Year 1714, by a considerable Number of Persons, who mutually agreeing to insure one anothers Goods and Merchandize from Loss by Fire, by an amicable Contribution, entered into a Deed of Settlement for that Purpose, which being signed by every Person desirous of becoming a Member, he is thereby admitted into the joint Contributionship, and becomes an equal Sharer in Profit and Loss, in Proportion to his, her, or their respective Insurances; which Deed of Settlement was executed on the 16th of February, Anno 1714, and inrolled in Chancery on July. 8, Anno 1715.

This Office, denominated The Union Society for insuring of Goods and Merchandize from Loss by Fire, was erected upon the same Foot, in all Respects, as that of the Hand and Hand Fire-Office, other than this, that instead of Houses, they only insure Goods and Merchandize at the Rates in the following Table.

A Table of the Premiums and Deposits, payable for Insurances for the Term of seven Years.

The Affairs of this Community are managed by twenty-four Directors, who generously serve gratis; which, together with their frugal and disinterested Management, considerable Fund, and a Call of ten Shillings per Cent. (which is the most that each Contributor is obliged to pay, in case so great a Loss should happen as to require the same, which hitherto has not happened, nor probably never will) on any extraordinary Event, a better Security cannot well be devised. And as this Office, as already hinted, is calculated for the general Good of the Society, the Members have the Advantage of examining the Deed of Settlement, and all Orders and Proceedings, as well of the general Courts, as that of the Directors.

To this Office belong twenty-four Porters (who give sufficient Security for their Fidelity) for carrying off the Goods of the Insured in case of Fire, who, besides their Cloaths and Badges, are handsomely paid for their Labour. See Aldersgate Ward.

Victualling-Office.

See Tower Ward.

Welsh Copper-Office.

This Company, whose Office is in Philpot-lane, was incorporated by Letters Patent of William III. 10 April, Anno 1694, by the Style of Governor and Company of Copper Mines of the Principality of Wales: By which Charter they are allowed to purchase Lands, Tenements, &c. in Mortmain, without Limitation. And tho' this Corporation, by their Title, seem to be confined to the Mines in Wales, they are now at work on divers Mines in England.

Westminster Fire-Office.

This Office, which is kept at Tom's Coffee-house in St. Martin's-lane, was erected, and the Deed of Settlement executed on the 13th of February, Anno 1717, and two Days after the same was inrolled in the High Court of Chancery. This Society being, in all Respects, alike unto that of the Hand in Hand, I shall only add, that they keep eighteen Firemen for extinguishing Fires, who, besides Jackets and Badges, are handsomely paid for their Labour.

Wine-Licence-Office.

This Office, which is kept in Arundel-street, in the Strand, is under the Management of five Commissioners, whose Business it is to grant Licences to the several Retailers of Wine in all Parts of the Kingdom, (other than the Free Vintners of London, who are exempt) who are rated according to their respective Returns.

York-buildings Water-works.

This Company was incorporated by Act of Parliament in the Year 1691, for raising Thames Water in York-buildings to supply that Neighbourhood. But the Directors of the same, by purchasing Estates, erecting new Water-works, and other pernicious Projects, have almost ruined the Corporation: However, their chargeable Engines for raising Water by Fire being laid aside, they continue to work that of Horses, which, together with their Estates in England and Scotland, may in Time restore the Company's Affairs.

Among the above-named Companies and Offices, that of the Trinity-house seems to be the only one that has the Disposal of Charitable Benefactions, which are so very great, that they amount to about six thousand Pounds per Ann.

An Account of the Free and Charity-Schools within the Bill of Mortality.

Fitzsteph.
Descript.
Lond.

THAT Learning was early planted in London, is not to be questioned, seeing that about the Beginning of the thirteenth Century, many Schools were in this City; the principal whereof were those of St. Paul, the Trinity, and St. Martin. The first belonged to the Cathedral of that Name; and the latter, to the Monasteries of the Trinity and St. Martin's le Grand.

Stow. Scr.
Lond.

Henry V. by the Suppression of foreign Priories, having destroyed divers Schools in this City and Neighbourhood; his Son and Successor, Henry VI. to supply that Defect, did, by his Letters Patent, in the Year 1446, appoint the erecting of four new Grammar Schools in London, as already noted in our first Book under that Year.

At the general Suppression of Monasteries by Henry VIII. the Number of Schools in this City were greatly reduced; which put many Persons, that were Lovers of Learning, upon erecting others; as will appear by the following List.

Allhallows-Staining School.

This School was founded by William Winter, in the Year 1658, who endowed the same with the Sum of six hundred Pounds; the Profits arising from which, amounting to twenty-six Pounds per Ann. are employed in instructing six Boys in Reading, Writing and Accounts, and for putting them out Apprentices, with each of whom a Sum not exceeding ten Pounds is given.

Almonry School.

This School, which is situate in the Almonry at Westminster, was founded by Emery Hill, Esq; in the Year 1677, who endowed the same with seven Pounds per Annum, for the Education of poor Children.

Applebee's School.

This School, which is kept in St. Saviour's Church-yard in Southwark, was founded by Dorothy Applebee, in the Year 1681, who endowed the same with twenty Pounds per Annum, for instructing thirty poor Boys in Reading, Writing, and Arithmetick.

Back-street School.

Dr. Thomas Tenison, Archbishop of Canterbury, about the Year 1704, founded this School, for the Education of poor Girls, who are cloathed and taught. Their Number at present being twenty; 'tis to be increased according to the Improvement of the Estate; which, at this Time, is about forty Pounds per Annum.

Banroft's

Bancroft's School.

This School, belonging to the Alms-houses of that Name at Mile-end, contains one hundred Boys; who are cloathed and taught. See Bancroft's Alms-houses.

Black-friars School.

This School was founded by Peter Joy, Esq; Citizen of London, in the Year 1716, who endowed the same with a perpetual Fund of one hundred and sixty Pounds seventeen Shillings and three Pence per Annum, for the Educating and Cloathing of poor Children; out of which the Master receives a Salary of thirty, and the Mistress fifteen Pounds yearly, for instructing forty Boys and thirty Girls in Reading, Writing and Accounts. This School Mr. Joy left in Trust with the Governors of Sion College.

Bermondsey School.

This School, pursuant to the Will of Josiah Bacon, late Citizen and Merchant of London, was founded in the Year 1718; for purchasing a Site, and erecting a School thereon, he bequeath'd the Sum of seven hundred Pounds; and endowed the same with a perpetual Fund of one hundred and fifty Pounds per Annum, for educating sixty poor Children of the Parish of St. Mary Magdalen, Bermondsey.

Bevis-Marks School.

Isaac de Costa Villa Real, a Portuguese Jew, founded this School in the Year 1731, and endowed the same with the yearly Sum of eighty Pounds, for the Cloathing and Educating twenty Jew Girls of his Nation.

Bunhill-fields School.

This School was erected by the Company of Haberdashers, in the Year 1673, pursuant to the Gift of Throgmorton Trotman, Citizen of London; who endowed the same with a perpetual Rent of eighty Pounds per Annum, for the Educating of thirty poor Boys of the Parish of St. Giles, Cripplegate.

Castle-street School.

This School and Library were founded by Thomas Tennison, D. D. and Vicar of St. Martin's in the Fields, (since Archbishop of Canterbury) Anno 1685, which being built upon Part of the Parish Burial-ground, a Faculty, or Licence, was obtained of the Bishop of London, for its Erection.

In the Year 1697, the Reverend Founder gave the Sum of one thousand Pounds, towards a Fund for the Maintenance of his Foundation; and some Time after, by Consent of Dr. Patrick, Bishop of Ely, another Sum of five hundred Pounds; which had been left them jointly in Trust, to be disposed of by them to charitable Uses, according to Discretion: Which two Sums, together with two Leasehold Messuages for the Term of forty Years, he vested in Trustees, for the Support of his School and Library; out of the Profits of which the School-master, beside a commodious House to dwell in, has a Salary of thirty Pounds per Annum; as has also the Usher the like Sum, but without any Apartment; for which they teach thirty Boys, Sons of the Inhabitants of the Parish of St. Martin in the Fields. And the Librarian's Salary is ten Pounds per Annum, with convenient Lodgings contiguous to the Library.

Charterhouse School.

This School belongs to the Charterhouse, alias the Hospital of King James, wherein are contained forty-four Boys; who are fed, cloathed and taught in the learned Languages, preparatory to the University; where twenty-nine are continually instructed at the Charge of the Hospital.

Cherry-tree-alley School.

This School, in Cherry-tree-alley, Golden-lane, was founded by William Worrall, Anno 1689, who endowed the same with an annual Rent of thirty Pounds, for educating and cloathing forty poor Boys; whose Livery is of an Orange Colour, in Commemoration of the Revolution by the Prince of Orange, Anno 1688.

Christ's Hospital School.

See Christ's Hospital in Farringdon Ward within.

East-Smithfield School.

Sir Samuel Sterling, Knight, and Alderman of this City, in the Year 1673, founded this School, and endowed the same with certain Lands and Tenements in East-Smithfield, to the Amount of twenty Pounds per Annum, for educating sixteen poor Boys of the Parish of St. Botolph, Aldgate, viz. eight in the City Liberty, and eight in that of East-Smithfield.

Grey-coat School.

This School, belonging to the Grey-coat Hospital in Westminster, contains eighty Boys and thirty Girls; who are fed, cloathed and taught. For the Charge thereof, see the Hospital.

Green-coat School.

This School, belonging to the Green-coat Hospital in Westminster, contains twenty Boys; who are fed, cloathed and taught. For the Charge thereof, see the Account of the Hospital.

This School, which is kept in Ironmonger-row in Old-street, was founded in the Year 1727, by John Fuller, for the Education of twenty Boys and upwards; and for the Support of which, he bequeathed the Sum of sixteen hundred Pounds, to be laid out in a Purchase.

Islington School.

Dame Alice Owen founded this School in the Year 1613, for the educating of thirty Children; for which, a Master receives twenty Pounds per Annum. This Foundation, together with that of the adjacent Alms-houses, are under the Care of the Company of Brewers of this City.

Lambeth School.

This School was founded by Richard Lawrence, Citizen and Merchant of London, in the Year 1661, for the Educating of twenty poor Children of the Marsh and Wall Liberties of this Parish; who endowed the same with a perpetual Fund of thirty-five Pounds per Annum.

London-workhouse School.

See Bishopsgate Ward.

Mercers School.

This School, which is situate in the Old Jewry, antiently belonged to the Hospital of St. Thomas of Acons; but that Hospital being surrendered to Henry the Eighth in the Year 1531, it was purchased by the Company of Mercers of this City, who have since continued the School; but whether by Compact, or Munificence, I cannot learn. However, the Master has a Salary of forty Pounds per Annum, with a commodious House to dwell in; for which he is to teach twenty-five Boys in Grammatical Learning.

Merchant-Tailors School.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

This School, situate in Suffolk-lane, Thames-street, was founded by the Company of Merchant-Tailors, in the Years 1568, for the Education of Boys; one hundred whereof, according to the Constitutions of the Company, are taught gratis; one hundred at two Shillings and six Pence, and fifty at five Shillings per Quarter. Out of these Scholars, divers are annually selected and sent to St. John's College at Oxford; which seems to have been founded, by Sir Thomas White, chiefly for their Use; seeing they have no less than forty-six Fellowships therein.

New View
Lond.

Clerk. Ac.

The Head Master of this School receives from the Company a Salary of ten Pounds six Shillings per Annum, and thirty Shillings for Water, besides Quarterage of all the Scholars. The first Usher's Salary is thirty Pounds; and the two last, twenty-five Pounds each. And all of them have proper Apartments.

Palmer's School.

This School, belonging to Palmer's Alms-houses near Totbill-fields, Westminster, contains twenty Boys; who are taught to read, write and account: For which, a Master has a Salary of twelve Pounds, and a Chaldron of Coals yearly, with a convenient House, and a Gown every other Year.

Parker's-lane School.

This School, which is kept in Parker's-lane near Drury-lane, was founded about the Year 1663, by William Skelton, of St. Giles's in the Fields, for the Education of fifty poor Boys, viz. Thirty-five whereof to be of the Parish of the said St. Giles in the Fields, ten of that of St. Martin in the Fields, and five of St. Paul's Covent-garden. For the Teaching of whom in Reading, Writing and Arithmetick, a Master has a Salary of twenty Pounds, two Chaldron of Coals, and a Gown every Year; and each of the Children, a Coat of six Shillings Price yearly; and the Surplus, arising from the Estate, is employed in putting them forth Apprentices.

Plow-yard School.

This School, in Plow-yard, Seething-lane, was founded by James Hickson, Esq; about the Year 1689, for the Education of twenty Boys; for which he appointed for the Head Master a Salary of twenty Pounds per Annum, a convenient House to reside in, and two Chaldron of Coals yearly: And to a Writing-Master, eight Pounds per Annum. Fourteen of the Children are to be of the Parish of Allhallows Barking; and six of the Hamlet of Wapping.

Quakers School.

This School, which belongs to the Quakers Workhouse in Clerkenwell, contains forty Boys and twenty Girls; who are cloathed, fed, and taught, and five Pounds given with each of the Boys, when put out Apprentices.

Ratcliff School.

Nicholas Gibson, Sheriff of this City, in the Year 1537, founded this School for the Education of sixty poor Children; for which a Master was appointed a Salary of ten Pounds, which is now increased to twenty-three Pounds six Shillings and eight Pence per Annum; and an Usher six Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence, but at present he receives nine Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence per Annum. This House, belonging to the adjoining Alms-houses, is under the Management of the Company of Coopers of this City.

Red-Cross-street School.

Dame Eleanor Hollis founded this School, Anno 1709, and endowed the same with sixty-two Pounds three Shillings per Annum in Ground-rents; which, with additional Benefactions, is increased to eighty Pounds two Shillings and eight Pence yearly, for the educating of fifty poor Girls. Which School, by its being kept in the same House with that of the Parish Boys of St. Giles's, Cripplegate, is generally taken for the Parish Girls Charity-School, to the injured Memory of the Foundress.

Rotherhithe School.

Peter Hills and Robert Bell founded this School, in the Year 1612, and endowed the same with three Pounds per Annum, for the Educating of eight poor Seamens Children.

St. John's-street School.

This School, which is situate in St. John's-street, Spittle-fields, was founded by Thomas Parmiter, William Lee, and Elizabeth Carter; who endowed the same with ten Pounds per Annum each, for the teaching of thirty Boys in Reading, Writing, and Arithmetick, in a handsome School-house, erected in the Year 1722.

St. Olave's School.

This School, which is situate in School-house-lane in Tooly-street, Southwark, is commonly denominated Queen Elizabeth's School, from its being founded by her Letters Patent, Anno for instructing the Boys of the Parish in English, Grammar, and Writing; the Number whereof, in the Year 1734, was two hundred and ninety-six; for the teaching of whom, the Master of the Grammar-school has a Salary of sixty-one Pounds per Annum; his Usher, forty-one Pounds ten Shillings; the Writing-master, sixty Pounds, out of which he is obliged to supply the School with Pens and Ink; the English-master, thirty-seven Pounds ten Shillings; and his Usher, twenty Pounds: Together, 220 l. per Ann. which chiefly arises from an Estate in Horsleydown; which, together with the School, is under the Management of sixteen of the Parishioners, pursuant to the Letters of Incorporation.

St. Paul's School.

This School, situate behind the East End of St. Paul's Cathedral, was founded by John Colet, Dean Merchant Taylors School.

St Paul's School.

B. Cole sculp.

Dean of St. Paul's, in the Year 1509, for a Master, Usher, and Chaplain, and one hundred and fifty-three Scholars; for the teaching of whom, the Founder appointed a Salary of 34 l. 13 s. 4 d. for the Upper-master; for the Under-master, 17 l. 6 s. 8 d. and for the Chaplain, 8 l. per Ann. which together with the annual Sum of 38 l. 6 s. 3½ d. for Repairs, &c. the Sum total, wherewith this School was endowed, amounted to 118 l. 14 s. 7½ d. but by the good Oeconomy of the Company of Mercers of this City, to whom the Trust thereof is committed, the Estate at present is so much improved, that the Salaries of the several Masters are advanced above double.

St. Saviour's School.

This Grammar-school, situate in St. Saviour's Church-yard in Southwark, was founded by the Parish, for the Education of Boys, and confirmed by Letters Patent of the fourth of Elizabeth, Anno 1562, whereby six of the Vestry are for ever appointed Governors thereof; and unto which belong a Master and Usher; the former whereof has a Salary of thirty Pounds, and the latter twenty Pounds per Annum; for which they at present (viz. 1734) teach forty-six Scholars.

Stewart's School.

Lieutenant General William Stewart, about the Year 1728, bequeathed the Sum of five thousand Pounds, for erecting and endowing a School for the Benefit of twenty poor Boys of the Parish of St. George, Hanover-square.

Totbill-fields School.

This School, situate in Rocheſter-row, in Totbill-fields, Westminster, was founded by Emery Hill, Esq; in the Year 1677, for the Instruction of twenty Boys of the Parish of St. Margaret, Westminster, in English, Latin, Writing and Arithmetick.

Westminster School.

This School, belonging to Queen's College, Westminster, was founded by Queen Elizabeth in the Year 1560, for the Education of forty Boys, denominated The Queen's Scholars; who are taught in the best Manner, preparatory to the University. Besides whom, great Numbers of the young Nobility and Gentry are educated here; whereby it is become the greatest School in the Kingdom, to the great Advantage of the Masters; who, instead of a Master and Usher, as at first, are now an Upper and Under-master, and five Ushers, or Assistants; who at present have above four hundred young Gentlemen under their Tuition.

Whitechapel School.

This School was founded by Ralph Devenant, (some time Rector of the Parish of St. Mary, Whitechapel) Mary his Wife, and Sarah her Sister, in the Year 1680. This Foundation being greatly augmented by the charitable Benefaction of a thousand Pounds, given in the Year 1701, by a Person unknown, a Master receives a Salary of thirty Pounds per Annum, for teaching of sixty Boys; as does a Mistress twenty Pounds, for instructing forty Girls.

VOL. II. NUMB. CVIII.

The Free-schools above-specified contain two thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight Boys, and two hundred and eighty-five Girls; the Charge of whose Education, &c. (exclusive of that of the Free-schools belonging to the Hospitals and Alms-houses above-mentioned, where their respective Disbursements are accounted for) amounts to the yearly Sum of nineteen hundred and ninety Pounds.

Having given an Account of the several Foundations called Free-schools; I shall now add that of those denominated Parish Charity-schools, which have no other Foundation than the generous Benefactions and annual Subscriptions of well-disposed Persons; which, together with the charitable Collections made at Sermons, in the several Churches in this City and Suburbs, is their only Support.

Which Schools, denominated Parish-Schools, have not only proved the greatest Bar to Popery, but likewise the most effectual Security to the Church of England, against all Persuasions whatsoever: A List whereof I have subjoined, interspersed with those of all other Denominations within the Bill of Mortality.

A List of the several Parish and other Charity-Schools within the Bill of Mortality, that are supported by Subscriptions, Collections and Benefactions; together with the Numbers of Boys and Girls in each thereof.

As I have not been able to obtain the respective Charges of the aforesaid Schools, I shall therefore endeavour, as near as possible, to come at the same for one Year, by the several Charges of the Parish-Schools of St. Andrew's, Holbourn. The first whereof, containing Eighty Boys, the Money disbursed on them, in the Year 1726, amounted to 272 l. 2 s. 9 d. and the last, containing seventy Girls, their Charge, in the Year 1728, amounted to 139 l. 14 s. 6 d. Therefore, as the annual Charge of eighty Boys amounts to 272 l. 2 s. 9 d. so the yearly Charge of 3458 Boys must amount to 11763 l. 2 s. 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. So by the same Method of Calculation, as the Charge of seventy Girls amounts to 139 l. 14 s. 6 d. so must that of 1901 amount to 3794 l. 10 s. 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per Annum; whereby it appears that the whole Charge of all the said Charity-Children (amounting to 5359 in Number) amounts to 15557 l. 13 s. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per Annum.

The Number of Free-Schools above mentioned amounting to thirty-eight, they contain three thousand one hundred and seventy-three Children; 1509 whereof belonging to Hospitals and Alms-houses, the annual Expence thereof is included in the Accounts of the said Foundations: And the remaining Number being sixteen hundred and sixty-four, the yearly Charge of their Education, &c. amounts to nineteen hundred and ninety Pounds. To which being added the Account of the Charity-Schools belonging to the several Parishes, it will thereby appear, that the Number Total of all the said Schools amount to one hundred and sixty-six, and the Children taught therein to eight thousand five hundred and thirty-two; and the annual Expence (exclusive of those of the Hospitals and Alms-houses aforesaid) to seventeen thousand five hundred and forty-seven Pounds thirteen Shillings and five Pence three Farthings.

The Number of private Schools in this great City and Suburbs for educating the Youth thereof in all Kinds of Literature (exclusive of the former) I am of Opinion, must amount to above three thousand.

Besides the above-mentioned Kinds of Learning for the Instruction of Youth, and forming their Minds for the Service of their God and Country, as well as an universal Benevolence to Mankind in general; there are divers philosophical Lectures read in the several Parts of the City and Suburbs, by Men of great Learning, Knowledge and Experience; who, at a small Charge, explain and demonstrate to their Auditors Doctrines in experimental Philosophy and Astronomy, to their very great Advantage and Improvement.

CHAP. II.

Of the Inns of Court.

AS the Inns of Court in this City and Suburbs are like so many Colleges in an University, wherein Students are instructed in the Laws of the Kingdom, I shall subjoin the several Accounts thereof.

Inns of Court.

Though the Antiquity of the Inns of Court be not ascertained, yet it may be presumed, that they owe their Origin to Henry the Third, who having, in the Year 1225, confirmed the Charters granted by John his Father, removed the Courts of Justice from his Palace into Westminster-Hall. About which Time, the Lawyers, or Practitioners in those Courts, began to form themselves into a Society (supposed at Thavie's Inn in Holbourn) in a collegiate Manner; hence their Place of Residence was denominated an Inn, or House of Court: And Henry the Third, by his Mandate, directed to the Mayor and Sheriffs of London, about the Year 1244, strictly enjoined them to make Proclamation throughout the City, that no Person whatsoever should presume to set up a School, or Schools, therein, for the teaching of Law.

In each of these Societies, Mootings are held, that is, publick Meetings for the Instruction of Students, wherein are argued divers abstruse Points of Law, after the Manner of Trials in the Courts of Justice.

Though these Societies are not incorporated, nor have any Power to make By-Laws for their Government, yet they have certain Orders, which, by Consent and Prescription, have obtained the Force of Laws.

Gray's

Gray's Inn.

This House, which is situate on the North Side of High-Holbourn, and is one of the four Inns of Court, is denominated from its being the Residence of the ancient and noble Family of Gray, of Wilton, who, in the Reign of Edward the Third, demised the same to divers Students of the Law.

This is a magnificent and spacious Inn, consisting of three beautiful Courts, with noble and pleasant Walks.

The Members of the House are to be in Commons every Term a Fortnight, for which they pay sixteen Shillings. The Officers and Servants belonging to this Inn are, a Treasurer, a Steward, a Chief and three Under Butlers, an Upper and Under Cook, a Pannier-man, a Gardener, the Steward and chief Butler's Men, and two Porters.

Inner Temple.

See Farringdon Ward without.

Lincoln's Inn.

This, which is one of the four Inns of Court, is situate on the West Side of Chancery-lane, were anciently stood the Houses of the Bishop of Chichester and Blackfriars; the former being erected by Ralph Nevil, Bishop of that See, about the Year 1226, and the latter about 1222. Both of which coming to Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, he, in place thereof, erected a stately Mansion for his and Successors City Residence, which still retains his Name, and into which it is said, that some Time before his Death, (Anno 1310) he introduced the Study of the Law. Be that as it will, it appears to have reverted to the Bishoprick of Chichester, by Robert Sherburn, Bishop of that See, having demised the same to William Syliard, a Student therein, for a certain Term of Years. After the Expiration of which, Richard Sampson, his Successor, Anno 1536, passed the Inheritance thereof, by Deed, to the said Syliard and Eustace his Brother; which said Eustace in Consideration of the Sum of five hundred Pounds, by a Deed of the 12th of November, Anno 1579, conveyed the said House and Garden in Fee to Richard Kingmill, and the rest of the Benchers.

The Charge of Admission into this House, including Fees, amounts to five Pounds; and every Student therein, after his Studies for seven Years, is admitted to the Bar. And the Members are to be a Fortnight in Commons every Term, or pay eighteen Shillings in case of Absence.

The Officers and Servants of this House are, a Treasurer, Sub-treasurer, Steward, a Chief and two Under-butlers, a Pannier-man, Gardener, two Gown and twelve Badge Porters, and a Wash-pot.

Lyon's Inn.

This, which is a House of Chancery, situate between Holiwell-street and Wyche-street, was founded before the Year 1420; it is a Member of the Inner-Temple, governed by a Treasurer and twelve Ancients, who, with the other Members, are to be three Weeks in Commons in Michaelmas Term, and a Fortnight in each of the rest.

Middle Temple.

See Farringdon Ward without.

New Inn.

This is a House of Chancery, situate in Wyche-street, contiguous to St. Clement's Inn on the West, which was founded about the Year 1485. Stow Sur. Lond. in a common Inn, for the Reception of the Students of an ancient Inn of Chancery, formerly situate at the South-east Corner of Seacoal-lane in Fleet-lane, where part of the Stone Walls are still remaining.

This Inn, which is an Appendage to the Middle-Temple, is governed by a Treasurer and twelve Ancients, who, with the other Members, are to be in Commons a Week every Term, or compound for the same.

Sergeant's Inn.

See Farringdon Ward without.

Simmond's Inn.

This House, which is situate on the East Side of Chancery-lane, is neither an Inn of Court, nor of Chancery, but serves to accommodate divers Masters of Chancery, Solicitors and Attornies.

C H A P. III.

Of the Courts of Justice.

AS the several Courts of Justice within this City and Suburbs are the immediate Result of Wisdom and Learning, I shall in this Place insert the several Accounts of them.

Admiralty Court.

This Court, which is held in Doctors-Commons, was erected in the Reign of Edward the Third, and is under the Direction of the Lord High Admiral, who is an Officer of great Antiquity and Trust, as appears by the Laws of Oleron, so denominated from the Place they were made at by Richard the First: In Saxon he is called, Aen-Mere-all, that is, All upon the Sea. This Officer, or Commissioners of the Admiralty, take Cognizance of all Crimes committed in Rivers, and in whose Name or Names all Process runneth, and to whom belongs the Disposal of all Places.

The Proceedings are in the Civil Law, and the Plaintiff gives Security to prosecute; and if cast, to pay what he shall be adjudged; and that he will stand to all his Proctor shall transact in his Name. But in criminal Cases, by a Statute of Henry the Eighth, the Process shall be by a Judge, Jury and Witnesses, by a special Commission, wherein a Judge of the common Law shall assist. On which Occasion the Court is commonly held at the Session-house in the Old-Bailey; and to which belongs the Advocate of the Admiralty and Proctor, with a Register and Marshal, who carrieth the Silver Oar before the Judge.

Court of Arches.

This Court, which at present is held in Doctors-Commons, is so denominated from the arched Roof and Steeple of St. Mary le Bow Church in Cheapside, wherein it was anciently kept. Stow. Sur. Lond.

This is the supreme Court or Consistory, belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, and to which Appeals lye, from all Parts of his Province in Matters Ecclesiastical.

The Judge of this Court is styled Dean of the Arches, from his Jurisdiction over thirteen Peculiars, or Parishes, in this City, termed a Deanery, which belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, are exempt from the Bishop of London's Authority.

The Advocates that plead in this Court must be Doctors of the Civil Law, who, obtaining the Archbishop's Fiat, are admitted by the Judge, but not to practise till a Year after. Both Judge and Advocates wear scarlet Robes, with Hoods lined with Taffety, if of Oxford; but of Cambridge, with Meniver and round Black Velvet Caps. Besides the Advocates belonging to this Court, there are thirty-six Proctors, an Actuary, Crier and Apparitor.

Court of Chancery.

This Court, according to divers learned Men, owes its Name to certain cross Bars of Wood, or Iron, wherewith it was inclosed, to prevent the Officers who sat therein from being incommoded by the People. Such Grates, or cross Bars, were, by the Romans, denominated Cancelli; which, according to the Opinion of some, gave likewise the Name to that Part of a Church called the Chancel, from its being separated from the Body of the Church by such Grates, or Lattices, by Order of Pope Felix, for the Use of the Priests.

The Chancery consists of two Courts; in the first of which, the Lord Chancellor, or Keeper of the Great Seal, proceeds according to the Laws and Statutes of the Kingdom; and in the second, according to Equity, which moderates the rigorous Judgments of inferior Courts, which are confined to the Letter of the Law.

The Judge of this Court, denominated the Lord High Chancellor, is the first and greatest Civil Officer of the Kingdom, (and to whom Persons of all Degrees give Place, other than those of the Blood Royal and Archbishop of Canterbury) and who, by virtue of his Place, decides all Causes according to the Dictates of his Conscience. And in case of Absence, his Place upon the Bench is supply'd by the Master of the Rolls, who likewise hears Causes and decrees in the same equitable Manner.

To this Court belongs twelve Masters of Chancery, six Head Clerks, sixty-two sworn Clerks, who purchase their Places, and twelve waiting Clerks, whose Places are given by the six Clerks, wherefore they are not allowed to take a Clerk; two chief Examiners, with their respective Clerks, a chief and four inferior Registers; the Clerk of the Crown; a Prothonotary; Clerks of the Petty Bag, Subpœna, Patent, Affidavit, Curfitors and Alienation Offices.

Clink Liberty Court.

This is a Court of Record kept on the Bank-side in Southwark, and held by the Bishop of Winchester's Steward, before whom are held Pleas of Debts, Damage and Trespas for any Sum. Here is likewise a Court Leet, wherein things peculiar thereunto are transacted.

Court of Common Pleas.

This is one of the four great Courts of the Kingdom, wherein are heard and determined Causes in Matters Civil. It was anciently itinerant, and followed the King wheresoever he went, till the Confirmation of Magna Charta by King John, Anno 1215, when it was fixed to Westminster-Hall, where it still continues.

Soon after the fixing of this Court at Westminster, the Causes therein became so numerous, that the King, for the greater Dispatch of Business, found it necessary, instead of three, to constitute six Judges, whom he appointed to sit in two Places. But the Number at present being only four, they sit together in Westminster-Hall to hear and decide Causes; and before whom no Counsellor under the Degree of a Sergeant can plead.

The Judges of this Court, like those of the King's Bench and Exchequer, hold not their Places as anciently, Durante bene placito, but by Patent, Quam diu se bene gesserint.

Court of Delegates.

Upon abolishing the Papal Power in this Kingdom by Henry the Eighth, Anno 1534, it was by Parliament enacted, that no Appeal should thenceforth be made to Rome; but in default of Justice in any of the Spiritual Courts, the Party aggrieved might appeal to the King in his Court of Chancery; and upon every such Appeal, a Commission, under the Great Seal, shall be directed to such Persons as his Majesty shall think fit to nominate. The Commissioners generally consist of Noblemen, Bishops, and Judges both of the common and civil Law. But as this Court is not fixed, but occasional, the Commissioners, or Judges thereof, are varied at the Pleasure of the Lord Chancellor, who appoints them.

This being the highest Court for Ecclesiastical Affairs, no Appeal lies from it; but, upon good Reasons assigned, a Commission of Review is granted.

Dutchy of Lancaster Court.

This Court owes its Origin to Henry the Fourth; who, deposing Richard the Second, usurped the Crown; and possessing the Dutchy of Lancaster in Right of his Mother, was seized thereof as Duke, as well as King. But imagining his Right to the Dutchy better than that to the Crown, he resolved to secure the same, by separating it from the Crown; which being effected, he erected this Court for its Use; wherein all Matters of Law and Equity belonging to the Dutchy, or County Palatine of Lancaster, are heard and decided by the Chancellor thereof.

East-Smithfield Courts.

In this Liberty two Courts are held, viz. of the Leet and Court Baron. The first of which, according to the Laws of Edward the Confessor, appears to be a Court of Record of great Antiquity; wherein Cognizance was taken, and Enquiries made into Felonies, Nuisances, View of Frank-pledge, &c.

Though in this Court, at present, only Officers are chosen, and Nuisances presented; yet they may inquire into the following Offences by Act of Parliament; viz. concerning tracing and killing of Hares; Hostlers making Horse-bread, under Assize; of Breeders of Horses under Statute; of Artillery, Butts, and Bows; of Shooting in Cross-bows, and Hand-Guns; of Victuallers, Artificers, Workmen, and Labourers; against excessive Prices of Victuals; amending of Highways; Musters; for preserving the Spawn and Fry of Fish; against taking Pheasants, &c.

The latter is that of the Baron; the Origin of which being as follows:

Ibid.

The Kings of England having anciently all the Lands of the Kingdom in Demesne, the great Manors or Royalties they reserved to themselves, and the rest they granted by Infeoffment to their Barons, for the Defence of the Nation, with the Jurisdiction of a Court Baron, of which the Freeholders were appointed Judges.

Ibid.

This Court is sometimes of a double Nature; the first of which being by the common Law, is by some denominated a Court Baron, or Freeman's Court, from the Freeholders being both Suiters and Judges thereof; for Barons, in one Sense, signify Freeman; and at which Court the Steward of the Manor acts as Register.

Ibid.

The Second is a customary Court, and concerns Copyholders; wherein presides as Judge, either the Lord of the Manor, or his Steward. And as there can be no Court Baron without Freeholders; neither can there be any customary Court without Copy, or Customary-holders. When the Court Baron is of this double Nature, the Court Roll contains Matters relating to both Courts. And forasmuch as the Title or Estate of the Copyholder, is entered into a Roll, whereof the Steward delivers him a Copy, he is therefore called a Copyholder. In this Court Pleas are held to the Amount of forty Shillings.

Exchequer Court.

Dug. Orig. Jurid.

This, which is one of the four great Courts of the Kingdom, is held in a Room contiguous to the North-west Angle of Westminster-hall; and is denominated from a chequered Cloth, which anciently covered the Table where the Judges, or chief Officers sat; and being coeval with the Norman Conquest, it was at first erected by William the Conqueror, for the Trial of all Causes relating to the Revenues of the Crown.

The Judges of this Court, at present, are a Chief, and three other Barons, before whom are not only tried Affairs relating to the Crown, but likewise Matters of Equity, between Subject and Subject. And when at any Time the Barons are equal in different Opinions, concerning the Decision of any Cause, they call to their Assistance the Lord High Treasurer, or Chancellor of the Exchequer for the Time being, who, by his casting Voice, decides in favour of one of the Parties.

Faculty Court.

Act Parl. 25 Hen. VIII.

In the twenty-fifth of Henry the Eighth, Anno 1534, when the Papal Power was abrogated in England, this Court was established by Act of Parliament to empower the Archbishop (in lieu of the Pope) to grant Dispensations and Indulgences for eating Flesh upon prohibited Days; to marry without Banns, or on Holy-days; for a Son to succeed his Father in his Benefice; for Non-residence; for having a Plurality of Livings; and for every thing else, formerly granted by the Pope of Rome.

Finsbury Courts.

In this Place are held a Court Leet and a Court Baron, by the Steward of the Manor; wherein is transacted the Business peculiar to each Court.

High Court of Parliament.

This is not only the highest, but likewise the most ancient Court of the Kingdom; which, by the Saxons, was differently denominated, viz. Michel Gemote, and Witen Gemote, that is, the great Court, and Council of Wise-men.

Cok. Inst. P. 4.

The first Mention I find of this national Council, is that which was held in this City by Egbert and Witblaf, Kings of West Saxony and Mercia, in the Year 833, for deliberating upon Ways and Means to oppose the piratical Invasions and destructive Depredations of the Danes.

Spel. Con. cil. Tom. 1.

This great Council, which was held twice a Year before the Conquest, consists of the King and three Estates of the Kingdom, viz. the Lords Spiritual, who consist of two Archbishops and twenty-four Bishops; who sit by Virtue of their respective Baronies, which they hold in a political Capacity: The Lords Temporal, who are created by the King's Patent, and therefore can't be reduced to any certain Number: They sit by Descent, or Creation: And the Commons, who, in Number five hundred and fifty-eight, consist of Knights, Citizens, and Burgeesses, the Representatives of the Commonalty of Great-Britain; who, by Virtue of the King's Writs, are elected by the several Shires or Counties, Cities and Boroughs.

Cok. Inst. P. 4.

The Power of this High Court is so very great, that it makes, mends, reduces, revives, and abrogates Laws, Statutes and Ordinances concerning Matters Ecclesiastical, Civil and Military. None can begin, continue, or dissolve this Council, but by the King's Authority. The Members of this Council sat together till the fiftieth of Edward the Third, Anno 1377, when the Commons removed to the Chapter-house of Westminster, in the Cloister of the Abby, now a Repository for publick Records.

The Parliament is the great Corporation, or Body Politick of the Kingdom; and, according to a certain Roll of the same, the Common Council of the Nation.

House of Lords Court.

This is the supreme Court of Judicature of the Kingdom; from which lieth no Appeal, and by which all Appeals from other Courts are determined, and Peers of the Realm tried for Treason, and other Mal-practices; as are also all Persons that are impeached by the House of Commons.

King's-Bench Court.

This is the chief of the four great Courts of the Kingdom, and is held in Westminster-hall; it has its Name from the King's having anciently presided therein as Judge, assisted by his Justices and Chancellor.

Dug. Orig. Jurid.

This was at first a Court itinerant, that attended the King in all his Progresses, till the Year 1258, when Henry the Third appointed the same to be held at Westminster, till he should otherwise determine; however, it does not appear to have have been removed thence during the remaining Part of his Reign. But in the twenty eighth of Edward the First, Anno 1300, it was by Parliament enacted, That the Chancellor and Justices of the King's-Bench shall follow his Majesty, so that he might at all Times have near him Persons learned in the Law, for the greater Dispatch of Affairs, upon any Emergency.

The first Person that had the Office of Chief Justice of this Court conferred upon him, was Robert de Bruis, Anno 1268, occasioned by the abolishing of the Title of Justiciary of England, which ended in Philip Basset.

The Judges of this Court, at present, are a Chief and three other Justices; who hear and determine Causes Criminal, Pleas of the Crown, Civil Actions, Contracts, &c. and who hold their Places as the Judges of the Courts of Common-Pleas and Exchequer do, quam diu se bene gesserint.

Marshall's Court.

This Court, which is held in Southwark, under the Knight-Marshall, was at first erected for hearing and determining all Differences that might happen among the Royal Domesticks.

The Judge of this Court is the Knight-Marshall's Steward; to whom belong four Counselors and six Attornies.

Prerogative Court.

This Court, which is held in Doctors-Commons, is denominated from the Prerogative of the Archbishop of Canterbury; who, by a special Privilege beyond those of his Suffragans, can here try all Disputes that happen to arise concerning Wills and Administrations of Persons who have left Goods to the Value of five Pounds without the Diocess wherein he, or she died; unless such Things are settled by Composition between the Metropolitan and his Suffragans; as in the Diocess of London, where it is ten Pounds.

St. Catharine's Courts.

To this Hospital, or Precinct, belong two Courts; in the first of which, on Thursdays, are weekly try'd Actions of Debt for any Sum. And in the latter, which depends upon the Civil Law, Matters Ecclesiastical.

The Borough Court.

This, which is a Court of Record by Prescription, is held by the Lord-Mayor's Steward, every Monday, at the Town-hall on St. Margaret's-hill in Southwark; where are try'd Actions for any Sum of Money, Damage, Trespas, &c. To this Court belong three Attornies; who are admitted by the Steward.

Besides this, there are three Courts Leet held in the said Borough, for it contains three several Liberties, or Manors, viz. The great Liberty, the Guildable, and the King's Manor; wherein are chosen Constables, Ale-conners, and Flesh-tasters; and other Business dispatched, peculiar to such Courts. In this Neighbourhood Courts Leet are likewise kept, viz. at Lambeth, Bermondsey and Rotherhithe.

Westminster Court.

This is a Court-Leet; wherein the Ward-Officers belonging to the City of Westminster are chosen, and the several Nuisances occasioned by the Inhabitants presented, &c.

Whitechapel Court.

This is a Court of Record, belonging to Stepney Manor; which is held by the Steward of the Manor, by whom are try'd Actions for any Sum, as well as of Damage, Trespas, &c.

An Account of Societies, Colleges and Libraries within the City and Suburbs of London.

Antiquarian Society.

THE first Society in the City of London, that went by this Appellation, was erected about the Year 1580, by divers of the most learned and ingenious Men of the Kingdom; but their Meetings, by divers Accidents, having been frequently obstructed, the Society dwindled and dropt, till the Year 1717, when the same was revived again; since which Time no Interruptions having happened, it is at present incorporated, and is in a very flourishing Condition.

Sprat.Hist.
Roy. Soci.

The Society, while at Oxford, were not only for their learned Productions eminently distinguished at home, but likewise highly revered by the Literati abroad.

Ibid.

The Society continued at Oxford till about the Year 1658, when the Members thereof were called to divers Parts of the Kingdom, on account of their respective Functions; and the Majority coming to this City, they constantly attended the Astronomical and Geometrical Lectures at Gresham College; where being joined by divers Persons of the greatest Learning and Distinction, they continued to meet at the said College once, or twice a Week, till the Death of Oliver Cromwell; when, Anarchy succeeding, they were obliged to quit their Place of Meeting, on its being converted into a Barrack, or Military Quarter, for the Reception of Soldiers.

Ibid.

But the Storm being allayed, by the Restoration of King Charles the Second, the Society, which had for some Time been, as it were, buried in Oblivion, forsook their gloomy Retreats, and began to reassume their Meetings. And for the more effectual carrying on their great and laudable Design, to purchase Instruments for the performing Experiments, and defraying all necessary Expences for the Support of the Society, they entered into the following Obligation:

"We, whose Names are under-written, do consent and agree, that we will meet together Weekly, (if not hindered by necessary Occasions) to consult and debate concerning the promoting of experimental Learning; and that each of us will allow one Shilling, weekly, towards the defraying of occasional Charges. Provided, that if any one, or more of us, shall think fit at any Time, to withdraw; he, or they, shall, after Notice thereof given to the Company, at a Meeting, be freed from this Obligation for the future. December 5, 1660."

Ibid.

The King, willing to encourage so honourable and useful an Enterprize, as a distinguishing Mark of his Affection to the Society, by his Letters Patent of the 22d of April, Anno 1663, constituted them a Body Politick and Corporate, by the Appellation of The President, Council and Fellows of the Royal Society of London, for improving of Natural Knowledge.

The said Letters Patent, or Charter, is thus abridged.

Spra. Hist.
Roy. Soc.

"Charles the Second, by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. to all and to whom these Presents shall come, Greeting.

"Having long resolved within ourself to promote the Welfare of Arts and Sciences, as well as that of our Territories and Dominions, out of our Princely Affection to all Kinds of Learning, and more particular Favour to philosophical Studies, especially those which endeavour, by solid Experiments, either to reform, or improve Philosophy; to the Intent therefore that these Kinds of Study, which are no where yet sufficiently cultivated, may flourish in our Dominions; and that the learned World may acknowledge us to be, not only the Defender of the Faith, but the Patron and Encourager of all Sorts of useful Knowledge,

"Know ye, that we, out of our special Grace, certain Knowledge, and mere Motion, have given and granted, and do by these Presents give and grant for us, our Heirs and Successors, that there shall be for ever a Society, consisting of a President, Council and Fellows, which shall be called by the Name of The President, Council and Fellows of the Royal Society of London, for improving of Natural Knowledge; of which Society we do, by these Presents, declare ourself to be Founder and Patron. And we do hereby make and constitute the said Society, by the Name, &c. to be a Body Corporate, to be continued under the same Name, in a perpetual Succession; and that they and their Successors (whose Studies are to be employed for the promoting of the Knowledge of natural Things, and useful Arts, by Experiments, to the Glory of God, and Good of Mankind) shall by the aforesaid Name of President, Council, &c. be enabled and made capable in Law, to levy, hold, possess and enjoy, Lands, Tenements, &c. Liberties, Franchises, and Jurisdictions, for Perpetuity, or Terms of Lives, or Years, or any other Way; as also Goods, Chattels, and all other Things of what Nature or Kind soever: And also, by the Name aforesaid, to give, grant, demise, or assign the said Lands, Goods, &c. and to do all things necessary therereabout. And the said Persons, by the Name aforesaid, are enabled to implead, be impleaded, sue, defend, &c. in any Courts, and before any Judges, Officers, &c. whatsoever, of the King, his Heirs, and Successors, in all and singular Actions, real and personal, Pleas, Causes, &c. of what Kind soever, as any of his Subjects within his Kingdom of England, or Corporations of the same, are by Law capable and enabled to do.

"And the said President, Council and Fellows are impowered to have a common Seal for their Use in their Affairs; and from Time to Time to break, change and make anew the same, as shall seem expedient unto them.

"And his Majesty, in Testimony of his Royal Favour towards the said President, Council and Fellows, and of his especial Esteem of them, doth grant a Coat of Arms to them and their Successors, viz. On a Field Argent a Canton of the three Lions of England; for a Crest, an Eagle proper on a ducal Coronet, supporting a Shield charged with the Lions aforesaid; and for Supporters, two Talbots with Coronets on their Necks. The said Arms to be borne, &c. by the said Society upon all Occasions.

"And that his Majesty's Royal Intention may take the better Effect, for the good Government of the said Society from Time to Time, it is established, that the Council aforesaid shall consist of twenty-one Persons (whereof the President for the Time being always to be one); and, that all Persons, which within two Months next ensuing the Date of the said Charter, shall be chosen by the said President and Council; and in all Times after the said two Months, by the President, Council and Fellows, (and noted in a Register to be kept for that Purpose) shall be Fellows of the said Society, and so accounted and called during Life, except by the Statutes of the said Society to be made, any of them shall happen to be removed.

"Moreover, on Behalf of the Society, it is granted unto the President and Council, that they may assemble and meet together in any College, Hall, or other convenient Place in London, or within ten Miles thereof (due and lawful Summons of all the Members of the Council to extraordinary Meetings being always premised); and that they being so met together, have full Power and Authority, from Time to Time, to make, constitute and establish such Laws, Statutes, Orders and Constitutions, which shall appear to them to be good, useful, honest and necessary, according to their Judgments and Discretions, for the Government, Regulation and Direction of the Royal Society, and every Member thereof; and to do all Things concerning the Government, Estate, Goods, Lands, Revenues, as also the Business and Affairs of the said Society; all which Laws, Statutes, Orders, &c. so made, his Majesty wills and commands, that they be from Time to Time inviolably observed, according to the Tenor and Effect of them; provided that they be reasonable, and not repugnant, or contrary to the Laws, Customs, &c. of his Kingdom of England.

"Full Power and Authority is also granted, on the Behalf of the Society, to the Council, to erect and build one, or more Colleges within London, or ten Miles thereof, of what Form or Quality soever, for Habitation, Assembling, or Meeting of

of the President, Council and Fellows, about any Affairs and Busineses of the Society.

“ And if any Abuses, or Differences shall ever hereafter arise and happen about the Government, or Affairs of the Society, whence the Constitution, Progress, and Improvement, or Busineses thereof may suffer, or be hindered; in such Cases his Majesty assigns and authorizes his right trusty and right well-beloved Cosen and Counsellor, Edward Earl of Clarendon, Lord High Chancellor of England, by himself, during his Life; and after his Decease, the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, the Lord High Treasurer of England, the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, the Lord Bishop of London, and the two principal Secretaries of State for the Time being, or any four, or more of them, to compose and redress any such Differences, or Abuses.

An Abstract of the Statutes of the Royal Society.

Spra. Hist.
Roy. Soci.

“ Whatever Statute shall be made, or repealed, the making, or repealing of it shall be voted twice, and at two several Meetings of the Council.

“ This Obligation shall be subscribed by every Fellow, or his Election shall be void:

“ We, who have hereunto subscribed, do promise each for himself, that we will endeavour to promote the Good of the Royal Society of London, for the Improvement of natural Knowledge, and to pursue the Ends for which the same was founded: That we will be present at the Meetings of the Society, as often as conveniently we can, especially at the anniversary Elections, and upon extraordinary Occasions; and that we will observe the Statutes and Orders of the said Society; provided, that whenever any of us shall signify to the President under his Hand, that he desires to withdraw from the Society, he shall be free from this Obligation for the future.

“ Every Fellow shall pay his Admission Money, and afterwards Contribution towards defraying of the Charges of Observations and Experiments, &c.

“ The ordinary Meetings of the Royal Society shall be held once a Week, where none shall be present besides the Fellows, without the Leave of the Society, under the Degree of a Baron in one of his Majesty's three Kingdoms, or of his Majesty's privy Council, or unless he be an eminent Foreigner, and these only with the Leave of the President.

“ The Business of their weekly Meetings shall be, to order, take account, consider and discourse of philosophical Experiments, and Observations: To read, hear, and discourse upon Letters, Reports and other Papers, containing philosophical Matters; as also to view and discourse upon the Productions and Rarities of Nature and Art; and to consider what to deduce from them, or how they be improved for Use, or Discovery.

“ That Experiments be made at the Charge of the Society; two Curators at least shall be appointed for the Inspection of those which cannot be performed before the Society; and by whom the bare Report of Matter of Fact shall be stated and returned.

“ The Election of Fellows shall be made by way of Ballot; and their Admission by a solemn Declaration made by the President of their Election.

“ The Election of the Council and Officers shall be made once a Year; eleven of the present Council shall be continued by Lot, for the next Year, and ten new ones chosen in like manner. Out of this new Council shall be elected a President, Treasurer, and two Secretaries, in the same way.

“ The President shall preside in all Meetings, regulate all Debates of the Society, and Council; state and put Questions; call for Reports and Accounts from Committees, Curators, and others; summon all extraordinary Meetings upon urgent Occasions, and see to the Execution of the Statutes. The Vice-President shall have the same Power in the Absence of the President.

“ The Treasurer, or his Deputy, shall receive and keep Accounts of all Money due to the Society. He shall pay small Sums by order of the President under his Hand; but those that exceed five Pounds, by order of the Council. All Bills of Charges for Experiment shall first be signed by the Curators. The Accounts of the Treasurer shall be audited four times a Year, by a Committee of the Council, and once a Year, by a Committee of the Society.

“ The Secretaries are to take Notes of the Orders, and material Passages of the Meetings; to take care of the Books, Papers and Writings of the Society; to order and direct the Clerks in making Entries of all Matters in the Register, and Journal Books of the Society, or Council; to draw up such Letters as shall be written in their Name, which shall be approved at one of their Meetings; to give notice of the Candidates propounded in order to Election.

“ The Curators, by Office, shall have a sufficient Allowance for their Encouragement, which shall increase proportionably with the Revenue of the Society; provided, that it exceed not two hundred Pounds a year. They shall be well skilled in philosophical and mathematical Learning, well versed in Observations, Inquiries and Experiments of Nature and Art. They shall take care of the managing of all Experiments, and Observations appointed by the Society, or Council, and report the same, and perform such other Tasks, as the Society, or the Council shall appoint; such as the examining of Sciences, Arts, and Inventions now in Use, and the bringing in Histories of natural and artificial Things, &c. They shall be propounded at least a Month before they are chosen. They shall be examined by the Council before the Election: To their Election every Member of the Society shall be summoned: They shall at first be only elected for a Year of Probation (except they be of known Merit): At the End of the Year, they shall be either elected for Perpetuity, or for a longer Time of Probation, or wholly rejected.

“ The Causes of ejecting a Curator shall be the same with ejecting a Fellow, or for fraudulent Dealing, and Negligence in the Affairs of the Society, provided that he shall first receive three respective Admonitions. If any Curator shall be disabled disabled by Age, Infirmity, or Casualty, in the Service of the Society, some Provision shall be made for him during Life, if his Condition requires it, according as the Council shall think fit.

“ The Clerk shall constantly attend all Meetings; he shall follow the Directions of the Secretaries, in registering, and entring all Matters that shall be appointed; he shall not communicate any thing contained in their Books, to any that is not a Fellow. He shall have a certain Rate for what he copies, and a yearly Stipend for his Attendance.

“ The Printer shall take care for the printing such Books as shall be committed to him by Order of the Society, or Council; and therein he shall observe their Directions, as to the Correction of the Edition, the Number of Copies, the Form, or Volume, &c.

“ The Operators of the Society, when they have any of their Work under their Hands, shall not undertake the Work of any other Persons, which may hinder the Business of the Society. They shall have Salaries for their Attendance.

“ The common Seal of the Society shall be kept in a Chest, with three Locks, and three different Keys, by the President, Treasurer, and one of the Secretaries. The Deeds of the Society shall be passed in Council, and sealed by them and the President.

“ The Books that concern the Affairs of the Society shall be the Charter-Book, Statute-Book, Journal Books, Letter Books, and Register Books, for the entring of philosophical Observations, Histories, Discourses, Experiments, and Inventions.

“ The Names of Benefactors shall be honourably mentioned in a Book provided for that Purpose.

“ In case of Death, or Recess of any Fellow, the Secretaries are to note in the Margent of the Register, over-against their Names.

“ The Causes of Ejection shall be, contemptuous Disobedience to the Statutes and Orders of the Society, defaming, or malicious defaming the same. This shall be declared by the President at one of the Meetings, and the Ejection recorded.

When these Statutes were presented to King Charles the Second for his Approbation, he was not only graciously pleased to approve of the same, but likewise to subscribe himself their Founder and Patron. And the Duke of York and Prince Rupert at the same Time declared themselves Fellows.

The sixth Statute above recited, relating to the Election of Fellows, not being deemed effectual to prevent Persons unqualified from being chosen Members of the Society; therefore a new Statute was made, ordaining, that every Person for the future (not a Peer, or Foreigner of Distinction) desiring to be admitted a Fellow, be recommended by an Attestation under the Hands of three, or more Members, setting forth his Name, Place of Habitation, his Qualifications, Works and Productions; which is to be put up in the assembly Room at ten several Meetings, to give each Member an Opportunity of inquiring into the Character of the Candidate, before they proceed to ballot. But all Peers of Great-Britain and Ireland, and their Sons, together with all Foreign Princes and Ambassadors, are eligible, at the Recommendation of one Member, and to be elected as soon as proposed.

The Royal Society thus happily established, Men of all Ranks and Professions vied to promote its Designs, by communicating every thing within their Power relating to natural and artificial Discoveries.

This Society was no sooner incorporated by King Charles the Second, its Founder and Patron, than he presented the same with a stately Gilt Silver Mace, to be carried before the President. And his Majesty, as a farther Proof of his sincere Attachment, by his Letters Patent of the 8th of April, Anno 1667, gave to the Society Chelsea College, with its Appurtenances, and twenty-six, or twenty-seven Acres of Land surrounding the same. But the Society not having converted Part thereof into a Physick-Garden as was intended, and the King having resolved to erect an Hospital for old and maimed Soldiers, thought no Place more proper for such a Design than this College; therefore he proposed to purchase the same, which being agreed to, on the 8th of February 1681, the Sum of thirteen hundred Pounds was paid to the Society for the same.

The Museum belonging to the Society was founded by Daniel Colwall, Esq; in the Year 1677, who gave his great and curious Collection of natural and artificial Rarities, which compose the greatest Part of the Catalogue, published Anno 1681, by Dr. Grew, under the Title of Museum Regalis Societatis. But these Curiosities, by the generous Benefaction of other curious Persons, are now increased to above six times the Number of those already published.

Upon the Society's Removal from Gresham College to their House in Crane-court in Fleet-street, Richard Waller, Esq; one of the Secretaries of the Incorporation, at his own Expence, in the Year 1711, erected the Repository in the Garden for the Reception of the said Rarities, which are beautifully disposed therein for the Entertainment of the Curious. It abounds with a great Variety of the following Species of Rarities, viz. Human, Quadrupedes, Birds, Fowls, Palmipedes, Eggs, Nests, Fishes, Viviparous, Oviparous, Exanguinous, scaled and shelled, double and multiple, Insects, Reptiles, Woods, Stalks and Roots, Fruits of all Sorts, Mosses, Mushrooms, Plants, Sponges, &c. animal and vegetable Bodies petrified, Corals and other marine Productions, Fossils, Gems, Stones irregular, Metals, Antimony, Mercury and other metallick Bodies, Salts, Sulphurs, Oils and Earths, Philosophical and Mathematical Instruments, Indian, American, and other Weapons, with a Variety of Apparel, &c.

This Society, by the above-mentioned Royal and other Benefactions, the Admission Money, and annual Contributions of its Members, is in so flourishing a Condition, that they apply'd to his late Majesty King George the First, for an additional Privilege to purchase, in Mortmain, one thousand Pounds, instead of two hundred Pounds per Annum; which he was graciously pleased to grant by his Royal Licence of the 17th of December, Anno 1724, for the perpetual Support of the Society.

The Society for the Encouragement of Learning.

Divers Gentlemen, having for some Time considered how they might be serviceable to Learning, proposed to their Friends the raising a Sum of Money by way of Subscription, for printing such Works as shall be judged convenient, on easy Terms, for the Benefit of Authors. The Scheme being approved of, the Sum proposed to be subscribed by each Person was ten Guineas at least.

This Project met with such Encouragement, that in the Space of a few Months one hundred and eight Subscriptions were made; wherefore the Subscribers, at a general Meeting on the third of February 1736, formed themselves into a Society, and chose, from among themselves, a President, Vice-president, two Trustees, five Auditors, a Committee of twenty-four, a Treasurer and Secretary; and drew up certain Constitutions for their good Regulation; among which are, That every Member shall annually contribute two Pounds two Shillings, toward the Support of the Society; and that every Member, upon his paying the Sum of ten Pounds ten Shillings, shall be discharged from the said Contribution, and all other Charges relating to the Society. And for all the Works that shall be printed by the Society, the several Authors shall give Security, which after the Payment of the Money advanced, with an Interest of five per Cent. the same, with the remaining Copies of the several Books, to be delivered to their respective Authors.

CHAP. V.

Of the Publick Libraries.

AS Books may justly be termed the Basis of Learning, I shall, in Alphabetical Order, subjoin the Accounts of the several Publick Libraries within the Bill of Mortality.

Castle-street Library.

This Library was founded in the Year 1683, by Thomas Tennison, D. D. Vicar of St. Martin's in the Fields, (and since Archbishop of Canterbury) for the Use of his School under the same. It is placed in a spacious Room, and consists of about four thousand Volumes in divers Faculties, but more especially in Divinity and History.

College of Heralds Library.

This Library, belonging to the Society of Heralds, is kept in their College on St. Bennet's-hill, and consists of a very considerable Number of Books relating to Antiquities and Heraldry; which were much increased by the late Benefaction of Ralph Sheldon, Esq;

College of Physicians Library.

This Library, which is kept in the Physicians magnificent College in Warwick-lane, was founded by the Marquis of Dorchester, in the Year 16 . It has been considerably increased by the Benefactions of others, and contains at present four thousand nine hundred and forty Books.

Cotton's Library.

This Library, which was lately kept in a handsome Gallery within that of the King's, adjoining to the South Cloister of Westminster-Abby, consists of a great and most curious Collection of very valuable Manuscripts, relating to the Antiquities of Great-Britain and Ireland, &c. collected by that judicious and excellent Antiquary Sir Robert Cotton, who bequeathed the same to his Son Sir Thomas, and after his Decease to his Grandson Sir John; who giving it to the Publick, an Act of Parliament was made in the Year 1701, for securing the same, intituled, An Act for the better settling and preserving the Library kept in the House at Westminster called Cotton-house in the Name and Family of the Cottons, for the Benefit of the Publick. However, proper Care not being taken, according to the Directions of the said Act, it became a great Sufferer by Fire, on the 23d of October, Anno 1731, whereby ninety-nine Volumes were destroyed, and one hundred and eleven much damaged.

Pursuant to the Statute aforesaid, upon the Death of the said Sir John Cotton, the Library, together with the Coins, Medals, and other Rarities, contained in a Schedule thereunto belonging, were vested in Trustees; who have made divers Orders for the good Regulation thereof; and also, for appointing a Person well read in Antiquities to have the Custody of the same, upon his giving five hundred Pounds Security for his Fidelity; to which Purpose he is likewise obliged to take an Oath before the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, at his Admission.

This curious and inestimable Collection, before the late Fire, consisted of nine hundred and fifty-eight Volumes of original Charters, Grants, Instruments, Letters of Sovereign Princes, Transactions between this and other Kingdoms and States, Genealogies, Histories, Registers of Monasteries, Remains of Saxon Laws, the Book of Genesis, thought to be the most ancient Greek Copy extant, and said to have been writ by Origen, in the second Century; and the curious Alexandrian Manuscript of the Old and New Testament, all in Greek Capitals, said to have been writ in the third Century.

The Trustees appointed for the Care of this Library are in Number seven, viz. the Lord Chancellor, or Keeper, the Speaker of the House of Commons, and Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench for the Time being; and four others, at the Nomination of the Heir Male of the Cotton Family. The Books were deposited in the Old Dormitory at Westminster. But by a late Act of Parliament are, with Sir Hans Sloane's Musæum, to be preserved in Montague-house, Bloomsbury-square.

The great and valuable Library of the curious Sir Hans Sloane, Bart. deceased, and late President of the Royal Society, amount to upwards of forty-two thousand Volumes; which, together with his vast Treasure of Rarities, both natural and artificial, are probably the greatest and most valuable Collections that are, or perhaps ever were upon Earth, made by a private Gentleman.

Doctors-Commons Library.

The Library belonging to this College was greatly increased by the Addition of that of Sir John Gibson, some Time Judge of the Prerogative-Office; which was given by James Gibson, Esquire, one of his Descendants, and Town-clerk of this City.

This Library is and must continue in a growing Condition; seeing that every Bishop, at the Time of his Consecration, gives at least twenty Pounds, and some fifty, towards purchasing Books for the same.

Gray's-inn Library.

This Library, which is kept in Coney-court, in Gray's-inn, consists of a considerable Number of Books in divers Languages and Faculties, but especially in Law, for the Use of the Gentlemen of the Inn.

Inner-temple Library.

This Library is not so remarkable for printed Books, as 'tis for Manuscripts; which were given to it by William Petyt, Esq; late Keeper of the Records in the Tower of London.

Lambeth Library.

This Library, which is in the Archbishop of Canterbury's Palace at Lambeth, was founded by Richard Bancroft, Archbishop of that See in the Year 1610, who by Will devised all his Books for the Use of his Successors, Archbishops of Canterbury. It was greatly increased by the Benefactions of the Archbishops Abbot, Skeldon and Tennison, and consists of fourteen thousand five hundred and twenty-two printed Books, and upwards, and six hundred and seventeen Volumes in Manuscript.

Lincoln's-inn Library.

This Library is kept in the old Buildings in Lincoln's-inn, and consists of a handsome Collection of Books in divers Languages and Faculties.

Middle-temple Library.

This Library, which is kept in Garden-court in the Middle-temple, was founded by the Will of Robert Ashley, Esq; of the 27 September, Anno 1641, who therein bequeathed his own Library for that Purpose; and the Sum of three hundred Pounds, to be laid out in a Purchase for the Maintenance of a Librarian, who must be a Student of the Society, by the Benchers whereof he is elected into that Office.

Mr. Ashley likewise bequeathed all his Furniture, to be disposed of for the Benefit of his said Library; the Number of Volumes therein at present (A. D. 1738) amount to three thousand nine hundred and eighty-two, in most Branches of Literature, but more especially in Law and Parliamentary Affairs; and the same continuing to increase, by the Benefactions of Authors, and others, 'tis like to become a numerous and serviceable Collection.

This Library, except in the Dead of the Long Vacation, is duly kept open from ten in the Morning till one in the Afternoon, and from two in the Afternoon till six in the Summer, and four in the Winter.

Redcross-street Library.

This Library was founded by Daniel Williams, D. D. a Presbyterian Divine of this City; who, by his last Will of the twenty-sixth of June, Anno 1711, among other considerable Legacies, bequeathed all his Books, to be set up in a publick Library, for the Reception of which, a Freehold House was either to be purchased, or erected, with an Apartment therein for the Librarian, and a Salary of ten Pounds per Annum.

In pursuance of this Will, Ground was purchased, and a magnificent Building erected in Redcross-street without Cripplegate, with a stately and spacious Room therein, capacious enough for the Reception of forty thousand Volumes.

Royal-Society Library.

This choice and valuable Library, formerly belonging to the noble Family of Arundel, was given to the Royal Society by the truly generous and honourable Henry Howard, (afterwards Duke of Norfolk) of the County of Norfolk, Esq; on the second of January, Anno 1666. This Collection originally was (kept at the City of Buda) Part of the Royal Library, belonging to the Kings of Hungary; which, upon the Demise of Matthias Corvinus, the last King of the Hungarian Race, was disposed of; about two Thirds whereof being bought by the Emperor, they are now in the Imperial Library at Vienna; and this Part coming to Bilibaldus Perkeymberus of Nuremberg, it was bought bought of him by the Earl of Arundel, on his Return from his Embassy to the Imperial Court.

This fine Collection consists of three thousand two hundred and eighty-seven printed Books, in most Languages and all Faculties; and are chiefly the first Editions of Books, soon after the Invention of Printing. And the valuable and choice Collection of Hebrew, Greek, Latin, Turkish and other rare Manuscripts, consists of five hundred and fifty-four Volumes; which, together with the former are thought to be of such a Value, as cannot be paralleled, for the Smallness of their Number.

The noble and generous Benefactor, at the Time of his Donation, desired, that the commemorial Inscription of Ex dono Henrici Howard Norfolciensis, might be put in each Book: And that in case the Society should happen to fail, the said Library should revert to his Family. The first of which the Society not only readily complied with, but some Time after caused the following Inscription to be put up in the Library:

Bibliotheca Norfolciana.

Excellentissimus Princeps Henricus Howard, Dux Norfolciæ, Comes Mareballus Angliæ, Comes Arundeliæ, Suria, Norfolciæ, & Norwici, &c. Heros, propter Familiæ Antiquitatem, Animi Dotes, Corporis Dignitatem, pene incomparabilis, Bibliothecam hanc instructissimam (quæ hætenus Arundeliana appellabatur) Regiæ Societati Dono dedit, & perpetuo sacram esse voluit.

A. D. MDCLXXIX.

The Arundelian, or Norfolk Library above-mentioned, occupying a very large Room in the Society's House in Crane-court in Fleet-street, another curious and valuable Collection of Books, left the Society in the Year 1715, by the Will of their late Secretary, Francis Aston, Esq; together with the numerous Benefactions of the Works of the learned Members, in all Faculties, especially in Natural and Experimental Philosophy, amounting to three thousand six hundred and twenty-five, are placed in another Room, in beautiful Glass Cases: And it far excels all the publick Libraries of this City, in point of Goodness and Value.

St. Paul's Library.

This Library, which is in a very noble and magnificent Room over the Consistory in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, contains a fine Collection of Books in all Sciences and many Languages, both printed and manuscript, to the Number of seven thousand Volumes.

Sion-College Library.

As Sion College was founded by Dr. White, for the Use of the London Clergy, so was the Library (by Accident) in like manner, by John Simpson, Rector of St. Olave's, Hart-street, and Executor to the said Dr. White. It is at present in a flourishing Condition, containing about fifteen thousand Books, in most Languages and Faculties, both printed and manuscript. See Cripplegate Ward.

Surgeons Library.

This Library, belonging to the Company of Surgeons, is kept in their Hall or Theatre in the Old-Bailey, and consists of a handsome Collection of Books in divers Languages and Faculties, but more especially in those of Physick and Surgery, for the Use of the Faculty.

The King's Library.

This Library, which was founded by Henry, Prince of Wales, eldest Son to King James I. seems to have been but little regarded, by the small Number of its Books; for the printed only amount to about ten thousand two hundred, and the Manuscripts to about eighteen hundred; which, till the Fire which happened on the twenty-third of October, Anno 1731, were kept in the same House with the Cottonian Library, and suffered but little by that Fire. The Books are at present kept in the Old Dormitory at Westminster.

The Queen's Library.

This magnificent Building was erected by that great Encourager of Learning, her late Majesty Queen Caroline, and Royal Consort to his present Majesty King George II. into which the Books were put in the Month of October, Anno 1737. As this is a very stately and sumptuous Room, so it is well furnished with a choice Collection of modern Books in divers Languages; which consist of about four thousand five hundred, finely bound, and beautifully placed, with Brass Net-work before them.

Westminster Library.

This Library, which is kept in the Eastern Cloister of Westminster-abbey, belongs to the Dean and Chapter of the Collegiate Church, and consists of a handsome Collection of Books in most Languages and Faculties, about six thousand in Number.

Notwithstanding the many publick Libraries within the City and Suburbs of London, the private Collections are so great and numerous, that it is scarce to be questioned, but they excel those of all other Countries. However, without mentioning the many great Libraries of the Nobility, Gentry, and Gentlemen of the Long Robe, or those of Merchants and Tradesmen, (tho' to my own Knowledge, divers of the latter amount to above one thousand Pounds each in Value) I shall content myself with mentioning only one of the principal, viz.

The celebrated Library collected by the late Earl of Sunderland, and now in Possession of his eldest Son, the Duke of Marlborough, is, with good Reason, thought to surpass all other private Collections whatsoever.

CHAP. VI.

An Account of the several Hospitals and Alms-houses within the Cities and Suburbs of London.

Alleyn's Alms-house.

Edward Alleyn, a Player, or Comedian of this City, and Founder of Dulwich-hospital, about the Year 1614, erected an Alms-house, consisting of ten Rooms, at the West End of Fishmongers Almshouses, at Newington Butts, SURRY.

Bancrofts Almshouses, in Bow-Street.

The East Prospect of the University of Hartford of St. Botolph's Bishopsgate in Petty France, for the Reception of so many poor Men and Women; who are allowed about forty Shillings per Annum; and every other Year, the Men have Coats and Breeches, and the Women Gowns and Petticoats. But Petty France being rebuilt, and converted into New-Broad-street, &c. this House, in the Year 1730, was forced to make way to the new Passage leading to Bishopsgate-street. Wherefore a new Building was erected in Lamb-alley in Bishopsgate-street, for the Accommodation of the said poor People; whose annual Allowance amounts to about twenty-eight Pounds.

Alleyn's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Pest-house-lane near Old-street, was founded by the aforesaid Edward Alleyn, about the Year 1616, for ten poor Men and Women; who receive six Pence per Week each, and every other Year Coats and Gowns; the Charge whereof amounts to about twenty-two Pounds per Annum.

Alleyn's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Soap-yard in Dead-man's-place in Southwark, was also founded by the said Edward Alleyn, about the Year 1616, for the Use of ten poor Men and Women, with an Allowance of six Pence per Week only; which amounts to thirteen Pounds per Annum.

Amyas's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in George-yard in Old-street, was erected in the Year 1655, by Susan Amyas, of London, Widow, for the Habitation of eight poor single Men, or Women; who have an Allowance of four Pounds per Ann. each. One Pound, for Water; six Pounds, for Coals; and twenty Shillings for one of the eight to read Prayers daily; together, forty Pounds per Annum.

Aske's Hospital.

This magnificent Hospital, situate at Hoxton, was erected in the Year 1692, by the Company of Haberdashers, pursuant to the Will of Robert Aske, Esq; and Member of the said Fraternity; who, for the Building and Endowing of the same, left the said Company upwards of thirty thousand Pounds, for the maintaining at Bed and Board twenty poor Haberdashers, and twenty Boys; who are to be taught besides: But a Moiety of this Sum being shamefully squandered, in erecting an Edifice fitter for a Palace than an Alms-house, to the great Reproach of those concerned, the Company were obliged to turn off the Boys for several Years. Had this great Sum of Money been prudently managed, the Company, instead of discharging the Boys, might not only have erected a handsome and convenient Building for an Hospital; but likewise have kept a much greater Number upon the Foundation.

Each of the Pensioners in this Hospital have very handsome Apartments, consisting of three Rooms with proper Diet and Firing. Three Pounds in Money yearly, and a Gown every second Year: Which, together with the Salaries of the Chaplain, Clerk, Butler, Porter, and other Domesticks, amounts to about eight hundred Pounds per Annum.

Ayre's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, in White's-alley in Coleman-street, was founded by Christopher Ayre, a Merchant of this City, for six poor Men and their Wives; and committed the Trust thereof to the Company of Leather-sellers; who pay each Couple four Pounds per Annum.

Badger's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate at Hoxton, was founded by Allen Badger, Anno 1698, for six poor Men and their Wives; who are only allowed twenty Shillings per Annum each Couple.

Bancroft's Alms-house.

This beautiful Alms-house, School, and Chapel, situate at Mile-end, were erected by the Company of Drapers of this City, in the Year 1735, pursuant to the Will of Francis Bancroft, dated the 18th of March, Anno 1727, who bequeathed to the said Company the Sum of twenty-eight thousand Pounds, and upwards, in real and personal Estates, in Trust; for purchasing a Site, and building thereon an Alms-house, with convenient Apartments for twenty-four Almsmen, a Chapel and School-room for one hundred poor Boys, and two Dwelling-houses for the Masters of the said School, and for endowing the same.

Banc.
Will.

He likewise ordered, that each of his said twenty-four Almsmen should have eight Pounds, and half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, and a Gown of Baize every third Year; and the School-boys to be cloathed, and taught to read, write, and account, for which the two Masters are to have a Salary of thirty Pounds per Annum each, with their respective Houses to dwell in; and twenty Pounds yearly, for Coals and Candles for the Use of the said Masters and Schools; with a sufficient Allowance for Books, Paper, Pens and Ink; five Pounds for a Dinner to the Committee of the Court of Assistants, at their annual Visitation of the said School and Alms-house; three Pounds ten Shillings for two half-yearly Sermons, to be preached in the Parish Churches of St. Helen, and St. Michael, Cornhill, or elsewhere, in Commemoration of this Foundation; out of which the Minister is to have twenty, the Reader ten, and the Clerk and Sexton two Shillings and six Pence each, for each Sermon; at which are to be present the Almsmen, and Boys, who are to be catechized by the Reader on all such Occasions. And the Boys, when put out Apprentices, to have four Pounds given with each; but if to Service, only two Pounds ten Shillings, to buy them Cloaths.

Ibid.

The Founder, Francis Bancroft, was a Grandson of Archbishop Bancroft, tho' reduced, and was for many Years one of the Lord-Mayor's Officers of this City; in which Office he acquired an Estate of twenty-eight thousand Pounds.

Bancroft's Monument in the Church of St. Helen, Bishopsgate-street, which is of a square sepulchral Form, has the following Inscription:

"The Ground, whereon this Tomb stands, was purchased of this Parish, in the Year 1723, by Francis Bancroft, Esq; for the Interment of himself and Friends only, (and was confirmed to him by a Faculty from the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, London, the same Year) and in his Life-time he erected this Tomb, Anno “ 1726, and settled Part of his Estate in London and Middlesex, for beautifying and keeping the “ same in Repair for ever”.

Baremere's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Alms-house-yard in Hoxton, was built about the Year 1701, by Mr. Baremere, a Presbyterian Minister, for eight poor Women, who have only a yearly Allowance of half a Chaldron of Coals each.

Baron's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Elbow-lane, Shadwell, was founded in the Year 1682, by George Baron, for the Habitation of fifteen poor Women; who endowed the same with five Pounds four Shillings per Annum for Bread.

Bayning's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, in Gun-powder-alley in Crutched-friars, was erected in the Year 1631, by Paul Viscount Sudbury, for ten poor House-keepers; but whether ever endowed I cannot learn: But the same being surrendered to the Parish, 'tis used as a common Alms-house for the same.

Beech-lane Alms-house.

This Alms-house was erected by the Company of Drapers about the Year 1540, pursuant to the Will of the Lady Anne Askew, Relict of Sir Christopher Askew, Mayor of this City, Anno 1533, for eight poor Widows, Members of the said Fraternity, who are allowed three Pounds per Annum each, and half a Chaldron of Coals.

Bermeeter's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, in St. John's-street, in the Hamlet of Bethnal-green, was founded by Mr. Bermeeter, some Time Town Clerk of the said Hamlet, for six poor Women, and endowed the same with thirty Pounds per Annum; but the Estate being in Houses, a considerable Sum has been lately laid out on the same; wherefore one Moiety of the Rent is appropriated to discharge that Incumbrance, till which Time the Pensioners only receive two Pounds ten Shillings per Annum each.

Bethlem Hospital.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

This Hospital, originally a Priory, was founded Anno 1247, by Simon Fitzmary, some time Sheriff of London, on the East Side of that Part of the Mere, or Moor, (now the Quarters of Moorfields and Burial Ground in Old Bethlem) from which it was divided by a large and deep Ditch. See Bishopsgate Ward.

This Hospital, on Account of its bad Situation, small Dimensions, and ruinous Condition, being deemed unfit for the Entertainment of such miserable Creatures, occasioned the Lord-Mayor and Citizens, in the Year 1675, to lay the Foundation of the present stately Fabrick in Moorfields for their Reception; and which, tho' the most spacious and magnificent of its kind, yet it was only fifteen Months in erecting, as appears by an Inscription in the Front thereof; the Charge of which amounted to about seventeen thousand Pounds. This noble Structure is in Length five hundred and forty Feet, and in Breadth forty, wherein are contained a great Number of convenient Cells, or Rooms for the Accommodation of the Unfortunate, who are at present maintained therein without any Charge to their Friends, other than that of Bedding, which the unhappy Objects are daily destroying.

At each End of this stately Edifice are erected, by the charitable Contributions of the Citizens, two beautiful Wings, or spacious Buildings for the Reception of poor incurable Lunaticks. Before this magnificent Structure is a pleasant Garden, inclosed by a stately Wall of about seven hundred Feet in Length.

I shall subjoin a Septenary Account of this Hospital, wherein will be shewn the Number of Persons admitted, cured, discharged, and remaining in the same, in the several Years of the said Septenary.

The annual Charge for the Support of this Hospital, by the Account of the Disbursements thereof in the Year 1729, appears to be two thousand eight hundred and twenty-four Pounds sixteen Shillings and six Pence.

This Hospital being united to that of Bridewell, they have the same President, Governors, (whose Number is about two hundred) Treasurer, Clerk, Physician, Surgeon, and Apothecary; but each has a Steward and inferior Officers peculiar to itself.

Bourne's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, in Kingsland-road, was erected by the Company of Framework-Knitters in the Year 1734, pursuant to the Will of Thomas Bourne, Esq; Anno 1730, who bequeathed to the said Company one thousand Pounds to purchase Ground, and erect a Building thereon of twelve Rooms, for the Entertainment of twelve poor Freeman, or their Widows, and endowed the same with two thousand Pounds, to be laid out in a Purchase of eighty Pounds per Annum.

By an Account of the Disbursements of this Hospital in the Year 1729, the Annual Charge thereof appears to be, eighteen hundred and ninety-one Pounds seven Shillings and eight Pence.

The Charter-House Hospital

This Hospital being united to that of Bethlehem, they have the same President, Governors, Treasurer, Auditor General, Clerk, Physician, Surgeon, and Apothecary; and the Domesticks peculiar to this House, are a Steward, Chaplain, Reader, Porter and his Servant, Matron, and four Beadles, one of whom is Chapel Clerk.

Butler's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Little Chapel-street, Westminster, consists of two large Rooms for two poor Men and their Wives; which were founded by Nicholas Butler, in the Year 1675, who endowed the same with twelve Pounds per Annum.

Camp's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, in Wormwood-street, was founded by Laurence Camp, for the Relief of six poor Persons of the Parish of Allhallows, London-wall, who have each an Allowance of one Pound fourteen Shillings and eight Pence per Annum.

Caron's Alms-house.

This House, situate in Kingston-road, Vauxhall, consisting of seven Rooms, for as many poor Women, was founded by his Excellency the Right Honourable Noel, Baron of Caron, (Ambassador from the States of the United Provinces) in the Year 1623, who endowed the same with a handsome Estate, out of which his Almswomen receive four Pounds per Annum each.

Charter-house Hospital.

The modern Appellation of Charter-house given to this Hospital, is a Corruption of the French Appellative Chartreux, the Name of the Place where the first Carthusian Monk, founded his Order in France, from which Incident all Carthusian Convents are called Chartreux, and the Original is distinguished by the Name of the Grand Chartreux. The Charter-house in Smithfield, before the Suppression of Monasteries by Henry VIII. was a Priory belonging to that Order. The proper Name of this House at present, is, The Hospital of King James; which Appellation it received by the Powers whereby it was at first erected into an Hospital. The Occasion of this House's being at first erected, was owing to a very fatal and dreadful Catastrophe, of which we have given an Account on Page 128.

A vast Number of People being interred in this Ground during the Rage of that destructive Pestilence, the Right Honourable Proprietor was thereby induced to erect a Chapel in the said Cemetery, wherein great and numerous Oblations were made for many Years after. In the Year 1371, Manny founded a Carthusian Monastery therein, in Honour of God and the Virgin Mary, by the Appellation of The Salutation of the Mother of God. The Revenues of this Convent, which at its Suppression by Henry VIII. Anno 1538, was valued at six hundred and forty-two Pounds and four Pence Half-penny per Annum, was conferred upon Sir Thomas Audley, Speaker of the House of Commons, with whose only Daughter it went by Marriage to Thomas Duke of Norfolk, and from him, by Descent, to Thomas Earl of Suffolk, who disposed thereof to Thomas Sutton, Esq; Citizen and Girdler of London, by the Name of Howard House, commonly called the Charter-house, consisting of divers Courts, a Wilderness, Orchards, Walks, and Gardens, with Pardon Church-yard, and two adjoining Messuages, called Willbeck, with all the Buildings, Ways, Waters, Services, Rents, Wages, Felons Goods, Outlaws, Fugitives, Liberties, Reversions, Emoluments and Appurtenances whatsoever; for which he paid the Sum of thirteen thousand Pounds, on the 16th of May, Anno 1611. Whereupon Sutton applied to King James I. to have the Design of erecting his Hospital at Haltingbury in Essex, changed into that of the Charter-house, with a Power to establish the same in all Respects as effectually in the latter, as was designed by the Act of Parliament to have been done in the former.

The King by his Letters Patents of the twenty-second of June, Anno 1611, established the said Hospital according to the Request of the Founder, (which was confirmed by Parliament, 1628,) who fitted up the House for the Reception of his Pensioners and Scholars, the Charge of which amounted to seven thousand Pounds, which, together with the Purchase-Money, amounted to twenty thousand Pounds. Besides this Sum, Sutton endowed his Hospital with fifteen Manors, and other Lands, to the Amount of four thousand four hundred and ninety-three Pounds nineteen Shillings and ten Pence Half-penny per Annum.

Though this Hospital in the Years 1623, and 1624, lost near the Sum of eight thousand Pounds, was spoiled of sixteen hundred Pounds, Anno 1649, and the great Loss it sustained under the iniquitous Masterhip of Gerard; yet by the just and faithful Management of the worthy Sir Richard Sutton, one of the Founder's Executors, the Estate belonging to this Foundation was, by the Year 1673, improved to five thousand three hundred and ninety-one Pounds thirteen Shillings and eight Pence yearly. And though at this Time it amounts (as I am informed) to above six thousand Pounds per Annum; yet I cannot learn that any other Addition is made to the Number of Persons upon the Foundation, than four Boys to the Number of Scholars in the House, and five to that of the Students at the Universities, which makes the former forty-four, and the latter twenty-nine; which, together with the eighty old Pensioners, make the Number Total of Members one hundred and fifty-three, besides the Servants of the House.

The Pensioners are provided with handsome Apartments, and all the Necessaries of Life, except Apparel, in lieu of which they are allowed a Gown and seven Pounds per Annum each. And the Scholars have not only handsome Lodgings, and are instructed in Classical Learning, &c. but they are likewise supplied with all the Necessaries of Life; and the Students at the Universities have an Allowance of twenty Pounds per Annum each, for the Term of eight Years. And the Boys that are incapable of being brought up Scholars are put out Apprentices, and the Sum of forty Pounds given with each of them. And as a farther Encouragement to the Scholars brought up on this Foundation, there are nine Ecclesiastical Preferments in the Patronage of the Governors, who, according to the Constitutions of the Hospi-

Christ's Hospital.

This is a Royal Foundation, which was granted the City by Henry VIII. Anno 1547, and in the Year 1552, confirmed to the Citizens by Charter of Edward VI. who thereby incorporated them Governors of his several Foundations in the City and Liberties thereof, by the Name of The Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens of the City of London, Governors of the Possessions, Revenues, and Goods of the Hospitals of Edward VI. King of England, &c. And as a farther Instance of this Prince's Generosity to the Poor of this City, commanded, that after reserving a sufficient Quantity of the Linen (which had been used in the Times of Popish Superstitions) to each Church within the City and Suburbs of London, the remaining superfluous great Quantities should be delivered to the Governors of this Hospital for the Use of the poor Children under their Care. See Farringdon Ward within.

The Charge for the Support of this Hospital, by the Account of its Disbursements in the Year 1729, appears to be eleven thousand and fifty-one Pounds fourteen Shillings and eight Pence.

The Number of Governors in the Direction of this Hospital being unlimited, 'tis therefore uncertain, tho' generally they are about three hundred, in whom is invested the Right of choosing their Officers and Servants, both Men and Women. The principal whereof are, a President, Treasurer, Physician, Surgeon, Clerk, Steward, a Cook, Porter, four Beadles, a Matron, and eleven Nurses.

Corporation for the Relief of Clergymens Widows and Children.

The Origin of this Society, (whose House is in Salisbury-court, Fleet-street) appears from the Abstract of the Charter granted them by King Charles II.

An Abstract of the Charter of King Charles II. for erecting a Corporation for Relief of poor Widows and Children of Clergymen, dated 1 July, Anno 1678.

"His said late Majesty having taken notice, that divers charitable Persons had appeared very forward in contributing to the Relief of such of the Widows and Children of loyal and orthodox Clergymen, as were poor, and the good Effect the same had; and taking into his Princely Consideration, the great Sufferings of many of the Clergy of England for their Loyalty, was graciously pleased, by his Charter, under the Great Seal of England, to ordain, constitute and grant, That the Persons therein named, and their Successors, (to be elected as is therein expressed) be one Body Politick and Corporate, by the Name of The Governors of the Charity for the Relief of the poor Widows and Children of Clergymen; and that by the same Name they should have perpetual Succession; and to be capable to purchase, have, or take Manors, Lands and Hereditaments, &c. not exceeding the yearly Value of two thousand Pounds; and all manner of Goods and Chattels, and to dispose thereof; and by that to plead and be impleaded in all Actions, &c. and to act all other Matters and Things as fully as any other Body Politick in this Realm can do; and that the said Governors should have one common Seal.

"And his said late Majesty did further grant to the said Governors, That there should be a President, Vice-President, three Treasurers, and forty-two Assistants, Members of the said Corporation; and that they, or any five of them, (whereof the President, Vice-President, or any of the Treasurers, be one) should be called The Court of Assistants of the said Corporation; who should have the Management of all the Affairs of the said Corporation, and should make Laws and Ordinances for the good Government thereof, as well in Matters concerning the Corporation, as in electing of Officers, and Management of their Revenues, and impose Penalties on the Offenders against the said Laws, and to recover the same to the Use of the said Corporation.

"And therein it is appointed, that the Persons thereby constituted be the first President, Vice-President, Treasurers, and first Assistants, should continue in their respective Places until the second Thursday in November, 1679, and from thenceforth until there should be a new Choice made of Persons to succeed them.

"And that on every second Thursday in November for ever, (or oftener, if there be Occasion) there should be a General Assembly of the said Governors; and the major Part of the Members then present, might chuse a President, Vice-President, three Treasurers, and forty-two Assistants, who should continue for the Year following: And that in case of the Death of any of the said Officers within the Year, others might be chosen at a General Assembly in their Places.

"And that such General Assembly might elect such other Person, or Persons, to be Members and Governors of the said Corporation, as they, or the greatest Part of them, should think fit.

"Provided, That the President, Vice-President, and Treasurers above-named, should, before they enter upon their Places, take their Oaths before the Lord-Chancellor, faithfully to execute their respective Trusts; and that all the other Members of the said Corporation, before they act as Assistants, and all succeeding Presidents, Vice-Presidents, Treasurers, Assistants, and all other their inferior Officers, should take the like Oath before the Persons by the said Charter empowered to administer the same.

“ And that the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord High-Chancellor of England, Lord Archbishop of York, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, Lord High Treasurer, Lord Bishop of London, Lord Almoner, and the Lord-Mayor of London for the Time being, should be Visitors of the said Corporation, and settle all Differences about the Government thereof, and the Disposition of their Revenues.

“ Since which, the Revenues of the Corporation being increased to near two thousand Pounds per Annum, by the charitable Benefactions of several well disposed Persons; and the Corporation having represented the same by their humble Petition to his most Gracious Majesty King George the First, his Majesty was pleased to grant his Royal Licence, dated the 16th Day of December, in the first Year of his Reign, to enable the Corporation to make further Purchases and Acquisitions, not exceeding five thousand Pounds per Annum.”

Cotterell's Alms-house.

This House, which is situate in Chapel-yard Hog-lane, Soho, was endowed by Sir Charles Cotterell with a perpetual Annuity of twenty Pounds, toward the Support of eight poor Women therein.

Cure's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which is situate in College Church-yard in Deadman's-Place, Southwark, was founded by Thomas Cure, Esq; Anno 1584, for the Reception of sixteen poor Men and Women, with an Allowance of twenty Pence per Week each. And by the additional Benefactions of Cure's Son, and Mrs. Appleby, they receive each sixteen Shillings per Annum more.

Dewy's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Hog-lane, Soho, was erected by Captain Dewy, Anno 1684, but whether endowed, or not, I cannot learn.

Dun's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, containing twenty Rooms for so many poor Widows, was erected by Cornelius Van-Dun, a Fleming, in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth; but it not being endowed, it is inhabited by the Parish Pensioners of St. Margaret's, Westminster.

Dutch Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in White's-alley, Moorfields, was erected by Samuel Shepherd, Esq; an eminent Dutch Merchant, for the Reception of twenty-eight poor ancient Women of his Nation, who have each an Allowance of three Shillings per Week, and twelve Shillings to buy a Gown every other Year.

Dyers Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which belongs to the Company of Dyers, is situate in Dyers-Buildings in Holbourn, and contains eight Rooms for so many aged poor Women, who are only allowed two Pence per Week, which shews the Foundation to be of an ancient Establishment.

Dyers Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in St. John's-street, near Spittlefields, was erected by the Master Dyers, for the Benefit of six poor Widows, who are allowed thirty Shillings per Annum each.

No. 109.

Emanuel Hospital.

This hospital, situate at Totbill Side in Westminster, was founded by the Lady Dacres, on the 17th of December, Anno 1601, for twenty aged single Men and Women; sixteen whereof to be of St. Margaret's, Westminster, two of Hayes, and two of Chelsea Parishes; each of whom have an Allowance of ten Pounds per Annum, with the Liberty of bringing up a poor Child.

The City of London has this Charity in Trust, and receive annually two hundred Pounds for its Support, issuing out of the Manor of Bramburton in the County of York, till the Expiration of a Lease of one hundred and ninety-nine Years, when the whole Manor (as 'tis said, above six hundred Pounds per Annum) is devised for the Augmentation of this Foundation. And according to certain Constitutions made by the Executors of the Foundress, no Person of ill Fame, or such as cannot say the Creed and ten Commandments in English, or under fifty Years of Age, nor such as have not inhabited three Years in the said Parishes, to be admitted upon this Foundation.

Sometime ago, the Court of Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of this City, caused to be erected at the upper End of this Hospital, a handsome School-house and Dormitory for the Reception of twenty poor Boys and Girls, who were taken into the same on the twenty-fourth of June, Anno 1735; they are plentifully supplied with all the Necessaries of Life, the Boys are taught to read, write and account, and the Girls to read, write and Plain-work.

Fell's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, standing at Blackwall, was erected by Captain Fell, for the Accommodation of four poor Families, without any other Allowance.

Fisher's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which stands in the Dog-row, near Milè-end, was erected in the Year 1711, by Captain Fisher, for six Masters of Ships Widows, for whose Support he settled an Estate of forty Pounds per Annum, and committed the Trust thereof to the Fraternity of the Trinity-House. And the Ground whereon the two additional Rooms are erected, was purchased by Sir Charles Wager, and built by Sir William Ogborne, Anno 1728, and the two Widows therein have each an Allowance of sixteen Shillings per Month, and twenty Shillings per Annum for Coals.

The Foundling Hospital.

This Hospital, which is risen to an extraordinary public Benefit from some generous Benefactions of private Merchants in the Reign of Queen Anne, and their Legacies for carrying so laudable a Design into Execution, was established at last by the Solicitation and great Care of Mr. Thomas Coram, (See Page 605, Vol. I.) who obtained not only a very extensive Subscription for the building of a noble and commodious House in Lamb's-Conduit Fields; but lived to see it built, well filled and regulated and established by the Royal Letters Patents and an Act of Parliament.

The Royal Charter for establishing the Hospital.

George the Second, by the Grace of God, and so forth, to whom these Presents shall come Greeting.

15 B

Whereas

Whereas our trusty and well beloved Subject Thomas Coram, Gentleman, in Behalf of great Numbers of helpless Infants daily exposed to Destruction, has by his Petition humbly represented unto us, that many Persons of Quality and Distinction, as well as others, of both Sexes, being sensible of the frequent Murders committed on poor miserable Infants by their Parents to hide their Shame, and the inhuman Custom of exposing new-born Children to perish in the Streets, or training them up in Idleness, Beggary, or Theft, have by Instruments in Writing declared their Intentions to contribute liberally towards the erecting an Hospital, after the Example of other Christian Countries, and for supporting the same, for the Reception, Maintenance, and proper Education of such helpless Infants, as soon as we should be graciously pleased to grant our Royal Letters Patent for that Purpose: That several Legacies having been bequeathed for the same to be paid by the Executors, when any such Hospital shall be properly established here; the Petitioner therefore hath humbly prayed us, that we should be graciously pleased to grant our Royal Charter for incorporating such Persons as we shall think fit for receiving and disposing of Charities for erecting and supporting an Hospital for the Reception, Maintenance, and proper Education of such exposed and cast-off Children as may be brought to it, under such Rules and Regulations as to us may seem meet.

We taking the Premises into our Royal Consideration, and being desirous to promote so good and laudable an Establishment, are graciously pleased to gratify the Petitioner in his Request.

Know ye therefore, that we, of our special Grace, certain Knowledge and mere Motion, have willed, ordained, constituted, and appointed, and by these Presents, for us, our Heirs and Successors, do will, ordain, constitute, declare, and grant that the Governors, and such others, as shall from Time to Time be elected in the Manner herein after directed, they and their Successors, be, and shall, for ever hereafter, be, by Virtue of these Presents, one Body Politick and Corporate in Deed and in Name, by the Name of The Governors and Guardians of the Hospital for the Maintenance and Education of exposed and deserted young Children; and them and their Successors by the same Name, we do by these Presents, for us, our Heirs and Successors, constitute and declare to be one Body Politick and Corporate in Deed and in Law; and by the same Name they and their Successors shall and may have perpetual Succession; and that they and their Successors by that Name shall and may, for ever hereafter, be Persons able and capable in the Law, and may have Power, notwithstanding the Statute of Mortmain, to purchase, have, take, receive, and enjoy, to them and their Successors, Manors, Messuages, Lands, Rents, Tenements, Annuities, and Hereditaments, of whatsoever Nature or Kind, in Fee and Perpetuity, or for Terms of Life or Years, not exceeding the yearly Value of four thousand Pounds, beyond Reprises, so far as they are not restrained by Law; and all Manner of Goods, Chattels, and Things whatsoever, of what Nature and Value soever, for the better

Support and Maintenance of such poor deserted Children as shall be received into the said Hospital, in the Manner herein after mentioned; and also to sell, grant, demise, exchange, and dispose of any of the same Manors, Messuages, Lands, and Tenements, whereof and wherein they shall have any Estate of Inheritance, or for Life, Lives, or Years as aforesaid; and that by the Name aforesaid they shall and may be able to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, answer and be answered unto, defend and be defended, in all Courts and Pleas whatsoever of us, our Heirs and Successors, in all Actions, Plaints, Matters, and Demands whatsoever, and to act and do in all Matters and Things relating to the said Corporation, in as ample Manner and Form as any other our liege Subjects, being Persons able and capable in the Law, or any other Body Politick or Corporate in this Part of our Kingdom of Great-Britain called England, lawfully may or can Act or do; and that the said Corporation, for ever hereafter, shall and may have and use a common Seal for the Causes and Businesses of them and their Successors; and that it shall and may be lawful for them and their Successors to change, break, alter, and make new the said Seal from Time to Time, as they shall think fit.

And, for the better Execution of the Purposes aforesaid, we do declare and grant, that the said Corporation, and their Successors for ever, shall have one President, six Vice-Presidents, and one Treasurer; and that John Duke of Bedford be the first President; that Micajah Perry, the Lord Vere Beauclerk, Sir Joseph Eyles, Martin Folkes, Peter Burrell, and James Cook, be the six first Vice-Presidents; and that Lewis Way be the first Treasurer of the said Corporation; each of them respectively to continue in their several and respective Offices of President, Vice-Presidents, and Treasurer, until the second Wednesday in May 1740, and until others be chosen in their respective Rooms.

And our Will and Pleasure is, That the said President, Vice-Presidents, and Treasurer, and the rest of the Members of the said Corporation also above-named, or as many of them the said President, Vice-Presidents, and Members as conveniently can, may, within forty Days next after the Date of this our Grants, meet together at such Time and Place as the said President shall appoint by Summons, or other Notice, which he is by these Presents impowered and required timely to issue for that Purpose to the said Members, or such of them as live within the Cities of London or Westminster, or the Borough of Southwark, or within two Miles thereof; where they, or the major Part of them then present, may chuse by Ballot one or more Secretaries, and such other inferior Officers and Servants as shall be thought convenient and useful for the Purposes of the said Corporation, and to serve in the said Offices respectively until the second Wednesday in May 1740, and until others shall be elected in their respective Rooms, unless they shall sooner die, or be removed; and at such Meetings one or more Committee, or Committees, shall be chosen out of the Members of the said Corporation, to consist of such Number and Persons as to the said general Court shall seem proper; which Committee, or Committees, shall continue until the said second Wednesday

Wednesday in the Month of May, in the said Year 1740, and shall have Power, to direct, manage, and transact, all the Business, Affairs, Estate, and Effects of the said Corporation, and take in, receive, maintain, and employ such poor deserted Children, according to such Rules and Directions as shall be made and established from Time to Time by general Courts; to which said general Courts we do by these Presents, for us, our Heirs and Successors, give and grant full Power and Authority to make and establish such Rules and Directions for the Reception, Maintenance, and Employment of such poor deserted Children, as they, or the major Part of them, shall think meet, fit, and convenient, from Time to Time; and for that Purpose such Committee, or Committees, may erect or purchase such fitting Place to be an Hospital for the Reception of such Children.

And our further Will is, That, on every second Wednesday in the Month of May yearly, there shall and may be a general Meeting of the Governors and Guardians of the said Corporation in the said Hospital, or at some other convenient Place, until the said Hospital be made ready to receive them, for the electing by Ballot all succeeding Presidents, Vice-Presidents, Treasurers, and Committees, out of the Members of the said Corporation, by Majority of Votes of all the Members then personally present, to continue in their respective Offices until the second Wednesday in the said Month of May following, and until others shall be chosen in their respective Rooms; and that all succeeding Secretaries, and other inferior Officers and Servants, be annually appointed, or oftener, if needful, by the major Part of the Governors and Guardians for the Time being then present at their general Meeting, and, in Case of an Equality of Votes, the President, or, in Case of his Death or Absence, the Vice-President first named in the List of Vice-Presidents then present, to have a double or casting Voice, and at such Salaries as they shall think reasonable.

We Will moreover, That there shall be, every Year, four stated general Meetings of the Governors and Guardians of the said Corporation, to be held on the first Wednesdays after Lady-Day, Midsummer, Michaelmas, and Christmas-Day respectively; at which Meetings, and no other, the said Corporation, or the major Part of the Members thereof then present, shall and may execute Leases for Years, and make By-laws for the well Government of the said Corporation, which By-laws, not being repugnant to the Laws and Statutes of this our Realm, shall and may be effectually observed and kept.

Provided nevertheless, and our Will is, That no such By-laws, so to be made by this Corporation shall be binding, until the same shall be confirmed by some succeeding general Meeting; and that the same Method be observed in the altering or repealing any such By-laws, after they shall have been so confirmed, and the Members present at such quarterly Meetings, or the major Part of them then present, are hereby empowered from Time to Time to remove and displace any Officers or Servants belonging to the said Hospital for Misdemeanors at their Will and Pleasure, and to put others into their Rooms from Time to Time: And we do hereby also empower the Committee for the Time being, or any five or more of them, on any just Cause, to suspend, remove, and displace any inferior Officers or Servants, and to put others in their Rooms until the next general or quarterly Court or Meeting.

Provided, That no Act in any quarterly or other general Meeting be valid, unless thirteen or more Members be present, and the major Part of such as shall be present be consenting thereto.

We Will moreover, That the said Corporation and their Successors, or the major Part of such of them as shall be present at any yearly or quarterly Court, or other general Meeting which the President has by these Presents Power to summon at any other Times, as there shall be Occasion, may, from Time to Time, by Ballot elect and chuse such fit and able Persons to be Governors and Guardians as they shall think most likely to encourage and promote the charitable Designs of the said Corporation; which Governors and Guardians so elected shall, from and after such Election, be adjudged and deemed Members of the said Corporation, and as such shall be summoned and admitted to vote and act, by Virtue of the said Presents, as fully and effectually, to all Intents and Purposes, as if their Names, respectively, were particularly inserted to be Members thereof in and by this our Charter.

And we Will moreover, That the said Corporation and their Successors shall have Power to authorise and appoint such Persons as they shall think fit to take Subscriptions, and to ask of all or any of our good Subjects, and gather and collect such Monies as shall by any Person or Persons, Bodies Politick or Corporate, Companies or other Societies, be contributed and given for the Purposes aforesaid, and may revoke and make void such Authorities and Appointments, as often as they may see Cause so to do.

And our further Will and Pleasure is, That the said Corporation shall and may cause fair and just Accounts in Writing to be kept of all Receipts, Payments, and Doings by them, their Officers and Agents, respectively, in relation to the Premises, which shall be liable to the View and Inspection of any Subscriber or Subscribers, Benefactor or Benefactors, upon Occasion; which said Accounts shall, on the 25th Day of December in every Year, or within fourteen Days after, be examined, audited, adjusted, and subscribed by the Members present at such Meeting, or the major Part of them.

We Will moreover, That all Persons who shall subscribe and pay to the said Corporation to the Amount of twenty Pounds or more, or of forty Shillings or more annually, shall have free Liberty to inspect the said Hospital, and inform themselves of the State thereof, and of the Manner of nursing, dieting, managing, instructing, and employing the Children therein.

And further we Will, That in all general Courts the President, or, in Case of his Death or Absence, the Vice-President first named in the List of Vice-Presidents then present, be the Chairman of the said Court, and to have a casting Voice in case of an Equality of Votes.

And, lastly, our Will and Pleasure is, That these our Letters Patent, or the Inrollment or Exemplification thereof, shall be good, firm, valid, and effectual in the Law, according to our Royal Intentions herein before declared; and shall be taken, construed, and adjudged, in all our Courts and elsewhere, in the most favourable and beneficial Sense, and for the best Advantage of the said Corporation and their Successors; any Omision, Imperfection, Defect, Matter, Cause, or Thing whatsoever, to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding, without Fine or Fee, great or small, to be for the same in any Manner rendered, done, or paid to us in our Hanaper, or elsewhere, to our Use.

In Witness thereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent. Witness ourself at Westminster the 17th Day of October, in the thirteenth Year of our Reign,

In Pursuance of this Patent the Duke of Bedford, who was appointed the first President, summoned the several Members of the Society to meet him, on Tuesday the 20th of November, at Somerset-house; and, most of the Noblemen and Gentlemen named in the Charter being assembled, Thomas Coram, Esq; who first proposed the Scheme and solicited for the Charter, thanked his Grace the Duke of Bedford, and the rest of the Noblemen and Gentlemen, for their Protection and Assistance in promoting the Patent; and Dr. Mead observed the vast Advantages that would accrue to the Nation by this useful Establishment. After which Mr Herman Verelst was chosen then Secretary, who accepted of that Office without expecting any Fee or Reward for his Service; and a Committee of fifty of the Members were chosen to assist the President, in carrying on the Affairs of the Corporation.

On the 14th of May 1740, the Corporation held their yearly general Meeting, when they elected by Ballot his Grace John Duke of Bedford their President: The Lord Vere Beauclerk, Micajah Perry, Esq; Martin Folkes, Esq; Peter Burrel, Esq; Sir Jacob Bonverie, Bart. and John Milner, Esq; Vice-Presidents; and Lewis Way, Esq; Treasurer; and these, with forty-two more of the Members, were elected a Committee.

The same Day they resolved that sixty Children should be taken in, with proper Officers, Nurseries, and Servants; and, on the 31st of October, it was resolved that the general Committee be empowered to purchase of the Earl of Salisbury his two Pasture Fields, containing thirty-four Acres of Land, on the north Side of Ormond street, between Lamb's Conduit and Southampton-row, for a Site to build an Hospital upon, and to do all Things necessary for the Building of it.

In the mean Time they hired a House in Hatton-Garden, late in the Occupation of Sir Fisher Tench, for the Children, until the Hospital should be built, as it has been already observed.

Anno decimo tertio Georgii II. Regis.

An Act for confirming and enlarging the Powers granted by his Majesty to the Governors and Guardians of the Hospital for the Maintenance and Education of exposed and deserted young Children, by his most gracious Charter, bearing Date the 17th Day of October, in the Year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty-nine, and to enable them to execute the good Purposes of the said Charter.

Whereas his Majesty, in Compassion to the Numbers of poor Infants, who are liable to be exposed to perish in the Streets, or be murdered by their indigent and inhuman Parents, has been most graciously pleased, by his Royal Charter under the Great Seal of Great-Britain, to create and establish a Corporation of Body Politick, by the Name of The Governors and Guardians of the Hospital for the Maintenance and Education of exposed and deserted young Children; which Corporation is, by the said Charter, declared to have perpetual Succession, and impowered to take, hold, purchase, receive, and possess Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, to the Value of four thousand Pounds a Year; and Goods, Chattels, and personal Estate, of what Nature and Value soever; and to purchase or erect an Hospital for the Support, Maintenance, and Education of exposed and deserted Children; and to hold Courts, to make By-laws, and to elect Governors and Officers, and to do other Acts for the Purposes of the said Charter: And whereas great Sums of Money have been given by the Governors of the said Hospital, and other Persons, to be applied to the charitable Uses before-mentioned: And whereas, by Reason of the Laws now in Force for the Relief of the Poor, many Difficulties may arise in carrying into Execution the good Intents of the said Charter, and that the granting other and farther Powers to the said Corporation is requisite effectually to answer the Purposes aforesaid:

It is enacted, That the said Corporation, and their Successors, shall have Power, by any Instrument under their common Seal, to purchase Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, of the Value of four thousand Pounds per Annum, and to erect Houses and Buildings thereon, to be an Hospital for the Reception of poor and exposed Children.

And it is further enacted, That such Lands and Buildings, while they continue in the Possession of the said Corporation, shall be rated at such Value in the Taxes as such Lands were rated and assessed at in the Year 1739, and no more, notwithstanding any Improvements which shall hereafter be made, or any Buildings which shall be erected thereon.

And it shall be lawful for all Bodies Politick or Corporate, Femmes-Covert possessed in their own Right, Trustees, Guardians, and Committees for Lunatics and Idiots, Executors, Administrators, and Guardians whatsoever, in Behalf of their Cestui que Trusts, to contract for, sell, or convey to the said Corporation, and their Successors, all or any Messuages, Lands, &c. provided such Conveyances be approved by the Lord Chancellor, Keeper, or Commissioners of the great Seal for the Time being; and all such Contracts, Sales, and Conveyances, shall be good and valid in Law.

And

And it shall be lawful for the said Corporation, or any Persons authorised by them, to receive, maintain, and educate as many Children as they think fit in such Hospital. And it shall be lawful for any Persons whatsoever to bring Children to the said Hospital to be maintained and educated there. And no Church-warden, Overseer, or other Person, shall, by Virtue of any Law in being for the Provision or Maintenance of the Poor, or for Bastard Children, stop, molest, or disturb any Person in bringing such Children to the said Hospital, or in returning from the same, on Pain of forty Shillings for every Offence, to be levied by two Justices of the Peace.

And no Overseer, Church-warden, or other Officer, shall have any Power or Authority in the said Hospital, or shall have any Authority to enquire concerning the Birth or Settlement of such Children who shall be there maintained and educated.

No Children, Nurses, or Servants, maintained or employed in the said Hospital, shall gain any Settlement in the Parishes or Places where the Corporation shall order them to be maintained or educated.

Nor shall any mortuary Fee or Reward be due or payable to any Rector, Curate, Minister, Clerk, Sexton or other Officer, on Account of the Christening, Death, or Burial of such Children; and the Offices of Baptism and Burial of them shall be performed by such Ministers of the Church of England, as the said Corporation shall appoint: And the said Corporation shall provide a sufficient Burial-ground for all Children dying under their Care, and shall not be intitled to make Use of any Church-yard or Burial-place belonging to any Parish, for burying the said Children.

And it shall be lawful for the said Corporation, or any Persons by them authorised, to detain and employ in any Sort of Labour, or Manufacture, or in the Sea Service, all Children by them maintained and educated, till they attain the following Ages, viz. until such male Children attain the Age of twenty-four Years, and the female Children attain the Age of twenty-one, or be married. And the said Corporation may bind such Children Apprentices, or place them out as Servants, or Mariners, to any Husbandman, Master or Captain of a Ship, or other Person, until the aforesaid respective Ages.

And it shall be lawful for the said Corporation, so long as such Children shall be maintained by them, to hire or let out such Children to any Person who shall contract with them for their Work and Labour, and the Corporation to receive the Profit arising from such Work, and to give such reasonable Correction for their Idleness, Disobedience, or Misbehaviour, as they shall think proper.

The President, Vice-Presidents, and Treasurer of the said Corporation, shall be chosen annually on the second Wednesday in May, when there shall be a general Meeting of the Governors and Guardians at the said Hospital, who shall proceed to the Election of a President, six Vice-Presidents, and a Treasurer, by Ballot, and be determined by a Majority of Votes then present; and, if such Election cannot be made and completed on the said second of May, it shall be made within forty Days after, the Majority present having Power to adjourn such Meeting to a future Day; Notice of which Adjournment, and all other General Meetings, to be given in the Gazette.

And, when any Vacancy in the said Offices shall happen by Death, the Governors and Guardians of the said Corporation, or the major Part of them, are authorised to proceed to a new Election of an Officer in the Room of the Person deceased.

And it shall be lawful for the Governors and Guardians of the said Corporation, at any General or Quarterly Court, to appoint one or more Committees for transacting Business, auditing the Accounts of the Corporation, and to require the Treasurer, Officers, and Servants of the House, to account in such Manner as they shall direct; and, at the said General or Quarterly Courts, may examine and pass such Accounts, and make such By-laws as they shall think proper, for the better Government of the said Corporation, provided that no By-law shall be of Force, till approved by the next General Court, and provided that it be not inconsistent with the Laws of the Realm.

Provided that none of the Governors or Guardians, or other Officers of the said Corporation, shall be obliged to take the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, or any other Oath, to qualify them to execute their respective Offices, or to discharge any Trust relating to the said Corporation.

Such of the Governors of the said Corporation who shall be present at any General Court or Meeting, or any Committee chosen by the said Corporation, are empowered to elect, suspend, and displace any Officer or Servant, at their Discretion, without any Cause assigned. If any of the inferior Officers or Servants refuse to account, or produce their Books and Vouchers, or Effects, they shall be intrusted with, any such Offender may be committed by two Justices, until he submits to be examined, &c.

The Method of admitting Children into the Hospital.

The Secretary is to advertise publicly, three Days successively before the Day of Reception, the Day and Hours appointed for that Purpose.

The Gate of the Hospital is to be opened by the Porter, to every Person who brings a Child; but the Porter is not to suffer any Person to bring two Children, or to come in without a Child, except the Governors, or such as they give Orders to be admitted.

The Persons who bring Children, are to be conducted into a large Room, and ordered to seat themselves on Benches; those who bring Boys at one End of the Room, and those who bring Girls at the other, and not to leave their Places, till called, nor are they to take from their Child any Part of its Cloathing, or any Thing sent with it, on Pain of being turned out of the Hospital. Two Servants of the Hospital are to attend, and see this Order obeyed.

When the Hours of Admittance are expired, a Bell is to be rung, the Doors of the Hospital are to be shut, and no Person admitted to bring a Child after that Time.

Two of the Governors are to count the Number of Persons who have Children, and how many have Boys, and how many have Girls; and are to put into one Bag so many white Balls, as there are Boys to be admitted, and, into another Bag, so many white Balls, as there are Girls to be admitted.

To every twenty white Balls, they are to add four red Balls, and proportionally, for any greater or lesser Number.

They are then to add so many black Balls, as, together with the white and red ones, shall make the Number of the Balls, in each Bag, equal to the Number of Persons, who should have brought Boys or Girls.

The Balls in each Bag being mixed together, one of the Governors is to hold the Bag, so as it shall be impossible for the Person, who shall draw a Ball out of it, to see into it.

He is to call the Persons one by one from their Seats to draw each a Ball; and such Person is to hold up her Hand open in View of the Governors, before she puts it into the Bag.

Each Person who shall draw a black Ball, shall immediately be led by the Messenger with her Child out of the Hospital.

The Persons who shall draw white and red Balls, shall be ordered into separate Rooms, to prevent Changing of Balls.

When all the Balls are drawn, and the Persons who shall draw black ones are discharged, the Persons who shall have drawn white ones, are to be carried back into the Room of Drawing, and seated as before: Those, who shall have drawn red ones, remaining apart from them who shall have drawn the white ones. Then one Person who has a white Ball, is to be carried into a Room alone, there to remain, till such Time as her Child shall be received, or refused.

The Child is to be delivered to the Messenger, who is to carry it into the Room appointed for the Inspection.

The Child is there to be undressed in the Presence of the Matron; and if the Physician, Surgeon, or Apothecary, attending shall have any Suspicion of its having any infectious Distemper, or if it appears to be above the Age of two Months, it shall be returned to the Person who brought it, in the Cloaths in which it was brought, and shall be taken immediately out of the Hospital.

If there be no such Objection, it is to be received, and the Person who brought it dismissed.

Every Child received is to have a different Letter of the Alphabet tied to its Wrist.

The Clerk and Steward are each to mark a Billet with the Letter fixed to the Child's Wrist, and in it are to write the Sex and supposed Age of the Child, the Year and Day when inspected, the Particulars of the Child's Dress, the Marks, if any, on its Body; and particular Mention is to be made, in such Billet, of any Writing, or other Thing, brought with the Child.

Any Writing, or remarkable Thing, brought with the Child, is to be sealed up immediately, and marked with the Letter of the Child on the Outside.

This being finished, one of the female Servants of the Hospital is to carry the Child, with the Cloathing of the Hospital, into the Ward which is appointed for the Taking-in of Children, and there to deliver it to the Country Nurse, who has the same Letter of the Alphabet with that of the Child.

When one Child is inspected, and delivered to its Nurse, another Person, having a white Ball, is to be carried into the private Room, in like Manner; and so on, till all the Children, brought by the Persons who have drawn white Balls, shall be inspected.

Then, if any of those Children shall have been rejected, there shall be so many white Balls, as there are Children rejected, put into the Bag, and so many black Balls added to them, as, together with them, shall make up the Number of Persons who shall have drawn red Balls.

These Balls are to be drawn in like Manner as the first; but the Persons who draw the black, may, if they desire it, stay in the House, till they shall see, whether all the Children of those Persons, who shall, in the second Drawing, have got white Balls, are received, or rejected; and so on, till the whole Number of the Children, appointed to be taken in, are received.

When all the Billets are completed, they are to be sealed up by a Governor, and put into a Box, together with all Writings, or other remarkable Things, brought with the Children.

The Porter is also to take Care, that no Molestation be given, by any Persons without Doors, to any Persons who bring Children, either coming to, or returning from the Hospital; and is to seize any Persons so offending, and carry them before a Justice of the Peace, that they may be punished according to the Act of Parliament, made for confirming the Charter of this Corporation; and is to have a Constable, and other Assistants, as shall be directed by the Governors.

Regulations to be observed as to the Nursing, Employment, and Destination of the Children of the Foundling Hospital, in order to make them useful to the Publick, and thereby answer the charitable Intentions of the Benefactors to this Hospital; subject to such Alterations as may be pointed out by future Experience, or better Information, which may be received by Letter, or otherwise.

That all the Children be sent into the Country to Wet-Nurses, under the Inspection of some Person of Character in the Neighbourhood, and that they remain there untill they are three Years old; and that during that Time, their Diet, Cloathing, &c. be conformable to the Directions given in a Treatise, intitled, An Essay upon Nursing, and the Management of Children, from their Birth to three Years old.

That such Children as have not had the Small-Pox in a natural Way, be inoculated at three Years old, in a proper Place out of the Hospital; Experience having fully evinced the Utility of this Practice, by the constant Success which has attended the several Inoculations of the Children, without one single Instance of Miscarriage, under the Care of Dr. Conyers, the Physician, and Mr.

This Treatise was wrote by Dr. Cadogan, of Bristol, and published for the Benefit of the Hospital.

Mr. Winchester, the Surgeon, who charitably attend this Hospital.

That, at three Years old, the Children be returned to the Hospital; and from that Time, until they are six Years old, be taught to read, to learn the Catechism, &c. and, at proper Intervals, exercised in the open Air, and employed in such a Manner as may contribute to their Health, and induce a Habit of Activity, Hardiness, and Labour.

That, from six unto twelve Years old, the Boys be employed in making Nets, spinning of Pack-thread, Twine, and small Cordage, adapted to their several Ages and Strength, and that they mend their own Cloaths, Stockings, &c.

That, at twelve Years old, the Boys be sent to Sea or Husbandry, except so many as may be necessary to be employed in the Garden belonging to the Hospital, which is intended to be enlarged in such a Manner, as to supply the House, and Parts adjacent with Vegetables, and to have in Readiness Boys instructed in Gardening for such Persons as may incline to take them into their Service.

That, from six Years of Age, the Girls be employed in common Needle-work, Knitting, and Spinning; and in the Kitchen, Laundry, and Household-work, in order to make them useful Servants to such proper Persons as may apply for them, except so many as may be necessary to be employed in the Hospital; it being intended to have no other female Servants in the Hospital, but Persons brought up therein, when they arrive to proper Ages.

That the Boys be kept separate from the Girls, and never permitted to have any Intercourse together, either in their Employment, Dieting, or Diversions.

That the Diet allowed to the Children be plain and simple, as small Broth, Pottage, and Milk; Meat and Vegetables alternately, their Bread coarse, and their Drink Water.

That their Diversions be innocent, active, and requiring Exercise; that all Games of Chance, Swearing, indecent Language or Behaviour, be strictly prohibited, and severely punished.

That the Children do constantly attend Divine Service in the Chapel on Sundays, and that the Officers, &c. of the Hospital do often remind them of the Lowness of their Condition, that they may early imbibe the Principles of Humility and Gratitude to their Benefactors; and to learn to undergo, with Contentment, the most servile and laborious Offices; for, notwithstanding the Innocence of the Children, yet, as they are exposed and abandoned by their Parents, they ought to submit to the lowest Stations, and should not be educated in such a Manner, as to put them upon the Level with the Children of Parents who have the Humanity and Virtue to preserve them, and Industry to support them.

Of the Management of the Children- when returned from Nurse.

The returned Children are to be cloathed in a Manner proper for Labour, and different from that of the Children at Nurse, and their Numbers are to be fixed to their Cloaths, in some Manner, so as to be always visible, that every Child may be easily known thereby.

They are to be entered in a Book, divided into the different Wards of the Hospital, to be kept in the Ward into which they are ordered. The Nurse of the Ward is to have the Care of their Cloathing, to see they keep themselves cleanly, and to teach them to read at the Times to be appointed for that Purpose; to see they rise at five o'Clock in Summer, and seven in the Winter, and that they are out of the Ward in a Quarter of an Hour after these Times. In an Hour after the Time of rising, the Nurses of the Ward, with the Assistance of the Girls of the Hospital, are to see the Beds made, the Rooms cleaned, and every Thing in Order.

At half an Hour after five in Summer, and half an Hour after seven in Winter, the Boys are to be called over in the School-Room by the Master, i. e. the Husbandman, and from thence are to go with him to Work, either in the Garden, or other Place appointed for that Purpose, which is to be in the open Air, unless in extreme bad Weather.

Their Work is to be such bodily Labour as is suitable to their Age and Strength, and may be most likely to fit them for Agriculture, or the Sea-Service; such as Digging, Houghing, Plowing with Ploughs manageable without Horses, Hedging, cleaving Wood, carrying Burthens, and such-like Employments, for which Purpose proper Tools are to be provided.

Manufactures, in general, seem improper for the Employment of the Boys, being likely to incline them to a Way of Life not intended for them; if any are ever made Use of, they must be only such as are simple and laborious, as spinning and twisting Thread and small Ropes, or the like.

At eight in Summer, and nine in Winter, they are to breakfast; the elder Boys in the open Air, if the Weather permit, and to have an Hour allowed them for that Purpose; the younger may breakfast in the Eating-room, in the Presence of the Nurses of their Wards.

The rest of the Morning, till twelve, is to be spent in their Labour.

From twelve to two is allowed for Dinner and Rest; at two they are to return to their Work, and to work till six in Summer, and till it is dark in Winter.

From that Time, till Supper, Part of the Time is to be employed in learning to read; the rest the Children may play in the open Air, or School-Room.

Eight of the Clock in the Summer, and seven of the Clock in the Winter, are to be Hours of Supper, and at nine they are to go to Bed.

On Sundays, and other Days appointed for publick Worship, they are to be instructed in the Principles of Religion and Morality, to attend at Chapel; to be taught the Catechism used by the Church of England, or heard to read such Parts of the holy Scripture as are most suitable to their Understanding.

On Saturdays in the Afternoon, and on the Afternoon of some publick Holidays, they may be allowed to divert themselves with such Exercises cises as will increase their Strength, Activity, and Hardiness; but are never to play at Games of Chance, which are to be taught to be base and effeminate, and some Punishment of Infamy is to be fixed to this Offence.

The Girls are to be kept in Wards entirely separate from the Boys, to be dressed plain and neat, with Numbers visible in some Part of their Cloathing; to rise at the same Hour with the Boys, to clean the House, make the Beds and do the Household Business till the Hour of Breakfast; after that, to be employed in making Linen, or Cloaths, or such other Labour, as is suitable to their Age and Strength, or in some useful Manufactory.

They are always to be apart from the Boys, and to be attended by the Nurses of their Wards.

The Diet of the Children of the Hospital is to be plain and good of the Sort, and consist some Days of Meat, and others of Roots or Herbs, raised by the Children's Labour; their Drink Water, their Bread good, but coarse, and made of a different Sort of Corn, as Wheat, Rye, Barley, Pease, Oats, &c. occasionally, that they may be inured to these accidental Changes.

Strong Drink, Tea, Coffee, and Tobacco, are never to be permitted to be used by any Child in the Hospital, nor any Butter allowed them.

The Methods of placing them out to proper Employments.

The Children are to be put out, as soon as possible, to the Business for which they are appointed, which is to be done by Indenture between the Hospital and the Master who is to take the Child; which Indenture is to contain proper Covenants to secure the Child's Maintenance and good Usage during the Time of its Service, and to specify the Place where, or Ship's Name on Board which the Child is to serve, and to agree for the Return of the Child to the Hospital, in such Cases where it is so designed; these Agreements are to be made by the House-Committee, and approved by the General Committee, and sealed with the Seal of the Hospital, and the Counter-part by the Master.

It is hoped that, for the easier Disposal of the Boys, an Order may be obtained from the Lords of the Admiralty, to the Captains of his Majesty's Ships, to take a certain Number of Boys from Time to Time, according to the Rate of the Ships, and their Proportion of Men; and if a Captain of every Merchant-Ship, of an Hundred Tons, or upwards, was obliged, if required, to take one or more, it would greatly increase the Number of Seamen; and the Hospital keeping an Account of them, the Government, on any Emergency, would be directed where to find them.

The Governors and Inspectors will, by Enquiry, find in what Inland-Places Boys are wanting for Husbandry, and inform the Committee thereof; and the Girls are to be placed out as Household-Servants, or put out for a Term of Years, to be employed in the Linen, or other Manufactory, as soon as possible, but not without due Enquiry after the Character of the Persons who take them.

As it will be impossible for the Hospital in Town to contain the great Number of Children which will be under its Care, if properly encouraged; and as the Keeping of Children, near Town, will be much more expensive, than at a Distance from it; it will be extremely proper to send out little Colonies of them; the Boys to be employed and educated in the Manner beforementioned, under proper Masters, at or near Yarmouth, Lynn, Liverpool, Hull, &c. and the Girls to Manchester, Nottingham, Braintree, Devizes, &c. by which Means the good Effects of the Charity will be more visible, the Money collected for their Support more diffused, and the Masters and Mistresses will be more easily and readily supplied with Children, than they would be, if they were to send to London.

Of the Discharge of the Children from the Hospital.

The Children are only to be discharged in Manner hereafter mentioned, when they have attained the Age appointed by Act of Parliament, or when the Girls are married, or when claimed by their Parents.

When any Person shall claim a Child, they are to leave a Petition with the Secretary, directed to the Governors. The Secretary is to deliver it to the General Committee, who are to transmit it to the House-Committee, and to give Orders, that the Person petitioning attend them at a Day appointed, when the House-Committee shall enquire what Right they have to the Child, what are their Circumstances, whether they are able and willing to provide for the Child, and what Security they can give for that Purpose, and what Satisfaction they can make to the Hospital, for the Expence it has been put to, by the Maintenance of the Child; which Committee shall report the same to the next General Committee, with their Opinion thereupon.

If the Proposal made by the Parent, and the Report, is satisfactory to the General Committee, they shall then, and not before, order the Billets to be opened, and the Register searched; and, if they find the Child is living, may make an Order to deliver the Child to its Parent or Relation, which Order is to be delivered, when they have complied with the Terms required by the Committee, but not previous thereto. Every Person to whom a Child is so delivered, is to provide Cloathing for their Child in which it is to be dressed; and the Cloathing of the Hospital is to be left with the Steward.

When any Persons are discharged, for having attained their Age appointed for that Purpose, i. e. Twenty-four for Males, or twenty-one for Females, or when any of the Girls shall be married, with the Consent of the Committee; the General Committee, at their Discretion, may give them Cloaths, Money, or Necessaries, not exceeding the Value of ten Pounds. But, as it is to be hoped that the Males and Females will be able at those Years to get an honest Livelihood by their Industry, this Charity must be cautiously and rarely practised, except on Marriage of the Girls.

The Foundation of this Hospital was laid the 16th of September, 16th of George II, 1742.

In October following, the Method formerly used for the Taken-in Children having been found incon-convenient, by Reason of the Crowd which was occasioned by Persons striving who should first deliver in their Children,

The Committee resolved to take in Children by Ballot, in the Method which is used at present, and mentioned in the Rules of the Hospital.

On the 8th of January, 1743, the Committee desired Dr. Conyers, the Physician of the Hospital, to consider of the best Method for inoculating the Children then in the House; and, the Report made by him being very satisfactory, he was desired to proceed on such Inoculation as soon as possible; and several Children were accordingly inoculated, who had no bad Accident attending them: And, since that Time, all other Children, who have been returned to the Hospital without having had that Distemper in the natural Way, have been inoculated under the Care of the Physician and the Surgeon to the Hospital, which has been attended with great Success, without the Loss of one Child, or any ill Consequence.

The Governors thought it would be for the Benefit of the Charity to dine together annually, at their own Expence, and appointed the 4th of April, 1744, for the first annual Meeting on this Occasion; which Meeting has been since changed to the second Wednesday in May, being the Day appointed by the Charter for the Election of a Committee and Officers.

In October, 1745, one Wing of the Hospital being finished, the Committee ordered the Children to be kept in the new Hospital, and quitted the House in Hatton-garden.

The General Court, being informed that a Chapel was much wanted, and that several Ladies of the first Quality, and other Persons of Distinction and Fortune, were desirous to contribute to so good and necessary a Work, came to a Resolution to build one; and, by their Direction, the Committee opened a Subscription for that Purpose; whereupon they ordered the following Advertisement to be printed:

“The Governors of the said Hospital, being earnestly desirous that the Children under their Care should be early instructed in the Principles of Religion and Morality, and having no Place of publick Worship to which the Children and Servants of the Hospital can conveniently resort, have resolved to erect a Chapel adjoining to their Hospital in Lamb's-Conduit-Fields; and, that no Part of the Revenue of the said Hospital, which is or shall be given for the Support of the Children, may be diverted from that Use,

“In order to defray the Expence of erecting the said Chapel, they have opened a Subscription for that Purpose; and any Persons, willing to contribute to so good a Work, are desired to enter their Names and Places of Abode, and the Sums they subscribe, in the Subscription-Roll, which is kept by the Steward of the said Hospital; or, if they please to send to him, they shall be waited on with the said Subscription-Roll; and all Sums subscribed to this Purpose, or otherwise to the Charity of this Hospital, are to be paid to the Bank of England; or to Messrs. Hoare and Company, in Fleet-street; Messrs. Martine and Company, in

VOL II. NUMB. CX.

“Lombard-street; or Sir Joseph and Sir Thomas Hankey, in Fenchurch-street; Andrew Drummond, Esq; Banker, at Charing-cross; or to the Treasurer of the said Hospital. — This Subscription is now open, and it is hoped will be encouraged, that the Governors may be enabled to compleat that Building, which the Charity is in great Want of.”

Second Wednesday in May, 1746, the Governors, being desirous the Children should be educated by Persons well affected to our present happy Constitution, ordered, that all Persons employed by the Hospital should take the Oaths to the Government.

And soon after, finding the Children capable of doing some Work, the Committee ordered, that some of the Boys should be employed in winding Silk, and the Girls in making and mending Linen for the Boys and themselves, the Children in the Country, &c. all which is done by them, without putting any Part of it out.

February 25, 1746, at the Request of several Governors, a new Subscription-Roll was opened for the Benefit of the Hospital, which is on Parchment duly stamped, in the following Words:

We, whose Names are hereunto subscribed, do promise and agree, severally and respectively, and to and with each other of us, and to and with the Governors and Guardians of the said Hospital for the Maintenance and Education of exposed and deserted young Children, that our Executors, or Administrators, shall, immediately upon our Decease, pay to the said Governors and Guardians, for the Use of the said Hospital, the several Sums set by us against our respective Names.

Particular Care was taken, in erecting the Building, that it should be commodious, plain, and substantial, without any costly Decorations; but, soon after the Hospital became habitable, several eminent Masters of Painting, Sculpture, and other Arts, were pleased to contribute many elegant Ornaments, which are placed in the Hospital as Monuments of their Charity, and Abilities in their several Arts.

In the Court-Room they placed four capital Pictures, the Subjects being Parts of the Sacred History, suitable to the Place for which they were designed.

The first painted by Mr. Hayman, and taken from the second Chapter of Exodus, Verses 8 and 9; the Words of which are, The Maid went and called the Child's Mother, and Pharaoh's Daughter said unto her, Take this Child away and nurse it for me, and I will give you Wages. The ensuing Verse is

The Subject of the next Picture, viz. And the Child grew up, and she brought him to Pharaoh's Daughter, and he became her Son, and she called his Name Moses. This Picture is painted by Mr. Hogarth.

The third Picture is the History of Ismael, painted by Mr. Higmore; the Subject taken from the twenty-first Chapter of Genesis, Verse 17. And the Angel of the Lord called to Hagar out of Heaven, and said to her, What aileth thee, Hagar? Fear not, for God hath heard the Voice of the Lad where he is.

The fourth Picture was painted by Mr. Wills; its Subject taken from the eighteenth Chapter of St. Luke, Verſe 16. Jeſus ſaid, ſuffer little Children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of ſuch is the Kingdom of God.

On each Side of theſe Pictures are placed ſmaller Pictures in circular Frames, representing the moſt conſiderable Hospitals in and about London.

1. The View of the Hoſpital for expoſed Children.

2. The View of the Hoſpital at Hyde-Park Corner, called St. George's Hoſpital. Theſe two by Mr. Wilſon.

5. The View of Chelſea Hoſpital.

4. The View of Bethlem Hoſpital. Theſe two by Mr. Haytley.

5. The View of St. Thomas's Hoſpital.

6. The View of Greenwich Hoſpital.

7. The View of the Blue-coat Hoſpital. Theſe three by Whale.

8. The View of Sutton's Hoſpital, called the Charter-houſe.

Over the Chimney is placed a very curious Baſs-Relief, carved by Mr. Ryſbrack, and preſented by him, representing Children employed in Navigation and Huſbandry, being the Employment to which the Children of this Hoſpital are deſtined.

The other Ornaments of the Room were alſo given by ſeveral ingenious Workmen, who had been employed in the Building the Hoſpital, and were willing to contribute to it.

The Stucco Work was given by Mr. William Wilton. The Marble Chimney by Mr. Deval. The Table with its Frame, enriched with Carving, by Mr. John Sanderson; and the Glaſs by Mr. Hallat.

In the other Rooms of the Hoſpital are the Pictures of ſeveral Governors and Benefactors, viz. Mr. Thomas Coram, by Mr. Hogarth; Mr. Milner and Mr. Jacobſon, by Mr. Hudſon; Dr. Mead, by Mr. Ramſey, and Mr. Emerton, by Mr. Highmore.

And in the Dining-Room is a large, and beautiful Sea-Piece, representing the Engliſh Fleet in the Downs, by Mr. Monamy.

At the ſame Time alſo were given by Mr. Ives four Shields cut in Lead of good Workmanſhip, which were placed over the Charity Boxes with proper Inſcriptions thereon; and ſeveral other eminent Artiſts promiſed to contribute their Labours to the further Ornamenting the Hoſpital and Chapel. For which they were returned the Thanks of the Corporation, and an Inſcription was ordered to be put up in the Hoſpital, to inform the Publick, that thoſe Ornaments of the Hoſpital were Benefactions of the ſeveral Artiſts, whoſe Names were wrote thereon; it being a fixed, and, as is hoped, an unalterable Reſolution of the Governors, that no Part of the Money given to this Hoſpital be expended in any thing, but what is uſeful and neceſſary to answer the good Intentions of the Benefactors.

About the ſame Time the Earl Marſhal of England was pleaſed to honour the Corporation with a Grant of a Coat of Arms; the Kings at Arms, and Officers of the Heralds Office, being ſo charitable as to remit all the Fees due, to them on that Occaſion.

Amongſt other conſiderable Benefactions, which have been contributed to this Hoſpital and to the Publick by its Means, is to be eſteemed a Letter from Dr. Cadogan, a Phyſician at Briſtol, which was communicated to the Governors, giving Inſtructions for the Nurſing and Management of Children from their Birth to three Years of Age; which Letter has been ſince published, with his Permiſſion, by Order of the Committee, by J. Roberts in Warwick-lane, and contains many natural and uſeful Obſervations, and is a Proof of the Advantage which this Inſtitution may be of by making and communicating further Inquiries into the proper Method of preſerving and bringing up Children.

On the firſt of May 1747, the firſt Stone of the Chapel was laid in the Preſence of a numerous Aſſembly of Perſons of Diſtinction; on which Stone was a Copper-Plate with an Inſcription mentioning the Time when it was laid, and a large Collection was made for carrying on that neceſſary Work.

In November 1748, the Governors, obſerving that the Manufacture of Silk was too effeminate for the larger Boys, reſolved that the Boys ſhould be employed in the open Air, and inured to the Change of Weather; and therefore appointed a Committee, and cauſed Adverſements to be published to make proper Inquiries what Manufactures would be moſt ſuitable for this Purpoſe; which Committee, having received and examined the ſeveral Propoſals made to them, reported that the Manufacturing of Hemp and Flax into Twine, ſmall Cordage Lines, and alſo into Fiſhing and other Nets, was the moſt proper Manufacture for the Employment of the Boys: In Purſuance of which the general Committee reſolved that a Trial be made in employing the Boys in the Manufacturing of Hemp as recommended, being laborious and to be performed in the Air, and in every Reſpect conſiſtent with their Deſtination to Navigation and Huſbandry; and alſo in employing them in the Garden and Buſineſs of the Houſe, according to their Strength and Capacity.

And that the Girls ſhould be inſtructed and employed, in all Sorts of Houſhold Work, in the Kitchen, Laundry, and Chambers, to make them fit for Service; and alſo in Sewing, Knitting, and Spinning; and, if more than ſufficient for theſe Purpoſes, to be employed in winding Silk or making Nets.

On the 29th of March 1749, the General Court, being informed of the Increate of Benefactions to this Charity, and of the Number of Children, and that it was proper the Boys ſhould be kept ſeparate from the Girls, gave Directions for building the other Wing of the Hoſpital, and referred it to the Committee, to carry on that Work as ſoon as poſſible; the Benefactions and Legacies given appear by Tables placed in the great Room of the Hoſpital.

The annual Subscription appears by a Book in the Cuſtody of the Steward; but the Sums hitherto given are very deficient to answer the intended Extenſiveness of this Charity. The good Conſequences which this Nation may derive from it, are ſo apparent that it is to be hoped ſuch Encouragement will be given to it, that this Hoſpital may ſoon be a Receptacle to all ſuch poor Children as ſhall be brought to it.

There

St. George's Hospital

There have already been more than eleven hundred Children received and maintained by this Corporation; but Experience has shewn, that Objects for this Charity are very numerous, and that many thousand Lives may be preserved for the Benefit of their Country, if Persons of Fortune shall think proper to extend their Compassion and publick Spirit to so desirable a Purpose.

French Hospital.

This Hospital, which is situate contiguous to the Pest-house on the South, in the Parish of St. Luke, was erected in the Year 1717, and the Governors thereof, by Letters Patent of the 4th of King George I. Anno 1718, were constituted a Body Politick and Corporate, by the Appellation of The Governor and Directors of the Hospital for the poor French Protestants, and their Descendants, residing in Great-Britain.

This Hospital, at present, contains two hundred and twenty poor helpless Men and Women, one hundred and forty-six whereof, who are upon the Foundation, are plentifully supplied with all the Necessaries of Life, at the Expence of the Hospital; but the other seventy-four are paid for by their Friends, at the Rate of nine Pounds per Annum each. This Charity also extends to Lunatics, for whose Accommodation a large Infirmary is provided.

To this Foundation belongs a Chaplain, Physician, Surgeon, and other proper Officers, who carefully attend the Pensioners, and administer to their several Necessities.

French Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which is situate in Black-Eagle-street, Spittlefields, contains convenient Apartments for forty-five poor Men and Women, who are allowed two Shillings and three Pence, and a Bushel of Coals each, Weekly, and Apparel every other Year.

The Society whereby this House is supported, belongs to the French Churches in Threadneedle and Black-Eagle Streets, and is one of the most generous and charitable whatsoever, as will appear by the following Inscription round a large Pewter Dish, in the Possession of Mr. Henry Guinand, an eminent French Merchant in Little St. Helen's, (then Deacon of the Church) who collected the great under-mentioned Sum in the aforesaid Dish in Bank Notes, &c.

La Collecte qui s'est faite a l'Eglise Françoise de Londres, & a celle de l'Hopital dans Black-Eagle-street, pour les Pauvres de la dite Eglise, le 10 Mars 1727-28, a produit l. 1248. 7. 6.

That is: The Collection that was made in the French Church of London, and that of the Hospital in Black-Eagle-street, for the Poor of the said Churches, in the Year 1727-28, amounted to twelve hundred and forty-eight Pounds seven Shillings and six Pence.

French-house of Charity.

This House in Spittlefields, commonly called the Soup, was erected about sixty Years ago, for the Relief of necessitous Families, whose Number, in the Year 1733, amounted to two hundred and ninety-six. This House, which is supported by the charitable Benefactions and Contributions of well-disposed Persons, is under the Direction of a certain Number of Governors and Governesses, who at first supplied the Poor under their Care with Money; but many of them, without the least Regard to their distressed Families, having wickedly disposed of the Money in Brandy, Tobacco, &c. 'twas by the Managers judged convenient, that in lieu of Money, such poor Families should for the future be relieved with Provisions, which are distributed among them according to their several Necessities, viz. Some receiving two Portions per Week; others three, or four, and the most necessitous six: Each Portion consists of a Pan of good Broth, mixed with six Ounces of Bread, half a Pound of Meat, and the same Weight of good Bread. The Charge of this Charity amounts to about five hundred Pounds per Annum.

Fuller's Alms-house.

This House, situate in Old-street at Hoxton, was founded in the Year 1592, pursuant to the Will of Judge Fuller, for the Reception of twelve poor Women; who have an Allowance of four Pounds per Annum, and three Bushels of Coals each.

Fuller's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which is situate at Mile-end, was likewise founded in the Year 1592, pursuant to the Will of the said Judge, for the Accommodation of twelve antient poor Men of Stepney Parish; for whose Relief he endowed the same with Lands in Lincolnshire, to the Amount of fifty Pounds per Annum.

Gallard's Alms-house.

This House, which stands in Golden-lane, was founded by Richard Gallard of Islington, Esq; for the Habitation of thirteen poor Men and Women; who were to receive only two Pence per Week each, and a Load of Charcoal amongst them yearly. By the small Allowance, this House must be of a very old Foundation; which is in some measure confirmed by my Author, who says, that the Founder left fair Lands in Islington, for the Support of his Alms-house.

Garret's Alms-house.

This House, which is situate in Porter's-fields in the Liberty of Norton-Falgate, was founded by Nicholas Garret, Esq; Citizen and Weaver, in the Year 1729, for the Accommodation of six poor Members of his Company; who have an Allowance of eight Pounds, a Chaldron of Coals, and one Dozen and a half of Candles each, yearly.

St. George's Hospital.

An Account of the Proceedings of the Governors of St. George's Hospital near Hyde Park Corner, from its first Institution, October 19, 1733, to December 26, 1753.

By Order of the General Board, Friday the 15th of February, 1754.

The Governors of St. George's Hospital think themselves obliged in Justice to their Subscribers and Benefactors, to publish an Abstract of their Accounts to the twenty-sixth Day of December last inclusive, together with a short State of their Proceedings, that the Publick may judge of the Application of their Bounty, and the extensive good Consequence of it.

This

This Undertaking was set on Foot, soon after Michaelmas 1733, by some Gentlemen who were before concerned in a Charity of the like kind, in the lower Part of Westminster. They judged this House convenient for their Purpose on Account of its Air, Situation, and Nearness to Town, procured a Lease of it, and opened a Subscription for carrying on the Charity here. The Subscription increased so fast, that on the 19th of October they were formed into a regular Society, and actually began to receive Patients on the first of January following.

To these Purposes here are admitted all such Poor, Sick, and Lame, being recommended according to the Rules following, as the Hospital will contain. They are supplied with Advice, Medicine, Diet, Washing, Lodging, and some of the Miserable with Cloaths also. The Physicians visit their Patients on Mondays and Fridays, and on all intermediate Days, whenever Occasion requires; and the Surgeons every Day: And on every Friday Morning there is a general Consultation of all the Physicians and Surgeons. No Security for their Burial is required; nor any Money, Gift, or Reward, taken of them or their Friends, on any Account whatsoever. Those who die, if their Friends are unable, are buried at the Charge of the Society. And the Money, collected in the Poor's Box at the Door, is kept as a separate Fund for furnishing those with some little Sum of Money, whose Distance from their Habitations, or other particular Necessities, require it.

The Apothecaries, who are Governors, are appointed to attend by Rotation as Visitors, to see that the Apothecary of the House takes due Care of the Medicines and Patients. Two Visitors are chosen every Week out of the Subscribers, to attend daily, and take Care by examining of the Provision and Patients, that the Orders of the Society are punctually observed, that the Patients are treated in every Thing with Order and Tenderneſs, and to make a Report in Writing of their Observation.

Prayers are read daily to the Patients. A Sermon is preached every Sunday, the Communion is administered every Month, and the Chaplain attends at other Times to catechize, and to perform other religious Offices, as often as their Cases require; and, when the Patients are discharged, religious Tracts are given to each of them for their farther Edification.

A Board of Governors meet every Wednesday Morning, to do the current Business of the Hospital, to receive and examine the Reports of the Visitors, to discharge and admit Patients, to receive the Complaints and Proposals of all Persons, and to prepare such Matters as are proper for the Consideration of general Boards. A general Board of the Governors meet regularly five Times a Year.

The Governors are in Number upwards of three Hundred. No Person receiving Salary, Fee, or Reward, from the Hospital, is capable of being a Governor: But every other Gentleman subscribing five Pounds a Year or upwards, or giving one Benefaction of fifty Pounds, although he be not an annual Subscriber, is thereupon put in Nomination to be a Governor, and at the first general Court, which is held one Month afterwards, is accordingly balloted for by the Governors.

The Contributors are desired to send their Subscriptions to the Treasurers at the weekly Board, held every Wednesday Morning in the Hospital. And, in order to supply the current Expence of this Charity, the Subscribers are requested to continue to pay their yearly Subscriptions in Advance.

The Treasurers are Lieut. Col. Joseph Hudson and Mr. Richard Aspinwall.

All Contributors are desired to take Notice.

I. That no Person is to be admitted a Patient, except in Cases of Accidents, without a Note from a Governor or Contributor, specifying the Name and Place of Abode of such Patient, and that he or she is a proper Object of this Charity.

II. That all Recommendations are to be delivered every Wednesday Morning, by nine of the Clock.

III. That, in case any Out-Patients shall neglect coming for two Weeks successively on the Day and Hour they are ordered to attend, such Out-Patients shall be discharged for Irregularity, except they have had Leave from their Physician.

IV. No Person discharged for Irregularity is to be ever again admitted into the Hospital, upon any Recommendation whatsoever.

V. That no Patient is to be suffered to go out of the Hospital without Leave in Writing; and that, to avoid Offence, no Leave is to be given to any Patient to go into St. James's Park, or the Green Park, called Constitution-hill, upon any Pretence whatsoever.

VI. That no Governor, Officer, or Servant, must at any Time presume, on Pain of Expulsion, to take of any Tradesman, Patient, or other Person, any Fee, Reward, or Gratification of any kind, directly or indirectly, for any Service done, or to be done, on Account of this Hospital.

VII. That no Person, subscribing less than two Guineas a Year, be permitted to recommend more than two In-Patients in the Year.

VIII. And that, when there is not Room for all the Patients recommended at one Time to be received into the Hospital, those are taken in whose Admission the Board are of Opinion will most effectually answer the End of the Charity: And the rest, if proper Objects, are admitted Out-Patients, till there is Room for them in the Hospital.

N. B. That most consumptive and asthmatick Cases are more capable of Relief, as Out-Patients, than as In-Patients.

An Account of the Patients for the Year 1753

Patients discharged from St. George's Hospital, since its first Receiving of Patients on the first of January 1733, to the 27th of December 1752, sixty thousand one hundred and eighty-eight.

Patients in the House the 27th of December 1732, two hundred and seventy-three.

Out-Patients on the Books at the same Time, six hundred and forty-five.

In all, sixty-one thousand one hundred and six.

Regist.

Nicholas Gibson, Esq; some Time Sheriff of this City, erected this Alms-house and School, (and not, according to Stow, by Avice, his Wife) at Ratcliff, in the Year 1537, for the Reception of fourteen poor Widows, seven whereof to be of Stepney Parish, and the other seven of the Company of Coopers; for the Support of which, and to the Use of his Will, on the 23d of September, Anno 1540, he conveyed his whole Estate to Avice, his Wife; which she, by the Name of Knivet, (being then Wife to Sir Andrew Knivet) surrendered, with all the Lands thereunto belonging, on the 20th of February, Anno 1553, in Trust to the Company of Coopers. The Pensioners to have twenty-six Shillings and eight Pence per Annum each; the Schoolmaster, a Salary of ten Pounds; and an Usher, six Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence. But the Estate wherewith this Foundation is endowed, being vastly improved, the Company have of late increased the Pensions to five Pounds, and thirty Bushels of Coals yearly, with a Bounty of ten Shillings each at Christmas; and the Schoolmaster's Salary, to twenty-three Pounds six Shillings and eight Pence; and the Ushers, to nine Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence.

Grey-coat Hospital.

In the Year 1698, a Charity-school was erected in the Parish of St. Margaret, Westminster, for the Education of poor Children, by the Name of The Grey-coat School, from the Colour of the Childrens Cloaths: The Trustees whereof by charitable Benefactions, being greatly encouraged to proceed in so laudable an Undertaking, in the Year 1701, not only considerably increased the Number of Children therein, but likewise plentifully supplied them with all the Necessaries of Life, in a large and commodious Building near Tothill-fields; wherein, besides their being taught and instructed in the Principles of Religion, they are employed in Spinning, Knitting, Sewing, &c. to inure them early to Industry; and having attained the necessary Qualifications at School, they are put out Apprentices.

Chart.
Q. Anne.

For the Encouragement of so great an Undertaking, Queen Anne, on the tenth of April, Anno 1706, did, by her Letters Patent, constitute the Trustees of this School a Body Politick and Corporate, by the Name of The Governors of the Grey-coat Hospital in Tothill-fields, of the Royal Foundation of Queen Anne. By which Name to have perpetual Succession, to sue and be sued, to elect Governors in the room of those deceased, and to receive and purchase Lands, Tenements, &c. in Mortmain, to the yearly Amount of two thousand Pounds, clear of Reprizes; and to do all other Acts and Things relating to the said Corporation, in as ample Manner, as any other Body Politick and Corporate within the Kingdom.

This Hospital in the Year 1727, was in so flourishing a Condition, that it contained eighty Boys, and fifty Girls; in which Year the Charge of all its Disbursements amounted to fourteen hundred and fifty-seven Pounds seven Shillings and six Pence.

Green-coat Hospital.

Divers of the Inhabitants of the City of
No. 110.

Westminster having resolved to settle an House, or Hospital, like unto that of Christ's in the City of London, where poor Orphans might not only be maintained with all the Necessaries of Life, but likewise, for their future Good, and that of the Publick, be instructed in Manual Arts; wherefore, upon their humble Application to King Charles I. he, by his Letters Patent of the 15th of November, Anno 1633, did constitute them a Body Politick and Corporate, by the Appellation of The Governors of the Hospital of St. Margaret's, Westminster, of the Foundation of King Charles; to consist of twenty Governors, Inhabitants of the said City, to have perpetual Succession, with a Right of electing Governors, for supplying Vacancies; and to purchase Lands, Tenements, &c. in Mortmain, to the Value of five hundred Pounds per Annum.

Pat. 15.
Char. 1.

But the Civil War breaking out soon after, it did in a manner quash that noble Design; but by the charitable Benefactions of King Charles II. and others, the Estate thereunto belonging at present, amounts to above three hundred Pounds per Annum. But by Fines paid to the Dean and Chapter (it being chiefly Church-lands) of Westminster, on the renewing of Leases, the annual Income is thereby considerably reduced; however, by casual Donations, the Account of this Hospital (at present containing twenty Boys) stood thus in the Year 1727: Receipts, 328 l. 19 s. Disbursements, 300 l. 3 s. 2 d.

Gresham's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which is situate in Broad-street, on the North Side of Gresham College; was founded by Sir Thomas Gresham, Anno 1575, for eight poor Men; the Trust whereof he committed to the Lord-Mayor and Commonalty of London; who annually pay the said poor Men six Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence each, a Load of Coals yearly, and a Gown every other Year.

Graham's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which stands in Crown-street, alias Hog-lane, Soho, was founded in the Year 1686, by Mrs. Graham, for four decayed Clergymens Widows, their Maiden Daughters, or other Gentlewomen; who have handsome Apartments, and ten Pounds per Annum each; and for Fewel, and a Servant to attend them, ten Pounds yearly.

Guy's Hospital.

Thomas Guy, Esq; Son of Thomas Guy, Lighterman and Coal-monger in Fair-street, Horsley-down, in the Parish of St. Olave Southwark, was born in the North-East Corner-House of Pritchard's-alley, (two Doors East of St. John's Church-yard) in the said Street. Thomas, the Father, who was an Anabaptist, dying young, left a Widow and three Children, (the eldest of whom, our Founder, was then but eight Years of Age) who returned to Tamworth, the Place of her Nativity, in the County of Stafford, where she married soon after. However she took care to have her Children carefully educated, and at a proper Age put her Son Thomas Apprentice to John Clarke, the younger, (a Binder and Seller of Books in Mercers-ball Porch in Cheapside) on the 3d of September, Anno 1660, for the Term of eight Years. He was admitted a Freeman of the Stationers Company, on the 7th of October, Anno 1668, and of the City, the 14th of the same Month and Year; and on the 6th of October, Anno 1673, received into the Livery of the said Company.

Mr. Guy, being out of his Apprenticeship, set up his Trade, in the little Corner-House betwixt Cornhill and Lombard-street, with a Stock of about two hundred Pounds. At which Time, the English Bibles printed in this Kingdom being very bad, both in the Letter and Paper, occasioned divers of the Bookfellers of this City to encourage the Printing thereof in Holland, with curious Types, and fine Paper; and imported vast Numbers of the same, to their no small Advantage. Mr. Guy, soon coming acquainted with this profitable Commerce, became a large Dealer thereing. But this Trade proving very detrimental to the King's Printer, all Ways and Means were devised to quash the same; which being vigorously put in Execution, the Bookfellers, by frequent Seizures and Prosecutions, became so great Sufferers, that they judged a farther Pursuit thereof inconsistent with their Interest. Wherefore our Founder contracted with the University of Oxford, for their Privilege to print Bibles; and having furnished himself with Types from Holland, carried on a very great Trade in Bibles for divers Years, to his very great Advantage.

Some Time after, England being engaged in an expensive War against France, the poor Seamen on board the Royal Navy, for many Years, instead of Money received Tickets for their Pay; which those necessitous, but very useful Men, were obliged to dispose of at thirty, forty, and sometimes fifty in the hundred Discount. Mr. Guy, discovering the Sweets of this Traffick, became an early Dealer therein, as well as in other Government Securities; by which, and his Trade, he acquired a very great Estate, insomuch, that in the Year 1710, when the Debt of the Navy was increased to divers Millions, an Act of Parliament was made, to provide for the Payment of that and other Sums due from the Government, by erecting the South Sea Company; into which the Creditors of divers Branches of the National Debt were impowered to subscribe the several Sums due to them from the Publick; among whom, Mr. Guy, being possessed of such Securities to the Amount of many thousands of Pounds, subscribed the same into the said South Sea Company; for which he and the rest of the Subscribers were to receive an annual Interest of six per Cent. upon their respective Subscriptions, till the same were discharged by Parliament.

In the Year 1720, Mr. Guy was possessed of forty-five thousand and five hundred Pounds of the South Sea Stock, which gradually arose to above one thousand and fifty Pounds; when he wisely considering, that the great Rise of the Stock was owing to the iniquitous Management of a few, prudently began to sell out his Stock, at about three hundred, and continued selling till it arose to about six hundred, when he disposed of the last of his Property in the said Company.

This old Batchelor, in the seventy-sixth Year of his Age, being thus possessed of a vast Estate, determined to found an Hospital for the Cure of sick and impotent Persons; to which End he took of the President and Governors of St. Thomas's Hospital, in Southwark, a Lease of a Piece of Ground opposite the said Hospital, for the Term of nine-hundred and ninety-nine Years, at a Ground-rent of thirty Pounds per Annum. This Spot of Ground being covered with a Number of small Houses inhabited by poor People, the same were pulled down in the Year 1721, and the Foundation of the intended Hospital laid in the Spring following; the Building whereof was carried on with such Expedition, that the Fabrick was roofed before the Death of the Founder, which happened on the 27th of December 1724, in the 80th Year of his Age.

The Charge of erecting and furnishing this Hospital amounted to the Sum of eighteen thousand seven hundred and ninety-three Pounds sixteen Shillings and a Penny; and the Sum left to endow the same, to two hundred and nineteen thousand four hundred and ninety-nine Pounds and four-pence: Together, 238292 l. 16 s. 5*d.* Besides, the Founder bequeathed to the President and Governors of Christ's Hospital, a perpetual Annuity of four hundred Pounds, for taking into the said Hospital four Children yearly, at the Nomination of the Governors of his Hospital. To his poor aged Relations he gave Annuities during Life, to the Amount of eight hundred and seventy Pounds; and amongst his younger Relations and Executors, the Sum of seventy-five thousand five hundred and eighty-nine Pounds; with the Sum of one thousand Pounds, for discharging poor Prisoners, within the City of London and Counties of Middlesex and Surrey, who could be released for the Sum of five Pounds. By which Sum of 1000 l. and the good Management of his Executors, there were above six hundred poor Persons set at Liberty, from the several Prisons within the Bill of Mortality.

He likewise erected an Alms-house, with a Library, in Tamworth, for fourteen poor Men and Women; to whom he allowed certain Pensions during Life, and at his Death, towards their future Support, and the putting out Children Apprentices, &c. he bequeathed a perpetual annual Sum of one hundred and twenty-five Pounds.

In the Year 1707, Mr. Guy built and furnished, at his own Expence, three Wards, on the North Side of the outer Court of St. Thomas's Hospital, and gave to the same one hundred Pounds per Annum, for eleven Years immediately preceding the Foundation of his Hospital. And some Time before his Death, he removed the Frontispiece of the said Hospital of St. Thomas, which stood over the Gate-way in the Borough, and erected the same in the Place where it at present stands, fronting the Street; and having enlarged the Gate-way, rebuilt the two large Houses on the Sides thereof, and erected the stately Iron Gate between them; all at the Expence of about three thousand Pounds. To many of his Relations he gave stated Allowances of ten, or twenty Pounds per Annum; and to others, Money to advance them in the World. So, upon the whole, it may be justly said, that he never had his Fellow in this Kingdom, not perhaps in any other, for such great and extensive Acts of Benevolence and Charity.

Upon the Death of Mr. Guy, his Executors found in his Iron Chest one thousand Guineas, which which they imagined were put there to defray the Expence of his Funeral; wherefore they caused him to be buried in a very pompous Manner; at whose Burial there were no less than forty Coaches, with six Horses each.

Soon after Mr. Guy's Decease, his Executors, pursuant to his Will, apply'd to Parliament, to get themselves and fifty-one other Gentlemen (nominated by the Founder) to be incorporated Governors of his intended Hospital; which being the greatest and most noble Foundation that ever was devised by a British, or perhaps any other Subject, I shall therefore insert a compendious Abstract of the Act of Parliament, made in the Eleventh of King George the First, Anno 1725, for incorporating the Governors thereof; wherein the principal Parts of the Founder's Will are recited.

Act. Parl.
11 G. I. "Whereas Thomas Guy of London, Esq; (who caused to be erected in the Parish of St. Thomas in the Borough of Southwark, a magnificent Edifice, consisting of two spacious Squares, with proper Offices thereunto belonging) dy'd on the 27th Day of December, Anno 1724, having made his last Will and Testament, dated the fourth of the preceding Month of September; wherein he devised the Residue of his Estate, after the Payment of his Debts, Legacies, and Funeral Charges, (which residuary Part, being by his Executors computed at above two hundred thousand Pounds) unto Sir Gregory Page, Bart. Charles Joy, William Clayton, Thomas Hollis, John Cenrick, John Lade, Richard Mead, Moses Raper, and John Sprint, Esquires; whom he appointed Executors of his said Will and Testament, (till an Act of Incorporation could be obtained) with a Power to finish and furnish the Structure by him begun for his intended Hospital, (out of the Profits arising from his Estate) for the Reception and Relief of upwards of four hundred sick and diseased poor Objects; besides twenty Lunatics, who are to be provided for in a separate Hospital; and all of whom are to be provided with proper Diet, and other Necessaries, (contributory to the Cure of the unfortunate Patients) during Life, or the Discretion of his Executors;" whom the Founder, by his said Will, invested with a Power of discharging, or continuing such sick and distempered Persons in his intended Hospital, according to their Discretion; and not, as some have vainly imagined, that he designed his Hospital for Incurables: For the obviating of which, Mr. Guy, by proper Instructions to his Executors, declared, that they should in all things, as near as possible, regulate his intended Hospital according to the Practices of that of St. Thomas. "And for the better managing the Affairs of his said intended Hospital, and perpetuating the Charity by him designed, he intreated his Executors, immediately after his Death, to endeavour by Letters Patent, or Act of Parliament, to get themselves, and the fifty-one Gentlemen, whom he had nominated as Governors, to be constituted a Body Politick and Corporate, of perpetual Succession, for the effectual settling and applying the residuary Part of his Estate: And for the good Government of the said intended Hospital, a President, Treasurer, and other Officers, as shall be deemed necessary, be elected and admitted into such Offices, as to his Majesty, or the Legislature, shall seem proper; and by such

Name, or Names, to have perpetual Succession, and a common Seal, for the necessary Affairs of the intended Corporation; with a Power to take and dispose of the residuary Part of the said Estate, and with the Money arising therefrom, to purchase Lands, Messuages, or other Estates of Inheritance, to the like, or the yearly Value, as to his Majesty, or the Legislature shall seem convenient; with a Power to sue, implead and answer, and to be sued, impleaded and answered, in any Court of Record, or elsewhere, with such Privileges in Law, as shall be thought fit to be granted.

"He further desired, that his Executors and Trustees should, by an humble Application to his Majesty, or the Legislature, endeavour to obtain, by Letters Patent, or Act of Parliament, that a Committee be appointed of one and twenty Members of the intended Corporation, for the more immediate Dispatch of Affairs belonging to the same; and that seven of the said Committee may be annually left out, and the like Number of Members nominated by the Committee to supply their Places, be chosen by a general Court of the Governors of his intended Hospital: And that by the incorporating Power it be provided, that the Transactions of the said Committee be subject to the Inspection and Control of a general Court of Governors; who, on this and all other Occasions, are to be summoned by the President, or Treasurer of such Corporation.

"And the said Testator further declared, that his Executors and Trustees, should, after the Manner aforesaid, endeavour to obtain, that by such an incorporating Power Sir Gregory Page, Bart. be appointed the first President; Charles Joy, Esq; the first Treasurer; and the other Gentlemen nominated by him (the Founder) the first Committee. And that by the said Power of Incorporation it be granted, that the future Elections of President, Treasurer, Physicians, Surgeons, Clerk, Solicitor and Chaplain, be in the general Court of Governors of the intended Corporation; who shall likewise have the Right of removing all such Officers at Pleasure. And, that the Election of an Apothecary, Steward, Butler, Matron, Cook, Sisters, &c. be vested in the Committee aforesaid.

"And the said Founder further declared, that as soon as the said Incorporation should be obtained, that his Executors should pay, assign, and convey to them all the residuary Part of his Estate to the Use of his Will; and that the President, Treasurer, Committee and Governors, to be empowered as aforesaid, do, with all possible Convenience, lay out the residuary Part of his personal Estate in the Purchase of Lands, Messuages, or other Estates of Inheritance, for a perpetual Provision, Maintenance and Cure of poor Objects to be entertained in the said intended Hospital, and all necessary Expences relating to the same.

"And the said Testator further declared, That if the Profits rising from the residuary Part of his Estate, should amount to more than is sufficient for maintaining the above mentioned Number of poor, sick and impotent Persons, and other necessary Charges about the said intended Hospital; then, and in such Case, the President, Treasurer and Governors, are empowered to dispose of such Surplusage, for the Relief of such sick, impotent impotent and poor distressed Persons, as they shall judge the greatest Objects of Commiseration, or to other charitable Uses, according to their Discretion.

“Whereupon it was by Parliament enacted, (nemine contradicente) That the aforesaid nine Executors, and fifty-one Gentlemen nominated in the Will of the Founder, be a Body Politick and Corporate, by the Name of The President and Governors of the Hospital, founded at the sole Cost and Charges of Thomas Guy, Esquire; and by such Name to have perpetual Succession, and a common Seal, with Power to alter and change the same at Discretion. And that they and their Successors shall have, receive, and possess the Estates real and personal of the late Thomas Guy, to be vested in them, for the Purposes mentioned in the said Will. And that they and their Successors, by the Name aforesaid, be capable in Law, by the said real, or personal Estate, or the Produce thereof, to purchase in Perpetuity, or for any Term of Years, any other Estate whatsoever, not exceeding twelve thousand Pounds per Annum, above Reprizes; and to sell, exchange, or lease out the same, as they shall see convenient: And by the Name aforesaid to sue, implead and answer, and to be sued, impleaded and answered, in any Court of Record, or elsewhere; and to transact all Affairs relating to the Premises, according to the said Will.

“And it is further enacted, That there be one President, one Treasurer, and twenty-one Committees of the said intended Corporation, to consist of the Persons nominated in the Will of the said Testator; who shall have the Management of the whole Estate devised by the Founder, and vested in the Corporation for the Support of his Hospital.

“And it is likewise enacted, that the President and Treasurer shall continue during their Lives, or until they be respectively removed by a general Court of the said Corporation, convened for that Purpose by the President, Treasurer, or seven of the said Committees, or until they resign; and in case of either, the Vacancy to be supplied by a Member of the Corporation, to be elected at a general Court of the Governors, within forty Days after such Removal, Resignation, or Death. But the Committee of one and twenty to continue only for one Year; seven whereof being annually to be left out, seven other Members are to be yearly elected at a general Court, to supply their respective Places.

“And it is also further enacted, That the President, or Treasurer, with any seven, or more of the said Committee legally assembled, shall be deemed a full Court of Committees; who shall have Power, as aforesaid, to sell, demise, or otherwise dispose of, all, or any Part of the above-mentioned Estate vested in the said Corporation; provided that all the Money arising by such Sale, or Sales, be forthwith reinvested in some other Purchase of Lands of Inheritance for the Use of the said Corporation, not exceeding, as aforesaid, the yearly Rent of twelve thousand Pounds, clear of Reprizes.

“And for the more effectual transacting the Affairs of the said Corporation, the said Committee are impowered to chuse, and at their Pleasure to remove, all Officers and Servants to be employed in the said intended Hospital, (other than Physicians, Surgeons, Clerk and Chaplain, that are elected by the general Court) and to appoint such Salaries, or other Rewards, for their respective Services, as they shall judge proper; and to take in such poor, sick and maimed Persons under their Care, as they shall judge Objects of Compassion; and to make such Provision for their Maintenance and Cure, as they shall think necessary; and to manage and determine all Affairs by themselves, or their Deputies, as are necessary for the carrying on so great and good a Work. Provided nevertheless, that the Transactions and Accounts of the said President, Treasurer and Committees, and Persons deputed by them, be subject to the Inspection and Control of such Governors, as shall by the Laws of the Corporation be appointed for that Purpose. And to the Intent, that there never may be wanting a sufficient Number of Governors, for perpetuating the Succession of the said Corporation, and for supplying the several Places of President, Treasurer and Committees,

“It is further enacted, That it shall be lawful for a Court of Committees of the said Corporation, from Time to Time, to chuse a Person, or Persons, to be Governor, or Governors, for a continual Supply of Vacancies, so as the Number of Governors never exceed sixty. And in case it should hereafter happen, that the Number of Governors exceed not forty; then and in such Case, it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, Lord Keeper, or Commissioners of the Great Seal, Lords Chief Justices of the King's Bench and Common Pleas, and Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, or any two of them, at the Request of five, or more of the Governors, as shall make up the Number of fifty.

“It is also further enacted, That it shall be lawful for the President and Governors, in a general Court assembled, to make By-laws, for the better Government of the said Corporation; so that such Ordinances be not repugnant to the Laws of the Kingdom. And that at all general Courts, and those of Committees, the President and Treasurer for the Time being, shall not only act and vote as Members of the same; but likewise, in case of an Equality of Votes, the said President, or in his Absence the Treasurer, to have the casting Vote. And it shall be lawful for the said President and Governors, to erect a Statue or Statutes, and Monument, or Monuments, for perpetuating the Memory of the generous and charitable Actions of the said Thomas Guy; provided the Expence thereof do not exceed the Sum of two thousand Pounds. And this, by the Authority aforesaid, is to be deemed a publick Act, and as such to be observed in all Courts of Justice, and elsewhere; and to be given in Evidence in the Trial of any Cause whatsoever, without special Pleading of the same.”

This Corporation was no sooner established by Parliament, than the President and Governors set heartily about the Work, by finishing and furnishing the Hospital, chusing their Officers and Servants, and taking in Patients; whose Number at first, to fulfil the Will of the Founder, amounted to four hundred and two. And for the more effectual effectual preventing, the inferior Servants of the Hospital from preying upon poor Patients, or their Friends, have granted them such considerable Salaries, that they can handsomely subsist upon their Wages, without imposing upon any Person, as will appear by the following Account:

The Number of Patients in this Hospital on the 27th of July, Anno 1738, amounted to four hundred and six; that of the Out-Patients, to sixteen; and the Sum Total disbursed on account of the House in the Year 1737, to seven thousand nine hundred and seventy-eight Pounds fourteen Shillings and one Penny.

To this Hospital, as aforesaid, belong sixty Governors; who chuse the several Officers and Servants above-specified. To which I shall add, that the House contains twelve Wards, and four hundred and thirty-five Beds.

A Chapel, divers Houses and Offices being still wanting for the Use of this Hospital, the Governors have lately taken a Lease of an additional Spot of Ground, whereon to erect a Square; for which, with the former, they annually pay to St. Thomas's Hospital the Sum of ninety Pounds.

No. 110.

As by what has been said it appears; that Mr. Guy was a Man of an unbounded Charity, and universal Benevolence; so was he likewise a great Patron of Liberty, and the Rights of his Fellow-Subjects; which, to his great Honour, he strenuously asserted in divers Parliaments, whereof he was a Member, and a Representative for the Borough of Tamworth in Staffordshire. To which Corporation (besides his erecting the above-mentioned Alms-house and Library) he was a generous Benefactor. However, by a strange Infatuation, the Inhabitants suffered themselves to be cajoled into the Election of another Representative. But soon becoming sensible of their Ingratitude, and ungenerous Treatment of their best Friend, sent a Deputation to beg Pardon for their past Offence, and to intreat him to permit them to re-chuse him at the ensuing Election, to represent them in Parliament. This Offer he justly rejected; and never after appeared in Parliament, by Reason of his great Age.

Hammond's Alms-house.

This House, which is situate in Alms-house-yard on Snow-hill, consisting of six handsome Rooms, was founded by Edmund Hammond, Esq; Anno 1651, for as many poor old Batchelors, or Widowers; who have each an Allowance of ten Pounds per Annum. The Trust of this Alms-house being committed to the Company of Haberdashers, they, in Consideration of the Estate appropriated for its Support being reduced by the Fire of London, Anno 1666, at present only pay the Pensioners seven Pounds ten Shillings each, yearly.

Harwar's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Kingsland-road, was founded by Samuel Harwar, Citizen and Draper of London, Anno 1713, for twelve single Men and Women; six whereof to be put in by, the Company of Drapers; and the other six, by the Parish of St. Leonard Shoreditch; each of whom is allowed six Shillings per Month, and eighteen Bushels of Coals yearly.

Hawes's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Bow-lane in Poplar, was founded Anno 1686, for six poor Widows; who, besides a Room, have only thirty Shillings per Annum each.

Heath's Alms-house.

This House, which stands in Alms-house-lane, in the lower Street of Islington, was founded by John Heath, Esq; Anno 1648, for the Reception of ten decayed Members of the Clothworkers Company; who annually receive from their Corporation (who are Trustees for this Foundation) the Sum of six Pounds each.

Hill's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Petty-France, Westminster, was founded by Emery Hill, Esq; in the Year 1677, for the Reception of three Men and their Wives; to be endowed with the Surplusage of what will endow his School and Alms-house in Rockester-row, Tothill-fields; but that there ever was any Surplus, I cannot learn.

Hill's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, in Rockester-row, Tothill-fields, was erected in the Year 1708, pursuant to the Will of Emery Hill, Esq; for the Use of six poor Men and their Wives, and six poor Widows: The former have an Allowance of seven Pounds four Shillings, and a Chaldron of Coals Yearly; and the latter five Pounds, and a Chaldron of Coals, and a Gown every other Year.

Hinton's Alms-house.

This House, in Plow-alley in Barbican, was erected in the Year 1732, pursuant to the Will of Alice Hinton, of Hackney, Widow, who bequeathed the Sum of two thousand Pounds for erecting and endowing an Alms-house for twelve poor Widows of the Parish of St. Giles, Cripple-gate; but instead of twelve, a Building is only erected for six, occasioned, as it is said, by the Loss of Effects at Sea, and seven hundred Pounds by African Stock. However, each Widow has two handsome Rooms, and the House endowed with twenty-two Pounds per Annum arising from Ground Rents.

Holles's Alms-house.

Dugd. Ant. Warwick. This Alms-house, which is situate in Great St. Helen's near Bishopsgate-street, was founded by the Lady Holles, Relict of Sir William Holles, who was Mayor of this City in the Year 1539, (and not according to Stow, who has erroneously made Sir Andrew Judd, one of her Executors, the Founder) for six poor Men, or Women, and endowed the same with Lands, to the Amount of ten Pounds per Annum, out of which each Person was to receive seven Pence Weekly, and the Surplus to be laid out in Coals for their Use.

Stow. Sur. Lond.

As an Addition to this Foundation, Alice Smith of London, Widow, devised Lands of fifteen Pounds per Annum; which, with the above-mentioned, being greatly increased in their Revenues, the Company of Skinners, who are intrusted therewith, have lately rebuilt the House in a very handsome manner, and augmented the Pensions of the Poor.

Hulbert's Alms-house.

This beautiful Building, contiguous to St. Peter's Hospital at Newington-Buts, was founded in the Year 1719, by James Hulbert, Citizen and Fishmonger, for the Accommodation of twenty poor Men and Women; who, besides two handsome Rooms to live in, each have an Allowance of three Shillings per Week, one Chaldron of Coals and a Gown Yearly, and ten Shillings at Christmas. This considerable Foundation is under the Direction of the Company of Fishmongers.

Infirmary in Westminster.

This Infirmary, or Hospital, was removed from Chapel-street to James-street near Petty France.

"This Undertaking was set on Foot towards the latter End of the Year 1719, and a Proposel then published to invite all well-disposed Persons to contribute their Assistance to it.

"December 2, 1719. Several Gentlemen met to consider of the most proper Methods for putting this charitable Design in Execution; at which Meeting it was thought necessary, in the first Place, that a Subscription Roll should be prepared with the following Preamble:

"Whereas great Numbers of sick Persons, in this City, languish for want of Necessaries, and too often die miserably, who are not entitled to a parochial Relief; and whereas amongst those who do receive Relief from their respective Parishes, many suffer extremely, and are sometimes lost, partly for want of Accommodations and proper Medicines in their own Houses, or Lodgings, (the Closeness and Unwholesomeness of which is too often one great Cause of their Sickness) partly by the imprudent laying out of what is so allowed, and by the Ignorance and Ill-management of those about them:

"We whose Names are underwritten, in Obedience to the Rules of our holy Religion, desiring so far as in us lies, to find some Remedy for this great Misery of our poor Neighbours, do subscribe the following Sums of Money to be by us paid yearly (during Pleasure) by quarterly Payments, for the procuring, furnishing, and defraying the necessary Expences of an Infirmary, or Place of Entertainment, for such poor sick Persons inhabiting in the Parish of St. Margaret, Westminster, or others, who shall be recommended by any of the Subscribers, or Benefactors, with the Approbation and Consent of the major Part of the Trustees present, (all Subscribers being admitted as such) who are likewise empowered to allow suitable Relief to sick Persons, approved in the Manner above-mentioned, as are incapable of being removed from their respective Abodes.

"The Trustees soon finding themselves encouraged cheerfully to go on, by the Subscriptions and Benefactions, which they procured, each from his Friends and Acquaintance, and those of others, who came readily into so apparently good and charitable a Design; and their Number being considerably increased, by the Accession of new Subscribers and Benefactors, they proceeded to form themselves into a regular Society.

"To which End they appointed one of the Subscribers to keep a particular Account of the Receipts and Payments: They agreed to meet every Wednesday Evening, to manage and carry on the Charity; and made several Orders for the Regulation of their Proceedings at these Meetings. Dr. Alexander Stewart, afterwards Physician to her Majesty Queen Carolina, and sometime after Dr. William Wasey, and Dr. George Lewis Teissier, Physician to his Majesty's Household, (all three Subscribers) engaged to serve the Society (without Fee or Reward) as Physicians; and divers eminent Surgeons offered their Assistance gratis, viz. Claudius Amyand, and Ambrose Dickens, Esqrs; Serjeant Surgeons to his Majesty, and William Cheselden, Esq; Surgeon to her Majesty, were pleased to subscribe and accept of being principal Surgeons; and Mr. Wilkie (a Subscriber) was appointed Surgeon in ordinary to the Infirmary; and several Divines (Subscribers to this Charity) gave daily Attendance in their Turns to the sick Poor.

"Though it was some Time before the Society could find a House in all Respects convenient for an Infirmary, yet they did not neglect doing what Good they were able in the mean Time; and many poor People were attended and relieved at their own Lodgings. And even after a House was hired and furnished, and the Infirmary set up, up, they continued, and do still continue, to assist considerable Numbers of poor People upon the Foot of Out-Patients.

“About the Beginning of April 1720, a House was taken in Petty France, Westminster, and fitted up with all the necessary Accommodations for an Infirmary: A sober discreet Person was provided as a Matron, or House-keeper, together with a Messenger, a Nurse, &c. Here, and in the Infirmary in Chapel-street, to which they removed in the Year 1724, as being a larger and more convenient House, the Society have ever since held their weekly Meetings, at which their Incomes and Disbursements are stated and adjusted, and the particular Accounts of each regularly kept; Patients admitted and discharged; and all the Affairs of the Society transacted by as many of the Subscribers as please to meet together. The Physicians, Surgeons and Clergy giving due Attendance, and the Patients being carefully looked after by the Matron and Servants of the House, under the Inspection of the Society, and provided with proper Medicines at the best Hand, as well as with cleanly Lodgings, and with wholesome Diet.”

To shew the Reader the present State of this Hospital, I shall subjoin two Accounts of the same for the Year 1747, wherein will be shewn the Receipts and Disbursements thereof; together with the Numbers of Persons admitted, cured, discharged, buried, and remaining in the House, with that of the Out-Patients belonging to the same.

Jackson's Alms-house.

This House, situate in College-yard in Dead-man's-Place, Southwark, was founded by Henry Jackson, Anno 1685, for two poor Women, who have an Allowance of one Shilling and eight Pence per Week each.

Jefferies's Alms-house.

This large and handsome Building, situate in Kingsland-road, consisting of a spacious Front, with two Wings and a Chapel, was erected by the Company of Ironmongers in the Year 1713, pursuant to the Will of Sir Robert Jefferies, sometime Lord Mayor of this City, for the Reception of as many of the Founder's Relations as shall apply for this Charity; and in Defect of such for fifty-six poor Members of the Company, who, besides a convenient Room and Part of a Cellar, have each six Pounds and a Gown yearly.

Kifford's Alms-house.

This House, at Totbill-side, Westminster, consisting of two Rooms, was founded by Judith Kifford, Anno 1705, for the Reception of so many decayed Gentlewomen, who have an Allowance of five Pounds per Annum each.

Kingsland Hospital.

This was anciently an Hospital for Lepers, but it being at present an Appendage to that of St. Bartholomew's in Smithfield, Patients are sent thither to be cured of the Venereal Disease by Salivation; on whose Account the following Inscription is put under the Dial: Post Voluptatem Misericordia.

Lady-Alley Alms-house.

This House, in Lady-alley in King-street, Westminster, consisting of four Rooms, for as many poor Women, is said to have been founded by a King, or Queen of England, with an Allowance out of the Exchequer of twenty-six Shillings and eight Pence per Annum each.

Little Almonry Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in the Little Almonry, Westminster, was founded by King Henry the seventh, for the Accommodation of twelve poor Watermen and their Wives, who annually receive of the Dean and Chapter of Westminster seven Pounds two Shillings and four Pence each Couple, and a purple Gown every other Year; and at the Burial of a Duke, Marquis, or their Ladies, in the Abbey, one Pound six Shillings and six Pence; and for that of an Earl, Baron, or their Ladies, ten Shillings and six Pence.

Little St. Helen's Alms-house.

This House, in Little St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, was erected by the Company of Leather-fellers, pursuant to the Will of John Haslewood, of Waltham, Esq. of the 16th of January, Anno 1544, for the Reception of four poor Men and three poor Women, who by the Founder were allowed eight Pence per Week each. But by other Benefactions, and the Bounty of the Company, they now receive two Shillings Weekly, and six Bushels of Coals at Christmas.

Lee's Alms-house.

This House, situate upon the Narrow-wall, Lambeth, was erected by Gerard Van Lee, but whether endowed by him, I cannot learn. However, Valentine Van Lee, probably the Son of Gerard, gave to the eight poor Inhabitants of this House, the Sum of five Pounds yearly, for the Term of five hundred Years, issuing out of his Lands in Gloucestershire and a House in Ax-yard, Westminster.

Lock Hospital.

This Hospital, situate at the South-east Corner of Kent-street in Southwark, was anciently a House for the Reception and Cure of Lepers, but of what Antiquity I cannot learn; however, at present, it belongs to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew in this City, and is employed for the Salivation of many of its Venereal Patients.

Lock Hospital near Hyde Park Corner.

Every Gentleman subscribing 5 l. a Year, or upwards, shall be a Governor of this Hospital, and whoever gives a Benefaction of 50 l. at one Time a Governor for Life.

No Governor who shall be more than two Years in Arrear, shall have any Power or Privilege as a Governor, till he has paid his Arrears.

A Committee of the Governors do meet every Saturday Morning at ten o'Clock, to admit and discharge Patients, adjust the weekly Accounts, receive the Reports of the Visitors, and examine the Affairs of the House; and that no less than five be a Committee.

Two of the Contributors are appointed weekly by the Committee, to examine every Day into the Behaviour of the Patients and Nurses, and make their Report, as it shall appear to them, to the next weekly Board.

The Governors are desired to take Notice,

I. No Patient is to be admitted, but who brings a Recommendation in Writing, signed by a Governor, or one of the weekly Committee, in the following Form:

To the Governors of the Lock Hospital.

Gentlemen,

I desire you will admit into your Hospital the Bearer of the Parish of if h Case intitles h to the Charity, being well assured is a proper Object; and am

Your humble Servant.

II. That all Recommendations for the Admission of Patients are received every Saturday Morning till eleven o'Clock.

III. Every Patient is obliged to submit to the Rules and Orders of the House, or be discharged for Irregularity.

IV. No Patient discharged for Irregularity can ever be received into the House again, on any Recommendation whatsoever.

V. That no Governor have more than one Patient in the House at a Time, and that a Preference be always given to those who subscribe the largest Sums, so far as the Case of the Patient will admit.

VI. That no Nurse, or any other Person whatsoever, belonging to this Hospital, do presume to take any Reward whatsoever from any Patient, either at their Admission, Continuance in the House, or Discharge out of it, on Pain of being immediately expelled, by Order of the next weekly Board.

VII. That no Security at the Admission of any Patient be required for their Burial; but, when any Patient dies in the Hospital, he, or she, shall be buried at the Expence of the Society, unless it be otherwise desired by the Friends of the Deceased.

All Persons who shall be disposed to contribute to the Support of this Hospital, by their last Will and Testament, are desired to do it in the following Manner:

Item, I give and bequeath unto A. B. and C. D. the Sum of upon Trust, and to the Intent than they, or one of them, do pay the same to the Treasurer or Treasurers, for the Time being, of a Society who now call themselves, The Governors of the Lock Hospital near Hyde Park Corner, which said Sum of I will and desire may be paid out of my personal Estate, and applied towards carrying on the charitable Designs of the said Society.

The Contributors are desired to send their Subscriptions to the Treasurer at the weekly

Board, held every Saturday Morning in the Hospital; and, in order to supply the current Expence of the Charity, the Subscribers are requested to pay their annual Subscriptions in Advance.

N. B. There is a Poor's Box in the public Hall, for the Reception of small Sums or from such as are not willing to have their Names inserted in the List of the Subscribers.

London Hospital.

It is supported by charitable and voluntary Contributions, for the Relief of all sick and diseased Persons, and in particular Manufacturers, Seamen in Merchants Service, and their Wives and Children, and was instituted on the 2d of November, 1740.

It at present consists of four Houses, situate in Prescot-street, Goodman's-fields, properly fitted up, with one hundred and thirty-six Beds, for the Reception of Patients. And, in order to extend and perpetuate this Charity, the Governors have contracted for a Piece of Ground on the South Side of White-chapel Road, whereupon they have erected a very large and more commodious Building, by voluntary Contributions.

The Society for carrying on this laudable Undertaking consists of a President, two Vice-Presidents, and a Treasurer, annually elected out of the most considerable Benefactors to this Charity, and of such Persons, who, by giving a Benefaction of thirty Guineas, or more, at one Time, become Governors for Life; and those who subscribe five Guineas, or more, a Year, Governors during such Subscription.

A General Court of Governors is held in the Months of March, June, September, and December, to take the Report of the Committee, elect a House Committee for the ensuing Quarter, inspect Accounts, and transact such other Business as may then be laid before them. The anniversary Feast of this Charity is held between the first of February and the last Day of April; when a printed Account of the general State of the Hospital, the Number of Patients received and discharged, and an Abstract of the Accounts for the Year past, is laid before them.

A House Committee of thirteen Governors is appointed at every General Quarterly Court, who, at their first Meeting, elect a Chairman to preside for the Quarter. Four of the Committee take the first Month, four the next, and four the last Month of the said Quarter.

These Meetings are at the Hospital, on Tuesdays, weekly, at eleven in the Forenoon, to receive and dismiss Patients, to order and inspect the Provisions and Furniture sent in, and such Necessaries that may be wanting, and to examine and regulate the Conduct of the Servants and Patients, and other Matters which come before them, according to the Constitution of this Charity. All Governors that please to attend, have a Vote at this Committee, and their Attendance is esteemed a Favour.

A Committee of Accounts, consisting of twelve Governors, is appointed at the General Quarterly Court in June, for one Year, who meet at the Hospital once a Quarter, to examine and audit Tradesmen's Bills, which are paid by the Treasurer

rer within a Fortnight after. The Accounts are open at all Times for the Inspection of the Governors.

A Physical Committee, consisting of twelve Governors, is appointed at a General Quarterly Court, out of the Physicians, Surgeons, and Apothecaries of this Hospital, who meet once a Month, or oftener, to examine the Medicines and Drugs brought into the Dispensatory, and none are suffered to be used without their Approbation.

Two Governors are appointed Visitors by the House Committee, for one Fortnight, to attend twice a Week, or oftener, if they think proper, to inspect into the Management and Conduct of the House, during the Interval of the Meetings of the House Committee.

Three Physicians attend alternately, two of the Surgeons daily, from eleven o'Clock till one, without Fee or Reward, and give their Advice and Assistance to all such Objects as come within those Hours, whether recommended or accidental. A Surgeon extraordinary attends in Consultation in all dangerous Cases. The Surgeons, in Waiting, have an Apprentice, or Pupil, constantly in the House to receive, and, if necessary, to call the Surgeon to such Accidents as shall be brought in at any Hour of the Day or Night.

An Apothecary, with an Assistant, constantly resides at the Hospital, who compounds and dispenses all Medicines used there, and solely attends the Business thereof.

A Clergyman of the Church of England reads Prayers, and visits such Patients in their Wards as desire his Attendance, and performs the other Duties of his Function at the Hospital, without any other Gratuity, than what pays his Expences.

A Steward, for whose Fidelity proper Security is given, has the Charge of the House and Furniture, keeps an Account of every Thing brought to, or expended in the House, and subjects the same to the Examination of the Visitors and House Committee, and has the Inspection likewise of the Conduct of all the Men Servants. Two Matrons have the Direction of the Nurses, and other Women Servants, and see the Diet and Medicines administered according to Order. Under them are Nurses and Watchers in Proportion to the Number of Patients, who are guided by written Orders, to prevent any Misconduct. Proper Diet for the Patients has been settled by the Physicians and Surgeons engaged in this Charity, and is fixed up in the Wards for the Satisfaction of the Patients and their Friends.

No Officers or Servants are permitted, upon Pain of Expulsion, to take of any Tradesmen, Patients, or other Persons, any Fee, Reward, or Gratuity of any Kind, directly or indirectly, for any Service done, or to be done, on Account of this Hospital.

Every Governor is intitled to send one In-Patient at a Time, and Out-Patients without Limitation. Subscribers of smaller Sums may likewise send what Number of Out-Patients they please. All Subscriptions are during Pleasure, and any small Sums, from well-disposed Persons, will be thankfully received; but, in order to carry on this Undertaking, all Persons are desired to pay their Subscription at the Time of subscribing. The poor Objects, recommended as In-Patients, are received at any Hour, without Difficulty or Expence, except in Venereal Cases, and are supplied with Advice, Medicine, Diet, Washing, Lodging, and every comfortable Assistance during their Cure; nor is any Security required against future Contingencies, they being, in Case of Death, buried at the Expence of the Charity, if not removed by their Friends. All Out-Patients have Advice and Medicines administered from eleven till one.

All Accidents, whether recommended or not, are received at any Hour of the Day or Night.

This is the Plan; and, though this Work has subsisted but fifteen Years, yet such has been the extraordinary Encouragement given to it, that, since the 3d of November, 1740, more than one hundred thousand distressed Objects have been relieved at the London Hospital; and, from labouring under the Oppression of some of the most malignant Diseases and unhappy Accidents, have been reinstated in their honest and industrious Capacities of working; and, so far as our Observation reaches, their Morals much amended, whereby the Publick again enjoy the Benefit of their Labour, and they and their poor Families are preserved from perishing, and prevented from being an Incumbrance to the Community. And, notwithstanding the great Number of Objects relieved by this Charity, it has not lessened the Number of Patients relieved by other Hospitals.

The Subscribers are desired to take Notice, that if any Patients do not conform to the Rules of the House, or are guilty of any Misbehaviour, they will be discharged, and never more relieved by this Charity: And not to send any Patient unable to walk, till they are first assured of Room in the House: And, when they recommend an In-Patient, whose Settlement is in the Country, it is further requested, that they will satisfy the House Committee concerning the Removal of such Patients, when cured, or judged incurable.

No Persons, of known Ability to pay for their Cure, are allowed to partake of this Charity: Nor any with infectious Distempers, or deemed incurable by the Physicians and Surgeons, or any in consumptive or asthmatick Condition, are admitted into the House, being more capable of Relief as Out-Patients.

The Patients, being admitted without any Expence, are required to be constant in their Attendance on the Physicians or Surgeons, at the Hospital, before eleven o'Clock; and, at nine o'Clock, to return Thanks at the Chapel, and at the weekly Committee next after their Cure; and those only who attend their Cure, and return Thanks, will receive a Certificate thereof, which will intitle them to future Relief.

St. Luke's Hospital.

This Hospital is an Improvement upon Bethlem, and supported by private Subscription for Lunaticks. It is situate on the North Side of the Road above upper Moorfields, in the Parish of St. Luke.

The particular Reasons and Inducements for the setting on Foot a new Design of this Sort, for the Relief of Poor Lunaticks, are,

1. Experience had long shewn, that the Hospital of Bethlem was incapable of receiving and providing for the Relief of all the unhappy Objects of this Sort who made Application for it; this Truth can be attested by every Governor of that House, and by every Person to whose Lot it has fallen to solicit the Admission of a Patient into it.

2. That the Expence and Difficulty attending the Admission of a Patient into the Hospital of Bethlem, had discouraged many Applications for the Benefit of that Charity, particularly on the Behalf of the more necessitous Objects, and of such who resided in the remote Parts of this Kingdom.

3. That by this unavoidable Exclusion, or Delay in the Admission of Objects of this Sort, many useful Members have been lost to Society, either by the Disorder gaining Strength beyond the Reach of Physick, or by the Patients falling into the Hands of Persons unskilled in the Treatment of the Disorder, or who have found their Advantage in neglecting every Method necessary to obtain a Cure.

4. That many Families (in no mean Circumstances) thro' the heavy Expence attending the Support of one Object of this Sort, have themselves become Objects of charitable Relief, and thereby doubled the Load and Loss to the Publick.

5. That the most fatal Acts of Violence, on themselves, Attendants and Relations, have been often consequent on the smallest Delay in placing the afflicted with this Disorder, under the Care of Persons experienced in guarding against and preventing Attempts of this Kind.

6. That no particular Provision is made by Law for Lunaticks, the common Parish Work-houses being no ways proper for their Reception, either in point of Accommodation, Attendants or Physical Assistance.

7. That the joining this to any other Hospital not particularly adapted for the Reception of Lunaticks, would have been highly improper and dangerous; the joining it to Bethlem would have deprived it of two of its principal Advantages, the being under the immediate Inspection and Government of its own Patrons and Supporters, (inasmuch as no Benefaction to Bethlem, how great soever necessarily constitutes the Donor a Governor of that Hospital,) and of introducing more Gentlemen of the Faculty to the Study and Practice of one of the most important Branches of Physick, already too long confined (almost) to a single Person.

Particular Rules and Orders for this Hospital.

That every Person, except as herein after excepted, paying (in his own Right) to the Treasurer for the Time being, the entire Sum of twenty Guineas or upwards, or paying five Guineas at least, and signing an Agreement (in a Book to be kept for that Purpose) to pay five Guineas yearly for the four next succeeding Years, shall be admitted a Governor of this Hospital, save and except all Persons acting as Physician, Surgeon, Apothecary, or Secretary to this Hospital, during the Time they shall respectively act in those Capacities.

A General Court shall be held in every Year, on the second Wednesday in the Months of February and August, and every General Court shall consist of thirty Governors at least.

At the General Court to be held annually on the second Wednesday in the Month of February, one President, four Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, a General Committee, Physician, Surgeon, Apothecary and Secretary, shall be elected for the Year ensuing. No Person acting as Physician, Surgeon or Apothecary to any other Hospital or Infirmary, shall be eligible to be Physician, Surgeon or Apothecary to this Hospital.

The President shall have Power to order special General Courts to be summoned as often as he thinks necessary.

No Person to be entitled to vote at any such Election at a General Court, unless he shall have paid his Subscription Money, on, or before the Day, in which a Vacancy shall be declared.

The General Committee shall consist of the President, Vice-Presidents, and Treasurer for the Time being, and of the five Governors named as Lessees in the Lease of the Ground on which this Hospital is built, and of all Persons who shall have paid for the Use of the Hospital the Sum of 100*l.* or upwards, who shall be standing Members thereof, and of such twenty-four other Governors, residing within the Bills of Mortality, as shall be annually elected for that Purpose, at the General Court to be held on the second Wednesday in February, of which Committee five at least shall be necessary to do Business.

The General Committee have Power to hire, govern, and discharge the domestick Servants of this Hospital, keep the Buildings properly repaired, and purchase Provisions, Furniture, and other Necessaries for the same. To admit and discharge Patients according to the Rules hereafter mentioned. To see that the several Books relating to the Hospital be regularly kept. That all Debts, Legacies, annual Subscriptions, and other Revenues of this Hospital be received and recovered as the same shall respectively become due. That all Monies in the Hands of the Treasurer, above what is necessary, in the Opinion of the said Committee, for defraying the current Expences of the Hospital, be from Time to Time placed out in transferable Government Securities, and no other, in the Names of the Treasurer for the Time being, and two of the Vice-Presidents, or of two such other Governors as the General Court shall appoint for that Purpose. And that all just Demands upon this Hospital be regularly discharged at least once in six Months. And to propose for the Consideration of the General Courts, all such Matters as shall appear to them conducive to the Good of this Charity.

The said Committee have Power to appoint Sub-committees, one of which shall be called the House Committee; and that Sub-committees have have power from Time to Time to summon the General Committee.

Every Officer or Servant who shall take any Fee, Gratuity or Reward, directly or indirectly, from any Tradesman or other Person dealing with this Hospital, Patient, or Friend of any Patient, in Respect of any Service done or to be done, shall forthwith be discharged, and rendered incapable of being received again into the Service of this Hospital. Except that it shall be lawful for the Secretary of this Hospital, upon his waiting on every Governor with a Staff and a printed Copy of the Rules and Orders of this Hospital, to accept of a Fee not exceeding one Guinea.

Patients shall be taken into this Hospital, according to the order of Time in which their Petitions have been delivered to the Secretary, without Favour or Partiality, and shall be admitted without any Expence, except only that such of them who are Parish Poor shall provide their Bedding, which they are at liberty to take away at their Discharge.

On the Admission of every Patient, two responsible House-keepers, residing within the Bills of Mortality, (whose Names, with their Places of Abode, shall have been left in Writing with the Secretary four Days at least before such Admission, and who shall be approved of by the Committee) shall enter into a Bond to the Treasurer for the Time being, in the Penalty of 100*l.* to take away such Patient within seven Days next after Notice given to them for that Purpose, by the Committee or their Secretary. But no Governor of this Hospital shall be Security for any Patient.

The Patients in this Hospital shall not be exposed to publick View.

No Moneys received for the Use of this Charity, shall be expended in entertaining the General Court or Committee at any of their Meetings.

Lumley's Alms-house.

This House, situate in Pest-house Fields near Old-street, was erected by the Viscountess Lumley in the Year 1672, for the Accommodation of six poor Women of the Parishes of Aldgate and Bishopsgate, to each of whom she granted an Allowance of four Pounds, and twelve Bushel, of Coals, per Annum.

Lying-in Hospital for married Women at Shaftsbury-house in Aldersgate-street.

See Aldersgate Ward.

The Lying-in Hospital in Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, first began in Jermyn-street, St. James's.

Poor Women in a State of Child-bearing, for some Time before, and after their Lying-in, are, of all Objects, the most to be pitied, because the most distressed and miserable: They are quite unfit for Labour during the Circumstances, and consequently deprived of the Means of supporting themselves in their great Day of Affliction. — Their Lodgings are generally in extreme cold Garrets, open to every Wind that blows; or in damp uncomfortable Cellars under Ground, subject to Floods from excessive Rains; destitute of Attendance, Medicines, and often proper Food, by which hundreds perish with their poor little Infants; and the Community is at once robbed of the Mother and Child.

By this Scheme, Unmarried as well as Married Women will be received and relieved, in order to prevent the unhappy Consequences ensuing therefrom; such as Perjuries, false Affidavits, and that most formidable and unnatural of all Crimes, the Murder of their poor guiltless Innocents. Every Convenience shall be amply provided for them, commodious Apartments, and Beds, good Nursing, plain suitable Diet, proper Medicines, the charitable Assistance of Gentlemen of Skill and Experience in Midwifery; and on due Occasions, the spiritual Comfort of a sober, pious and exemplary Divine.

These several Benefits they enjoy at a Time when their Condition not only renders them unserviceable, but even an expensive Burthen to their needy Families; to which, from the Care taken of them in this Hospital, they may, in a very little Time, return with Joy, Health, and Strength, and then be useful not only to their Husbands and Infants, but even to the Publick in general.

This Hospital consists of a House, with such a Number of Beds for the Reception of Patients, as the contributed Sums can now admit of.

The Society for carrying on this humane Work consist of a President, a Vice-President, and a Treasurer, annually elected out of the most beneficial Benefactors to this Charity; and a General Court of Governors shall be held in the Months of March, June, September and December, to take the Reports of the Committees. And a House Committee for the ensuing Quarter inspect Accounts, and transact such Business as may be laid before them.

A Physick Committee shall be appointed at a General Quarterly Court, out of the Physicians, Men-Midwives, Surgeons, and Apothecaries, who are to meet once a Month to examine the Medicines and Drugs brought into the Dispensary. None are suffered to be used without their Approbation.

Two Physicians and two Surgeons shall attend twice a Week on extraordinary Cases; a Surgeon and Man-Midwife, educated at Paris, and in great Business, residing in the next Streets, shall give Attendance at any Hour of the Day or Night he is called for, particularly from eleven of the Clock till one every Day; and such Objects as come within these Hours, shall have Advice in Physick and Surgery without Fee or Reward, whether recommended or accidental.

No Officers or Servants shall be permitted, on pain of Expulsion, to take of Patients or other Persons Fee, Reward, or Gratuity of any Kind, directly or indirectly, for any Service done, or to be done in this Hospital.

Every Governor and Subscriber is entitled to send one In-Patient at a Time, Out-Patients without Limitation. All Subscriptions are during Pleasure; and in order to carry on this Charity, all benevolent Persons are requested to pay at the Time of subscribing. The poor Objects recommended by the Governors and Subscribers are to be received twice a Week, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, from eleven of the Clock till one.

N. B. Such who contribute to this Charity the Sum of two Pounds two Shillings Annually, or twenty Pounds at one Payment, are qualified for Governors, and can send in twenty-four Patients in the Year; and those who give less are only Subscribers. All Governors shall have a Vote and Interest at the Committees, and their Attendance esteemed a great Favour.

The Right Hon. Marquis of Carnarvon, President and perpetual Governor.

An Account of the Lying-in Hospital for Married-Women, in Brownlow-street, Long-acre.

Amidst the Variety of Charities which are the Distinction and Glory of this Age and Nation, perhaps not one has been proposed to the Publick more truly beneficial, or more extensive in its Benefits than an Hospital for Lying-in Women. It is natural and just to observe, that the Arguments for establishing any Hospital, are at least as strong when applied to this. Poverty is an Object of Pity. Sicknefs and Poverty united, seem to comprehend all the natural Evils of Life: But it is not the Case of every sick Person to be distressed in Circumstances, so there are not many Persons, thus distressed, whose Calamity it is to be frequently or periodically afflicted with Sicknefs; whereas most Women that marry, bear Children; and those who work for their Subsistence, are, for a considerable Part of their Lives, annually disqualified for Labour. At other Times, their Labour is but a bare Support. During the latter Part of their Pregnancy, and the Time of their Lying-in, the needy Family is wholly taken up in Attendance upon them, and the Joys, natural at such a Season, are suppressed by the Wants which surround them. Or, if they be destitute of this Attendance, how great is the Hazard, that the helpless Mother, or the Child, or perhaps both, may by their Deaths, become melancholy Instances of the Evils of real Poverty.

By the Plan of this Hospital every Convenience these distressed Objects can require, is amply provided. Commodious Apartments and Beds, good Nursing, plain suitable Diet, proper Medicines, the charitable Assistance of Gentlemen of Skill and Experience in Midwifry, and, on due Occasions, the spiritual Comfort of a sober and pious Divine.

This Charity was instituted in November 1749; and the first General Meeting of the Subscribers was held on the 17th of that Month, at which Time, honoured with the Protection of his Grace the Duke of Portland, as President, and encouraged by the Benefactions of many worthy Subscribers, a Plan for the Establishment and Regulation of the Charity was approved, Officers appointed, Servants retained, and the House (then already taken) ordered to be furnished, and several Subscriptions were then received.

Between the 7th of December 1749, (the Day Women were first admitted) and the 12th of April 1751, two hundred and ninety-nine Patients received Orders of Admission: And the Number of Patients recommended greatly increasing, four small Houses contiguous to the Back of the Hospital being offered, the same were viewed by the Committee, who were of Opinion they would be convenient for the Charity; and have been since added, and fitted up at a great Expence.

To the End likewise, that this excellent Charity might be rendered more extensively useful to the Publick, and that not only this great Metropolis, but the remotest Parts of the Kingdom, might be supplied with well-instructed and experienced Midwives, it was proposed, that female Pupils should be permitted to attend Labours under the immediate Inspection of the Matron, and the occasional Directions of the Gentlemen of the Faculty, who undertook to instruct them in all Matters relating to the Business of Midwifry: Which Proposal being maturely considered, and the Committee having formed a Plan for regulating such Pupils, the same was presented to the Quarterly General Court, when it was then approved, and is in Substance as follows, viz.

“That four female Pupils at a Time be permitted to attend this Hospital, in order to their being instructed in Midwifry, and that they have a Right to stay in the Hospital six Months.—That such Pupils be Widows or Married-women, not less than twenty-five Years of Age, of sober Character, and to be approved of by the Committee.—That they board in the Hospital, and dine at the Steward and Matron’s Table.—That the Gentlemen of the Faculty attending the Hospital, do, at stated Times, give them Lectures in Midwifry, and instruct them how to act in all natural and difficult Births.—And when they are thoroughly instructed, and sufficiently experienced, they are to receive from the said Gentlemen, on their leaving the Hospital, Certificates of their Qualification.”

The Expences of their Instruction, and of their Board in the Hospital, have been settled by the said General Court, the Particulars of which any Persons desirous of becoming Pupils may be informed of, by applying to the Matron at the Hospital.

N. B. No Pupils of the Male Sex are permitted to attend this Hospital.

The General Plan of this Hospital.

A President perpetual.

Four Vice-Presidents chosen annually.

A Treasurer chosen annually.

Two Physicians and two Surgeons, practising Midwifry, who deliver the Women in difficult Cases. The said Gentlemen have likewise agreed to meet at the Hospital in Consultation every Tuesday Morning.

A Chaplain, who performs Divine Service in the Hospital, baptizes the Children, churches the Women, and does the necessary Duties belonging to his Function.

An Apothecary, who prepares such Medicines as are prescribed for the Women or Children.

A Secretary, who keeps the Accounts of the Hospital, attends at General Meetings and Weekly Boards, and does all such other Business as is commonly done by Secretaries, Clerks, or Registers, at other Hospitals.

A Steward, who takes Care of the Provisions and Furniture, and does such other Business as belongs to the Office of a Steward.

A Matron, well skilled in Midwifry, who delivers the Women in easy natural Labours, takes Care of the Linen, superintends the Nurses, and sees that every Thing necessary for the Women and Children be provided according to the Direction of the Physicians and Surgeons. She has under her an Assistant Matron.

A General Meeting of the Governors of this Charity is held every Quarter, and the sole Power of making Laws and Rules for the Government of the Hospital lodged in the said General Court.

A Committee of fifteen Governors are chosen at each Quarterly General Court (the Treasurer for the Time being always to be one) any Number of which may transact Business. They meet at the Hospital every Friday in the Forenoon, to receive the Women recommended, and to direct the ordinary Affairs of the House. Temporary Orders for the Service of the Hospital, may be made by this Committee: But a Report of these, and all their other Proceedings, to be made to the Quarterly General Court. Any Governor of the Charity may be present at this Weekly Committee, but none have a Right of voting there, except those who are Members of the Committee, and the President or Vice-Presidents if present. The same Rule to extend to all other Committees.

A Special General Court, may, on a Fortnight's Notice, be called at any Time between the Quarterly Courts, either by Order of a General Court, or of the Weekly Committee, or at the Demand of the Treasurer, or of any five of the Governors, the said Demand being delivered in Writing at the Weekly Board, and signed with their respective Names. The Business of such Special General Court to be expressed in the said Writing, and in the Summons to the Governors.

All Officers and Servants of the Hospital, above the Rank of Assistant-Matron, Messenger, or Nurses, to be elected by Ballot, at a General Court of the Governors: And on any Vacancy, the Day of Election for filling it up, to be appointed at least one Month, and not more than three Months, from the Day such Vacancy happens, unless directed otherwise by express Order of a General Court: But the inferior Servants to be appointed by the Weekly Committee.

The Qualification of an annual Governor of this Charity is a Subscription of three Guineas or upwards per Annum, and of a perpetual Governor a Payment of at once thirty Guineas, which entitles the Subscriber to recommend and have in the House one Woman at a Time. A Subscription of six Guineas per Annum, or a Payment at once of sixty, intitles the Subscriber to have in the House two Women at a Time, and so, in proportion, for larger Sums. Ladies subscribing the like Sums have the Privileges of recommending Women in the same Manner as Governors, and by an Order of a Quarterly General Court of the 6th of July, 1750, they have a Right of Voting in all Elections at General Courts, for Officers and Servants, by Proxy, provided that such a Proxy be a Governor of this Charity; or they may send a Letter to the Board without a Proxy, naming the Person they vote for, which will be regarded as their Vote: No Governor to be Proxy for more than one Lady at a Time.—Benefactions or Subscriptions of smaller Sums than those above-mentioned, will be thankfully received, and properly applied to the Use of the Charity.

No. III.

Women are received into this Hospital in the last Month of their Pregnancy, on producing a Letter of Recommendation from a Governor, and making an Affidavit of their Marriage and of their Husband's Settlement, which Affidavit is prepared for them gratis by the Secretary; and where the Husband cohabits with the Wife, it is required that he join in such Affidavit, unless prevented by Sickness, or some other reasonable Impediment; and it is also required that the Women produce a Testimonial of their Honesty and Poverty, under the Hands of two substantial House-keepers in the Neighbourhood where they lodge or reside, in case the Weekly Board shall, on Examination, doubt of their being Objects of the Charity.—During their Continuance in the House, all Necessaries are provided for them and their Children, at the sole Charge of the Hospital;—No Money or other Gratuity is to be taken of them by the Nurses, or by any of the Officers or Servants of the House, on any Pretence whatsoever.

Friday being the Day appointed for the Admission of Women, they are required to be at the Hospital by ten of the Clock in the Forenoon, no Letters of Recommendation being received after that Hour, it being necessary, for the Dispatch of the Business of the Hospital, that their Affidavits should be prepared and sworn to, before the Weekly Board sits, who enter upon Business at eleven.

Meggs's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, on the South Side of White-chapel, consisting of twelve Rooms with pretty little Gardens, was founded about sixty Years ago, by William Meggs, Esq; for the Reception of twelve Widows, who receive annually five Pounds four Shillings, and a Chaldron of Coals each.

Merchant Taylors Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which stands near the West End of Rosemary-lane, contains twenty-six handsome Apartments for so many poor Widows, Relicts of deceased Members, who yearly receive six Pounds and a Chaldron of Coals each; and a Gown every third Year.

Mico's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate on the South Side of Stepney Church-yard, consisting of ten handsome Rooms, was founded in the Year 1691, by the Lady Jane Mico, Relict of Sir Samuel Mico, Citizen and Mercer, for the Reception of ten poor Widows of Mercers, to each of whom she allowed the yearly Sum of eight Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence: But by the Losses of the Mercers Company the Pension is greatly lessened.

The Middlesex Hospital, for the Reception of Sick and Lane, and for Lying-in Married Women, in Windmill-street, Tottenham-court Road.

This Hospital consists of two convenient Houses adjoining to each other, in an airy Situation. It was first instituted in August 1745, for the Relief of Sick and Lane; and in July 1747, an additional Provision was made for the Reception of Lying-in Married Women.

The Qualification of a Governor of this Charity is an annual Subscription of three Guinea: Which also intitles the Subscriber to recommend, and have in the House at one Time, either one Sick or Lane Patient, or one Lying-in Woman, and Out-Patients. A Subscription of five Guineas per Annum intitles the Subscriber to recommend one Sick or Lane In-Patient, Out-Patients, and one Lying-in Woman. A Subscription of thirty Guineas at one Payment, constitutes the Subscriber a Governor for Life, with the last mentioned Privilege. Contributions of lesser Sums than three Guineas per Annum, are thankfully received, and intitle the Contributors to recommend one Sick or Lane In-Patient, and one Out-Patient at the same Time.

A Committee of the Governors (appointed Quarterly) meet at the Hospital every Tuesday, at ten of the Clock, to receive and discharge Patients, and to transact the other Business of the House, where every Governor, tho' not of the Committee has a Right to be present, and his Attendance is received as a Favour. A Report of their Proceedings is made to the General Court held every Quarter, where the Resolutions of this Committee are approved or rejected.

The Physicians visit the Patients every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, and on intermediate Days, when particular Cases require it. The Surgeons attend every Day.

Patients are admitted on a Letter of Recommendation from a Governor or Contributor, who may recommend In-Patients, and have Out-Patients upon the Books, according to the Regulations abovementioned. And when In-Patients are recommended, and there is not Room in the House to receive them, they are put on the List to be admitted on the first Vacancy, and in the mean Time are prescribed for as Out-Patients. No Security is required for Burial. All Accidents are admitted without Recommendation. Tuesday being the Day appointed for the Admission of Patients, they are expected to be at the Hospital, with their Recommendations, at ten of the Clock. The Physicians and Surgeons meet every Saturday, at twelve of the Clock, at the Hospital, where they give Advice gratis to all such diseased Poor who shall come, tho' unrecommended, and require it.

The Beds appointed for the Reception of Lying-in Women are on a separate Floor from the Wards used for Sick and Lane. And that Ladies may conveniently visit the Lying-in Patients without being incommoded with the Sick and Lane, there are distinct Stair-Cases leading to the separate Wards; the Lying-in Ward having no Communication with those of the Sick and Lane. Married Women only are admitted

(in the last Month of their Pregnancy) after they have been examined by the Weekly-Board, and on their producing an Affidavit, made before a Justice of the Peace, of the Time and Place of their Marriage, and of the Settlement of the Husband, with the Manner the said Settlement was obtained, whether by Birth, Servitude, or otherwise. And that this useful Branch of the Charity, the Midwifry Ward, may be made every way beneficial, and not liable to any Objection, no Pupils will be admitted. No Woman whatsoever who has been able to prove her Marriage, and her Husband's Settlement, so as to avoid burthening the Parish wherein the Hospital stands, has been refused Admittance.

The Servants of the House, are forbid to take any Gratuity of the Patients, or their Friends, on any Pretence whatsoever, on Pain of Expulsion.

Milborne's Alms-house.

In the Front of this House, which is situate on the West Side of Woodrooffe-lane, near Crutched-friars, are the following Words: Ad laudem Dei & Gloriosæ Virginis Mariæ, hoc Opus erexit Dominus Johannes Milborne, Miles & Alderman. hujus Civitatis, A. D. 1535. This Inscription shews this House to have been erected by Sir John Milborne (who was Mayor of this City, Anno 1521,) in the Year 1535, for the Reception of thirteen poor Members of the Drapers Company, with an Allowance of seven Pence per Week: The Trust thereof being committed to the Company of Drapers of this City, they have not only increased the Number of the Pensioners to fifteen, but likewise doubled their Pensions, with an Addition of a Load of Coals, and twenty, or more Shillings yearly, out of the Money left to be distributed at Discretion by the said Company.

Monger's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which stands in Well-street, in Hackney, was founded by Henry Monger, Esq; Anno 1669, for six poor old Men, who are allowed forty Shillings per Annum each.

Morrel's Alms-house.

This House, which is situate near the Nag's-head in Hackney Road, was erected by the Company of Goldsmiths of this City, in the Year 1705, pursuant to the Will of Richard Morrel, for the Reception of six poor Members of the said Company, who have two handsome Rooms, two Shillings per Week, half a Chaldron of Coals, a Quarter of a hundred of Faggots, and a Gown each yearly.

Morrice's Alms-house.

This House, which stands in the Old Jewery, was erected by the Company of Armourers, pursuant to the Will of the Lady Elizabeth-Morrice, Anno 1551, for the Reception of nine poor Widows of Armourers, who, according to the Discretion of the Company, are allowed from six to twenty Shillings per Quarter, and nine Bushels of Coals each yearly.

Newbury's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, on the North Side of Mile-end-green, called the Skinners Alms-houses, was erected by that Company in the Year 1688, pursuant to the Will of Lewis Newbury, for twelve poor Widows of the said Company, who have an Allow-

Allowance of five Pounds four Shillings per Annum, and Half a Chaldron of Coals each.

Nicholas's Alms-house.

This House, situate in Monkwell-street, was founded by Sir Ambrose Nicholas, Citizen and Salter, in the Year 1575, for the Accommodation of twelve Widows of his Company, to each of whom he allowed one Shilling per Week, and twenty-four Bushels of Coals yearly; and committed the Trust thereof to the Company of Salters. But the House being destroyed in the great Conflagration, Anno 1666, it is again re-edified in a very handsome Manner, each Widow having two pretty Rooms, and a Garret for her Habitation.

Owen's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which stands near the South End of Islington, was erected by the Company of Brewers in the Year 1610, for the Reception of ten poor Widows of the Parish of St. Mary, Islington, pursuant to the Will of the Lady Alice Owen, who gave to each of the said Widows three Pounds sixteen Shillings per Annum; every other Year three Yards of Cloth for a Gown, and six Pounds to be laid yearly out in Coals for the Use of the whole.

Packington's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in White-friars, and commonly called the Clothworkers Alms-houses, was founded by the Lady Anne Packington, Relict of Sir John Packington, Chirographer of the Court of Common Pleas, about the Year 1560, for the Accommodation of eight poor Women, each of whom receive yearly of the Clothworkers Company (who have the Trust of this Charity) the Sum of four Pounds and nine Bushels of Coals, and new Apparel every third Year.

Palmer's Alms-house.

This House, which stands at Totbill-side, Westminster, was founded by James Palmer, B. D. Anno 1654, for the Reception of twelve poor Men and Women, to each of whom he gave a perpetual Annuity of six Pounds, and a Chaldron of Coals. Here is a Chapel for the Use of the Scholars and Pensioners, wherein the Founder himself, for some Time, preached and prayed twice a Day to them.

Palyn's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, in Pest-house-row, near Old-street, was founded by George Palyn, Citizen and Girdler, for six poor Members of his Company; he endowed the same with an Estate of forty Pounds per Annum, and committed the Trust thereof to the said Company.

Pemell's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate at Mile-end, was founded by John Pemell, Citizen and Draper, in the Year 1698, for four poor Drapers Widows, and the same Number of Seamens Widows, to be presented by the Church-wardens of old Stepney Parish, who have each an Allowance of one Shilling and eight Pence per Week, half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, and a Gown every other Year.

Quakers Alms-house.

This House, which stands in Bridewell-walk, Clerkenwell, being both an Hospital and Work-house, it contains eighteen old Men (but not confined to any Number) and Women, who are provided with all the Necessaries of Life in a very clean and decent Manner; as are also forty Boys and twenty Girls, who besides are not only taught Reading, Writing and Arithmetick, but likewise, to inure their young Fingers early to Labour, are taught to spin, sew and knit; and the Boys, when put out Apprentices, have five Pounds given with each. These Children are cloathed in very good Cloth and Callimanco's, and supported at the Charge of about six hundred Pounds per Annum.

Raine's Hospital.

This stately Hospital, situate in Fowden-fields, in the Parish of St. George, Ratcliffe-highway, was erected in the Year 1737, by Henry Raine, a Brewer, who, by a Deed of Gift, endowed the same with a perpetual Annuity of two hundred and forty Pounds per Annum; and, as an Addition to the same, gave the Sum of 4000*l.* in South Sea Annuities, amounting to about four thousand four hundred Pounds, to be laid out in a Purchase.

This Hospital contains forty-eight Girls, who are taken out of the Parish School (almost contiguous) which was not only erected in the Year 1719, by the said Mr. Raine, at the Expence of about two thousand Pounds, but he likewise endowed the same with a perpetual Annuity of sixty Pounds. The Children are supplied with all the Necessaries of Life; and taught to read, write, sew and House-hold Work, to qualify them for Service, to which they are put, after having been three Years upon the Foundation.

Ramsfey's Alms-house.

This House, in Horn's-yard in Cloth-fair, was founded by Dame Mary Ramsfey, Relict of Thomas Ramsfey, some time Mayor of this City, about the Year 1596, for three poor Women, who formerly received Coals and Cloaths, but at present only two Shillings per Week each.

Richmond's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which stands in Goose-alley, Seacoal-lane, was erected by the Company of Armourers, pursuant to the Will of John Richmond, in the Year 1559, for the Habitation of eight poor old Men and Women, who, according to the Discretion of the Company, receive from five to fifteen Shillings per Annum.

Rogers's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in Hart-street near Cripplegate, was erected by the Lord-Mayor and Citizens of London in the Year 1612, pursuant to the Will of Robert Rogers, Citizen and Leather-feller, Anno 1601, for six poor Men and their Wives, who have an Annual Allowance of four Pounds each Couple.

St. Bartholomew's Hospital.

See Farringdon Ward without.

The Governors of this Hospital judging it convenient to enlarge the same, caused the ancient Cloister thereof to make Way for the present stately and magnificent Structure, containing the Hall, &c. The first Stone whereof was laid by the Lord-Mayor, in presence of divers Aldermen and other Governors, on the ninth of June, Anno 1730, in which was placed a Copper Plate, containing the following Inscription.

This

This Building was begun by the voluntary Subscription of the Governors of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, in the fourth Year of the Reign of King George II. Anno Dom. 1730, in the Mayoralty of Sir Richard Brocas, Knt. then President of the said Hospital.

And to shew the great Advantages resulting to the Publick from this Hospital, by the Cure of so great a Number of poor, sick and lame Objects, I shall subjoin a Septenary Account thereof; wherein will appear the Number of Patients admitted, cured and discharged, buried and remaining in the said Hospital in each of the Years of the said Account.

The Number of Patients in this Hospital and the two Lock Infirmaries thereunto belonging, on the 27th of June, Anno 1738, amounted to three hundred and seventy-two, and that of the Out-Patients to one hundred and ninety-eight; and the Sum Total disbursed from Michaelmas 1728, to Michaelmas 1729, on account of the House, to ten thousand four hundred and twenty-five Pounds and six Shilling and eleven Pence Half-penny.

St. Peter's Hospital.

This handsome Building, at Newington-buts, was erected by the Company of Fishmongers, by virtue of Letters Patent of King James I. Anno 1618, for the Reception of divers of their poor Members who had Pensions bequeathed them by the Wills of divers late Members of the Company. Thirteen of which Pensioners were Beadsmen and Women of (the Company's great Benefactor) Sir Thomas Knefworth, who by his Will of the 13th of April, Anno 1513, devised them eight Pence per Week each. Sir Thomas Hunt likewise, by Will of the 28th of April, Anno 1615, devised twenty Pounds ten Shillings per Annum towards the Support of six antient poor Men and Women: And Richard Edmonds, by Will of the 29th of Decemb. in the Year 1620, bequeathed an annual Sum of six Pounds towards the Maintenance of two poor Persons; which Number of twenty-one Pensioners, with one added by the Company, were put into this Hospital; and as an Addition to their Allowance, Sir John Leman, Sir John Gayer, Mr. Harper, Arthur Mause, and Anne Bromsgrave, by their respective Wills, devised several Sums of Money, to the Amount of twenty-eight Pounds per Annum. Each of the said twenty-two Alms-People have two handsome Rooms, three Shillings per Week, fifteen Shillings at Christmas, a Chaldron of Coals and a Gown yearly. And one of the Pensioners, who reads Prayers twice a Day in the Chapel, has an additional Allowance of forty Shilling per Annum.

The Hospital for relieving poor People afflicted with the Small-Pox, and for Inoculation.

This Hospital was instituted in the Year 1746, supported by a Subscription then made by several Noblemen, Ladies and Gentlemen, who were desirous that a Charity useful in itself, and so beneficial to the Publick, might be begun near this great Metropolis, there not being any Hospital of this Kind in Europe.

It is universally agreed, that amongst all Distempers, to which Providence has made the Human Body liable, there is none so afflicting, so alarming, or which demands such careful, speedy, and continual Assistance, as the Small-Pox, to which the inferior Sort of People are at least equally liable with those in a higher Sphere of Life, though utterly unable to support themselves under so dreadful a Malady, or to procure the necessary Means for their Recovery.

As this Disease is so frightful, even in its first Appearance, and at the same Time contagious, and almost inevitable, Families of all Degrees are thrown into the utmost Confusion, when it invades any Person amongst them, let his or her Station be what it will. To keep a Servant in such a Condition, is, generally speaking, exceedingly inconvenient: To thrust them out of Doors under such Circumstances, always inhumane, commonly fatal. How agreeable, therefore, must the Information prove to all considerate and charitable Persons, that for removing these Difficulties, for securing private Families, and for the Preservation of the wretched Individuals labouring under this Disease, there is already established

An Hospital for the Small-Pox.

Where Persons of both Sexes, and of all Ages, may be carefully provided for, both as to Physick and Diet, and properly attended in that calamitous Condition.

As what has been said sufficiently shews, how well-adapted a Charity this is, in respect to such as are afflicted with this Disease in the Natural Way; so the other Part of the Scheme, which has a Tendency to preserve our Species from the Ravages of this infectious Malady, by rendering it less malignant and less destructive, in the Way of Inoculation, deserves likewise publick Approbation and effectual Encouragement.

The Objections that have been made against this Practice, are founded rather in an Aversion to Novelty, however useful, than in an Adherence to Reason and Experience. The strange Imputation that a well-established Method of preserving many Lives, is an Attempt upon the Prerogative of the Almighty, will make no Impression upon any, who consider that the same Thing may be urged against exhibiting Medicines at all, either sanative or preventive, and the extraordinary Methods that are often necessary to be made use of, to stop the Progress of any particular Disease.

The Benefits of Inoculation appear every Year, by fresh Trials, greater and more certain. This dreadful, this destructive Distemper is thereby rendered mild and manageable, and becomes rather a Purgation of the Body from the latent

Seeds

Seeds of an unexpected Disease, than creating a Disease itself: It delivers People from those Apprehensions, with which, till they have had the Small-Pox, they are always haunted. It frees them from the Objections, that are continually made to their being received into any Family, while they remain exposed to that Disease in the Natural Way. It gives them Courage to enter into the Service of their Country, either by Land or Sea; and protects them, while in that Service, from the Risque of being carried off, for Want of those Accommodations, which Camps and Ships rarely supply.

To all these, if we add the general and great Consideration of preserving so many Lives, which may evidently arise from these different Ways of having the Disease, (for upon a general Calculation, 25 or 30 die out of 150 Patients, having the Distemper in the Natural Way, and one only out of this Number, when Inoculated) it will appear, that this is a Thing of very high Importance; and that it is not easy to name an Undertaking more laudable in itself, or more beneficial in its Consequences, than the making a Provision, that those, who really stand in the greatest Need of this Preservative, and yet from their low, though useful Stations in Life, are precluded from it, should be rescued from a Condition, equally injurious to them and to Society.

But as the World will be often divided in Sentiments, in Matters of such a Nature; so by the Constitution of this Charity, due Care is taken, that the Intentions of such well-disposed Persons, as shall contribute to any Branch of it, shall be punctually answered. For they may direct their Benefactions to be bestowed upon such Persons only, as are infected with the Natural Small-Pox; or, if they judge the promoting Inoculation the more beneficial, they may confine their Gifts thereto; or, if given without any Distinction, it will be applied to the general Fund, both for Natural Small-Pox and for Inoculation.

To these Considerations, it is proper to add one Circumstance, which, duly considered, cannot but have great Weight with all, who have any Feeling for their Fellow-Creatures in Distress; which is, that it is an Hospital, in Aid of all other Hospitals, being calculated, by its very Constitution, to receive those miserable Creatures, whom the Rules of all other Charities expressly and prudentially exclude.

As this useful and necessary Charity loudly calls for further Assistance, may it not be justly hoped, that many pious and compassionate Hands will bountifully contribute to the Support Continuance, and Enlargement of a Design, which Reason, good Policy, Humanity, and Religion so powerfully recommend?

This Hospital consists of two Houses, at a due Distance from each other, in airy Situations.

That for preparing the Patients for Inoculation is in Old-street Road; and that for receiving them, when the Disease appears, and for the Reception of Patients in the Natural Way, is in Cold-bath-fields.

General Courts are held quarterly; Notice of which is sent to each Governor, as well as publicly advertised.

No. III.

Two Presidents, four Vice-Presidents, and a Treasurer are annually elected out of the Governors.

A Committee of thirteen Governors is chosen Quarterly, who meet the first Thursday in the Month, at nine in the Forenoon, at the Hospital in Cold-bath-fields, and the other Thursdays at St. Paul's Coffee-house in St. Paul's Church-yard, at five in the Afternoon, to transact the Business of the Hospital, at which Meetings all Governors present have a Vote, and their Attendance is esteemed a Favour.

A Physician and Surgeon attend without Fee, or Reward.

There are a Secretary, two Apothecaries, a Messenger, Matrons, proper Nurses, &c. No Fee, Reward, or Gratuity, to be taken from any Patients, Tradesmen, or other Persons; on Account of the Hospital, on Pain of Expulsion.

Thirty Guineas constitutes a Governor for Life; and five Guineas per Annum, a Governor, during such Subscription. Smaller Benefactions are accepted with Gratitude.

Every Governor has a Vote at all general Courts and Committees, and is entitled to have one Patient in each House at a Time. Ladies have the same Privilege, and may vote by Proxies, at all Elections.

The Accounts are regularly kept, and always open for Inspection.

Every Person destitute of Friends, or Money, and labouring under this melancholy Disease, or desirous of being inoculated, is a proper Object, being recommended by a Governor, or Subscriber. Patients in the Natural Way are received every Day; but they should first enquire if there is a Vacancy, to prevent the Danger and Expence of a Disappointment for Want of Room. Those for Inoculation are received from the first of February to the last Day of May, and from the first of September to the twentieth of December, on the Days to be appointed for that Purpose, and of which Notice will be from Time to Time given in the publick Papers. Recommendations will be received at all Times, and entered as presented, and the Patients will be admitted in the Order they stand on the List. If any Person omit to attend according to their Turn on the Admission-Days, they will be put at the End of the List; and after three such Omissions, entirely struck off. There is no Charge attending any Admission, except a Deposite of sixteen Shillings from those in the Natural Way, to answer the Expences of Burial in case of Death, to be returned to the Person who paid the same, when discharged the Hospital.

For sake of the Patients, and for fear of spreading this dangerous Infection, it is necessary to forbid Strangers to visit them; and therefore it is hoped that the Affection or Curiosity of particular Persons will not be offended at this unavoidable Precaution.

Proper Dresses are provided for the Patients, and worn by them while in the Hospital; and when they are dismissed, their own Cloaths are fumigated with Brimstone, and returned to them.

St. Stephen's Hospital.

This House, situate in the Wool-staple at Westminster, was founded by Henry VIII. Anno 1544.

for eight maimed Soldiers, who have each a convenient Room, and an Allowance of five Pounds per Annum out of the Exchequer.

St. Thomas's Hospital.

This Hospital, which is situate on the East Side of the Borough of Southwark, owes its Origin to a casual Fire that happened in that Neighbourhood in the Year 1207, which destroying the Priory of St. Mary Overies, the Canons erected an Hospital hard by for the Celebration of Divine Service, till their Monastery could be rebuilt; which they soon after accomplishing, Peter de Rupibus, Bishop of Winchester, for the greater Convenience of Air and Water, removed the said Hospital in the Year 1215, and erected it in a Place, where Richard, Prior of Bermondsey, but two Years before, had built an Almonry, or Alms-house, for the Reception of indigent Children and necessitous Profelytes; and having dedicated the same to St. Thomas the Apostle, endowed it with Land to the Amount of three hundred and forty-three Pounds per Annum: From which Time 'twas held of the Abbot of Bermondsey.

Thomas Thetford, one of the succeeding Abbots, in the Year 1428, for a valuable Consideration, granted to Nicholas Buckland, the Master of this Hospital, a Right to hold all the Lands, &c. that the Hospital were in Possession of belonging to the said Abbot and Convent, at the old Rent; which was of no great Value, as appears by its Surrender to Henry VIII. in the Year 1538, when its whole Revenue only amounted to two hundred and sixty-six Pounds seventeen Shillings and six Pence per Annum.

In the Year 1551, the Mayor and Citizens of London, having purchased of King Edward VI. the Manor of Southwark, with its Appurtenances, for the Sum of six hundred and forty-seven Pounds two Shillings and a Penny; Part whereof being this Hospital, the City immediately set about repairing and enlarging the same, at the Expence of about eleven hundred Pounds; and, in the Month of November following, received into it two hundred and sixty poor, sick and helpless Objects; wherefore the King on the 26th of June, Anno 1553, incorporated this Hospital with those of Christ and Bridewell, as already mentioned. See Farringdon Ward within and without.

Tho' this Hospitale escaped the devouring Flames of the great Conflagration, Anno 1666, yet it suffered greatly in its Possessions, not only by that fatal Catastrophe, but likewise by three other great Fires, which happened in Southwark, in the Year 1676, 1681, and 1689. And as a farther Aggravation of its unhappy Circumstances, the Building was not only old and crazy, but also very low, damp, and incommodious; whereby 'twas rendered very unfit for the Reception of such valetudinary and distempered Objects: Which the Governors thereof taking into Consideration, generously set about to rebuild the same by a voluntary Subscription in the Year 1693, by the good Success of which, they were not only enabled to re-edify the antient Structure, but by additional Buildings greatly to enlarge the Hospital; whereby it consisted of three beautiful Squares; to which the Governors, Anno 1732, added a magnificent new Building, consisting of several Wards; together with a handsome and convenient Brew-house, and other necessary Offices, at their own Expence.

Among the numerous Benefactors to this Hospital, none seems to have out-done Sir Robert Clayton, in his Donations to the same, by the Governors of the said Hospitals having caused a Statue to be erected in Commemoration of him, in the Middle of the second Court; on the North and South Sides of the Pedestal of which, are the following Inscriptions:

"Roberto Claitono, Equiti, in Agro Northamptoniensi nato, Civi Londinensi, & Urbis Prætori, hujus Nosocomii Præsidi, novi Pauperum Ergastuli Vice-præsidi, & Fautori benefico. Quod in Magistratu semper æquus, Patriæ, Libertatis & Fidei reformatæ Vindex fuit acerrimus. Quod præter alia Liberalitatis suæ erga Egenos Monumenta, Puellarum in Christi Orphanotrophis Cubiculum suis sumptibus extrui curavit: Quod ad hanc Domum reficiendam, Libras primum DC. erogavit vivus, & insuper MMCCC. Testamento legavit: Ob tanta Viri Merita, hanc Statuam, quam Honoris causa viventi posuerant Nosocomii Curatores An. Dom. MDCCI. in Memoriam Mortui decoraverunt, An. Dom. MDCCXIV."

"To Sir Robert Claiton, Knight, born in Northamptonshire, Citizen and Lord-Mayor of London, President of this Hospital, and Vice-president of the new Workhouse, and a bountiful Benefactor to it; a just Magistrate, and brave Defender of the Liberty and Religion of his Country. Who (besides many other Instances of his Charity to the Poor) built the Girls Ward in Christ's Hospital, gave first toward the Rebuilding of this House 600*l.* and left by his last Will 2300*l.* to the Poor of it. This Statue was erected in his Lifetime by the Governors, An. Dom. MDCCI. as a Monument of their Esteem of so much Worth; and to preserve his Memory after Death, was by them beautified, Anno Dom. MDCCXIV."

Tho' there was no Estate belonging to this Hospital, when the City purchased the same; yet, by the great Munificence of the Citizens, the annual Disbursements thereof have of late amounted to near eight thousand Pounds; as will appear by the under-mentioned Account.

And to shew the Benefit arising to the Nation from this Hospital, by the Cure of so great a Number of poor, sick and lame Objects of Compassion, I shall subjoin a Septenary Account thereof; wherein will be shewn the Number of Patients admitted, cured and discharged, buried, and remaining in this Hospital, in each Year of the said Septenary Account.

Account
Scot. Corp.

The Origin of this Corporation is owing to James Kinnier, a Scotsman, and Merchant of this City; who, after a long and dangerous Sickness, determined to give Part of his Estate toward the Relief of the aged and necessitous Poor of his Country, within the Cities of London and Westminster. And having prevailed with a Society of his Countrymen, interested in a Box Club, to join their Stock, applied for a Charter, by which he and his Coadjutors were on the third of Sep. 1665, constituted a Body Politick and Corporate, with divers considerable Privileges; which were confirmed by Letters Patent of the said Prince, of the 16th November, Anno 1666, wherein are recited the Privileges granted in the former Charter, viz. That they might erect an Hospital within the City, or Liberties of Westminster, by the Appellation of The Scots Hospital of King Charles the Second; to be governed by eight Scotsmen, Inhabitants of the Cities of London and Westminster, or Liberties thereof. These Governors were to chuse from among themselves a Master; which Master and Governors were declared to be a Body Politick and Corporate, with a Right of suing and being sued, &c. to have a common Seal, and a Licence to purchase in Mortmain Lands, Tenements, &c. which were confirmed by the new Letters Patent, as aforesaid, with these additional Privileges, viz. To erect their Hospital either in the Cities of London or Westminster, or Liberties thereof. And beside the above-mentioned eight Governors, they were impowered to elect thirty-three Assistants; and also to purchase in Mortmain four hundred Pounds per Annum, over and above the annual Sum mentioned in the first Charter. And the Profits arising from such Lands, &c. to be employed in relieving poor old Scots Men and Women, and instructing and employing poor Scottish Orphans, or the Descendants of Scotsmen within this City, &c.

Ibid.

The good Work thus far advanced, had like to have been crushed in the Bud, by two very dreadful Events, viz. the Plague and Fire of London; which happened in the Years wherein their Charters were granted. However, those Storms were no sooner blown over, than those in the Direction began, in the Year 1670, to prosecute the Work with fresh Vigor; wherein they succeeded so well, that they found themselves not only in a Condition to provide for their Poor, but took a Lease of a Piece of Ground in Blackfriars, to build upon; for the Term of a thousand Years, at a Ground-rent of forty Pounds per Annum. And by charitable Contributions were enabled to erect their Hall, with two Houses at Fleet-ditch, and four in Blackfriars, all of which (except that for the Beadle) were finished in the Year 1672, at the Expence of about four thousand four hundred and fifty Pounds. All Matters relating to the Corporation are not only managed by the Governors without Fee, or Reward; but on all such Occasions, they not only spend their own Money, but likewise contribute quarterly for the Support of the Society, and Relief of the Poor; to the reduced and aged of whom they grant Pensions, relieve the Sick, bury the Dead, and give Money to such as are disposed to return to their Country. The Officers belonging to this Corporation, are, a Treasurer, Register, two Stewards and a Beadle; and the Sum annually disbursed by the Society is about six hundred Pounds.

Sea-Officers Widows.

The Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, having taken into Consideration the deplorable Condition to which many poor Widows of Officers of the Royal Navy of Great-Britain were reduced to by the Death of their respective Husbands; and for whose Support no Provision has hitherto been made: For the remedying of which, their Lordships proposed both to the Commissioned and Half-pay Officers of the Navy, to enter into a voluntary Agreement of granting three Pence in the Pound out of their Pay, toward establishing a Fund, (together with the Benefactions of well-disposed Persons) for allowing Pensions to such of their Widows, as shall be left in mean Circumstances.

To this Proposal, the said Officers readily assenting, the Lords Commissioners aforesaid represented the whole Affair in a Memorial to his present Majesty; who was graciously pleased to promote and encourage so good a Work, by his Letters Patent of the 30th of August, Anno 1732, directing that three Pence in the Pound be deducted from the Pay and Half-pay of all Commission and Warrant-Officers of the Navy; and to appoint the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, or Lord High Admiral for the Time being, the Treasurer, Commissioners, Paymaster and Cashier of the Navy for the Time being, twenty Captains, ten Lieutenants, five Masters, five Boatswains, five Gunners, five Carpenters, five Purfers, and five Surgeons of the Navy (which several Officers are to be the eldest of their respective Stations) who are constituted Governors of this Corporation; out of whom, are appointed a President, two Vice-presidents, a Treasurer, and fifteen Assistants, as a Committee, for the Management of all the Affairs belonging to this Charity.

The Lord High Admiral, or the first Commissioner of the Admiralty, to be always the President; and the Treasurer of the Navy, to be always the Treasurer; but the two Vice-presidents, and fifteen Assistants, are to be elected annually. And by the laudable Orders made by this generous Corporation, no Officer, or Servant employed therein, shall receive any Salary, Reward, ward, nor Gratuity; the whole Business thereof being to be transacted gratis.

The first Step taken by the Governors of this Charity, was, to provide for such Widows whose Husbands died since the Date of the aforesaid Letters Patent; who in the first Year amounted to twenty-four in Number, to whom Pensions were allowed, according to the following Regulations: viz. To the Widow of a Captain, 45 l. per Annum. To the Widow of a Lieutenant, or Master, 30 l. And to the Widow of a Boatswain, Gunner, Carpenter, Purser, Surgeon, second Master of a Yacht, or Master of a Naval Vessel appointed by the Navy Board, twenty Pounds per Annum.

And the Lords Commissioners aforesaid, commiserating the unhappy Circumstances of many poor Widows, whose Husbands died before the Establishment of the Corporation, therefore could receive no Benefit from that Fund; which was wholly appropriated for the Relief of such poor Widows of Officers, who had paid towards the Support thereof; the annual Produce of which, upon a Medium, did not exceed twelve hundred Pounds: Wherefore the said Commissioners renewed their Application to his Majesty; who was graciously pleased to recommend their Case to the Parliament; who thereupon granted, "That one Seaman be allowed upon the Books of every Ship of War in the Sea Pay, in every hundred Men that its Complement shall consist of; and that the Produce of the Wages of such Seamen, and Value of their Victuals, be given and applied towards the Relief of poor Widows of Commission and Warrant Officers of the Royal Navy, according to such Rules, Orders, and Regulations, as his Majesty hath, or shall establish and appoint for that Purpose."

The Number of Widows, at present provided for by this Charity, are about seven hundred.

Sion College Alms-house.

Read. Stat. Sion. Coll. This Alms-house, under the Library of Sion College, consisting of twenty Rooms, for the Entertainment of so many poor old Men and Women, was, together with the College, founded by the Will of Thomas White, D. D. of the 1st of October, Anno 1623, who thereby endowed the same with one hundred and twenty Pounds per Annum.

Of the Pensioners, six are presented by St. Dunstan's in the West; two, by that of St. Gregory's; eight by the Company of Merchant-Tailors; and four by the City of Bristol.

See Cripplegate Ward.

Smith's Alms-house.

This House, situate on St. Peter's-hill near Thames-street, was founded by David Smith, Embroiderer to Queen Elizabeth, in the Year 1584, and consists of six Rooms, for the Habitation of so many poor Widows, turned of fifty-six Years. But the same being destroyed in the great Conflagration, Anno 1666, it was rebuilt by Sir Thomas Fitch, and the Charge thereof committed to Christ's Hospital; from which the Pensioners annually receive twenty-nine Shillings and four Pence each. But an Addition being made to this Foundation, by the Daughter of the Founder, they receive yearly from the Company of Embroiderers, an Augmentation of four and thirty Shillings and six Pence each.

Southampton's Alms-house.

This House, which stands near Monmouth-street, was, with a Piece of Ground adjoining, (now built upon) granted by Lease to the Parish of St. Giles in the Fields, by the Earl of Southampton, in the Year 1656, for the Use of the Poor, for a Term of five hundred Years. And towards the Support of the poor Inhabitants, (being twenty in Number) Henry Carter, in the Year 1674, gave the Sum of fifty Pounds; the Profits whereof to be distributed among them; which, with the Produce of the Ground aforesaid, seems to yield but a small Income; for each of the poor Women have only an Allowance of two Pounds eight Shillings, and twelve Bushels of Coals yearly; and out of the Lady Dudley's Gift, at Christmas and Whitsuntide, twenty Shillings.

Sprat's Alms-house.

This House, situate in College Church-yard, Dead-man's Place, in Southwark, was founded by Henry Sprat, Anno 1709, for two poor old Men, with an Allowance of four Pounds per Annum each.

Spurstone's Alms-house.

This House, which stands in Back-lane, Hackney, was founded by William Spurstone (some time Rector of that Parish) in the Year 1666, who dying before it was endowed, his Brother, Henry, settled Lands thereon, to pay to each of the six poor Widows therein four Pounds per Annum.

Stafford's Alms-house.

This House of Charity, which is situate at the lower End of Gray's-Inn-lane, was founded by Alexander Stafford, Esq; Anno 1633, for four poor Men and six Women; who, besides a good Room each, have an Allowance of six Pounds and half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, and a Coat and Gown every other Year.

Trinity Hospital.

The Ground whereon this Hospital stands, at Mile-end, was given to the Corporation of the Trinity, by Captain Henry Mudd, an Elder Brother, and the beautiful Building thereon erected by the Fraternity in the Year 1695, for the Reception of twenty-eight decayed Masters of Ships, or their Widows; each of whom receive sixteen Shillings per Month, twenty Shillings for Coals yearly, and a Gown every second Year.

Underwood's Alms-house.

This House was at first erected at the West End of the Rectory House of St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate, by one Mr. Underwood, for the Habitation of sixteen poor old Women. But Petty France being rebuilt and converted into New Broad-street, &c. this Alms-house, with that of Alley's adjoining, in the Year 1730, were forced to make way to the new Passage leading to Bishopsgate-street. Wherefore a new Building was erected in Lamb-alley, in the said Parish, for the Accommodation of the said poor Women; who are only allowed two Shillings and six Pence per Month each.

Vintners Alms-house.

This House, which stands on the North Side of Mile-end Road, was founded by the Company of of Vintners, for the Use of twelve Widows of deceased Members; who receive three Shillings per Week each, a Chaldron of Coals, and about forty Shillings at certain Times, yearly.

Walters's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate at the lower End of Blackman-street in Southwark, was founded by John Walters, Citizen and Draper, in the Year 1651, for four poor Men, and eight poor Women; who receive five Shillings per Month each, half a Chaldron of Coals yearly, and ten Shillings on every New-year's-day; now removed to the S. E. Side of the new Road leading from Westminster Bridge to Blackman-street.

Walters's Alms-house.

This house, situate in Newington-butts, was founded by the above-named John Walters, Anno 1651, for sixteen poor Men and Women; who have each an Allowance of five Shillings per Month, half a Chaldron of Coals, and ten Shillings on every New-year's-day.

Walters's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, which stands in Old-street, was founded in the Year 1658, by the aforesaid John Walters, for eight poor Widows; who have each an Allowance of five Shillings per Month, and half a Chaldron of Coals yearly at Christmas.

Watson's Alms-house.

This House, situate near Shoreditch in Old-street, was erected chiefly at the Charge of William Watson, Citizen and Weaver, for the Widows of twelve Weavers; who receive twenty Shillings, and twenty-four Bushels of Coals annually, and a Gown every second Year.

Whitcher's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate at Tothill-side, was founded by George Whitcher, in the Year 1683, for six poor old Persons, with an Allowance of five Pounds, and a Gown each, yearly.

Whittington's Alms-house.

Stow.Sur.
Lond.

Sir Richard Whittington, thrice Mayor of this City, about the Year 1413, founded a College on the North Side of the Church of St. Michael Pater-Noster, for a Master, four Fellows, Clerks, Choirists, &c. together with an Alms-house for thirteen poor Men; one whereof to be Tutor, with a Salary of sixteen Pence per Week; and the twelve others, fourteen Pence each, with necessary Provisions. Notwithstanding the Dissolution of this College by Act of Parliament, in the Reign of Edward the sixth; the Alms-house, situate upon College-hill, still remains under the Direction of the Company of Mercers; who, besides a handsome Room to each of the Pensioners, allow them three Shillings and ten Pence per Week; and the Men every third Year Coats and Breeches, and the Women Gowns and Petticoats.

Wood's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, adjoining to that of Gibson, at Ratcliff, was founded by Toby Wood, of Lincoln's-Inn, Esq; Anno 1613, for six decayed Coopers; who have an Allowance of six Pounds per Annum, and thirty Bushels of Coals each.

Wood's Alms-house.

This House, which stands on the East Side of Clapton in the Parish of Hackney, was founded by Thomas Wood, Bishop of Litchfield and Coventry, for ten poor ancient Widows; with an Allowance of five Pounds per Annum each, and a Gown every other Year.

Young's Alms-house.

This Alms-house, situate in College Church-yard, Southwark, was founded by Henry Young, in the Year 1694, for two poor Women; with an Allowance of one Shilling per Week each.

Hopton's Alms-houses.

These Houses, situate in the Parish of Christ's Church, Surrey, were founded by Charles Hopton, Esq; who died Anno 1730; the poor Men were first chosen in Anno 1732; the Minister and two Church-Wardens for the Time being, together with ten other Gentlemen, are the Trustees for managing this Charity; the Number of poor Men is twenty-six, the Allowance to each Man, is 10 l. per Ann. paid Monthly, and a Chaldron of Coals, with a lower and upper Room for each Man; the Alms-houses are a very neat, handsome and spacious Building; the Objects to be admitted, must be Men who have been House-keepers and come to decay.

Edwards's Alms-houses.

These Alms-houses, in the said Parish, were built and endowed by the Trustees of Mr. Edward Edwards, Citizen and Mason of London, who directed that each Person to be chosen therein should have an Allowance of 40 s. per Ann. and once in two Years a purple Gown of twenty Shillings Value; he directs that the poor People to be chosen, shall be poor Persons belonging to that Parish, and who do not receive any Alms or Pension from that or any other Parish, each poor Person to have one Room only.

Westby's Alm-houses

Were founded by Mrs. Mary Westbey of Bocking in Essex, Widow, for ten poor Women, on Hoxton Causeway, A. D. 1749, and left them in the Disposal of nine Trustees.

The Jews Hospital called Beth-Holim.

The Hospital was founded in 1748 by Subscription. Beth-Holim, signifies a House for the Relief of the Sick. It is confined to no Number; but about 120 yearly, and Medicines and Advice are dispensed gratis; it is maintained by a certain Sum allowed by the Synagogue, and private Contributions of all Persons whatsoever, amounting to about 500 l. per. Ann. They likewise have a Ward assigned for poor Lying-in Women.

Lond.

To the several Charities above specified, I shall only add the annual Sum of one thousand Pounds, given by the King toward the Relief of poor House-keepers within this City and Suburbs, in the Rigor of Winter. Which Sum, (by his Majesty's Letters Exhortatory to the Lord-Mayor and Bishop of this City, for making Collections in the several Parishes within the Bill of Mortality for the same Purpose) by the Contributions of the Citizens, &c. made in the Year 1735, was increased to one thousand six hundred and ninety-six Pounds seventeen Shillings and five Pence; which being re-issued by the Chamberlain of London, it was proportionably divided among the several Parishes within this City and Suburbs, and by the several Church-Wardens and Overseers of the Poor thereof distributed amongst the Families most necessitous; which probably were five hundred in Number.

The Number of Persons contained in the several Hospitals and Alms-houses above-mentioned, together with the Children put forth Apprentices by the Money collected at the Feast, &c. of the Sons of the Clergy, and the several poor Families that participate of the King's annual Charity, &c. amount in the whole to upwards of eight thousand; and the Sum Total employed toward their Relief, to seventy-eight thousand five hundred and nineteen Pounds one Shilling and two Pence.

There are in this City and Suburbs Societies, both of Men and Women, (which are very numerous) denominated Box Clubs, for the Relief and mutual Support of the poorer Sort of Artisans, during Sickness, or other Incapacity, whereby they are rendered incapable of getting their Bread.

These Clubs, erected by mutual Consent, are supported by an amicable Contribution of two, three, or more Pence per Week, by each Member; who weekly or monthly meet at a certain Ale-house, where they spend two Pence or three Pence each; and wherein they have Orders for their better Regulation, and a strong Box, or Chest, with divers Locks, for the Conservation of their Books, Cash, &c.

The Advantages arising to the several Members of the respective Clubs, are, that every Member, when sick of lame, whereby he's rendered incapable of working, during his Illness, or Incapacity, receives a certain Sum of Money per Week; provided his Indisposition does not proceed from a Venereal Cause; in which Case, he is not intitled to any Benefit from the Society.

And when any of the Members die, there is not only a Sum of Money allowed by the Society for the Buryings of such Members, but likewise the Widows, or Nominees of such deceased Members, receive from the Society the Sum of five, ten, or more Pounds.

And for preventing all Frauds and Impositions upon any of the said Societies, all Persons that are detected of working, during the Time of their being supported by the Box, are immediately, upon Conviction, expelled the Club.

These great and numerous Societies, which consist of many thousands of Members, are a very great Ease to the several Parishes of this City and Suburbs; by supporting so great a Number of their poor diseased Members, which otherwise must be maintained by the said Parishes, at the Expence of many thousands of Pounds per Ann.

Having treated of the several Hospitals, Alms-houses, &c. within the Bill of Mortality, I shall now give some Account of the Parochial Work-houses.

The numerous Impositions of the lazy, indolent and vicious Poor of this City and Suburbs, upon the generous and well-disposed Citizens, occasioned the Inhabitants of the Middlesex Liberty (now the Parish of St. Luke in Old-street) of St. Giles's, Cripplegate, in the Year 1724, to erect a Work-house for the Reception of the Poor of their Liberty.

By which Proceeding, their Poors Rate, which before amounted to three Shillings in the Pound, upon the Rents of all Houses, was thereby reduced to two Shillings.

This put divers Parishes and Liberties in this City and Suburbs, upon erecting Work-houses; which became general, not only within the Bill of Mortality, but also in the circumjacent Parishes, and many others in divers Parts of the Kingdom.

Though these parochial Nurseries are denominated by the harsh Appellation of Work-houses, yet the Tasks therein are so very easy, that they may more properly be termed Recreations than Labour. And in many of the said Houses, the Adults have no other Business than that of looking after the Children. They are plentifully provided with good Provisions, warm and clean Apparel, Beds, good Fires, and all the Necessaries of Life.

Of the Manner of Living, and modern Diversions used by the Citizens.

THE Inhabitants of this City surpass those of all other Cities and Nations, in the Magnificence of their Coaches, stately Horses, and pompous Equipages. And the Men, though their Cloaths are not so much enriched with Gold and Silver Lace as those of our French Neighbours, yet the Fineness of our Cloath, &c. is much an Over-balance both to their Cloth and Lace. And in respect to the Linen, Periwigs and Hats worn by the Inhabitants of this City and Suburbs, that they far excel those of all other Nations, I think, will will not be denied by any impartial Judge; especially considering, that the very best and finest of the first is brought from Holland, and other Countries, for our Use; and the choicest and most valuable Flaxen and Grey human Hairs, (which the Inhabitants of the Countries from whence they come, cannot afford to wear) of which the second are made, are imported from Germany, France, Spain, Holland, Sweden, Denmark, and all other Countries of Europe. And as to the last, the Difference between ours and theirs seems to be nearest to that of Beaver and Wool.

And the Women, rather than come short of the Men in Luxury, out-do them, in the Richness of their Silks, Cambricks and Lace of an exorbitant Price. And Servant Maids dress in so rich and handsome a Manner, that it is hard to distinguish many of them from Persons of Fortune.

The modern Diversions used by the Inhabitants of this City and Suburbs, are, that the principal Part of them in Summer, deserting themselves of urbanick Cares, repair to their fine Country Seats, and Gardens, where the Beauties of Nature display themselves, amidst the glorious Harmony of a rural Choir. Whilst others resort to Bath, Tunbridge, Scarborough, and other Places of Gaiety and Pleasure.

Many of the Citizens take Delight in Sailing, Rowing, Swimming, and Fishing in the River Thames, &c. whilst others in the circumjacent Fields, Bowling-greens, &c. divert themselves with Horse and Foot-races, Riding, Leaping, Wrestling, Cricket, Archery, Cudgels, Coits, Bowling, Skittles, Nine-pins, and Bull and Bear-baiting: And such as delight in Blood repair to see the barbarous Performances of Prize-fighters, whom Necessity (occasioned by a scandalous Laziness and Indolence) induces to expose themselves to be horribly mangled for a little Money; when the bloodily-inclined Spectators may satiate themselves with human Gore, to the great Reproach of Religion. And others, within Doors, play at Billiards, Chess, Draughts, Shuffle-board, Cards, Dice, &c. and such as delight in Walking, besides the pleasant and beautiful Fields, which in-circle London, have nine delightful publick Walks, within the City and Suburbs, for their Recreation.

The Citizens, during the Winter Season, divert themselves with Hunting, Hawking, Shooting, Tennis, Sliding, Scating, Foot-ball-playing, &c. by Day; and the nocturnal Diversions are Billiards, Chess, Draughts, Shuffle-board; Cards, Dice, Operas, Tragedies and Comedies, in English, Italian and French; the Charge of the three last, by the best Calculation, amounts to upwards of sixty thousand Pounds per Ann.

The barbarous Diversion of Cock-fighting is still continued in this City, with an Addition by the Populace of a Practice much more cruel, viz. the throwing at Cocks, with large Sticks, and the utmost Barbarity.

Not much unlike the above, is the detestable Practice of Duck-hunting.

Besides the Diversions and Cruelties above-mentioned, great Numbers of musical Gentlemen have formed themselves into divers Societies, and meet once a Week at certain Taverns fit for their Purpose; where they, with the utmost Dexterity, perform upon a great Variety of Instruments, (assisted by some of the best Voices) to numerous Audiences of their Friends. Besides which, there are many publick Concerts of Musick, in divers Parts of the City and Suburbs, for the Entertainment of the Curious in that Way. Therefore it may justly be said, that no City whatsoever is so well supplied with the choicest of Musick, both vocal and instrumental, as this is, nor with Plays of all Sorts.

Add to the afore said Entertainments, that this City is continually supplied with a great Variety of Birds, Beasts, Fishes, Monsters, and other Curiosities, both of Art and Nature, from all Parts of the terraqueous Globe, to satisfy the Curiosity of the Citizens; who are more profuse of their Money in seeing Rarities, than any other People whatsoever; as may justly be inferred from the great Number incessantly brought hither from all Parts.

An Account of the Foundation of the Abbey of Westminster, with the Construction of the present Church.

THE Foundation of Westminster Abbey has been handed to us by many fabulous Accounts, invented by the Monks for private Views: One of their pious Frauds was to palm it upon St. Peter, the Prince of the Apostles. This is the Invention of Abbot Wulfine, in the Reign of Edward the Confessor. Another refers it to the imaginary Reign of King Lucius. In this Uncertainty we can determine no more than adhere to those Writers who place its Foundation by Sebert, on the Ruins of a Temple dedicated by the Heathen Saxons to Apollo.

The Place where this magnificent and stately Structure and City is situate, was anciently an Island, which, from its being over-spread with Thorns, received the Appellation of Thorney, or The Island of Thorns; and the Branch of the River which surrounded the same, now denominated Long-ditch, had its Outflux from the River

River Thames, near the East End of Manchester-court, Channel-row; and intersecting King's-street, glided along where Gardiner's-lane is situate, to Longditch (a Street so called, wherein the Name of this antient Watercourse is still preserved); and crossing Totbill-street, a little West of the Gate-house, continued its Course along the South Wall of the Abbey Garden, to the Thames, where now the Common Sewer is, which was erected over it.

This Monastery, like most others of the Kingdom, being destroyed by the cruel Ravages and Depredations of the Pagan Danes, it was rebuilt by King Edgar, who not only endowed the same with divers Lands and Manors, but likewise, by his Charter, Anno 969, granted it many ample Privileges.

This Church being again reduced to very great Extremities by Danish Cruelties, it was restored to a much more flourishing Condition than ever, by King Edward the Confessor. Appropriating for that Purpose one tenth of his Estate both real and personal; and pulling down the small and ruinous Building, erected in its stead a handsome Structure; and summoning his Ministers and Nobility, caused it to be consecrated on the 28th of December, Anno 1065, with the greatest Pomp and Solemnity; and by several Charters, not only confirmed all its ancient Rights and Privileges, but likewise endowed the same with many rich Manors, and additional Immunities, viz. Sac and Soc, Tbol and Tbeam, Infangtheof, Gritbrich, Hamsoken, Pontage, Murage and Forstal. And that all the Lands, Tenements and Possessions thereunto belonging, in London and elsewhere, should be exempt from all Jurisdiction whatsoever, other than that of their own; and the Convent to be free from the Authority of the Bishop of London; and the Church thereof, by the Bull of Pope Nicholas the Second, constituted a Place for the Inauguration of the Kings of England. And by the said Edward's Charter of Sanctuary, it became not only an Asylum for Bankrupts, &c. but likewise a Refuge for Traitors, Murderers, Thieves, and the most abandon'd Miscreants, who were suffered to live there in Impunity, and open Defiance of Justice, to the great Reproach of the pretended Confessor. However, the great Immunities in the following Charter, drew People from all Parts; which occasioned the Refugees to increase so fast, that there was not Room sufficient in the Abbey Church for the Accommodation of the numerous Inhabitants without incommoding the Monks; wherefore Edward caused a Church to be erected on the North Side of the Monastery, for the Use of the Inhabitants, and dedicated the same to St. Margaret.

This Abbey, according to divers modern Historians and Surveyors of London, was denominated Westminster, to distinguish it from the Abbey of Grace on Tower-hill, called Eastminster: But that this is a very great Mistake, is manifest by the Charter granted to the former by Edward the Confessor in the Year 1066, whereas the latter was not founded till Anno 1359; the Appellation of Westminster was given to distinguish it from the Church of St. Paul in the City of London.

Edward's Charter of Sanctuary to Westminster.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

"Edward, by the Grace of God, King of Englishmen; I make it to be known to all Generations of the World after me, that, by special Commandment of our holy Father Pope Leo, I have renewed and honoured the holy Church of the blessed Apostle St. Peter of Westminster; and I order and establish for ever, that what Person, of what Condition or Estate soever he be, from whence-ever he come, or for what Offence or Cause it be, flying for his Refuge into the said holy Place, he be assured of his Life, Liberty and Limbs. And over this, I forbid, under Pain of everlasting Damnation, that no Minister of mine, or of my Successors, intermeddle them with any the Goods, Lands, or Possessions of the said Persons, taking the said Sanctuary. For I have taken their Goods and Livelode into my special Protection.

And therefore I grant to every and each of them, in as much as my terrestrial Power may suffice, all manner of Freedom of joyous Liberty. And whosoever presumes, or doth contrary to this my Graunt, I will he lose his Name, Worship, Dignity and Power; and that with the great Traytor Judas, that betrayed our Saviour, he be in the everlasting Fire of Hell. And I Will and Ordayne, that this my Grant endure as long as there remaineth in England eyther Love, or Dread of Christian Name."

William the Conqueror, out of the great Veneration he bore to the Memory of his late dear Friend Edward, no sooner arrived in London, than he repaired to this Church, where he offered a sumptuous Pall as a Covering to his Shrine, and fifty Marks of Silver, together with a very rich Altar-Cloth and two Caskets of Gold; and the Christmas Day following was solemnly crowned therein. This being the first Coronation solemnized in this Place, I shall, for the Satisfaction of the Reader, insert an Account thereof.

The Day of Coronation being come, Aldred, Archbishop of York, who was appointed to perform the Ceremony, in a short, but handsome Speech, asked the English then present, whether they were willing to have the Duke crowned as King of England; to which they unanimously assenting, the Bishop of Constance addressed himself to the Normans to the same Effect, which they readily agreed to. William thus elected, the Archbishop put the Crown upon his Head, and placed him on the Throne in presence of the Nobility, Clergy, &c. where he took an Oath to the same Effect with that of the English Saxon Kings, viz. That he would protect the holy Church and its Governors, that is, the Bishops: That he would govern his People justly and prudently: That he would ordain and keep right Law, and strictly forbid all Rapines and unjust Judgments. To which an eminent Historian adds, That he would behave himself mercifully towards his Subjects, and govern both English and French with equal Impartiality. Hence it is observable, that William, instead of claiming as a Conqueror, accepted the Crown upon the same Terms as his Predecessors the Saxon Kings.

William was a great Benefactor to this Abbey, for, by no less than sixteen Charters, he not only confirmed all their ancient Rights and Immunities, but also granted them greater Privileges and additional Revenues.

In the Year 1189, Richard the First was crowned in this Church with the utmost Pomp and Magnificence, and though it undoubtedly was the most sumptuous Coronation of any till that Time solemnized in this Kingdom; yet it would have been much more glorious, had it not been stained with a barbarous Massacre and Robbery of the Jews; as has been related, Book I. Ch. VII.

Henry the Third erected a Chapel at the East End of the same; the first Stone of which he laid in the Year 1221, and dedicated it to the Virgin Mary.

Some Time after, Henry being informed of the great Decay of the said Church and Steeple, caused the whole to be taken down, in order to rebuild the same in a more spacious and magnificent Manner; and after a great Expence and Labour of twenty-seven Years, having only carried on the Work of this magnificent Fabrick one Pillar West of the Cross Isles, the Manner of Construction was varied by subsequent Builders, who placed the small decorating Columns of eight Pillars in Brass instead of Stone.

Tho' Henry, and divers Abbots, were employed in the Erection of this stately Structure for the Term of thirty-nine Years, yet the Body of the Church was only finished in the Year 1285, in which Condition it continued till Anno 1700, when the said Building, by Length of Time, being greatly decayed, the Parliament granted Money toward repairing the same; which, by subsequent Parliaments, has been continued, not only for effectually repairing all Parts thereof, but likewise for completely finishing the whole Fabrick; and in order to which, the great Tower in the Center was begun to be erected, Anno 1728. But Cash soon after failing, the Work was laid aside till the Year 1733, when more Money being granted by Parliament, the Work was renewed, at the West End of the Church, for repairing the Front, and finishing the Steeples, which are now finished, and greatly excel every thing of its Kind in this Kingdom.

Henry, in the Year 1257, granted to the Abbot and Convent of Westminster, a Market and Fair, as appears by this Charter.

Know ye, that we have granted, and by this our Charter have confirmed to our beloved in Christ, Richard, Abbot of Westminster, and the Convent of the same, that they and their Successors shall for ever keep one Market at Toutbull, on every Monday, and one Fair to be held annually in the same Place, on the Eve, Day and Day following St. Mary Magdalen, unless that Market and Fair should prove prejudicial to the neighbouring Markets and Fairs.

“Wherefore we will, and strictly command, for Us and our Heirs, That the aforesaid Abbot and Convent, and their Successors, may for ever keep one Market at Toutbull every Week on Monday, and one Fair to be yearly held as aforesaid, with all the Liberties and Customs to such-like Market and Fair belonging, unless the said Market and Fair should prove to the Prejudice of the neighbouring Markets and Fairs as aforesaid.

Edward I. as a Monument of his having reduced Scotland, in the Year 1296, brought from thence the famous Marble Stone, whereon the Scottish Kings had for many Ages been crowned, and wherein the People had placed a kind of Fatality; and on which was engraven this Distich:

Ni fallat fatum, Scoti hunc quocunque locatum
Inveniunt lapidem, regnare tenanter ibidem.

Edward caused this Stone to be fixed under the Bottom of a large Wooden Chair, and it has been used as the Inauguration Chair of the Kings of England for many Ages.

In the Year 1299, a Fire, which broke out in the King's Palace, destroyed the Roof, and very No. 112.

much defaced the Abbey Church; which, by the Assistance of the King and his Successors, the Abbots were enabled to repair.

In the Year 1352, Westminster was by Act of Parliament constituted one of the ten Towns in England, where the Staple, or Market for Wool, Leather, Woolfells, Lead, and other Staple Commodities, should be perpetually held.

Upon the humble Petition of the Inhabitants of Westminster, Henry VI. granted them the waste Water of the Royal Conduit in his Palace by Charter.

In the Year 1502, Henry VII. caused the Chapel of the Virgin Mary, and a Tavern adjoining to the East End of the Abbey Church, to be taken down, and on the Site thereof erected the present stately and most magnificent Edifice, denominated Henry VII's Chapel, at the Expence of fourteen thousand Pounds! a very great Sum, if we consider, that Wheat was then sold at five Shillings the Quarter; which, at a Medium of seven Years, appears to be but about a sixth Part of the modern Price.

Abbot Islip, assisted by several Persons of Distinction, laid the first Stone of this Chapel on Behalf of the King, whereon was this Inscription:

Illustrissimus Henricus Septimus, Rex Angliæ & Franciæ, & Dominus Hiberniæ, posuit hanc petram in honore beatæ Virginis Mariæ, xxiiij Die Januarij, Anno Domini Mccccii. & Anno dicti Regis Henrici Septimi decimo octavo.

CHAP. II.

An Account of the Suppression of the Abbey, the converting the same into a Bishoprick, and then into a Collegiate Church.

AT the general Suppression of Religious Houses by Henry VIII. this Abbey was surrendered to him, by William Benson, the Abbot, and seventeen of the Monks, on the 16th of January, Anno 1539, at which Time it appeared to be near double the Value of any other Religious Foundation in the Kingdom; the Revenues whereof amounted to 3977*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.* per Ann. a Sum equal to 20000*l.* at present.

The Monastery thus dissolved, Henry erected the same into a College of Secular Canons, under the Government of a Dean, and appointed William Benson, the last Abbot, first Dean thereof: But this Establishment proved of no long Duration, for, on the 19th of December, Anno 1541, Henry converted the same into a Bishoprick, and constituted Thomas Thirlby Bishop thereof, together with a Dean and twelve Prebendaries; and appointed the whole County of Middlesex (the Parish of Fulham, immediately belonging to the Bishop of London, only excepted) for its Diocese. And for the better Support of the Episcopal Dignity, increased the Revenues of the Bishoprick, with an Addition of the major Part of the Lands which belonged to the late Abbey.

On this Occasion, Westminster became a City; for the making of which, according to the Opinion of the great Lord Chief Justice Coke, nothing else is required, than the Appellation of a Bishop's See. But the Bishoprick being soon after dissolved, the Epithet of City was thereby lost: However, the same, by Complaisance, is still continued.

Thirlby having greatly embezzled the Revenues of his new Bishoprick, was therefore, Anno 1550, translated to Norwich; and the new Bishoprick being dissolved by Edward VI. he restored the Government thereof by a Dean; which continued till Mary's Accession to the Crown,

But upon Queen Elizabeth's Accession, the Monks being again ejected, she, by her Letters Patent of the 21st of May, Anno 1560, erected the same into a College, under the Government of a Dean, and twelve Secular Canons, or Prebendaries; a School-Master, Usher, and forty Scholars, denominated the Queen's, who are educated in the Liberal Sciences preparatory to the University, and provided with all the Necessaries of Life, other than Cloathing, of which they have only a Gown yearly. And on a Table near the Tomb, are inscribed the following Latin and English Verses:
Mors est mœsta nimis, magnos que jungit in imis,
Maxima Mors minimis conjungens ultima primis;
Nullus in orbe fuit Homo vivens, nec valet esse,
Qui non morte ruit; est hinc exire necesse.
Nobilis & Fortis, tibi tu confidere noli;
Omnia sunt Mortis, sibi subdit singula foli.
De Mundi medio magnum mors impia movit,
Anglia pre tedio satis anxia plangere novit:
Corruit Edwardus vario veneratus honore,
Rex nuper ut Nardus fragrans Virtutis odore,
Corde Leopardus, invictus & absque pavore,
Ad rixam tardus, discretus & eucharis ore,
Viribus Armorum quasi gigas ardua gessit,
Colla superborum prudens per Prelia pressit,
Inter Flandrenses Fortuna sibi bene favit,
Ut quoque Wallenses & Scotus suppeditavit.
Rex bonus absque pari strenue sua Regna regebat:
Quod Natura dare potuit, Bonitatis habebat,
Actio Justitiæ, Pax Regni, sanctio Legis,
Et fuga nequitie premunt precordia Regis:

Gloria tota ruit, Regem capit hæc modo fossa.
Rex quandoque fuit, nunc nil nisi pulvis & ossa:
Filius ipse Dei, quem corde colebat & ore,
Dum vixit Rex, & valuit sua magna potestas,
Fraus latuit, Pax magna fuit, regnavit honestas.

Death is too doleful which doth join

The highest Estate full low;

Which coupleth greatest Things with least;

And last with first also.

No Man hath been in World alive,

Nor any may there be,

Which can escape the Dint of Death:

Needs hence depart must we.

O noble and victorious Man,

Trust not unto thy Strength;

For all are subject unto Death;

And all must hence at length.

Most cruel Fate from worldly Stage

Hath wrest a worthy Wight;

To whom all England mourned loud

To see his doleful Plight.

Edward is dead, which was adorn'd,

With divers Graces here,

A King, or fragrant Nardus height,

A gracious Princely Peer.

In Heart the which was Lybard like,

Right puissant, void of Fear:

Most slow to Strife, discreet and wise,

And gracious every where.

In Arms a Giant fierce and fell,

Attempting famous Facts,

Most prudent did subdue the Proud

By Feat of Martial Acts:

In Flanders Fortune gave to him,

By Lot right good Success,

In Wales he wan: The Scottish Rout

With Arms he did suppress.

This King, without his like alive,

Did firmly guide his Land:

And what good Nature could conceive,

He had it plight at Hand.

He was in Justice and in Peace

Excelling: Laws took Place;

Desire to chase all wicked Works,

Did hold this Kings good Grace.

He now doth lie intombed here,

Which furthered each good Thing:

Now nought he is but Dust and Bones,

Which was a worthy King.

The very Son of God, whom erst

This King did love most dear,

Hath given to him immortal Bliss,

For his good living here.

Whilst lived this King, by him all Things

Were in most goodly Plight:

Fraud lay hid, great Peace was kept,

And Honesty had Might.

Life is a Jest, and all Things show it;
 I thought so once, but I know it.
 Of Manners gentle, of Affections mild;
 In Wit a Man, Simplicity a Child;
 With native Humour, temp'ring virtuous Rage;
 Form'd to delight at once and lash the Age.
 Above Temptation in a low Estate,
 And uncorrupted even among the Great.
 A safe Companion, and an easy Friend;
 Unblam'd thro' Life, lamented in the End.
 These are thy Honours! Not that here thy Bust
 Is mix'd with Heroes, or with Kings thy Dust;
 But that the Worthy and the Good shall say,
 Striking their pensive Bosoms, Here lies Gay.

Here lie the Ashes of Mr. John Gay, the warm-low Circumstances of Fortune; Integrity in the thro' the whole Course of his Life.

Favourite of the Muses, he was led by them

O merciful God, what a Prince was this!

Which his short Time in martial Acts spent,
 In Honour of Conquest, that Wonder to me it is,
 How he might compass such Deeds excellent,
 And yet for that his Mind nothing detent;
 All ghostly Health for his Soul to provide,
 Out of this World ere he fatally should slide.

So though I had Tully his Eloquence,

Or of Seneca the grave Morality,

Or of Solomon the perfect Sapience,

Or the sweet Ditties of Dame Calliope;

Yet might I not in Prose, or other Ditty,

Accordingly advance this Prince's Fame,

Or with due Honour to enhaunce the same.

Considering his Acts, whereof Parcel appeare

In this rude Work, with many more left out.

The Time also was lesse than Ten Yeare,

That he so shortly brought all things about,

By Divine Grace furthered out of doubt.

That mightful Lord he holp'd his ghostly Knight,

With Grace and Honour to pass this World's Fight.

And to have Reward double and condigne.

And first, for martial Acts by him done,

To be advanced amongst the Worthies Nine;

And for his Virtues us'd by him estfoone,

With many good Deeds, which he on Earth had done;

Above the Hierarches, he is, I trust, now stall'd,
 That was on Earth, King of Kinges call'd.

The numerous sepulchral Inscriptions in this Church and Cloisters being too many to be inserted within the Compaſs of this History, we refer them to Mr. Dart's Antiquities, and other modern Collections; and shall only observe that there are interred in this Repository, thirteen Kings, sixteen Queens, thirty-two Princes, twenty-nine Princesses, fifteen Dukes, seventeen Dutchesses, eight Marquises, three Marchionesses, thirty-three Earls, twenty-four Countesses, three Viscounts, one Viscountess, thirty-eight Barons, thirty-one Baronesses, Knight and Baronets sixty-eight, Archbishops seven, Bishops eighteen, Abbots twenty-five, Deans four, and Gentlemen, Ladies, and other Persons of Distinction, five hundred and thirty-seven.

CHAP. III.

An Account of the several Parishes within the City and Liberty of Westminster.

St. A N N E's.

THE Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields continuing greatly to increase, the numerous Inhabitants, for want of Places of Worship, were deprived of an Opportunity of publicly celebrating the divine Offices; wherefore the Inhabitants of the new-erected Buildings applied to the Bishop of London, to appoint them a proper Spot of Ground in Kemp's Field, whereon to erect Church, and set out a Church-yard for a common Cemetery. This Request being readily agreed to by the Bishop, the Inhabitants of the said Buildings began to erect a Church and Steeple thereon; which being raised to a considerable Height, the District for the intended Parish was settled with the Vestry of St. Martin's in the Fields; and upon Application to Parliament in the Year 1678, it was erected into a distinct Parish, and discharged from all manner of Dependence upon that of St. Martin's, in all respects, as if it never had belonged to the same; with a Power to erect a Church and Steeple, to be called The Parish Church of St. Anne, within the Liberty of Westminster; with a Right of choosing Parish Officers, to make Rates, and in all other Respects to act as the Inhabitants of the other Parishes within the City and Liberty of Westminster.

Act. Parl.
30 Car. II.

And by the Authority aforesaid, the first Rector was appointed by the Bishop of London; and he and his Successors thereby incorporated and enabled to sue and be sued; and to purchase Lands in Mortmain, not exceeding the yearly Rent of one hundred and twenty Pounds.

Ibid.

And by the said Act of Parliament, the perpetual Advowson of this Rectory was settled upon the Bishop of London, and his Successors; who are in all Respects impowered to exercise the same Authority therein, as in the several Parishes of the City of London; and the Rector and his Successors, to enjoy the like Oblations, Obventions, Mortuaries, Easter Books, and Ecclesiastical Duties, as the Vicar of St. Martin's enjoys; and also, an Annuity of one hundred Pounds, to be annually assessed upon the Parishioners on Easter Thursday, by the Church-Wardens, and three, or more substantial Householders, by a Pound-rate, not exceeding eight Pence upon every twenty Pounds personal Estate, to be confirmed by two Justices of the Peace, dwelling within the City, or Liberty of Westminster; and to be collected by such Persons as the Assessors shall yearly nominate who are to pay the same to the Church-Wardens, and they to the Rector quarterly upon pain of Imprisonment: And for the making such Assessment, the Church-Wardens shall, on every Easter-day, give Notice in the Church, for a Meeting on the Thursday following, for that Purpose; and if the Assessment be not made within the Time appointed, the Persons so offending, to forfeit five Pounds each to the Rector, to be levied by Distress: And all Persons aggrieved by such Assessment, to be relieved by the Justices, at the general quarter Sessions; whose Order shall be final without Appeal.

Ibid.

And by the Authority aforesaid, the Rector, with the Consent of the Burgesses, Church-Wardens and principal Inhabitants, may appoint a Parish Clerk; who shall have the like Allowances, as the Clerk of St. Martin's in the Fields. The first Church-wardens and other Parish Officers to be chosen by the Vestry of St. Martin's in the Fields, and all their Successors by the Laws now in Force. The Church-wardens to raise Money for the Repairs of the Church, after the same Manner as that of the Hundred-Pound Annuity for the Rector.

Ibid.

And by Virtue of the said Act of Parliament, the Rector and his Successors are, in Right of the Church, seized of their Demeans in Fee, in a Parcel of Ground in Kemp's Field, now King's-street, Soho, of the Length of 213 Feet, and Depth of 45, with a Power of granting Building-leases, for the Term of forty-one Years, at four Shillings per Foot yearly for each Foot fronting the Street; and at the Expiration of that Term, the Rector may demise the Houses thereon, for the Term of forty Years, upon a reasonable improved Rent, without taking a Fine.

Though by this Act of Parliament, the afore-said District was converted into a Parish, and the Method of its Government thereby settled; yet no Provision being made therein for finishing the Church and Steeple, they were reduced to a worse Condition than at the Time of petitioning; wherefore the Parishioners found it necessary to apply to Parliament, for a Power to raise Money toward finishing the said Church and Steeple, Rectory-house, and other parochial Works. Whereupon, in the Year 1685, it was by Parliament enacted, that towards raising the Sum required, for accomplishing so good a Design, the Bishop of London was authorized, by an Instrument under his Seal, to constitute thirty Persons to be Commissioners for finishing the same; who were to continue as such, till the Work was finished, and paid for; then they were to become Vestry-men of the new Parish, and as such to continue, till they remove, die, or be displaced for Mal-practices; and as often as a Vacancy happens, the same to be supplied by a proper Person, to be elected by the remaining Members of the said Vestry. And towards finishing this Church and Steeple, the Commissioners were empowered to raise the Sum of five thousand Pounds, (above what the Pews should be sold for) in four Years, at sixteen quarterly Payments, clear of all Deductions; towards the raising of which Sum, all Tenants to be rated at least one fifth of the Sum charged upon Landlords.

This Church being finished, it was, together with its Cemetery, consecrated by Henry, Bishop of London, on the twenty-first of March. Anno 1685

It is a Rectory, situate in Dean-street, Sobo, and dedicated to St. Anne, the Mother of the Virgin Mary.

The Rector of this Parish, in lieu of Tithes, receives from his Parishioners an Annuity of one hundred Pounds; which, together with the Glebe, Surplice Fees, and Easter Book amount to about three hundred Pounds per Annum. But the Parish being taken out of that of St. Martin, the Rector pays neither first Fruits, nor Tenths to the King, nor Procurations to the Bishop, or Arch-deacon.

Officers, &c. in this Parish.

This Parish consists of two Wards, who have each a Burgess and his Assistant; the Vestry, which is select, consists of thirty Members; two Church-Wardens, four Overseers of the Poor, six Constables, four Scavengers, who pay the Raker for cleansing the Streets, and carrying away the Dust, three hundred and thirty Pounds; four Beadles, twenty Watchmen, one thousand three hundred and thirty-seven Houses; and a Workhouse for the Reception of the Poor.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

At the North-east and North-west Angles of Newport-street were situate the City Mansions of the noble Families of Bolingbroke and Newport; on the West Side of the Garden of the latter (where Gerard-street, &c. are situate) was a Military, or Artillery Ground, wherein were exercised the Militia of Middlesex, and trained-bands of Westminster. The only Things remarkable in this Parish at present, are, its beautiful Streets, spacious and handsome Church, and stately Quadrangle, denominated King's-square, but vulgarly Sobo-square; and Part of Leicester-square.

St. CLEMENT's Danes.

The Origin of this Church is of very great Antiquity, as is manifest by the cruel and barbarous Massacre of the Danes in the Reign of Ethelred, Anno 1002, at which Time many of that distressed Nation fled hither for Sanctuary. A farther Proof of the Antiquity of this Church, is, that Harde-Canut, upon his Accession to the Crown, Anno 1039, under Pretence of revenging some Injuries done to his Mother by his late Brother and Predecessor Harold, caused his Corps to be taken from its Place of Sepulture at Westminster; and after causing the same to be decolated by the Hands of the common Hangman, commanded it to be thrown into the River Thames; which being soon after fished up by certain Fishermen, they re-interred it in this Church-yard; which was then the common Cemetery of the Danes in this City.

That this Church was originally erected by the River Side, is manifest from the Place of its Situation, denominated the Strand, a Saxon Appellative, denoting either a Bank, Shore, or Side of a River; and probably founded by that People in the Reign of Ethelred. But by Fleetwood (some Time Recorder of London) we are told, that at the Expulsion of the Danes, none of that Nation were suffered to stay in England, but such as were married to English Women; and the remaining few obliged to reside between the City of London and Island of Thorney (now called Westminster) where they erected a Chapel, which, upon its Consecration, received the Appellation of Ecclesia Clementis Dacorum, in the first of Edward, called the Confessor, Anno 1041.

It is a Rectory, situate on the North Side of the Strand, and dedicated to St. Clement, a Roman Disciple of St. Peter, and fourth Bishop of Rome, and the additional Name of Danes, is taken from the ancient Inhabitants of this Neighbourhood. It being, by Henry the Second, given to the Knights Templars of this City, the Advowson thereof continued in them till the Dissolution of their Order, when it was conferred upon the Prior and Canons of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, who disposed of the same, together with some Lands in the Parish, to Walter Bishop of Exeter, about the Year 1324, in whom and his Successors it continued till the Year 1547, when Edward the Sixth granted it to Edward Duke of Somerset; but upon his Attainder, it reverting to the Crown, the said King, Anno 1552, conferred it upon Sir Thomas Palmer; but it again devolving to the Crown, Queen Elizabeth granted the same to William Lord Burleigh, in whose Descendants, the Earls of Exeter, it still remains.

The present beautiful Church was erected at the Charge of the Parishioners in the Year 1682, and in the Year 1719 the Steeple was raised eighty-five Feet.

The Profits of this Rectory, amount to about five hundred Pounds per Annum.

Officers, &c. in this Parish.

This Parish, which consists of Part of two Liberties, (viz. of Westminster and the Dutchy of Lancaster) has one Burgefs, with his Assistant; two Church-Wardens; five Overseers of the Poor; eight Constables; sixteen Scavengers, who annually pay the Raker, for cleansing the Streets, and carrying away the Dust, the Sum of five hundred and thirty-five Pounds; two Beadles, and twenty-eight Watchmen. Here is a Faculty Vestry, consisting of forty-four Members; sixteen hundred and ninety-one Houses; and a Workhouse for the Reception of the Poor.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

A celebrated Fountain, denominated St. Clement's Well, which was many Ages ago one of the three principal Springs whereat the City Youth on Festival Days used to entertain themselves with a Variety of Diversions: The Well is now covered, and a Pump placed therein, on the East Side of Clement's Inn, and lower End of St. Clement's Lane.

At the Dissolution of the Order of Knights Templars, the Advowson of this Church, together with Lands and five Messuages in the Parish, were conferred upon the Prior and Canons Regular of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre; which Lands and Messuages, I imagine, will appear to have been that Part of the Temple, called the Outer. For, in the Year 1324, the said Prior and Canons having disposed of the same to Walter, Bishop of Exeter, he erected thereon a stately Edifice, as a City Mansion, for himself and his Successors, and denominated the same Exeter-House. This Fabrick being some Time after alienated, it came to the noble Families of Paget and Leicester, and at last to that of Essex; and being since pulled down, a beautiful Street is erected on the Site thereof, by the Appellation of the last noble Possessor.

In the Strand, between the said Essex-house and Milford-lane, was situate the Chapel of St. Esprit, but when, or by whom the same was founded, is unknown.

Almost contiguous to the said Milford-lane, on the West, was situate the Bishop of Bath's Palace, which coming to the Earl of Arundel, it received the Appellation of its new Master; but it at last making way for new Streets, the Titles of the last noble Possessor are still retained in those denominated Arundel and Norfolk.

Here is a Street, from a Well formerly therein, called Holywell-street: This Epithet it probably received from a Chapel, said to have stood near St. Innocent's Church, or St. Mary le Strand.

At the upper End of Wych-street, and lower End of Drury-lane, anciently stood the Houses of the noble Families of Drury and Craven; and as from the former the neighbouring Lane was denominated, so from the latter a beautiful Court received the Name of its Buildings.

The most remarkable Places in this Parish at present are, Clare Market, and the three Inns of Chancery, viz. Clement's, New and Lyon's Inns.

St. GEORGE's, Hanover-Square.

The new Buildings in the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields still continuing to increase and extend themselves over the neighbouring Fields, the Inhabitants were thereby so greatly increased, that neither the Parish-Church, nor its Chapels of Ease, were sufficient to contain one Half thereof; wherefore the Commissioners for building the fifty new Churches within the Bill of Mortality, caused one of the said Churches to be erected in one of the Out-Wards of the said Parish; and the same being finished, it was consecrated on the the 23d of March, Anno 1724, by Edmund, Bishop of London; and, in Honour of his reigning Majesty's Name, was dedicated to St. George the Martyr.

This Church is a Rectory, situate on the East Side of George-street, and near the Square, whence it has its additional Epithet; and the Ground whereon the same is erected was given by Lieutenant General William Stewart, who some Time after bequeathed to this Parish the Sum of four thousand Pounds, towards erecting and endowing a Charity School therein.

This new Parish, consisting of the two Out-Wards of that of St. Martin's in the Fields, was by Act of Parliament constituted a distinct Parish. And the Rector, by the Authority aforesaid, is intitled to all such Tithes, Oblations, Obventions, Mortuaries, Easter-Books, or Offerings, and all other Dues, as the Vicar of St. Martin's formerly used to receive in the two Out-Wards which compose this Parish. And the perpetual Advowson of the Rectory is settled upon the Bishop of London, and his Successors.

The Profits arising to the Rector of this Parish, consisting of Tithes, Surplice-Fees, and Easter-Offerings, are said to amount to about six hundred Pounds per Annum. But the Parish being taken out of that of St. Martin's in the Fields, the only Disbursement on account of the Cure, is ten Shillings Procuration, which is paid to the Bishop rather by Complement than Right.

Officers, &c. in this Parish.

This Parish, instead of two, at present consists of four Wards, denominated Conduit-street, Grosvenor-street, Dover-street, and the Out-Ward, which contain the following Officers, &c. viz. An Assistant Burgefs; a select Vestry of one hundred and one Members; two Church-Wardens; six Overseers of the Poor; four Constables; one Headborough; six Scavengers, who annually pay the Raker, for cleansing the Streets, and carrying away the Dust, the Sum of nine hundred Pounds; four Surveyors of the Highways; four Beadles; thirty-nine Watchmen; nineteen hundred and nine Houses.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

The only Things remarkable before its Erection, were two of the London Conduits, and a Ducking-pond near the South-east Angle of Grosvenor-street; and three Forts on the Line of Communication, drawn round the City and Suburbs of London, by Order of Parliament in the Year 1643. One at the lower End of Brudon-street, another at the Place called Oliver's Mount, and the third at the End of Tybourn-lane, Hide-Park Road.

At the North End of Halfmoon-street, in a Place denominated May-Fair, is annually held a Fair, which begins on May-Day, and continues for the Space of fourteen Days; which Fair, in the Year 1705, was put down, but is again revived.

The Remarkables at present are, the handsome Parish Church; four Chapels of Ease, viz. in Conduit-street, Audley-street, May-fair and Knight's-bridge: The first of which, denominated Trinity-Chapel, is modelled after King James the Second's Field-Chapel, which was a Wooden Building erected in his Camp at Hounslow Heath, Anno 1686, whence it was brought to Town, and placed in Glass-house-street, at the North-east Corner of Old Bond-street, where it continued, for the Use of that Neighbourhood, till the Year 1716, when it was demolished, and the present Chapel erected for the same Use. This Parish likewise contains two of the City Conduits; Part of Hyde-Park; two spacious and magnificent Squares, in one of which is a stately gilt Equestrian Statue of his late Majesty King George the First; Chelsea Wa-

St. JAMES's.

The Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields continuing greatly to increase in new Buildings, another Church, or Chapel, was deemed necessary for the Accommodation of the numerous Inhabitants; wherefore Henry, Earl of St. Alban's, and the neighbouring Inhabitants, erected the present Church, at the Expence of above seven thousand Pounds.

Upon the Death of the said Earl, Charles the Second, by his Letters Patent of the 31st of May, Anno 1684, granted the said Church and Cemetery, in Trust, to Thomas Lord Jermin (Nephew to the said Earl) and his Heirs forever; who thereupon assigned over the said Church, with its Appurtenances, to Sir Walter Clarges, Bart. and others, in Trust, as a Chapel, for the Use of the Inhabitants of that Part of the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields; whereupon it was consecrated by Henry, Bishop of London, on Sunday the 13th of July in the same Year, and dedicated to the Honour of God, by the Appellation of St. James in the Fields.

The Church being consecrated, and a District for a new Parish set out, Application was made to Parliament in the Year 1685, to get the said District made Parochial; wherefore the Parliament did constitute the same a Parish, distinct from, and independent of, that of St. Martin's in the Fields; and the same to be called The Parish of St. James within the Liberty of Westminster; whereof Thomas Tennison, D. D. Vicar of St. Martin's in the Fields, was appointed the first Rector; and by the same Authority, he and his Successors, Rectors of this Parish, were incorporated, and enabled to sue and be sued, by the said Name, in all Courts and Places in this Realm; and that a House be erected on Part of the Church-yard, or near the same, for a Habitation for the Rector, with a Power of purchasing in Mortmain, Lands to the Amount of two hundred Pounds per Annum, over and above the then Endowments: And as a farther Support for the Rector he is intitled to all such Tithes, Oblations, Obventions, Mortuaries, Easter-Books, and all other Dues, as the Vicar of St. Martin's receives.

And it is further enacted, by the Authority aforesaid, that the Patronage, or Advowson of and to this Rectory, after the Death or Avoidance of the first Rector, shall be in the Bishop of London and his Successors, and Thomas Lord Jermin, and his Heirs for ever; the first Rector to be collated by the Bishop of London, and the next by the Lord Jermin, or his Heirs; and for ever after, the Bishop of London to present twice to Lord Jermin's once. And the Incumbents to be instituted and inducted as other Rectors are, and to enjoy in all Respects the same Ecclesiastical Duties as the Vicar of St. Martin's in the Fields. But some Time ago, the Lord Jermin having by a Deed, enrolled in Chancery, conveyed his Right of Presentation to this Rectory, to the Bishop of London, and his Successors, they are become sole Patrons thereof.

And by the same Authority, the Rector of this Parish is seized in Demean, as of Fee, in Right of the Church, of a certain Toft of Ground on the North Side of the same in Piccadilly; and likewise of another Parcel of Ground, whereon stood Stables; together with five Houses in Jermin-street. These being the Glebe belonging to the Cure, the Rector is authorized to demise the Houses thereon by Lease, for the Term of forty one Years, upon an improved Rent, without a Fine.

Ibid. And by the same Authority, the two first Church-wardens were appointed; and the several Vestrymen of St. Martin's in the Fields, Inhabitants of this Parish, together with the Commissioners that were nominated by the Bishop of London, as Supervisors of the Building of the Church, were constituted Vestrymen, and in conjunction with the Rector, impowered to nominate so many additional Vestrymen as would make the Number (with the Rector and Church-wardens) thirty-four; any six whereof (the Rector, or his Deputy, and one of the Church-wardens, to be always two) to have the same Power as the Vestry of St. Martin's in the Fields; and upon the Death, or Removal of a Vestryman, to constitute another.

Ibid. And by the Authority aforesaid, the Rector, with the Approbation of the Vestry, may appoint an Assistant-Precacher, and a Clerk, both to be in Priests Orders, with a Sexton, or Sextons, to be continued during Life, or good Behaviour: The Assistant to have a Stipend of one hundred Pounds per Annum, to be yearly raised by an Assessment upon the Inhabitants; the Parish Clerk a Salary of thirty Pounds per Annum, out of the Profits arising from the Pews, together with the same Dues and Perquisites received by the Clerk of St. Martin's; and the Sextons to have the same Salaries, Dues, &c. as those of St. Martin's in the Fields; and the Parish Officers to be chosen after the same Manner as those of the said St. Martin's.

And by the same Authority, the Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of the Parish is reserved to the Bishop of London and his Successors.

The Vestry is select, consisting of thirty-four Members; two Burgeesses, with their Assistants; two Church-wardens; eight Overseers of the Poor; seven Constables; fourteen Scavengers, who pay the Raker, for cleansing the Streets, and carrying away the Dust, the Sum of nine hundred Pounds per Annum; four Beadles, and fifty-four Watchmen; three thousand three hundred and seventeen Houses.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

The Site whereon Marshall-street, part of Little Broad-street and Marlborough Market are now erected, was denominated the Pest-Field, from a Lazaretto therein, which consisted of thirty-six small Houses, for the Reception of poor and miserable Objects of this Neighbourhood that were afflicted with a direful Pestilence, Anno 1665. And at the lower End of Marshall-street, contiguous to Silver-street, was a common Cemetery, wherein some thousands of Corps were buried that died of that dreadful and virulent Contagion.

The Remarkables at present are, the handsome Church and Steeple; two Chapels of Ease; a Presbyterian, Anabaptist, and a French Meeting-house; three Charity Schools; two magnificent Squares; two Markets, and Part of a third; with a Work-house for the Reception of the Parish Poor.

St JOHN Baptist's.

The House denominated the Savoy, (to which this is a Chapel) was at first erected by Peter, Earl of Savoy, (Uncle to Eleanor, Consort to Henry the Third) in the Year 1245. But Peter soon after conferring the same upon the Fraternity of Mountjoy, Queen Eleanor purchased it of them for the Use of her Son Edmund, Earl of Lanca- ster; and the same being pulled down some Time after, Henry, Earl of Lancaster, about the Year 1328, rebuilt it in such a sumptuous and magnificent manner, that it far excelled all other Structures in the Kingdom, at the Expence of fifty-two thousand Marks.

In 1381, this stately Palace, with all its sumptuous Furniture, was destroyed by Wat Tyler and the Kentish Rebels. The Site thereof devolving to the Crown, Henry the seventh began to re-edify the same about the Year 1509, (as it at present appears) for an Hospital for the Reception and Entertainment of one hundred distressed Objects; but that Prince not living to finish the same, Henry, his Son and Successor, in the Year 1511, not only granted his Manor of the Savoy to Richard Bishop of Winchester, and others, Executors of his Father's Will, towards finishing the said Hospital; but likewise by his Charter of the fifth of July, Anno 1513, constituted them a Body Politick and Corporate, to consist of a Master and five secular Chaplains, and four Regulars, in Honour of Jesus Christ, his Mother, and St. John Baptist, with a Power to purchase, in Mortmain, Lands to the Amount of five hundred Marks per Annum, clear of Reprises; and the Foundation to be denominated, The Hospital of King Henry the seventh, late King of England, of the Savoy.

When this Hospital was suppressed by Edward the Sixth, in the Year 1553, the Revenues thereof were found to amount to five hundred and twenty nine Pounds fifteen Shillings and seven Pence per Annum. See Bridewell Hospital, Far-rington Ward within.

His Sister Mary, succeeding to the Crown in the Year 1557, refounded this Hospital, and endowed it a new; when her Ladies and Maids of Honour, at their Expence, completely furnished the same with all Necessaries. But it being again suppressed, upon the Accession of Queen Elizabeth to the Crown, the Apartments thereof are at present appropriated to divers Uses, such as a Church, which claims an extraparochial Jurisdiction, a Chapel for the Accommodation of French Protestants, Lodgings for private Families, and Barracks and a Prison for Soldiers.

The Church of St. Mary le Strand being destroyed by Edward, Duke of Somerset, the Inhabitants of the Parish united themselves to those of the Precinct of the Savoy, the Chapel whereof served the united Body for the Celebration of the Divine Offices, till the Year 1723, when the Parishioners of St. Mary le Strand left this Chapel, and repaired to the new Church erected for them in the Strand, (at the Charge of the Publick) by the Appellation of their ancient Church.

This being a Chapelry, there are no Disbursements on account of the Cure, or Receipts for Support of the Chaplain, than the Surplice Fees, and Contributions of the Inhabitants.

St. JOHN the Evangelist's.

Act. Parl.
1 Geor. II.

The Parish of St. Margaret's, Westminster, being greatly increased in the Number of Houses and Inhabitants, it was judged necessary to erect one of the fifty-two new Churches therein, for the better Accommodation of the numerous Inhabitants, in the Performance of their religious Duties, which being no sooner erected, and a District for a Parish marked out, than the Inhabitants thereof applied to Parliament, to have the same erected into a Parish: Wherefore the Parliament, answerable to their Petition, not only converted the said District into a Parish; but likewise towards providing and settling a Maintenance for the Rector thereof, and his Successors, granted the Sum of two thousand five hundred Pounds, to be laid out in a Purchase of Lands, Tenements, &c. in Fee Simple, for their Use.

And over and above the Profits that shall arise from the said Purchase, it is likewise by Parliament enacted, that the Sum of one hundred and twenty-five Pounds, as a farther Provision for the said Rector and his Successors, shall be yearly raised by an equal Pound-rate upon the Inhabitants, to be assessed by the Rector, Church-Wardens and Vestry, on every Easter-Tuesday, or fourteen Days after; and in case the said Rector, Church-wardens and Vestry shall refuse, or neglect to make such Assessment within the Time aforesaid, he, or they so refusing or neglecting, to forfeit to the King the Sum of one hundred Pounds for every such Offence. And the Assessment, when made, to be confirmed by Justices of the Peace in the City, or Liberty of Westminster; and the Collectors to be chosen by the Vestry; who upon their refusing to act, are to forfeit to the King the Sum of one hundred Pounds.

And in consideration, that by the Division of St. Margaret's, the Curate thereof, and the Chaplain of Totbill-fields Chapel, will thereby become great Sufferers; the Rector of this Church, and his Successors, are for ever to pay to the Curate of St. Margaret's aforesaid, the Sum of seventeen Pounds eight Shillings and eleven Pence per Annum, by quarterly Payments, without any Deduction; and also to pay to the said Chaplain annually, during his natural Life, or Continuance in the said Cure, the Sum of fifty-two Pounds ten Shillings.

And to this, as well as all the other new Churches, the King to have the first Presentation; and for ever after, the Advowson to be in the Dean and Chapter of Westminster. And to prevent this Rectory from being held in Commendam, all Licenses and Dispensations for holding the same are, by the said Act of Parliament, declared null and void.

The Church was consecrated on the 24th of June, 1728.

The weekly Monday Market, and the annual Fair called Magdalen's, granted by Henry the third to the Abbot and Canons of Westminster, Anno 1257, were held, the first in Margaret-street, (near the Horse-ferry) where its Name is still preserved; and the latter, at the upper End of the said Street, in Totbill-fields; in which Fields was a Fort upon the Line of Communication, drawn round the City of London and Suburbs by Order of Parliament, in the Year 1643. In this Work, a Lazaretto was erected in the Year 1665, for the Reception of poor Objects oppressed with the Plague; which Place at present is denominated The seven Houses.

The only Remarkable at present is the stately and beautiful Church.

St. MARGARET's.

K. Edward being engaged in rebuilding the Conventual Church of St. Peter, in a very magnificent Manner, imagined that it would very much tend to the Dishonour of his new and stately Edifice, to have the neighbouring People assemble therein, for the Performance of their religious Duties, as they had formerly done in the old. Therefore, to prevent all Inconveniencies, or Annoyances (that might arise from such Assemblies) to the Monks, in the Celebration of the divine Offices, Edward, about the Year 1064, caused to be erected a Church on the North Side of St. Peter's, for the Use of the neighbouring Inhabitants, and dedicated the same to St. Margaret, the Virgin and Martyr of Antioch.

Monumental Inscriptions.

On the South Side of the Altar is an ancient Tomb, erected in the Depth of Popish Ignorance and Superstition, whereon is the Portraiture of Dame Mary Bylling, over whose Head is profanely ingraven that of an old Man, representing the Almighty, emitting a refulgent Ray upon the Head of the Virgin Mary, (on the sinister Side of Bylling) from whose Mouth on a Label are these Words: "Ecce Ancilla Domini; fiat mihi secundum Verbum tuum." And on the dexter Side an Angel, with the following Words before his Mouth, on a Label: "Ave Maria, Gratia plena." And on a Label issuing from the Mouth of Mary Bylling, these Words: "Blessed Lady, for thy glorious Salutacion, bryng our Sowles to everlasting Salvation." And on two Scrolls on each Side of her, the following Words: "Blessyd Trinitie, on me have Mercy. Blessyd Trinitie, on me have Mercy." The four above-mentioned Figures, as well as the several Inscriptions, are engraven on small Plates of Brasse inlaid in the top Stone; as is also the following Inscription on the Side hereof:

Sacred to the Memory of that great Example of Piety and true Christianity, Mr. Emery Hill, late Inhabitant of this Parish, and a worthy Benefactor to the same, who departed this Life the 27th of June 1677, in the 68th Year of his Age, and lyeth here interred.

A Person accomplished with all christian Graces and Virtues, and most eminent for his Charity. Besides what he gave in his Life-time, he left by his Will at his Death,

1. The Revenue of several Houses in Westminster, for ever, for the Use of the poor Children of the King's Hospital in Tutbill Fields, of which he was one of the Governours. 2. The Sum of one hundred Pounds, for the building of three Alms-houses in Petty France. 3. Seven Pounds per Annum, in Fee, for the teaching of the poor Children of the Parish. 4. One hundred Pounds for a Stock of Coals for ever, for the Use of the Poor of the Parish. 5. Fifty Pounds to the Children of Christ's Hospital in London. 6. A bountiful Gift for the setting up poor decayed Tradesmen. 7. He left a plentiful Provision for the building of twelve Alms-houses, a Chapel and School for six poor Men and their Wives, six poor Widows, and teaching of twenty Children, with sufficient Maintenance for the same for ever. 8. More fifty Pounds, for the Use of the Poor of the Company of Brewers. Besides several other charitable Bequests, which (says the Inscription) we have not room to mention.

Officers, &c. in this Parish.

The Vestry is neither select, nor general, only such are admitted as have served Church-wardens; seven Burgeses and their Assistants; two Church-wardens; eight Overseers of the Poor; fifteen Constables; one Headborough; sixteen Scavengers, who pay the Raker, for cleansing the Streets, and carrying away the Dust, the Sum of four hundred and fifty-one Pounds per Annum; six Beadles; thirty-six Watchmen; three thousand two hundred and eighty-two Houses; and a Work-house for the Reception of the Parish Poor.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

The District which this City (now containing two Parishes) at first occupied, consisted of an Island, anciently denominated Thorney, as already mentioned.

The next great Antiquity in this Parish, is the stately and magnificent Structure, called the Abbey, or Collegiate Church, already accounted for. But when, or by whom the Royal Palace in this City was at first erected, is unknown, though probably by Edward, surnamed the Confessor, seeing he is not only the first Prince we read of, that resided in this City, but that he made the same as it were his continual Habitation. Be that as it will, William Rufus caused a spacious Hall to be added thereto; and at his Return from Normandy, kept the high Festival of Christmas therein, Anno 1099.

Hen.Hun.
Hist.

In this Hall, and other Rooms of his Palace, Henry the Third, on New-Years-Day, Anno 1236, caused to be entertained six thousand poor Men, Women and Children, for the Welfare of himself and Family: And some Time after, the said Prince, in the Year 1241, sumptuously entertained his Nobility, and the Pope's Legate, in the said Hall at Christmas; when, to his great Dishonour and that of the Kingdom, he preferred the Legate to the chief Seat at Table, placing himself on his Right and the Archbishop of York on his Left Hand, to the great Displeasure of his Nobility, both Spiritual and Temporal.

But of all the Royal Entertainments that ever were given in this Hall, or perhaps in any other, that (if a certain Monk may be credited) given by the said King, at the Nuptials of his Brother, Richard Earl of Cornwall, Anno 1243, was the most sumptuous; for, according to my Author, the Number of Dishes at that Feast amounted to above thirty thousand. If we admit the Dishes to have been each but a Foot in Diameter, the present Hall, which is much bigger than that in the Time of Henry the third, would (exclusive of Company) only contain fifteen thousand and forty-eight of such Dishes.

At a Royal Entertainment given in this Hall, at Whitsuntide, Anno 1317, by Edward the Second to his Nobility, a Woman in a fantastical Dress, representing that of a Comedian, entered the Hall on Horseback, where, with an uncommon Assurance,

Ibid. Our Lord the King may take Notice, that he has not kindly regarded those Knights who faithfully served his Father and himself with their Lives and Fortunes; but has too much enriched others, who never performed any thing considerable.

Ibid. The Woman being pursued and apprehended, she readily acknowledged, that she was employed and paid by a certain Knight for that Service; who being thereupon apprehended, boldly declared, that he had done it with no other View than that to the King's Honour; which being taken into Consideration, together with the Contents of the said Letter, which were incontestable Facts, they were soon after both discharged.

This great Hall becoming very ruinous, Richard the Second, in the Year 1397, re-edify'd it, as it at present appears, together with the Buildings on the East and West Sides thereof, where the Office and Court of Exchequer, &c. are kept. This Edifice was no sooner finished, than it received the Appellation of the New Palace, to distinguish it from the old Palace at the South End of the Hall, wherein the two Houses of Lords and Commons at present assemble.

Stow. Sur. Lond. In the Year 1399, the King kept the High Festival of Christmas therein; during which Time ten thousand Persons were plentifully entertained in it and other Rooms of the Palace, for whose Supply were daily killed about eighty Oxen, and three hundred Sheep, besides a vast Number of Fowls.

In this Hall are held the three great Courts of Justice, viz. the Chancery, King's Bench and Common Pleas; as are also the several Coronation Feasts.

Ibid. Adjoining to the South-east Angle of this Hall, and North End of the old Palace, King Stephen founded a Chapel, and dedicated the same to St. Stephen the Protomartyr. But Edward the Third having, in the Year 1347, rebuilt the same in a very magnificent manner, converted it into a Collegiate Church, and placed therein a Dean, twelve secular Canons, twelve Vicars, four Clerks, six Choiristers, a Verger and a Chapel-keeper.

Ibid. And in the Year after, Edward, by his Letters Patent, endowed the same with his Hospitium, or great House in Lombard-street, Lands in Yorkshire, and an Annuity out of his Treasury, to make up the Produce of the said House and Lands five hundred Pounds per Annum, till he should settle an Estate thereon of the like yearly Value; and adjoining to the Thames Side, not only erected handsome Apartments for their Reception, but likewise built for their Use in the Little Sanctuary in Little King-street, a very large and strong Bell Tower, and placed therein three very great Bells, to be rung on solemn Occasions, such as Coronations, triumphal Shews, Funerals of Princes, and their Obits.

Ibid. And for the greater Convenience of the Dean and Canons, (who, upon the Erection of the Eastern Part of the new Palace by Richard the Second, were removed into certain Houses in Channel, alias Canon-row) and as an additional Embellishment to the said stately Chapel, John Chamber, M. D. Physician to Henry the Eighth, and last Dean of the same, caused to be erected adjoining to the North Side thereof a magnificent Cloister, at the Expence of eleven thousand Marks.

Ibid. The Revenues of this Collegiate Chapel, at its Suppression, amounted to one thousand and eighty-five Pounds ten Shillings and five Pence per Ann. and the same being surrendered to Ed- ward the Sixth, it was appropriated for the Reception of the Representatives of the Commons of England, who have ever since continued to meet therein every Sessions of Parliament, (except when summoned by the King's Writ to Oxford) and is at present called the House of Commons.

Contiguous to this Chapel, on the South, was that of our Lady of the Pew, whose Image therein being one of the first Class, had many religious Offices celebrated, and rich Offerings made to it: For Edward the Third, Anno 1369, gave to John Bulwich ten Marks per Annum for a daily Celebration before the said Statue; and Richard the Second, upon the Destruction of Wat Tyler, repaired thither, when, after returning Thanks for his great Success, he made considerable Offerings to the celebrated Wooden Deity; which was reduced to Ashes, together with its Chapel and Treasure, by a casual Fire, in the Year 1452.

The new Palace Yard being anciently inclosed with a Wall, there were four Gates therein; the only one at present remaining is that on the East, which leads to Westminster stairs; and the three others that are demolished, were, that on the North, which led to the Woolstaple; that on the West, called Highgate, (a very beautiful and stately Edifice) was situate at the East End of Union-street; but it having occasioned great Obstructions to the Members of Parliament in their Passage to and from their respective Houses, the same was taken down in the Year 1706, as was also the third, at the North End of St. Margaret's-lane, Anno 1731, on the same Account.

Within this Inclosure (till of late) stood a great Stone Bell Tower, which was erected on the following Occasion: A certain poor Man, in an Action of Debt, being fined the Sum of thirteen Shillings and four Pence, Randolphus Ingham, Chief Justice of the King's-Bench, commiserating his Case, caused the Court Roll to be eraz'd, and the Fine reduced to six Shilling and eight Pence; which being soon after discovered, Ingham was amerced in a pecuniary Mulct of eight hundred Marks; which was employed in erecting the said Bell Tower on the North Side of the said Inclosure, opposite Westminster-hall Gate; in which Tower was placed a Bell and a Clock, which striking hourly, was to remind the Judges in the Hall of the Fate of their Brother, in order to prevent all dirty Work for the future. However, this Fact seems to have been forgot by Catlyn, Chief Justice of the King's-Bench in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, by his attempting the Rasure of a Court Roll, which Southcote, his Brother Judge, instead of assenting to, plainly told him, that he had no Inclination to build a Clock-house.

On the West Side of this Tower was a beautiful Fountain, with divers Spouts, which, on solemn Occasions, used plentifully to flow with Wine for the Entertainment of the Populace; and from which, as has been already observed, the neighbouring Inhabitants, at other Times, received the waste Water for their necessary Occasions.

Without the North Wall and Gate of the New Palace-yard was situate the Woolstaple, established here by Edward the Third, and wherein (the Name whereof is still remaining) was weighed all the Wool that came to the City of London and Town of Westminster; and adjoining to the same, on the North-east, were divers Houses, erected for the Reception of the Canons of the Collegiate Chapel of St. Stephen, whereby it was denominated Canon-row, but afterwards corruptly Channel-row:

About the middle of this Row, was the Water-course denominated Long-ditch, over which, at the End of Gardiner's-lane in King-street, Matilda, Consort to Henry the First, erected a Bridge for the Convenience of Passage.

At the North End of King-street, and Corner of Downing-street, was a very handsome Stone Gate, which was erected by Henry VIII. Anno 1532, for a Communication between his Palace of Whitehall and St. James's-Park, by a Passage over the same: But this, like the Gates already mentioned, occasioning great Obstructions in the Passage of Coaches, it was taken down a few Years ago: And now is opened a large well-built Street called Parliament-street, which stretches from Whitehall in a right Line, between and parallel with King-street and Channel-row, to the North End of New Palace-yard.

From the South-east Corner of New Palace-yard, is erected the most beautiful Stone-bridge in the whole World, of which hereafter. And from the North End of this Bridge is built a spacious Street called Bridge-street, direct North into King-street, which by a late Act of Parliament is now continuing with lofty Buildings, in a direct Line into St. James's-Park, to open at the Avenue of Storie's-gate.

In the Almonry, vulgarly the Ambry (so denominated from the Alms of the Abbey being distributed there) was a Chapel dedicated to St. Catharine, and not, according to Stow, to St. Anne; but when or by whom the same was founded, I cannot learn. Near to this Chapel, Abbot Islip, Anno 1474, erected the first Printing-press that ever was in England; and William Caxton, a Citizen and Mercer of London, who brought the same from Holland, became the first Printer.

In Petty France was a Chapel, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, but of what Antiquity is unknown; when Henry VIII. erected Westminster into an Episcopal See, he granted the same to the Dean and Chapter, which was confirmed by Queen Elizabeth, upon her converting the same into a Collegiate Church.

The antient Palace in this City not having been used as the Royal Residence since the twenty-third of Henry VIII. Anno 1532, the several Apartments therein have been appropriated to divers Uses; two of which, for the Reception of the Houses of Lords and Commons, and others occupied by the Courts of Star-Chamber, Requests, and Wards and Liveries; but these Courts being found very oppressive to the People, they are all dissolved, and the Rooms wherein they were held, almost useless. But the Courts of Exchequer and Dutchy of Lancaster, with the Receipt of the Exchequer, are still kept in their respective Rooms. And in the great Hall, (which at first was only used for Royal Banquets, and Feasts for refreshing the Poor) since the Time of Henry III. have been held the Chief Courts of the Kingdom, which were appointed to be held there on the following Occasion.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

The several Courts of Justice having antiently attended the King where-ever he resided, proved not only very troublesome and chargeable to the People, but the Course of Justice was thereby greatly obstructed: For the redressing of these Grievances, Henry III. in the Year 1224, appointed, that the several Courts itinerant should, for the future, be held in the great Hall of his Palace at Westminster, at certain Times in the Year called Terms; in which Place, and at such Times, the Courts of Chancery, King's-Bench and Common-Pleas have been held ever since, unless it were upon very extraordinary Emergencies. This Hall is also used for Royal Banquets, the Trial of Peers, and others impeached by the House of Commons.

At the West End of the Little Sanctuary are the Remains of a prodigious strong Stone Building, of two hundred and ninety Feet square, or seventy-two Feet and a Half the Length of each Side, and the Walls in Thickness no less than twenty-five Feet! This Fabrick originally had but one Entrance, or Door below, and that in the East Side, with a Window hard by, which seems to have been the only one below the Height of twenty-two Feet of the Building, where the Wall is reduced to three Feet in Thickness, and contains four Windows about the Height of ten, and Width of three Feet nine Inches, which are still to be seen in the South Side, where the narrowed Wall still remains, about the Height of twelve Feet.

The Area of this exceeding strong Building, (exclusive of the arched Cavities in the Walls) by a Wall from East to West, of two Feet ten Inches in Thickness, is divided into two Spaces of nine Feet ten Inches each in Width, representing a Frame for Bells; which plainly evinces it to be the strong Bell Tower (as already mentioned) that was erected in the Little Sanctuary by Edward III. for the Use of the Collegiate Church of St. Stephen; and not, as Strype ridiculously imagines it to have been, the Church of the Holy Innocents; for that was the Church of St. Mary le Strand. This strong Tower at present is made use of as a Tavern or Wine Vault.

On the North Side of this Tower lies Thieving-lane, so denominated from Thieves passing that Way to the Gatehouse Prison, during the Continuance of the Privileges of the Sanctuary. This Gatehouse, together with that, and the additional Building on the East, were erected by Walter Warfield, Butler to the Abbey, in the Reign of Edward III. the first for a common Gaol; and the Building on the East Side of the Dean's-yard Gate for the Bishop of London's Prison for Clerks Convict.

In the Vestry Room of St. Margaret's Church are divers Sets of Weights both Troy and Averdupois, viz. 1. A Nest of the former, containing thirteen different Sizes, the biggest of which being two hundred and fifty-six Ounces, and the smallest one sixteenth Part of an Ounce. 2. Of Penny-weights, seven Sizes, from one to twenty Penny-weights. 3. Of Grain Weights, seven Sizes, from one to twelve Grains; and of the latter seven Sizes, the smallest one Pound and the biggest fifty-six: Which several Weights being compared on the 21st of Aug Anno 1675, by Robert White, Clerk of Westminster-Market, with those of the National Standards kept in the Exchequer, they were found exactly to agree, not only in Weight and Form, as if cast in the same Moulds, but also of the same Metal and Workmanship; nay, even in the Resemblance of the Bags wherein the respective Weights were kept: But these of St. Margaret's being dated Anno 1588, and those in the Exchequer Anno 1601, he therefore concludes, that St. Margaret's are thirteen Years older than the Standards. But the other Reasons brought to support this his Opinion, viz. their Agreement in Weight, Form, Metal, curious Engravings, and Bags, seem to me, that, instead of answering what they were brought for, they rather seem to prove them of the same Original. But as neither White, nor any of the present Inhabitants, know how, nor when the said Weights were brought hither, I shall therefore endeavour to shew the Time and Occasion of their being brought to this Place.

The People having been grievously imposed upon by false Weights and Measures in most Parts of the Kingdom; for the redressing of which, it was by Parliament, in the Year 1496, enacted, that several Knights, Citizens, Barons of the Cinque Ports, and Burgeesses in Parliament, should receive proper Sets of the sundry Sorts of Weights and Measures the King had caused to be made in Brass, according to the original Standards in the Exchequer, to be deposited in such Places as are mentioned in the said Act, where they were to remain remain as perpetual Patterns for the Inhabitants of the several Counties, Cities and Towns to make their respective Weights and Measures by, for the Ease and Safety of the Subjects in all Parts of the Kingdom.

Among the Cities and Town mentioned in the aforeſaid Act of Parliament for the Cuſtody of the ſaid Patterns, the Town of Westminster is appointed the Repository for the County of Middleſex; but as Westminster, at that Time ſent no Representatives to Parliament, I imagine that the ſeveral Weights and Measures aſſign'd for the Uſe of the County of Middleſex, were conſign'd to the principal Inhabitants of this Place, who depoſited them in the Room wherein they are ſtill kept.

But if, according to the Lord-Mayor of London's Letter to the Lord High-Treaſurer, Anno 1581, complaining that the Standard of Weights was loſt, we have then reaſon to believe, that another was provided in the Year 1588, according to the Date of St. Margaret's Weights; in which Moulds probably not only theſe, but likewise all thoſe for the ſeveral Parts of the Kingdom, were caſt; and perhaps ſome Time after, the new Standard being loſt, recourſe was had to the neighbouring Weights for reſtoring the ſame according to the Date of 1601.

The Remarkables in this City at preſent are, the old and new Palaces, with their ſpacious Hall, wherein the Houſes of Lords and Commons aſſemble, the Courts of Juſtice ſit, and the Receipt of the Exchequer kept; the ſtately and magnificent Abbey, or Collegiate Church, with its Appendage, the incomparable Chapel of Henry VII. the Churches of St. Margaret and St. John the Evangelist; four Chapels of Eaſe; two Meeting-houſes; a Market-place; the great Repository of Records belonging to the Exchequer; the King's, Cotton's and College Libraries; a College; fix Charity-Schools; three Hoſpitals; ten Alms-houſes; a Pariſh Workhouſe; a Houſe of Correction; a Priſon, part of St. James's beautiful Park, and the Bridge acroſs the Thames.

In the Reign of Henry VIII. the Royal Palace at Westminster being almoſt deſtroyed by Fire, the King, with his Court, went to reſide at his Palace of Bridewell; but having a greater Inclination to York-houſe, purchaſed the ſame of Cardinal Wolſey, the Archbiſhop of that See, (and not, according to divers Hiſtorians, that it devolved to the Crown upon Wolſey's being found guilty of a Premunire) who, in the Year 1530, ſuffered a Recovery thereof to ſeveral Perſons in Truſt for the King's Uſe, by the Name of one Meſſuage, two Gardens and three Acres of Ground, with the Appurtenances in the Town of Westminster, called York-place. From which Time it continued the Royal Reſidence till its fatal Cataſtrophe in the Year 1697, when it was wholly conſumed by Fire; and inſtead of being rebuilt, the Site thereof has been granted by ſucceeding Princes, to divers of the Nobility, and other Perſons of Diſtinction, who have erected ſeveral ſtately Edifices thereon.

Henry was no ſooner poſſeſſed of this magnificent Palace, than he cauſed to be erected a ſtately Manſion at St. James's; and for the Uſe and Service of it, as well as that of Whitehall, incloſed a beautiful Spot of Ground, and converted it into a Park for the Accommodation of both Palaces; which Work was no ſooner accompliſhed, than he cauſed to be erected the preſent ſtately Gate, oppoſite the Banqueting-houſe; to which he added a magnificent Gallery for the Accommodation of the Royal Family, Nobility, &c. to ſit in, to behold the ſeveral Juſtings and other Military Exercises in the Tilt-yard, which was ſo denominated from ſuch Martial Practices.

This Church, dedicated to St. Martin, a Hungarian Saint, and formerly ſituate in the Fields, is of great Antiquity, as is manifeſt by a Controverſy in the Year 1222, between Euface Biſhop of London, and the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, on the one Part; and William, the Abbot, and Canons of Westminster, on the other, concerning the Exemption of the Church and Convent of the latter, from the Jurisdiction of the former.

This Diſpute was adjusted by the Arbitration of Stephen, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Biſhops of Winton and Sarum, and the Priors of Merton and Dunſtable. By whoſe Award, the Abbey of Westminster, and Pariſh of St. Margaret, were exempted from the Jurisdiction of the Biſhop of London. And as by the ſaid Award, the Church of St. Martin, with the Garden (part of which is ſtill denominated Covent-Garden) that belonged to the Abbot and Monks of Westminster, appear to have been independent of St. Margaret's Pariſh, altho' ſurrounded by the ſame; it might therefore at firſt have been erected a Chapel for the Uſe of the Monks when they repaired to their ſaid Garden, eſpecially conſidering they were contiguous. Be that as it will, the Time of its Foundation cannot be more uncertain, than that when it was conſtituted a Pariſh: However, the latter muſt have happened before 1363, for in that Year John — was appointed Vicar thereof, on the Reſignation of Thomas Skyn.

In the Reign of Henry VIII. the Inhabitants of this Pariſh ſeem to have been in very mean Circumſtances, by letting their Church go to ruin; for in the Preamble to King James I's Grant of an Acre of Ground to the Pariſh for a Burial Place, 'tis expreſſly ſaid, that in the ſaid Henry's Time there was no Pariſh Church here; wherefore the ſaid Prince cauſed one to be built for the Uſe of the Inhabitants. which was erected at the Expence of Prince Henry and divers of the Nobility.

This Church, after many expensive Reparations and Enlargements, was taken intirely down in the Year 1720, and soon after the first Stone of the present stately and magnificent Fabrick was laid, under which was put a Copper-Plate, with the following Inscription:

D. S.

Serenissimus Rex Georgius, per Deputatum suum, Reverendum Admodum in Christo Patrem, Richardum Episcopum Salisburyensem, summum suum Elemosynarium, Adfistente (Regis jussu) Domino Thomâ Hewyt, Equite Aurato, Ædificiorum Regiorum Curatore Principali, primum hujus Ecclesiæ Lapidem posuit, Martii XIX. An. Dom. MDCCXXI. Annoq; Regni sui VIII. vo.

On this Occasion his Majesty gave one hundred Guineas to be distributed among the Workmen; as he likewise did some Time after the Sum of fifteen hundred Pounds to purchase an Organ for the Church.

To shew the Time when this stately Church was finished, the following Inscription is put on the West Front thereof:

D. Sacram Ædem. S. Martini Parochiani Extrui fec. A. D. MDCCXXVI.

The Church was no sooner finished, than it was consecrated on the 20th of October, Anno 1716.

This noble Edifice was chiefly erected by Act of Parliament, at the Expence of the Landlords and Tenants of the Parish, the former paying four Fifths, and the latter one; the whole Charge of Building, Decorations, &c. according to the Account of Mr. Walter Turner, the Church-warden, when it was finished, appears to be as follows: To Workmens Bills for building 33017 l. 9 s. 3 d. To recasting the Bells, including the old and new Metal, 1264 l. 18 s. 3 d. To an Organ 1500 l. To Decorations, altering the Communion-Plate, &c. 1109 l. 2 s. 10 d. Sum Total, 36891 l. 10 s. 4 d. But of this Sum only 33450 l. being granted by Parliament, the rest was raised by the Royal Benefaction, Subscription, and the Sale of Seats in the Church.

This beautiful Church, which is situate on the East Side of the Lane to which it gives Name, is denominated from its Dedication to Martin, an Hungarian Saint; and the Epithet in the Fields, from its Situation therein, when it was taken into the Bill of Mortality, whereby it is distinguished from other Churches of the same Appellation in the City of London.

This Church antiently belonging to the Abbot and Canons of Westminster, they erected the same into a Vicarage, the Advowson whereof Queen Mary, by her Letters Patent of the 3d of March, Anno 1553, granted to the Bishop of London and his Successors, in whose Collation it still remains. But the Tithes of the Rectory were granted by Letters Patent of Queen Elizabeth, to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, in the Year 1560.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

At the South East Boundary of this Parish antiently stood the Vicarage House; which coming to Sir Thomas Palmer, about the Year 1550, he rebuilt and very much enlarged the same; as it was likewise some Time after, by William Cecil, Baron of Burleigh, and Lord High Treasurer of the Kingdom, in a very magnificent Manner; and who raised and paved the Street before it, for the Convenience of Passage. The Name of this stately Building is still preserved in a Street of the same Appellation in the Strand.

A little West from Cecil-house, was situate that of Salisbury; which has given Denomination to a Street of that Name, erected on the Site thereof, and leads to the Stairs of the same Denomination.

A small Watercourse having antiently intersected the Street called the Strand, a Bridge was erected across the same, at the North West Angle of Salisbury-house; the Appellation of which is still preserved in the Lane of that Name, which runs down to the River Thames.

Almost contiguous to Ivy-bridge on the South-West, stood the City Mansion of the Bishop of Durham; which was erected by Thomas Hatfield, Bishop of that See about the Year 1365, for the Use of himself and Successors.

Before this House, fronting the Strand, were improperly situate the Bishop's Stables; which being mean and despicable Hovels, formed a very disagreeable Prospect in the High-street, leading to the Royal Palace. The Earl of Salisbury, in the Reign of King James I. pulled down the same, and in their stead erected a magnificent Stone Edifice, which the King denominated Britain's Burse; but that Name not prevailing, it was afterwards denominated the New-Exchange. But the same being deserted by the Mercers, and others who kept Shops therein, it was taken down in the Year 1737, and is now erected into handsome Dwelling-houses and Shops.

Contiguous to Durham-house, on the West, was situate the City Residence of the Bishop of Norwich; which was purchased by Nicholas Heath, Archbishop of York, about the Year 1556, for his City Mansion, and that of his Successors, in lieu of Whitehall, their antient Palace, which was sold by Cardinal Wolsey to King Henry VIII. as already mentioned. This House coming to the Duke of Buckingham, he demised the same and Garden to certain Builders; who, on the Site thereof erected divers beautiful Streets and Alleys, wherein his Name and Title, viz. John Villars, Duke of Buckingham, are recorded; viz. John-street, Villars-street, Duke-street, Of-alley, and Buckingham-street. However, these Streets, together, are still denominated York-buildings.

West from Norwich-house, opposite the End of St. Martin's-lane, in the Village of Charing, (where at present Northumberland-house is situate) antiently stood

A little Westward from this Hospital King Edward I. caused a stately Cross to be erected, in Commemoration of Eleanor, his beloved Consort; Part of which having continued till the late Civil War, the same was intirely destroyed by the Populace, as a Monument of Popish Superstition. Since the Erection of this Cross, an Hermitage, with a Chapel of St. Catharine, seems to have been erected between the same and the Hospital of Rouncival; but when, or by whom it was built, is no better known than the Time of its Dissolution.

Ibid.

Opposite Charing-cross, (so denominated from the Village wherein it stood) on the North, between St. Martin's-lane and the Mewse, was situate an Hospital for Lunatics; but the King caused them to be removed to Bethlem Hospital, without Bishopsgate. See Bishopsgate Ward.

Between Charing-cross and Whitehall, on the Place still denominated Scotland-yard, antiently stood a magnificent Palace, for the Reception of the Kings of Scotland, and their Retinues; when they came to Westminster to do Homage for the Counties of Cumberland and Huntingdon, and other Fiefs, held by them of the Crown of England. This Edifice is said to have been erected by King Edgar, about the Year 970.

On the Place where the Royal Palace of St. James's is situate, antiently stood the Hospital of St. James, which, according to divers Historians, was founded by the Citizens of London long before the Conquest (which, I think, is not to be questioned, seeing by a MS. in the Cotton Library, it appears to have been visited by Gislebertus, Abbot of Westminster, on the Wednesday after the Feast of St. John Baptist, Anno 1100) for the Reception of fourteen Leprous Maids; for whose Support they endowed the same with two Hides, or Ploughs of Land, with their Appurtenances, adjoining.

Some Time after, divers others of the aforesaid Citizens having conferred upon the said Hospital, Lands to the Amount of fifty-six Pounds per Annum, eight Brethren were thereupon added to the Foundation, for the Celebration of the Divine Offices; which so animated others of the Citizens, that they gave to the said Brethren and Sisters, four Hides, or Ploughs of Land in their Neighbourhood; and eighty Acres of Wood and Arable Land in the Parishes of Hendon, Calcote and Hampstead; which Edward I. not only confirmed, together with all their other Possessions, but likewise granted to the said Hospital an annual Fair of seven Days, to begin on the Eve of St. James's Festival.

This Hospital being surrendered to Henry VIII. in the Year 1532, he granted certain Annuities to the several Sisters during their respective Lives. And having caused the ancient Building to be taken down, erected on the Site thereof a stately Mansion, and denominated the same The Manor of St. James's: And walling in the neighbouring Fields, converted them into a beautiful Park, for the Convenience of this and that of his Palace of Whitehall.

North-west of Charing-cross is still remaining an antient Building, denominated the Mewse (from Mew, a Term among Falconers, to Moult, or cast Feathers); it appears to be a Place of considerable Antiquity, by its being employed for the Accommodation of the King's Falconers and Hawks, so early as the first of Richard II. in the Year 1377. But in the twenty-eighth of Henry VIII. Anno 1537, the King's Stables at Lomeshury, corruptly Bloombsbury, near High-Holborn, being destroyed by Fire, the Hawks were removed, and the Mewse enlarged and fitted up for the Reception of his Majesty's Horses, where they have been kept ever since. But the Building being greatly decayed by devouring Time, the North Side thereof was rebuilt in the Year 1732, in a very magnificent manner by his present Majesty.

King James I. in the Year 1606, gave to the Inhabitants of this Parish an Acre of Ground on the North Side of the Mewse, lying between St. Martin's-lane, Castle-street, Duke's-street, and Heming's-row, for a common Burial Ground. On the West Side of which is built Dr. Tennison's School and Library, and the Parish Workhouse for the Reception of the Poor.

Par. Rec.

In the Year 1699, King William III. granted to the Inhabitants of this Parish a convenient Passage out of the Spring-garden into St. James's-park, they keeping the Pavement in Repair.

Ibid.

In digging a Foundation for the present Church, at the Depth of thirteen Feet, were discovered some human Bones of an uncommon Size, many of which were broken in pieces by the Labourers before they were taken notice of; and only a Rib, Hip, Thigh, Leg and Foot Bones being preserved, they were lately in the Museum of the curious Mr. Edward Barnard, a Surgeon, in Great Russell-street, Bloombsbury, where I measured the Leg and Thigh Bones, which are three Feet and eleven Inches long; but the Ends of both being much impaired by their long Interment, have lost at least an Inch, besides the Loss of the Cartilages; which being considered, according to the Rule of Proportion, the Person they belonged to, must have been at least eight Feet and four Inches in Height; and the Foot Bones being fourteen Inches and five-eighths long, the whole must have been about fifteen Inches and a Half in Length. These Bones being compared to those of the Skeleton of a Man of six Feet two Inches in the said Museum, the last only appeared as Childrens Bones to the former, both in Length and Thickness.

The Remarkables in this Parish at present, are, the Royal Palace of St. James's, with Part of its beautiful Park; the Admiralty Office; a fine Equestrian Statue of King Charles I. where Charing-cross was situate; one Square; a Fleish and Part of a Hay Market; four English and three French Chapels; one Free and two Charity Schools; two Alms-houses; a publick Library; a Parish Workhouse; four Bagnio's; two Cold-Baths; a Tennis-Court; four Sets of Steps, or Stairs to take Water at; and three Water Machines, which supply their respective Neighbourhoods with sweet Water; one of which, in York-Buildings, is wrought by Horses, and the other two, in St. Martin's and Hartshorn Lanes, by the Water of a Common Sewer.

When, or by whom the old Church that belonged to this Parish was at first erected, is unknown; yet that it is of great Antiquity is evident, by the decretal Sentence of Stephen Arch- bishop of Canterbury, &c. in the Year 1222, as mentioned in the Account of the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields; in which Sentence the Bounds of the Parish of St. Margaret, Westminster, are said to have reached to a Chapel near this Church; which is there only called by the latter Part of its Name, viz. Innocent's Church; whereas the proper Name thereof was, The Church of St. Mary and the Innocents, of the Strand.

This Church was situate in a pleasant Church-yard on the South Side of the Strand, and Site whereon the East End of Somerset-house at present stands; for which it was obliged to make way, at the unjust and arbitrary Order of Edward Seymour, Duke of Somerset, and Prime Minister to King Edward VI. in the Year 1549, which depriving the Parishioners of a Place of Worship, they at first joined themselves to the Church of St. Clement Danes, and afterwards to that of St. John Baptist in the Savoy; where they continued till Ann. 1723.

The Vestry is select, consisting of fifteen Members; two Church-wardens; two Overseers of the Poor; two Constables; two Scavengers, who pay the Raker, for cleansing the Streets, and carrying away the Dust, the Sum of sixty-six Pounds per Annum; one Beadle; six Watchmen; three hundred and twenty-six Houses.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

This Parish originally consisted of the Village denominated the Strand, the Church whereof, as already mentioned, was situate on the South Side of the same; and in whose Neighbourhood must have stood the Chapel above-mentioned, which I imagine was situate in Holywell-street (now called the Backside of St. Clement's) wherein is still a Well, in a Baker's Yard, which was denominated Holywell; which Appellation it undoubtedly received from its Vicinity to some consecrated Place.

Adjoining to the late Church of this Parish, on the South, fronting the River Thames, was situate an Inn of Chancery, which, from its Neighbourhood to the Bishop of Chester's House and the Strand, was indifferently denominated, Chester's, or Strand-Inn.

Almost contiguous to this Inn, on the West, was the City Mansion of the Bishop of Landaff: And on the North-west thereof, (a little East of the present Catharine-street) in the High-street, was a handsome Bridge, denominated from its Situation Strand-Bridge, thro' which ran a small Watercourse from the Fields, which gliding along a Lane below, had its Influx to the Thames, near Somerset-Stairs. All which Buildings, together with the Parish Church and Lane, as already mentioned, were obliged to make way for Somerset-house, its Gardens and Stables.

Almost adjoining to Strand-bridge, on the West, were contiguously situate the City Residences of the Bishops of Chester and Worcester; before the former of which was erected a Stone Cross, where the Judges itinerant frequently used to sit, hear and determine Causes.

Things remarkable in this Parish at present are, its magnificent and stately Church, on the Site whereof, till the Year 1714, a very lofty May-pole stood, which on publick Occasions was adorned with Streamers, Flags, Garlands of Flowers, &c. At the digging a Foundation for the present Church, the Virgin Earth was discovered at the Depth of nineteen Feet; whereby 'tis manifest, that the Ground in this Neighbourhood originally, was not much higher than the River Thames; therefore this Village was truly denominated the Strand, from its Situation on the Bank of the River.

The magnificent Palace of Somerset-house in this Parish, which devolved to the Crown upon the Attainder of Edward Duke of Somerset, is occasionally used for the Reception and Entertainment of Foreign Princes and Ambassadors; as its pleasant Walks and beautiful Bowling-Green are for the Diversion of the Citizens.

At the Western Boundary of this Parish, and North Side of the Strand, antiently stood the City Mansion of the Earl of Exeter; but the Site and Gardens thereof being converted into Streets, &c. the Name thereof is still preserved therein, as well as 'tis in the Exchange of the same Appellation.

Here are likewise an English and a Greek Chapel, two Charity-Schools, an Exchange, and a Set of Steps or Stairs to take Water at.

St. Paul's, Covent-Garden.

In the Year 1222, the Spot whereon the best and greatest Part of this Parish is situate (and from which the same, together with its Square and Market, are denominated) was a large Garden belonging to the Abbot and Convent of Westminster; wherefore it justly received the Appellation of Convent-Garden, now corruptly Covent or Common-Garden; which Garden, at the Dissolution of religious Houses by Henry VIII. devolving to the Crown, Edward VI. Anno 1547, conferred the same upon Edward Duke of Somerset: But soon after, upon his Attainder, it reverting to the Crown, Edward on the 6th of May, Anno 1552, granted the same, together with a Field contiguous on the North, denominated the Seven Acres, (but from its Length, vulgarly the Long Acre, which Name is still preserved in the Street of that Denomination) to John Earl of Bedford.

Some Time after, the Number of Houses upon new Foundations having greatly increased in this Neighbourhood, Francis, Earl of Bedford, about the Year 1640, erected a magnificent Chapel (now the Parish Church) for the Convenience of his new Tenants in the Performance of their religious Duties; with an Intent of settling a Stipend of one hundred Pounds per Annum, and a House, towards the Maintenance and Habitation of a Minister, to officiate therein.

On the 7th of January, Anno 1645, the Precinct of Covent-garden was, by an Ordinance of the Lords and Commons then sitting at Westminster, separated from the Parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, and constituted a Parish in all Respects independent, with a Power of raising Money to defray the necessary Expences of the new Establishment; and to elect Officers for the good Government of the Parish. But this being the Act of an illegal Power, 'twas, in the Year 1660, by an Act of the first Parliament after the Restoration, anew constituted a distinct Parish, by the Appellation of St. Paul's, Covent-garden; and at the same Time discharged from all manner of Dependance upon that of St. Martin; and the Patronage thereof vested in William, Earl of Bedford, his Heirs and Assigns.

And by the said Act, the Rector of the Parish, and his Successors, are incorporated to have perpetual Succession, and a Rent of one hundred Pounds per Annum settled upon them, issuing out of three Houses in the Square, denominated Covent-Garden, to be paid Quarterly, upon the Penalty of twenty Pounds, for an Elapse of Payment for twenty-one Days. And by the same Authority, the Rector, with the Consent of the Patron, is impowered to nominate a Person duly qualified for his Curate-Assistant. And as a further Maintenance for the Rector, and Provision for the Curate and other Church Officers, it was ordained by the Authority aforesaid, that on every Easter-Tuesday three Church-wardens shall be chosen, viz. One by the Patron, another by the Rector, and a Third by the Parishioners; which Church-wardens, or any two of them, are impowered, by a Pound-Rate upon Houses, (the Mansion called Bedford-house, with its Appurtenances, only excepted) according to their improved Value, to raise annually two hundred and fifty Pounds, by an Assessment to be made yearly, within twenty-eight Days, after the said Day of Election, to be confirmed by two Justices of the Peace within the City, or Liberty of Westminster, under their Hands and Seals, to be collected by the said Church-wardens, or those they shall appoint; and in case of Non-payment, to be levied by Distress. Out of which Sum, the said Church-wardens are annually to pay the Rector the Sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds, and to the Curate fifty Pounds, by Quarterly Payments, upon Pain of Imprisonment, till the said Sums are respectively paid. And out of the remaining Sum of fifty Pounds, the Parish Clerk receives thirty, and the two Sextons twenty Pounds per Annum. And by the said Act of Parliament, the Jurisdiction of the Bishop of London and his Successors, is to be as amply exercised in this, as in any other Parish within the Diocese of London.

This Church, which is a Rectory, situate at the West End of the Square and Market of Covent-garden, is denominated from its being dedicated to the Apostle St. Paul, and the Place of its Situation.

The Vestry is neither select nor general, but consists of such who have either served, or fined for Church-warden; one Burgess, and his Assistant; three Church-wardens; two Overseers of the Poor; four Constables; four Scavengers, who pay the Raker two hundred Pounds per Annum, for cleansing the Streets, and carrying

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

Edward VI. in the Year 1552, had no sooner granted the Precinct of Covent-garden, with its Appurtenances, to John Earl of Bedford, than he erected a House therein for his City Mansion. This House, which stood on the North Side of the Strand (till Ann. 1704,) where at present the lower End of Southampton-street is situate, was a mean Wooden Building, shut up from the Street by an ordinary Brick Wall, with a Garden on the North, whose northern Inclosure, or Wall, ran along where the Front of the southern Row of Buildings of Covent-garden is at present situate; without which, where the Street now is, the Market was kept. But Southampton and Tavistock-streets, with Southampton-passage, being erected on the Site and Gardens of Bedford-house, the Market was removed farther into the Square; which has proved so very prejudicial to the magnificent Buildings thereof, that instead of their being inhabited by Persons of the greatest Distinction as formerly, they are now obliged to take up with Vintners, Coffeemen, and other such Inhabitants.

In digging lately in King-street, and the northern Side of Covent-garden-square, great Quantities of human Bones were discovered; but as it does not appear that ever there was any Church in this Place before the present, I am of Opinion, that this Cemetery must either have belonged to St. Martin's Church, or by the Abbot and Convent of Westminster have been appointed a Place of Burial, during the Rage of some great Pestilence.

Things remarkable at present are, a magnificent Square, wherein (to its great Disgrace) is kept an Herb and Fruit Market; two Charity Schools; one Meeting-house; a Parish Workhouse; two Bagnio's, a Cold Bath; and a Playhouse.

Having gone thro' the Accounts of the several Parishes of the City and Liberties of Westminster, I shall now give a compendious Account of its Government.

Until

Act Parl.
27 Eliz.

Until the Reformation, Anno 1539, the Village, or Town of Westminster, was under the arbitrary Government of the Abbot and Monks of that Name; as it was afterwards under that of the Bishop, and the Dean and Chapter; till settled by Act of Parliament in the twenty-seventh of Queen Elizabeth, Anno 1585, whereby the Civil Government thereof is lodged in the Hands of the Laity; tho' the Dean by the said Act is impowered to nominate and appoint the chief Officers thereunto belonging, viz. The High Steward, who, if guilty of no Malversation, holds his Office during Life. But this Officer seldom officiating, leaves the Management of Affairs to his Deputy, who being a Person well versed in the Laws of the Kingdom, is appointed by him, and confirmed by the Dean, and generally holds his Office during Life, or the Government of his Patron.

This City, or Borough, with its Liberties, being by the said Authority divided into twelve Wards, the Dean, or the High-Steward, or his Deputy, are impowered, for the better Government of the same, yearly, upon Easter-Thursd. to nominate and elect twelve sufficient Merchants or Tradesmen, to be denominated Burgeses, with a like Number of Persons for their Deputies, or Assistants, to preside over the respective Wards for one Year, and so from Year to Year during Life, Good-behaviour, or Residence in the City, or Liberties thereof. And that all and every of the said Burgeses, or their Deputies, that shall refuse to serve, after he, or they are duly elected, the former to forfeit the Sum of ten, and the latter five Pounds each, to be levied by Distress. And that as often as any of the said twelve Burgeses, or their Assistants, shall happen to die, remove, or be displaced, their several Places to be supplied by proper Persons to be chosen by the said Dean, High-Steward, or his Deputy; who are likewise to appoint, out of the twelve first, two to be denominated Chief Burgeses, who are likewise to continue as such for the Term of one Year, upon the Penalty of ten Pounds, to be levied as aforesaid.

Ibid.

And by the same Authority, the said Dean and his Successors, the High-Steward, or his Deputy, the two Chief and other ten Burgeses, or any three, or four of them, (whereof the said Dean, High-Steward, or his Deputy, or one of the Chief Burgeses, to be at all Times one) for the good Government of this City, or Borough, and the Liberties thereof, to hear, examine, determine and punish, according to the Laws of the Kingdom, or laudable and lawful Custom of the City of London, all Matters of Incontinencies, Common Scolds, Inmates and common Nuisances; and to commit all Persons to Prison that shall be guilty of a Breach of the Peace, of which they are to give Notice to a Justice, or Justices of the Peace for the County of Middlesex, within the Space of twenty-four Hours.

Ibid.

And it is further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That all good Ordinances that shall, from Time to Time, be made by the said Dean and High-Steward, with the Assent of the Burgeses and their Assistants, for, or concerning the Government of this City and Liberties, not repugnant to the Royal Prerogative, or the Laws of the Nation, shall stand and be in full Force and Strength. And that as often as it shall happen that the said Dean and High-Steward of Westminster, or his Deputy, shall defer, or be remiss in nominating, or choosing the several Burgeses at the Time above-mentioned, then and in every such Case, two Justices of the Peace of the County of Middlesex are impowered to nominate and chuse the said Burgeses, out of such Persons qualified as aforesaid; who, upon such an Election, are to enjoy the same Liberties and Powers in all Respects, as if chosen by the said Dean and High-Steward. And it is also provided, that no Person shall be compelled to serve the Office of Burges above the Term of one Year; and that all Persons who shall fine for the same, shall be exempt from serving for the Space of five Years.

The Liberty, or Suburbs of Westminster being greatly increased both in Number of Houses and Inhabitants, 'twas therefore judged necessary to increase both the Number of Burgeses and Assistants from twelve to sixteen each; which Burgeses, with their Assistants, are by the said Act of Parliament impowered to act in all Respects as the Aldermens Deputies of the City of London.

Ibid.

The High-Steward of Westminster, or his Deputy, attended by the Burgeses, act as Sheriff, by presiding at the Court Leet, and Chairman at the Quarter-Sessions. The next Officer in Dignity is the High-Bailiff, who is likewise chosen by the Dean for Life: This Officer in some measure also represents a Sheriff; for he summons Juries, manages Elections for Members of Parliament, has the several Bailiffs of Westminster subordinate to him; and by having all Fines and Forfeitures belonging to him, his Office is thereby rendered very profitable. The next Officers in Rank and Power are, the Chief Burgeses, Burgeses and their Assistants; and the inferior Officers are, the Town Clerk, Assessor, and Crier.

Among the Orders, or Ordinances for the good Government of the City of Westminster, made by the Dean, High-Steward and Burgeses in the Year 1585, the eleventh Order appoints, That the Number of Alehouses to be kept in the City and Liberty of Westminster shall not exceed one hundred, viz. sixty in the Parish of St. Margaret, twenty in that of St. Martin, and in the Parish of St. Clement, and Precinct of the Savoy, twenty; whereby 'tis manifest, that the Numbers of Houses and Inhabitants in the Parish of St. Margaret at that Time, did exceed those of the whole Liberty (which at present is so vastly numerous) one fifth. And it likewise shews, that the Number of the Houses and Inhabitants then in the City and Liberty of Westminster, were but about a twelfth Part of the present Number; for at that Time they had only one hundred Alehouses, whereas at present the Number in the said District amounts to 1164.

Rec. St.
Marg. Par.

This Government having little in it representing that of a City, Westminster, in that Respect, seems not to be upon a much better Foot than a Country Market Town, seeing it has neither a Power to make Freemen, or erect a Corporation of Trade; nor has any other Courts than those of the Leet and Sessions, and Court of Requests lately erected.

Though this City had the Honour of a Government conferred upon it by Parliament in the Year 1585, yet it had not that of Arms till the first of October, Anno 1601, when William De-thick, Garter King at Arms, and William Camden, Clarencieux King at Arms, granted it the Arms above exhibited, viz. In a Shield Azure a Portcullis Or, on a Chief of the Second, the Arms of King Edward the Confessor, between the two united Roses of Lancaster and York.

Before I leave this Part of the Work, I think it will not be amiss to say something concerning a very great Work erected in this City.

The Inhabitants of Westminster being of opinion that a Bridge across the River Thames at their City, would be of great Advantage to them, therefore, in the Year 1735, they applied to Parliament for a Power to enable them to erect one: Their Petition being taken into Consideration, it was thereupon enacted, That a Bridge be erected from the New Palace-yard to the opposite Shore, with such such Materials as the Commissioners appointed to erect the same shall judge proper.

Though great Opposition was made by the City of London, Borough of Southwark, Company of Watermen, and the West-Country Bargemen, who severally petitioned the Parliament against erecting a Bridge at Westminster, the Act passed for the building thereof.

Divers Projects for erecting the intended Bridge being taken into Consideration, the following being judged the most eligible, the same was approved of by the Commissioners; which is as follows:

A large Hole or Cavity, of the Depth of five or six Feet, was ordered to be dug in the Bed, or Bottom of the River, by Ballastmen belonging to the Trinity-house, in which was sunk a large wooden Case, or Frame, Water-proof (altho' the same, when forced down, was filled with Water); which was raised again by pumping out the Water, and the same was as often put down and raised again, by letting in and pumping out the Water, till it was fixed upon an exact Level; and when the same was emptied for the last Time, one of the Piers of the intended Bridge was therein erected; which being finished, the Sides of the said Case were taken from their bottom, and applied to another, to erect a second Pier on, and then to others, till the whole Number, as appear in the fine Draught hereunto annexed.

This Bridge is allowed to be one of the finest in the World. It is built in a neat and elegant Taste, and with such Simplicity and Grandeur, that whether viewed from the Water, or by the Passenger who walks over it, it fills the Mind with an agreeable Surprise. The Semi-octangular Towers which form the Recesses of the Foot-way, the Manner of placing the Lamps, and the Height of the Balustrade, are at once the most beautiful, and in every other Respect, the best contrived.

It is forty-four Feet wide; a commodious Foot-way is allowed for Passengers, about seven Feet broad on each Side, raised above the Road allowed for Carriages, and paved with broad Moor Stones, while the Space left between them is sufficient to admit three Carriages, and two Horses to go a-brest without the least Danger.

From Wharf to Wharf, its Extent is 1223 Feet, which is above 300 Feet wider than the same River at London-bridge.

The free Water-way, under the Arches of this Bridge, is 870 Feet, which is more than four times as much as the free Water-way between the Sterlings of London-bridge; which, together with the Gentleness of the Stream, are the chief Reasons why no sensible Fall of Water can ever stop, or in the least endanger the smallest Boats, in their Passage through the Arches.

It consists of fourteen Piers, thirteen large, and two small Arches, all semi-circular, and two Abutments.

The Length of every Pier is about seventy Feet from Point to Point, and each End terminated with a saliant Right-Angle against either Stream.

The two middle Piers are each seventeen Feet wide at the Springing of the Arches, and contain 3000 cube Feet, or near 200 Tons of solid Stone; and the others decrease in Breadth, equally on each Side by one Foot; so that the two next to the largest are each sixteen Feet wide; and so on to the two least on each Side, which are 12 Feet wide at the Springing of the Arches.

Each of these Piers are four Feet wider at their Foundation, than at the Top; and each of them is laid on a strong Bed of Timber, of the same Shape as the Pier, about eighty Feet long, twenty-eight Feet wide, and two Feet thick.

Vol. II. NUMB. CXIV.

The Value of 40,000*l.* is computed to be always under Water, in Stone and other Materials. And here it may not be improper to observe, that the Caisson on which the first Pier was sunk, contained 150 Loads of Timber; for it is a Precaution used in most heavy Buildings, to lay their Foundation on Planks, or Beds of Timber, which (if found when laid, and always kept wet) will not only remain sound, but grow harder by Time.

The Depths or Heights of every Pier are different; but none of them have their Foundations laid at a less Depth than five Feet under the Bed of the River, and none at a greater Depth than fourteen Feet under the said Bed. This difference is occasioned by the Nature and Position of the Ground; for though the Foundations of all the Piers and Abutments are laid in a hard Bed of Gravel (which by boring was found to grow harder, the deeper it was bored into) yet this Bed of Gravel lies much lower, and is more difficult to come at on the Surry Side, than on the Westminster Side.

All the Piers are built the same in the Inside, as on the Outside, of solid Portland Block Stones, none less than one Ton, or twenty Hundred Weight, unless here and there a smaller called a Closer, placed between four other larger Stones; but most of them are two or three Tons Weight, and several four or five Tons. All the Stones are set in (and their Joints filled with) a Cement called Dutch Tarris, and they are besides fastened together with Iron Cramps run in with Lead, and so placed that none of those Cramps can be seen, or ever be affected by the Water.

All the Arches of Westminster-bridge are semi-circular, that Form being one of the strongest, and the best adapted for Dispatch in Building.

They all spring from about two Feet above Low-water-mark, and from no higher; which renders the Bridge much stronger than if the Arches sprung from taller Piers, besides the Saving of a great Quantity of Materials and Workmanship.

The middle Arch is seventy-six Feet wide, and the others decrease in Width equally on each Side by four Feet; so that the two next to the middle Arch are seventy-two Feet wide; and so on to the least of the large Arches, which are each fifty-two Feet wide. As to the two small ones close in Shore to the Abutments, they are each about twenty-five Feet wide.

The Soffit of every Arch is turned and built quite through the same as in the Fronts, with large Portland Blocks; over which is built (bonded in with the Portland) another Arch of Purbeck Stone, four or five times thicker on the Reins than over the Key, so calculated and built, that by the help of this secondary Arch, together with the incumbent Load of Materials, all the Parts of every Arch are in Equilibrio: So that each Arch can stand single, without affecting, or being affected by, any of the other Arches.

Moreover, between every two Arches a Drain is managed to carry off the Water and Filth, which in Time might penetrate and accumulate in those Places, to the great Detriment of the Arches. Some Bridges having been ruined for want of this Precaution; which should be observed in all considerable Stone or Brick Bridges: And yet (as far as I have been able to learn) it has been always omitted.

Lastly, just above and below each Abutment, there are large and commodious Flights of Moor Stone Steps, for the shipping and landing of Goods and Passengers.

Now this Bridge is finished, there is not perhaps another in the whole World that can be compared to it: All the Piers are laid at a considerable Depth under the Bed of the River, in a hard Bed of Gravel, which never requires Piling, it being, after Rock, the best Sort of Foundation; whereas the usual Method of building Stone or Brick Bridges over large tide Rivers, is to build them upon Stilts; that is, driving Piles in the Bed of the River, sawing their Heads at Low-water-mark, and often above; then laying some Planks, to erect the Piers thereon. Such are the Foundations of London and Rochester Bridges, and of a great many others in Great-Britain, as well as abroad.

The Materials are the best four Kinds of Stone (for the several Uses to which they are employed); that can be had in London; and they are all, not only very durable, but some of the heaviest in England, some Kinds of Marble only excepted. And the Size and Disposition of those Materials are such, that there is no false Bearing, or so much as a false Joint, in the whole Bridge; so that every Part is fully and properly supported; and whatever ought to be of one Stone, is not made of several small ones, as is but too common in other Buildings.

Instead of Chalk, small Stones, or Rubbish, with which the Insides of most Buildings are filled, the Piers are entirely built with solid Blocks of Portland, and secured as I have explained above: And in building the Arches, such Precautions have been used as have been scarcely ever before observed, such as building them quite through with the same Sort of large Stones as in the Fronts, and thus destroying their lateral Pressures by a proper Disposition of the Materials in, between, and over these Arches.

Nothing is more common in the Construction of Bridges, than for some of the Piers to sink, or at least so far give way, as to occasion the Necessity of rebuilding some of them even before the Fabrick is passable; this has been the Case of one of the Piers of Westminster Bridge; which, by sinking, damaged the Arch to which it belonged, so much, that the Commissioners thought fit to have it pulled down; when by laying prodigious Weights on the lower Part of the Pier, the Foundation was settled and set to rights, in such a manner as to render it completely secure from all Accidents of the like kind for the future. This Misfortune happening in 1747, when this noble Structure was almost completed, prevented its being finished before the tenth of November. When the last Stone was laid by Thomas Lediard, Esq; in the Presence of several of the Commissioners; and on the seventeenth, at about twelve at Night, it was opened by a Procession of several Gentlemen of that City, the chief Artificers of that Work, and a Crowd of Spectators, preceded by Trumpets, Kettle-drums, &c. and Guns firing during the Ceremony.

As to the Time that has been employed in erecting this magnificent Bridge, it is sufficient to observe, that the Ballast-men having dug the Foundation of the first Pier to the Depth of five Feet under the Bed of the River, levelled it, and kept it level by a proper Inclosure of strong Piles, and the Caisson being brought over the Place where it was to be sunk; on the twenty-ninth of January, 1738-9, the first Stone of the Western middle Pier was laid by the Right Honourable the Earl of Pembroke: So that the noble Structure was completed in eleven Years and nine Months; a very short Period, considering the vastness of the Undertaking, the prodigious Quantity of Stone made use of, hewn out of the Quarry, and brought by Sea, the Interruptions of Winter, the Damage frequently done by the Ice to the Piling and Scaffolding, and the unavoidable Interruption occasioned twice a Day by the Tide, which, for two Years, reduced the Time of Labour to five Hours a Day.

An Account of the several Sums, played for and lost, or absolutely granted, for building this Bridge, and procuring the several Conveniencies requisite thereto.

A Guard, consisting of twelve Watchmen, is appointed for the Security of the Passage over this Bridge. They are to be upon Duty from the Close of Day every Night, till the Opening of the next Morning. We walk the publick Streets with so much danger in those Hours, that this Provision was extremely necessary upon a Bridge of so great Length, which is not to be transformed into a Street. The Recesses over each Pier, which are built in the Form of Alcoves, and designed as Places of Shelter in bad Weather, of Retirement in case of an accidental Danger or Difficulty in the Passage, might have otherwise served for Places of Ambush for Robbers and Cut-throats; though indeed even these Occupations, which thrive so much in our Time, could not have been followed here without Hazard, as there is no way of escaping but at the two Ends of the Bridge.

BOOK VIII.

Containing an Account of the Ancient and Present State of the several Parishes and Liberties in the County of Middlesex within the Bill of Mortality, with an ample Description of the Remarkables now therein.

THE several Parishes and Liberties within this District being independent of one another, they have neither a general History, or common Government thereunto belonging; therefore, as both their Histories and Governments are separate, I shall severally treat of them in alphabetical Order.

Christ's Church, Spittle-fields.

This Parish, which is a Rectory, situate in the Hundred of Osulston, was (till the Year 1728)

Part

The North West Prospect of Christ Church in Spittlefields.

Part of the Parish of St. Dunstan's, Stepney, denominated Spittle-fields Hamlet; which being, by an Act of Parliament of the same Year, constituted a separate Parish, it became in all Respects distinct and independent on that of Stepney, as if it never had belonged to the same.

The Church of this Parish, which is situate on the South Side of Church-street, is one of the fifty New Churches appointed by Act of Parliament, (in the Year 1710,) to be erected in the Suburbs of the City of London; the Foundation whereof being laid Anno 1723, and the Fabrick finished Anno 1729, it was consecrated on the fifth of July, in the same Year; and towards the Maintenance of its Rector and his Successors, the Parliament granted the Sum of three thousand Pounds, to be laid out in a Purchase of Lands, Tenements, &c. in Fee Simple. And as a further Provision for the said Rector and his Successors, the Church-wardens are by the said Act appointed to pay to him yearly by quarterly Payments the Sum of one hundred and twenty-five Pounds, to be raised by Burial Fees; for which Purpose, the Disposal of the Burial Ground and Parish Vaults are vested in the Vestry (exclusive of the Rector); who, with the Consent of the Bishop are empowered to appoint such Fees for Burials, as shall not exceed thirty Shillings, nor less than two; and also to make Rates for Leave to make Vaults, lay down Grave Stones, and erect sepulchral Monuments.

And for the better securing the Payment of the said Sum of one hundred and twenty-five Pounds to the Rector and his Successors, it is enacted, That on default of Payment, the Rector, for the more easy Recovery of the same, may apply to two, or more Justices of the Peace of the County of Middlesex; who, upon Oath made of the Sum or Sums in Arrear, may compel such Defaulters, by Distress and Sale of their Goods; and if such Distress cannot be had to satisfy such Arrears, then the succeeding Church-wardens to be responsible for the same. It was likewise ordained, by the said Authority, That the Rector should receive no Surplice Fees for Burials, unless he were desired to perform the Funeral Obsequies in the Church, in Presence of the Corps; and then, only such Fees, as should for that Purpose be settled by the Vestry, with Consent of the Bishop.

It was also by the same Authority enacted, That the Rectory shall not be held in Commendam, and that all Licences and Dispensations, for that Purpose, are declared void and of no Effect. It was likewise constituted and appointed, That the Vestry should consist of the Rector, Church-wardens, Overseers of the Poor, and all other Persons who have served, or fined for the Office of Church-warden, or Overseer of the Poor, as long as they shall respectively continue Householders in the Parish; and who from Time to Time are empowered to nominate a Lecturer, Church-wardens, Sidesmen, Parish-clerk, and other Parish Officers; and as Occasion shall be, to remove and discharge the Sexton, Grave-diggers, and other inferior Servants belonging to the Church.

This Parish, as already mentioned, being taken out of that of Stepney, the Advowson of it, as well as that, belongs to the Principal and Scholars of King's Hall and College of Brazen-nose in Oxford.

Here is only one perpetual Donation, given by Prisca Coborne, of six Pounds per Ann. Here are no Monumental Inscriptions worthy of Notice.

Officers, &c. in this Parish.

The Vestry, as already observed, is neither select, nor general, all Persons being admitted that have served, or fined, either for Church-warden, or Overseer of the Poor; two Church-wardens, four Overseers of the Poor, one Constable, nine Headboroughs, four Scavengers, who paid the Raker, for cleansing the Streets and carrying away the Ashes for one Year, the Sum of two hundred and seventy Pounds; two Beadles, seventeen Watchmen, two thousand two hundred and forty-four Houses.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

The Western Part of this Parish (wherein are situate the several Streets, Lanes, Markets, &c. between Crispin-street and Brick-lane) was formerly a large Inclosure denominated Lollesworth Field, and afterwards, from its Vicinity to St. Mary's Hospital, or Spittle, called Spittle-field. See Bishopsgate Ward.

The chief Things remarkable in this Parish at present, are, That most of the Inhabitants are either French, or of French Extraction; who, together with the English, are chiefly employed in the filken Manufacture; a stately Church; an English Chapel; a Quakers, and four French Meeting-houses; two Charity-schools; two English, and two French Alms-houses; with a Work-house for the Reception of the Poor.

N. B. This Parish, being an ancient Hamlet of the Parish of Stepney, has a Right to place an Alms-woman in one of the eight Apartments in the new Alms-houses situate close to the South Side of Bow-road facing the Parsonage House.

Glass-house Liberty.

This Liberty is that Part of the Parish of St. Botolph, Aldersgate which is situate in Pickaxe and Goswell Streets, in the County of Middlesex, and Hundred of Osulston; and is denominated from a Glass-house, which anciently stood here. Till of late, there was but one Government in the Parish; but the Poor of this Liberty having increased considerably, occasioned the City Liberty to separate from them, and each to maintain its own Poor.

Officers, &c. in this Liberty.

Two Overseers of the Poor, one Constable, one Scavenger, who paid the Raker, for cleansing the Streets and carrying away the Dust for one Year, the Sum of twenty Pounds; one Beadle, three Watchmen, one hundred and sixty Houses.

The Remarkables in this Liberty at present, are, Part of Charterhouse-square, an Anabaptist Meeting-house, and a Work-house for the Reception of the Poor.

High-Holbourn Liberty.

This Liberty, which is situate without the Bars of the City of London, is one of the two Liberties in the County of Middlesex, and hundred of Osulston, belonging to the Parish of St. Andrew, Holbourn; though by its separate Government, (exclusive of that of the Church) it acts in all Respects, as if independent.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

Just without Holbourn-bar, on the South Side of Middle-row, anciently stood a Monastery, belonging to the Knights Templars. See Farringdon Ward without.

Ibid.

Adjoining to this Convent, on the West, was situate the Bishop of Lincoln's City Mansion, founded by Robert de Curars, Bishop of that See about the Year 1147. This Edifice since coming to the Earls of Southampton, it was taken down, and on the Site thereof erected the Streets denominated Southampton Buildings.

Ibid.

And in Chancery-lane, where the ancient Part of Lincoln's-Inn is situate, formerly stood the Monastery of Black Friars; which was founded about the Year 1222, and wherein was held Anno 1250, a general Convention of the Order from all Parts, consisting of four hundred Members; who having no Possessions of their own, were sumptuously entertained by the King, Queen, Bishops, Abbots, &c. during their Convocation. But the Prior and Monks removing some Time after, to a more convenient and spacious new Edifice, erected for them in the City (still denominated Black-friars) of London, the old House was by Edward the First, Anno 1288, given to Henry Earl of Lincoln, from whom the present Inn of Court is denominated.

But the greatest Antiquity in this Liberty, is, the Manor of Portpool, (a Prebend of St. Paul's Cathedral of London) so denominated, as it is thought, from its Neighbourhood to a Pool and Place where the great Roman Military Way, called Watling-street, was intersected by that of Old-street, another Roman Way, which led from East to West.

The Capital Messuage belonging to this Manor stood where Gray's-Inn at present is situate; and the only Part thereof that still remains, is the Chapel. This Manor at last coming to the noble Family of Gray of Wilton, the Manor House received the Appellation of Gray's-Inn; which was some Time after, in the Reign of Edward the Third, demised to certain Students of the Law, by that Name. But the Prior and Monks of Shene having obtained a Licence to purchase in Mortmain, Lands, to the Amount of one hundred Pounds per Annum, they purchased the Manor of Portpool, and demis'd Gray's-Inn, the Mansion-house thereof, to certain Students of the Law, for the yearly Rent of six Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence; in whom and their Successors it continued till the general Suppression of Monasteries by Henry the Eighth; who in the Year 1541, granted the same to the then Students of Law, in Fee-Farm, at the aforefaid Rent.

The Remarkables, at present, are, an Inn of Court, and two of Chancery; a Market, denominated from the Lord Brook's City Mansion, at the North-west Angle thereof; two Chapels; an Anabaptist Meeting; a publick Walk; an Alms-house, a Bagnio, a Tennis-court, and a Work-house for the Reception of the Poor.

Norton-Falgate Liberty.

This, which is an extra-parochial Liberty, belonging to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's in London, is situate at the North End of Bishopsgate-street without, in the County of Middlesex, and Hundred of Osulston; but when, by whom, or on what Occasion so denominated, I cannot learn.

Officers, &c. in this Liberty.

Two Overseers of the Poor, one Constable, one Scavenger, who paid the Raker, for cleansing the Streets and carrying away the Dust for one Year, the Sum of forty Pounds; three Head-boroughs, one Beadle, three Watchmen, two hundred and sixty-one Houses. Here is a Charity School.

ROLLS Liberty.

This District consists of that Part of the Parish of St. Dunstan's in the West, which lies in the County of Middlesex; and is so denominated from the great Repository of the modern publick Rolls, or Records of the Kingdom, kept in the Chapel thereof.

Antiquities, &c. in this Liberty.

The Mansion-house of the Master of the Rolls was anciently the Residence of an eminent Jew. This building becoming very ruinous, it was lately rebuilt in a very magnificent Manner, by the late Master of the Rolls. See Farringdon Ward without.

Stow. Sur.
Lond.

Opposite this House, on the West Side of Chancery-lane, stood the City Mansion of the Prior of Neckton-park, in Lincolnshire, denominated Herefleet-Inn, in place whereof, at present is situate the Six Clerks Office. A little higher on the same Side of the Lane, anciently stood the Bishop of Chichester's House, (the Name of which is still preserved in Bishop's-court and Chichester-rents) which having escheated to Henry the Third, he granted it to Ralph Nevil, Bishop of that See, and High Chancellor of England; who devising the same to his Successors in Fee, they still continue possessed of the Site thereof; whereon is erected a Number of Houses.

Ibid.

The Remarkables in this Liberty, at present, are, the Chapel wherein the Rolls are deposited, the Six Clerks Office, the Curfitors Office, an Inn of Chancery, and a Bagnio.

Saffron-Hill Liberty.

This District, which originally was a Village, is one of the two Out-Liberties in the County of Middlesex, and hundred of Osulston, belonging to the Parish of St. Andrew in Holbourn. This Liberty has a Church-warden not above once in six or seven Years.

Antiquities, &c. in this Liberty.

The chief Antiquity in this District, is, the ancient Manor-house of Holbourn; which, together with the Manor, William de Luda, Bishop of Ely, in the Year 1297, devised, for the Use of his Successors in that See; upon Condition, that his immediate Successor should give the Sum of one thousand Marks, as a Fund for the Maintenance of three Chaplains, to officiate in the Chapel of the said House. See Farringdon Ward without.

Things remarkable at present, are, the said Ely House with its Chapel, a Presbyterian Meeting-house, two Charity-schools, and a Workhouse for the Reception of the Poor.

St. ANNE's, Limehouse.

The Parish of St. Dunstan's, Stepney, having increased to such a Degree, both in Number of Houses and Inhabitants, the Village of Limehouse was thereby joined to the main Pile of Buildings which compose this vast City; wherefore it was resolved to erect a Church therein, for the Convenience of the People in the Performance of their religious Duties. Pursuant to this Resolution, one of the fifty new Churches (appointed to be erected within the Bill of Mortality, by Act of Parliament, Anno 1710;) was ordered to be built in this Place; and the Foundation thereof being laid in the Year 1712, the stately Edifice was finished Anno 1724. However, the Inhabitants of the Hamlet not applying to Parliament, to have the same erected into a Parish, until the Year 1729, the Church was not consecrated till the 12th of September, Anno 1730.

Act Parl.
3 G. II.

This Hamlet, and Part of that of Ratcliff, being by the same Authority constituted a Parish, it became in all Respects distinct from that of Stepney, as if it never had belonged to the same; other than that the said Part of Ratcliff Hamlet is only concerned in what regards the Church in this new Parish.

And towards the Support of the Rector of the Parish and his Successors, the Sum of three thousand five hundred Pounds was given by Parliament, to be laid out in Fee Simple. And as a farther Provision for the said Rector, the Church-Wardens are to pay him annually the Sum of sixty Pounds, to be raised by Burial Fees; for which Purpose the Right of Disposal of all the Burial-grounds and Vaults, belonging to the Parish, are vested in the Vestry, exclusive of the Rector; and who, with the Consent of the Bishop, are empowered to appoint such Fees for Burials, as shall not exceed thirty Shillings, nor less than two; and to set such Rates, for Leave to make Vaults, lay down Grave-stones, and erect Monuments.

Ibid.

And for the better securing the Payment of the above-mentioned sixty Pounds to the Rector, it is, by the same Authority, enacted, That on default of Payment, the Rector, for the more easy Recovery of the same, may apply to two, or more Justices of the Peace for the County of Middlesex; who, upon Oath made of the Sum, or Sums in Arrear, may compel such Defaulters by Distress and Sale of the Offenders Goods; and if Distress cannot be had, to satisfy such Arrears, the succeeding Church-wardens to be responsible for the same.

Ibid.

It was also ordained, That the Rector should not receive any Surplice Fees for Burials, unless he was desired to perform the Funeral Rites in the Church, in Presence of the Corps; and then only such Fees, as should for that Purpose be settled by the Vestry, with Consent of the Bishop. And it was ordained, that the Rectory shall not be held in Commendam; and that all Licences and Dispensations for that Purpose are declared void, and of none Effect. However, it is held by the present Rector of Stepney.

Ibid.

It was also ordained, That the Vestry shall consist of the Rector, Church-wardens, Overseers of the Poor, and all such Persons as shall pay twelve Shillings, or more, to the Relief of the Poor; who, from Time to Time, are empowered to nominate a Lecturer, Church-wardens, Sidesmen, Parish-Clerk, and all other Parish Officers; and, as Occasion shall be, to remove and discharge the Sexton, Grave-digger, and other inferior Servants in and about the Church.

No. 114.

This Church is situate on the North Side of Limehouse; and as the Parish thereunto belonging is a Rectory, taken out of the Parish of Stepney, the Advowson of this, as well as that, belongs to the Principal and Scholars of King's Hall and College of Brazen-nose, in Oxford.

The Rector pays neither First-fruits, Tenths, Procurations, or other Disbursements on account of the Cure.

Antiquities, &c. in this Parish.

Limehouse, which is one of the Tower Hamlets, situate in the County of Middlesex, and Hundred of Osulston, was anciently a Village above two Miles distant from the City of London, though at present conjoined by a continued Chain of Buildings.

The Appellation of Limehouse is a Corruption Stow. Sur. of Limeburst; which, by its Saxon Termination, Lond. I take to imply a Grove of Lime Trees; which, according to Stow, anciently abounded in this Neighbourhood.

The Remarkables at present, are, the stately Church, a Presbyterian and an Anabaptist Meeting House, two Docks for Ship-building, a Draw-bridge in Ratcliff narrow Street, three Ports, or Stairs for Passengers to take Water at; a Horse-ferry, newly erected by Act of Parliament, in the narrow Street-aforsaid. And a Work-house for the Reception of the Poor.

St. DUNSTAN's, Stepney.

When, or by whom this Church was founded, I cannot learn: However, it was at first dedicated to all Saints, and named Ecclesia Omnium Sanctorum: If so, its Foundation is owing to the Saxons; which is much corroborated by Stepney's being a Manor in the Conqueror's Time. That it is of considerable Antiquity is evident, by the Will of Eustace, Bishop of London, Anno 1228, wherein he bequeathed certain Lands in this Parish to the Dean and Canons of St. Paul's, reserving only five Marks per Annum, for the Maintenance of a Priest, daily to celebrate the Divine Offices for the Health of his Soul. But it does not appear when it took the Name of St. Dunstan.
